Second Week at Denver.

There was a good attendance all during the second week of the Denver meeting, and some high class racing was furnished. On Monday the 2:16 pace and 2:17 trot were decided. Jim Dixon, winning the pace after five heats, and Dudie Egmont capturing the trot after a hard battle with Listerine and Ed Winship. W. G. Durfee met with bad luck in the trot, his fast horse Charley Mac being distanced the first heat, owing to a bad break on the first turn in the opening heat. It was one of those stand still jimmies that put him out of it, and Durfee let him run nearly a half mile in an effort to get inside the flag. The judges would not stand for this however, and declared Charley Mac distanced. Durfee brought the horse out between heats and drove him a mile very handily in 2:15. Listerine captured the first heat of this race in 2:15½ but had the red flag waved in her face in the fourth heat.

On Tuesday the 2:32 pace furnished a race that was full of excitement. The Colorado mare Queen B. won the first heat in 2:19½ and got the flag in the next heat. Her owner, N. L. Brushe, raised the cry that his mare had been doped, but the judges did not believe him and the opinion was pretty generally expressed that Queen B. simply shot her bolt in the first heat and was pumped out. The race was finally won by the bay mare Plenty by Superior, but Billy Durfee's mare Floretta Belle won two heats and gave her an argument in the others. The 2:19 pace went to Lulu M. in straight heats.

On Wednesday Louise Jefferson and Winfield Stratton won their races handily. In the trot Dr. Shorb and Vic Shellar got second and third money respectively.

Thursday was a California day for the harness brigade. Dr. Boucher's good four year old Harry Logan won the 2:40 pace in straight heats, pacing the first two in 2:12½ and seeming to be capable of making his mile in 2:10 without being pushed to his limit. There is a general impression among the horse men who have seen Harry Logan in his races that he will be a good winner on the Grand Circuit, and pace to a very low mark.

Trainer C. E. Clark won first money in the 2:40 trot with the mare Sue, a daughter of Athadon. She won in straight heats and was not extended in anyone of them.

In the first race on Friday, a pace for three year olds, Silver Coin opened a strong favorite, and after the crowd saw him perform in the warming up before the first heat, they hastened to get their money down on him, as he certainly looked superior to the other horses in the race. They got away good for the first heat, but Silver Coin acted badly, and Thornhud walked in and took the heat without much trouble. Little Girl, touted a sure winner for second money, came in fourth, and Silver Coin was sixth. There was a run to get the money down on Thornhud for the second heat, but the books thought as much of him as the speculators, and didn't want the money. Silver Coin, at even money, went begging. The magnificent Steinway horse paced a beautiful race in the second heat and won easily from Thornhud. The fickle public flopped again, and in the third heat Silver Coin was the favorite. It was neck and neck between them until the stretch was reached, and here the pace got so fast that Silver Coin went up in the air, and, though Durfee brought him down rapidly and started him off again, Thornhud had too big a lead to overcome, and captured the heat and race.

Vendora, the beautiful, won her race, a trot for the 2:22 class, in three straight heats. She easily outclassed the other horses in the race and would move away from them at the beginning of each heat and continue to open the distance to the end. Nellie Campbell did well in the first heat, but after that she was tired, and finally distanced in the last heat.

The sensational feature of the last day's sport was the great performance of the gallant Colorado mare Lottie Smart. She has never in her career been in the condition she is this season and she demonstrated that thoroughly Saturday by taking the great Raymond M. and E. S. around the track at a rate that made their heads swim. With Loomis driving her she stepped three heats in 2:08, 2:08½ and 2:09½, the three fastest heats that have ever been paced on the Overland track and establishing a new record for Colorado mares to try for and clipped 1½ seconds off her record. She did not break once during the three heats and it was by far the prettiest exhibition in harness that has been seen during the meeting.

On account of her performance last week when she won over Raymond M. and Bonnie Direct, she was made a favorite in the first heat, while Raymond M. and E. S. were selling for 2 to 1. They got away to a good start with Lottie Smart on the outside. Loomis was urging the mare on with the evident intention of taking the pole at the first turn, but in her efforts she broke and the break was so disastrous that the field was too far ahead to be caught that heat. Around the back stretch it looked as though she would get the flag, but Loomis brought her up strong in the stretch and while she finished third, she came with speed enough to show that she had her field outclassed.

The next three heats were easy for her. After the first heat was stepped and the time, 2:08, was hung out on the judges' stand the crowd appreciated that a phenomenal performance had occurred and cheered the victor lustily as she was driven back to the stand. As a result of this race it was conceded that Raymond M., at one time considered the best horse ever bred in Colorado, will have to step down from his throne to make room for Lottie Smart. Francis Smart, the owner of the mare, is one of the best pleased men in Denver. For years he has pinned his faith to this mare and she has given indications of great speed, but has never been handled correctly until this year and on account of her inconsistent work the credit she should have won for an occasional fast heat was lost. Nothing could have been prettier than the manner in which she stepped the three heats yesterday and the time she made shows the rate at which she must have traveled.

The 2:10 trot was a very peculiar race and the time of the last two heats, 2:30, was simply ridiculous. Toggles won the first two heats in fast time for a California horse at Denver but was winded and Clark asked permission to withdraw him. Whatever could have been the matter with Stamboulette is not stated, but as he won a heat the week previous in 2:11½ his showing on the last day was simply ludicrous. The summaries of the weeks harness racing follow.

Hamlin's Almont Jr.

H. L. Allen writes as follows of Almont Jr., the stallion which Mr. Hamlin first purchased to head his stud at Village Farm:

"Hamlin's Almont Jr. 2:26, the greatest son of Almont by the records (?), and one of the sires that has assisted in making western New York famous as a breeding place for fast trotters and pacers, has for the past three or four years been kept on the farm of S. M. Thomas of Franklinville, and, although still owned by the Hamlins, probably will end his days on the farm where he now is. Almont Jr. is now twenty-nine years old, but he looks a dozen years younger. He still carries himself as proudly as ever, and the trappy action with which he uniformly endows his get, thus enabling them to outact the Hackneys in the show ring, is still noticeable when he is started up. Few horses of Almont Jr.'s are of any value for breeding purposes, but he still is vigorous, and next year will see another crop of foals added to those he has sired in previous years. In some respects, Almont Jr. is the most remarkable sire ever owned in western New York. He was brought here when trotting-horse breeding in this end of the State was in its infancy. The mares he has mated with during the first ten years of his reign at Village Farm were, with very few exceptions, bred in very weak lines, as compared with those now occupying the paddocks at the great Erie County breeding establishments. One of his earliest foals was Belle Hamlin, the first Erie County bred trotter to heat 2:20 and she was quickly followed by Globe 2:14½ and Justina 2:20, and the trio became famous for their exploits hooked in double and triple harness. Other fast ones came from the youngsters sired by Almont Jr. until he was recognized as one of the great speed sires. Then Mambrino King came to Village Farm and Almont Jr. was relegated to second place. Later on Chimes was bought and Almont Jr. was placed still farther in the background, until after a time he was sent to the Cattaraugus County farm, where he now is. The blood of the son of Almont, however, did not stop with his vanishment, for some of the crack trotters and pacers produced at Village Farm carried his blood. Such race horses as Lord Derby 2:07, Moonstone 2:09, Battleton 2:09½, Charles Sumner 2:10½, Passing Belle 2:08½, Valence 2:12½, Sphere 2:13½, Germaine 2:15½ and many others with fast records were produced by daughters of Almont Jr., and his daughters also are the grandams of Fantasy 2:06, Tudor Chimes 2:13, Midnight Chimes 2:16½, Palo Alto Chimes 2:17½, Charming Chimes 2:17½, Chimes Boy 2:17½ and other fast ones. No less than fourteen of Almont's Jr.'s sons have also sired standard speed. What position he would have occupied had he been given such opportunities in the stud as he could have been given can only be conjectured, but it is safe to say that he would have rivaled some of the sires now placed far ahead of him in public opinion. With the lack of opportunity which has been a feature of the last fifteen years of his life he still is a great sire, and one whose blood long will exert an influence on the American trotter.

Meeting of the State Fair Directors.

A meeting of the Directors of the California State Agricultural Society was held in Sacramento last Saturday, those present being Directors Cox, Johnson, Covey, Terry, Paine, Harris, Rush.

On motion of Mr. Johnson it was decided to employ Architect James Seadler to examine the grandstand at the race track and report on its condition at the next meeting of the board.

The election of Secretary of the society being declared in order, Grove L. Johnson placed in nomination George W. Jackson of Sacramento.

C. W. Paine seconded the nomination, and no other candidates being named, Mr. Jackson was elected by a unanimous vote.

On motion of Mr. Paine, Secretary Jackson was instructed to confer with the members of the Sacramento Street Fair Club with respect to the best methods of advertising the coming State Fair.

On motion of Mr. Terry it was decided to give two harness and four running events each day of the fair.

The matter of securing music for the Park and Pavilion was referred to the Executive Committee, with power to act.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, Friday, September 6th, was set apart as "Drummers' Day."

On motion of Mr. Terry it was decided to suspend the entire free list on the two Saturdays (September 7th and 14th) at both the park and pavilion.

On motion of Mr. Rush the present office force in the Secretary's office was ordered retained.

The board adjourned until Saturday, August 10th.

Three road horses changed hands in New York one day last week at prices that ranged from $1500 to $2500. They were all sold at private sale and none had records.

Frank Frazier and Chehalis.

Allen Lowe, who conducts a department in the Boston News, some times since wrote an article in connection with the sale of the pacer Chehalis 2:04½, that has caused Frazier to come into print himself in denial of the statement. Among other things Mr. Lowe said:

"For a man who got such good money for a hopped pacer, Frazier did not act as though he was happy. He openly admitted that Chehalis would not continue his victorious career, and hinted that he had not given up the key to the control of the horse. This and other things give rise to the belief that Frazier did not own the son of Altamont. Recent developments point to the belief that the ownership, by Mr. Hayes, ceased some time ago, and that it has reverted to a well-known ice cream maker in Boston. It is said, and I believe the authority to be competent, that the passing of Chehalis through the Fasig-Tipton sale was only a preliminary to the announcement of the change of control, which had already been completed. It is now an open secret that Frazier has been sent for and is to take up the training of the horse for the coming season. Frazier claimed when the pacer was sold that he could beat 2:02 with him three times in a race. If this were even nearly correct, Chehalis can beat any pacer that ever raced; for no such ability has ever been displayed, even by Star Pointer, the greatest pacer the world has yet known. The owner believes that Frazier can beat the record which Chehalis has by a couple of seconds very easily, and has planned a coup which, if it is successful, would put a crimp in the talent. It is his intention to name him in any free for all that can be framed. He will be able to put a moderate bet on his horse to win a barrel of money, and as the horse is not rated in the front rank, he certainly can do so if Frazier can get the pacer to race as well as he thinks he can. Three times in 2:02 or better will beat the best pacer out this year a block. It is hardly likely that Chehalis will race better for Frazier than he has for Jere O'Neil. If he can there is no question that he will start with a long price against him."

In answer to Mr. Lowe's article Mr. Frazier writes to the North Pacific Rural Spirit, as follows, from Portland, Ore.:

"Yours of the 24th to hand, enclosing article on Chehalis and myself, written by Lowe. I know him personally and talked to him about Chehalis, but never made any such assertions about Chehalis as he stated. Even if I thought Chehalis could go one heat in 2:02, I would be a fool to say that he could go three heats in any such time. I know the horse could at one time have gone in 2:03 or better, but I don't know about 2:02. I also know that up to the present time O'Neil has not given the horse a chance, and I don't think he can drive him in a race anywhere near what the horse is capable of doing. I know the horse was outside the money in races he should have won and it was not the horse's fault. There is no horse easier to drive than Chehalis when he is right and driven by one who has horse sense. As for me going East to drive him there is nothing in it, as I have not been asked to do so and do not think I am likely to, as no one would pay me enough to justify me in going. I don't know that the horse could win in his class, but if I owned him and he was as good as he is capable of being, I should be perfectly willing to take a chance in any field of horses on earth. I don't think there are four horses living that can put him outside the money when he is good and going good. He is a better horse than the public thinks he is."

A Warm Endorsement.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Dear Sir: I was greatly pleased to hear through a friend of the selection of genial George W. Jackson by the directors of the State Agricultural Society as the successor of Judge Peter J. Shields as secretary of the Society. It is great pleasure for me to testify to his high moral worth and his business capacity, which coupled with his habit of making truthful representations to all will make him a universal favorite. I congratulate the board of directors, the whole State of California, also Judge Shields in obtaining Mr. Jackson's services to that important position. I know of no one who more justly deserves good fortune, and of no person who will use it more worthily. The public will find Mr. Jackson a genial, friendly fellow, and will most assuredly not regret his selection as secretary of the State Agricultural Society. I predict his future a success.

Yours truly,

SAMUEL GAMBLE.

Successfully Used Caustic Balsam.

FORESTVILLE, MD., Jan. 4, 1901.

I have used a great deal of Gombault's Caustic Balsam and have been very successful with it. What can you sell me the Caustic Balsam for by the dozen bottles?

Be Careful of Patterns.

The chief aim of many beginners in speed development is to imitate the method followed by some eminent trainer in developing and bringing to racing form some celebrated horse. On the surface this would seem logical enough, but the application is not practical. The average beginner thinks to himself, "Now, if I can only work my horse as Ketcham works Cresceus or as Geers works The Abbot, I will get the money sure." Cresceus and The Abbot are world's champions and Ketcham and Geers are certainly great trainers, but no two horses in the country are more differently trained than are The Abbot and Cresceus. So, after all, patterns are not always good things to follow. Cresceus gets no fast work only in races, while The Abbot is raced and raced, against the watch, for weeks and weeks before there is any money in sight. "Well," says one, "one or the other of these fellows must be away off in his methods. Which is it?" Neither. They have very different horses to work, and the very fact that they work them differently is the best evidence that they both understand their business. It is all well enough for the less experienced trainers to study the methods of the great ones, but it should be remembered, meanwhile, that great trainers become great largely through their study of the mental and physical individuality of the horses they drive, and not through the application of superior stereotyped methods. While studying great trainers, therefore, it is just as essential for the "hopes-to-be's" to study horse—horse anatomy, horse physiology, horse phrenology, horse mentality and horse temperament. One horse needs a lot of slow work and but little or no fast work, while another needs a lot of fast work and but little or no jogging. One needs to be belicked into your way of thinking, another needs to be coaxed to it, while another still must be permitted to have a mind of his own. Some horses have errors of gait which have to be corrected before they can go a little bit, while others have errors of gait, which, if you correct, makes them slower than a bashful boy at an apple cutting. It is knowing when not to do a thing, as well as knowing how to do a thing, that has much to do with a trainer's success, and patterns should be followed cautiously.—Western Horseman.

News from the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

C. P. Webb is giving his pacer, Prince Tom, regular work, and intends to start him in some rich stakes this fall.

A. T. Van De Vanter has shipped his stallion Erect over to Seattle, where a number of mares are awaiting to be bred to him.

The horsemen say that the track at Salem is better and faster than it has ever been, and if weather permits some record breaking time will be made there this fall.

Albert Pratt is now located at the fair grounds with his pacer Scappoose 2:16½. She is looking fine and will give somebody a horse race this season if they beat her.

Mr. Beckers writes us that he is doing a splendid business with Zombro at Salem. Mares are coming from all directions. He has already bred thirty-one mares since his arrival there.

J. B. Stetson of Boise, Idaho, will take his stable of horses to Salem next week. He has among others the trotting mare Lady Alfred 2:19½ and Major Rudd 2:30. He has sold Lyla 2:27; Alatiel, full sister to Chehalis 2:04½, and Madeline G., and Manila.

J. W. Tilden will leave this week for Everett, Wash., with his stable of trotters and pacers. He will take with him Package 2:24½, May Tilden 2:29½, Nellie Covert, three year old pacer, Mary Scott, green trotter, and Hattie Holly, a two year old trotter.

L. C. McCormick has placed his two year old, E. O. Mc, by McKinney, in Sam Casto's stable, where he will receive his first education as a trotter. E. O. Mc is entered in the big two year old stake at the State Fair this fall, and he has every quality to develop into a fast trotter.

John E. Kirkland is now training over the track at Salem. He has Bon Bolt 2:18, Mark Hanna and Susie Alene, both green trotters, and Alro, a three year old pacer. Ben Bolt and Mark Hanna are owned by Congressman Thomas H. Tongue; Susie Alene by C. M. Kirkland and Alro by the Holmes Farm Company.

Just as Advertised.

An indignant Woking farmer returned to a horse dealer's about an hour after purchasing a horse.

"Look here, sir," he exclaimed, "I don't want this horse you sold me. He shies. I can't get him across the bridge."

"That's the reason I sold him," said the dealer, calmly. "Why did you come to me for the horse?"

"I saw your advertisement in the paper."

"I thought so. I gave my reason for selling him."

"Yes; to be sold, you stated, for no other reason than that the owner wants to go out of town."

"Well, if you can go out of town with him," said the dealer, "it will be more than I can do."—London Answers.

Cleveland Track Notes.

[American Sportsman, June 27.]

Tuesday morning was devoted to fast work-outs at Glenville, all the famous trainers now quartered at the most popular of all tracks being out with two or more of the horses. It is needless to say that the railbirds, watches in hand, were also out in full force. Where all did so well, it is difficult to discriminate by saying who carried off the honors. The fastest mile trotted, however, was by Directum Kelly, the champion trotting stallion of 1899, who negotiated the mile in 2:11½, the first quarter being in 34½ seconds, the first half in 1:07, the three-quarters in 1:40, making the last quarter in 31½ seconds. This is by far the fastest mile the famous son of Direct has trotted since 1899, a mile in 2:25 having been his best previous performance this season. Notwithstanding the fast clip he was asked to go, he finished strong as his last half in 1:04½ will show.

Dolly Dillon 2:11½, holding her head high in the air, stepped a mile in 2:14, the time by quarters being 0:33½, 1:07½, 1:40½, 2:14. Her stable mate, Janice, as smooth a gaited trotter as ever passed under the wire, was also moved by Millard Sanders, her fastest mile being 0:34½, 1:09, 1:43, 2:16.

Harry Stinson, as usual, was "doing" something out of the ordinary. Having made the colt handlers open their eyes by the way he was showing speed with his youngsters, he showed up with J. T. Dewey's stallion Gaudaur by Guy Wilkes. After warming him up in 2:49½ and 2:21½ he gave him the word and Gaudaur flew around the track with scarcely any urging, making the mile in 2:16½, the last half in 1:08½, the last quarter in 33½ seconds. A "cooler" in 2:24 sent Gaudaur to the barn. Stinson also drove Mary Gage, a two year old by Oro Wilkes, a quarter in 40 seconds to a cart and gave Pearl Oro, another Oro Wilkes two year old, a quarter in 44 seconds, also to cart.

Ed Geers was out early with The Abbot, the champion's fastest mile being in 2:21, the last half in 1:07½. Geers also worked Onward Silver a mile in 2:16½ and gave several of his youngsters some brisk quarters.

Lafe Shafer attracted much attention with J. C. McKinney's $17,000 stallion Beauseant by Bow Bells. Shafer and Ed Benyon worked together, Benyon driving the four year old mare Zyha by Allie Wilkes. Their fastest mile was in 2:21, the last half in 1:08½. Beauseant showed himself to be a finely gaited animal with plenty of speed.

Jim Thompson gave Algoneta by Eros, his M. and M. candidate, a mile in 2:20, Edmund B 2:12½, owned and driven by Doc Tanner, beating her out at the finish. Lucille and Directum Kelly went a mile together in 2:20, the last half in 1:07½. Lucille also tore off an eighth in 15½ seconds. Tanner drove Mabel Onward three miles, the first being in 2:21, the last two being in 2:18. Other creditable performances by the trotters were a quarter in 31 seconds by Dollie Dillon, a quarter by Lucille in 32½, a half by Beauseant in 1:06½.

Hetty G. was driven several good miles by Scott McCoy, the fastest being 2:15½, last half in 1:05½, without the hobbles, and 2:12½ last half in 1:04½ with the hobbles.

Goshen Jim reeled off a mile in 2:14½ for Jim Thompson and would have gone better than 2:10 had Thompson let him, as he went to the quarter in 31½, to the half in 1:04½ and finished strong with Thompson pulling.

Captivity, the chestnut filly by Sidney Dillon, owned by Henry Sanders, was driven a half in 1:08½, the last quarter in 33½ seconds, by Millard Sanders, Monday.

One of the best performances to date at the Glenville track was when the trotter Venus II, owned by Adolph Spreckles, was stepped a half in 1:02½ by Millard Sanders.

C. A. Winship of Los Angeles, Cal., who has been at the Glenville track for over a month and who sold the filly Zephyr to J. C. McKinney, of Titusville, Pa., has gone to Buffalo, leaving his sale horses, Aster 2:12 by Dexter Prince, Lady Waldstein 2:15 by Waldstein, Vernie McGregor 2:26 by Invincible and Pacific King by Diablo 2:09½ with Vance Nuckols.

Primrose Paces in 2:10.

At the matinee of the Los Angeles Driving Club held last Saturday, Mr. M. M. Potter drove his little mare Primrose by Falrose a mile in 2:10, thus lowering the Coast amateur record a couple of seconds. There were fully 2000 people in attendance and the day's sport was the best that has ever been furnished by the popular club whose matinees are the leading feature of Southern California sports. In addition to the fast mile paced by Primrose, Mr. Potter furnished another sensation by driving his mare Sweet Marie by McKinney two heats each in 2:14 flat, and could have made the second heat faster.

Following is a summary of the races:

Three minute class, 2 in 3:

Lamusa.....	(J. Felton)	2	1
Louise.....	(Dr. J. DeBarth Shorb)	1	3
Bessie.....	(M. M. Potter)	3	2

Time, 2:35—2:39¼—2:39.

Polo.....	(J. W. Spooner)	1	1
Chico.....	(F. E. Brown)	2	2
Sweetheart.....	(M. M. Potter)	3	3
Bastena.....	(Kenneth Redpath)	4	4

Time, 2:17—2:17½.

2:30 class, 2 in 3:

Tom Moore.....	(Dr. M. L. Moore)	1	1
Maud McKinney.....	(M. M. Potter)	3	2
Bruce.....	(Dr. George L. Cole)	2	3

Time, 2:50½—2:25.

Match race, 2 in 3:

Sweet Marie.....	(M. M. Potter)	1	1
Moutecito Boy.....	(J. Felton)	2	2

Time, 2:11—2:14.

Exhibition mile to beat 2:12: Primrose (M. M. Potter) won. Time, 2:10.

EIGHT RICH RUNNING STAKES are advertised to-day by the California State Agricultural Society and the attention of the owners of thoroughbred horses is called to them. Entries to them will close August 3d, and the remainder of the running program, for which liberal purses will be given, will be announced September 1st. It will provide for four or more running races each day. The stakes advertised to-day are the Flash Stake, six furlongs, for all ages, $10 entrance, $400 added; the Shafter Selling Stake, for two year olds, six furlongs, $10 entrance, $300 added; Sacramento State Fair Selling Stake, for three year olds and upwards, one mile, $10 entrance, $400 added; the Vinctor Stake, for three year olds and upwards, one mile, $10 entrance, $500 added; the Sunny Slope Stake, for two year old fillies, five furlongs, $10 entrance, $300 added. the Governor's Stake, handicap for three year olds and upwards, one mile and a furlong, $10 entrance $400 added; the California State Fair Annual Stake, handicap for two year olds, six furlongs, $10 entrance, $500 added; the President's Stake, handicap for three year olds and upwards, one mile and a quarter, $10 entrance, $500 added.

A TELEGRAM FROM SANTA ROSA received, just as we go to press states that the Santa Rosa Jockey Club has decided to give a meeting from the 12th to the 17th of August inclusive and will announce a program of harness and running races in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN next week. Santa Rosa has one of the best tracks in America and the new club is composed of active and energetic citizens who will spare no pains to make the meeting a success in every particular.

Glide, W. O. Bowers' good colt by Silver Bee, is one of the best looking colts at the Sacramento track. His picture on our front page is proof of this assertion and it does not flatter the colt in the least.

EVERY STAKE IS FILLED is the announcement of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association in regard to the six $1000 stakes advertised for its Sacramento meeting. This is the first time in years that every one of the early closing stakes advertised by the Breeders' has filled, and it augurs well for a most successful meeting and something like the old-time interest in harness racing. The owners and trainers have done nobly, and the splendid list of entries which is published in full in another column will be read with great interest by every horseman in California. Six stakes of $1000 each are not to be raced for every week, even over in the Eastern States, and the Breeders' Association and the owners who have been so liberal with their entries are to be congratulated on the fine showing made and the splendid prospects for a most successful week of racing at Sacramento. The meeting will open the California circuit and will offer the best opportunity to race for large purses of any meeting to be held on this Coast this year. In our advertising columns to-day will be found a list of additional stakes, in which the amounts range from $600 to $300, and which provide for every possible class of horses in training in California. Entries to these classes will close July 15th, two weeks from next Monday. There is a chance here for every horse that is not named in the stakes already closed, and as the prospects are for a large attendance at Sacramento and lively betting on results, there will be more opportunities to make money with a winner than has been offered at harness races for some time in this State. The Breeders' Association has made a grand start. Now if all will make a united effort the circuit of 1901 in California will be one of the most successful ever given, even though it will be limited to a half dozen meetings.

AN EXCELLENT SELECTION has been made by the State Board of Agriculture in unanimously electing Mr. George W. Jackson of Sacramento as its Secretary. Mr. Jackson has long been a resident of Sacramento and is one of the capital city's most respected citizens. He is energetic, intelligent and trustworthy and few men of affairs are as popular with the people as he. For many years he was superintendent of the Capital Gas Company, filling the position not only with credit to himself but to the entire satisfaction of his employers and the many patrons of the corporation. A gentleman of much more than average ability he has already entered upon his duties with the determination to serve the Board of Directors and the State in a manner that will receive the endorsement of all, and we feel certain that his occupancy of the responsible position will be of great advantage to the State Agricultural Society and increase the popularity and success of the annual State Fair at Sacramento.

THE OAKWOOD PARK FARM will sell fifty grandly bred horses at auction next Friday at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city. There are young mares in the consignment well bred enough and having all the requisites for first class broodmares; there are young horses with good looks, sound limbs and natural speed that will make high class road or race horses; there are stallions that are suitable to place in the stud and command large patronage. All these horses are well broken. They are ready to put on the road or track. They are by such sires as Chas. Derby, Steinway, El Benton, Don L, Prince Red and the thoroughbred horse Major Ban. Every horseman knows the value of Oakwood Park Stock Farm horses. This consignment is one of the best lots that ever left this celebrated farm. Catalogues are out and can be had from William G. Layng, Auctioneer, at 721 Howard street.

Runners at Auction at Honolulu.

Geo. S. McKenzie, who resides at Hilo, H. I., disposed of a number of thoroughbreds at auction at Honolulu after the close of the running meeting there June 15th. The prices obtained were as follows:

General Cronje sold to George Rodiek for $550.
Billy McClosky sold to Harry Evans for $560.
Socialist sold to R. Ballentyne for $1,400.
Molly Connors sold to R. Ballentyne for $950.
Morrel's Faust sold to Tom, "Waiakae," Wilson for $200.
W. W. Wolters' Gaiety Girl was also put up, but no bid being forthcoming, was withdrawn.

Before Steinway was brought to California he was bred to Ned, the dam of five in the list, and the result of that mating was Steinette; that is now the dam of Baron de Stein by Baron Wilkes. Baron de Stein is the only seven-year-old stallion that has a trotter to his credit with a record as low as 2:10. This is Harry Barrett, a trotter that took his record last year.

Al McDonald has What Is It by Direct, out of the dam of Who Is It 2:10, looking in fine shape at the Sacramento track.

Chas. Cline, of 2430 N. street, Sacramento, has a very handsome brown pacing gelding for sale that is one of the best mannered road horses in the State. This horse worked a mile in 2:21 last week very handily. He is perfectly safe for a lady to drive and will be sold cheap. See ad.

JOTTINGS.

THE "GONE WRONG" LIST is growing larger as the regular harness racing seasons here and in the East are approaching, and the number of horses that will face the starter this year will be but a handful to those that are laid up with the ailments to which horse flesh is heir. Over East there will be large fields in the majority of races, but the fields will be small when compared with the original entry lists. The amount of hard work that is given the average trotter or pacer to get him in condition to go three heats in 2:15 or better would put nine out of ten of the best thoroughbred ever foaled out of business. For endurance and ability to stand up under hard work the trotting bred horse of to-day excels every other breed of horses. His legs and feet are called upon to stand a strain that no other breed of horses can endure, and as year by year the speed required to win gets faster and faster, the wonder is that so many horses come to the post. Great as the strain is on the lungs and heart, bones and tendons of the 2:10 harness horse, they could be greatly lessened were the training tracks kept in better shape for fast work. The track that is kept in good condition during the entire training season is not on the map as yet, and few there are that are good six days in succession. Those that are considered the best, and receive the most attention are probably good three or four days in each month, but not more. A trainer may work his horses on Tuesday on an excellent track, the footing moist and firm with a nice cushion on the surface. When he goes on the following Friday he finds that a couple of days of hot, drying weather and a too economical use of the sprinkling wagon has made the track cuppy and dangerous to do fast work on. But his horse needs the work, he takes a chance, and very likely ends his workout with a lame horse that has to be blistered or fired and thrown out of training. The track manager can hardly be blamed as he is doing all he can afford to and is very poorly paid for the amount of work he puts on his track. There are too many mile tracks in California for the number of horses worked. If the trotters and pacers trained here annually could be collected on three or four tracks, the managers of these tracks could afford to devote more time and labor toward keeping them in proper shape. Many horses go wrong every year from overwork, but the number that suffer from bowed tendons, bad feet, splints, curbs, sprains, etc., due to poor tracks is large enough to make a respectable entry list to a grand circuit meeting.

The question of matinee records will probably cut quite a figure with owners when they come to make up their stallion cards and advertisements for next season. If the get of a horse has won a matinee event in fast time, the owner of the stallion will be justified in printing the name of the horse and the time made in the list of his stallions standard performers. Of course such performances should be labeled "matinee race record" so that the reader will understand that it is not registered in the Year Book and the sire will get the credit that is due him. Last Saturday Mr. M. M. Potter's mare Sweet Marie by McKinney won a race at the matinee of the Los Angeles Driving Club, trotting both heats in 2:14 flat. I believe she won a heat at a previous matinee in 2:13½. At any rate Mr. Durfee will be perfectly justified in placing Sweet Marie among the 2:15 performers credited to McKinney and while he has always been a stickler for actual race records and has refused to place any "against time" or "trials" with McKinneys performers, this matinee race at Los Angeles is entirely authentic and there is not a particle of doubt but Sweet Marie went the two heats in the time stated, and gives McKinney his sixteenth 2:15 performer.

Payne Shafter writes from Olema "Would you please give in your paper the approved method of bandaging horses' legs after a workout or a brush on the road. I understand that trainers now wrap cotton batting about the leg and then loosely bandage with a roller bandage over the cotton—all done to prevent a partial stoppage of the circulation."

In reply to Mr. Shafter I would state that bandaging in this manner has got to be the almost universal practice with trainers and one seldom sees the old plan resorted to of putting on the bandage without the cotton underneath. Cotton batting is now prepared especially for this purpose and is kept in stock by the dealers in horse goods. It secures a gentle, even pressure on the cords and ligaments, and there is not so much danger of stopping the circulation by the bandage becoming too tight. Ed Geers, who must be recognized as America's leading trainer, says in his recent hook:

"In the early part of a horse's work I do not think it advisable to bandage much, nor use leg or body wash. I do not think it best to rub the horse too much; it makes him sore and irritable and causes him to lose flesh. When the horse comes in from the work throw a light blanket over him and take a damp sponge and sponge his legs and rub them with a cloth a little, then scrape the sweat out of his hair. Straighten his hair with cloths and throw the blanket over him again; you will be governed by the weather as to the weight of the blanket. Walk him fifteen or twenty minutes, then take him in, rub him again very lightly with the cloths five or ten minutes, blanket him again and walk him twenty-five or thirty minutes, then he is ready to do up if the work has not been very strong, but if it has it will be necessary to spend more time on him. After he has been rubbed out and cleaned thoroughly wash his feet and sponge his legs. Dry them thoroughly with cloths. As you begin to give him strong and fast work it will be advisable to use bandages, leg and body wash. A wash I like best for this purpose is two parts of witch hazel, one part of alcohol and one part of soft water. This should be used warm when the horse comes in from his work. Spray on the body and muscles, then rub well with the hands, lay the cooler or light blanket on him while the wash and bandages are being put on his legs, and cool him out as before stated. If the horse has had fast, hard work or a race, after he is cooled out and ready to put away, use a little of the wash on his legs and put on the bandage for a couple of hours. It is best to put on the bandage very light."

The Los Angeles Races Will Fill Well.

The following entries had been received by Secretary Teed of the Los Angeles Association up to the evening of June 2d. As the entries closed on the first, several days will be required for all the entries from a distance to reach Los Angeles, and quite a number of additional entries may be received. The slow classes will all fill well. The Directors will meet to-day to act upon the entries and decide which purses have filled:

Stevens, Vendome Stock Farm, W. S. Maben, J. W. Johnson, C. C. Hickey, John Donahue, J. B. Smith, C. T. Thayer, H. B. Butterfield.

Walter Maben of Los Angeles, C. F. Bunch of San Jose, C. A. Spencer of Walnut Grove, and Henry Helman of San Jose will all go to Sacramento within a few days with their horses which are entered at the Breeders meeting.

John A. McKerron's record is again 2:10. The Board of Review of the National Trotting Association re-reversed itself last week.

Golden Gate Park Driving Club Races.

Five or six thousand people were at the California Jockey Club's track on the Fourth of July, attracted by a good program of races announced by the Golden Gate Park Driving Club and a free gate. Two books handled the money that was risked on the events and at times were very busy. Better weather could not have been made to order and the sport was very fair.

Three heats were paced inside of 2:20 during the day. Fred W. Thompson, J. C. Ohlandt and E. Stewart acted as judges, J. G. Chesley and Fred Vetter held the watches, R. D. Ledgett officiated as starter with J. C. Dinne as assistant, and Dr. Dalziel was Marshal. The starting was very good, better, barring one or two incidents of long scoring, than is usually seen at club races.

The first race took four heats to decide and was well contested throughout finally going to Harry Slocum's mare Tempest that trotted well after she got steady.

J. Doran's pacing gelding Tirado, a Palo Alto bred horse, walked off with the second race in straight heats and got into the list in the second heat.

The third race went to Sable Le Grande, also in straight heats. Al Gregor was the contesting horse each time and the judges thought the Steinway gelding was getting such a poor drive that they declared the second heat no race and asked James Chesley to drive the horse, but Sable Le Grande was the better pacer and won handily.

F. Gomett's pacer Lafayette captured the fourth race easily, well driven by M. M. Donnelly. The first heat was in 2:24, thus giving the horse a standard record. Lafayette was bred at Palo Alto.

The fifth race was called a match probably because there but two starters. It was really a purse race, $75 being hung up by the club. L. Richardson's entry the Sidney mare Edna R., was the favorite and won handily over King Cadenza. Edna R. was sent out for the first heat and the driver of the King let her go and only dropped inside the distance. The next heat King Cadenza was sent after her but Edna R. had too much speed and beat him out handily. The time 2:16½ and 2:16½, was good for the track.

Sandow, a son of Dictatus, won the last race of the day but the Eros stallion Eden Vale won the second heat in 2:18½, the fastest heat of the race. The summaries follow:

First Race—Purse $150.
Tempest, br m by Richards' Elector (t).....(Patrick) 2 3 1 1

Racing at Marysville.

About one hundred persons assembled at the Marysville race track on Thursday afternoon of last week to witness the race between Peter Kerrigan's Freda S. and Louis Padella's Hazel B., best two in three heats. W. P. Harkey acted as judge and E. P. McDaniel, Will McCune and William Leech as timekeepers.

The first heat was won by Freda S., driven by Hogo-boom, in 2:25; the second heat being taken by her also, Hazel B. acting very badly.

Freda S. is a very handsome blood bay, four years old, sired by Hogo-boom's Lynmont, dam Elmorene, and for this race was taken right out of a buggy without any preparatory work. The judges were of the opinion that she could have gone a mile in 2:22 if Hogo-boom had pushed her.

The trotting was followed by a five-eighths running dash, in which Sunshine defeated Nomadic in 1:05½.—Marysville Appeal.

Mr. W. A. Sayre, of 1017 Eighth street, Sacramento, is one of the regular drivers on the famous Riverside road of that city, and pilots a five year old mare that is a regular whirlwind for speed as the other drivers find out whenever the well known harness dealer gives the mare her head.

SULKY NOTES.

It looks as though the Memphis meeting would be a howling success.

Zombro has been bred to forty mares since arriving at Salem, Oregon.

Friday, September 6th will be Drummers day at the California State Fair.

The fastest mile worked at the Glenville track this year is Rey Direct's 2:10.

The Grand Circuit will open at Detroit one week from Monday next, July 15th.

Stamboulette's mile in 2:11½ is the fastest mile trotted in a race this year up to date.

Quite a number of California horses will start at the Windsor meeting which opens July 8th.

Allie Trout is working fourteen yearlings by Baron Wilkes and there is not a pacer among them.

Ed Geers will have but five horses in his campaigning stable this year, but they will be a hot lot.

Sunol has been bred to The Earl (3) 2:17, son of Mambrino King and Princess Royal 2:20 by Chimes.

Two harness races and four or more running events will be on the program for each day of the State Fair this year.

They say that Lord Derby attracts more attention at the Cleveland track than any horse in training there, not harring The Abbot.

The State Fair Directors met last Saturday. The speed committee will have the harness purses ready to advertise in our next issue.

Walter Palmer has sent his famous pacer Little Boy 2:06½ to Joliet, where he will be given his final preparation before starting on his campaign.

Attorney-General Knox has taken his team of fast trotters. Wert and Dr. Leek, to Washington City, and will soon take other good ones to the capital.

Payne J. Shafter of Olema claims the name of "Stampede" for his bay filly, four years old by Nassar dam Pastime, the dam of Secret 2:26½ by Rustic.

Mr. M. M. Potter of Los Angeles now holds both trotting and pacing amateur records of this Coast with his two mares Primrose 2:10, pacing, and Sweet Marie 2:14, trotting.

The State Agricultural Society will offer purses this year for horses owned by members of the driving clubs. Some good contests should result as there will be great rivalry to win.

From the beginning of the Boer war to May 21st last the British government landed in Africa 172,985 horses and 80,723 mules, or a total of 253,708. A count on May 11th last showed a total in active service with the army of 185,000, a loss of 68,708 during the winter.

P. H. Grimes, of Chicago, purchased Little Thorne 2:07½ for the express purpose of defeating Hontas Crooke 2:09 at the Chicago matinees. Hontas Crooke is owned by Mr. C. K. Billings and his stable of matinee trotters and pacers has been invincible around Chicago.

Reports comes from Oregon that Mr. Albert Pratt's pacer Scappos 2:16½, is about the best side wheeler in the north. She was sired by Roy Wilkes 2:05½, dam Maggie by Princeton. She shows such improvement this year that a mark below 2:10 is considered to be within her reach.

Grooms who have watched Anaconda 2:02½ in the hands of other trainers in years past say that the horse better in trainer John Trout's hands than ever before. Trout let him step the last half of a workout mile last week in just one minute, the third quarter in twenty-nine seconds.

James Gatcomb has been slow with Boralma this spring, but the way he reeled off an eighth in 15 seconds a few mornings since, shows he is a much improved horse over last year. He is going straight and strong, having fully recovered from his ailment of last season in his hind leg.

Captain Tough, the old time Kansas horseman, who sold Snuggler 2:15½ to Col. H. S. Russell, Boston, has bought of the Union Pacific Railroad Company a ranch of a dozen thousand acres in Gove county, Kansas. It is said that he intends to make it the biggest and best appointed horse breeding ranch in the United States.

It is the opinion of John Kelly that Charley Herr is better right now than ever he was in his life, and this opinion is entitled to weight, for Kelly is not only an accomplished reinsman, but knows the son of Alfred G. through and through. Charley Herr is looking all right, is doing all right, and with no mishap he will get there all right, all right.

Mr. L. E. Clawson, the well-known tile manufacturer of this city and owner of that good mare Phoebe Childers 2:10½, left on Wednesday for Detroit, where he will witness the opening of the Grand Circuit races, and will go on down the line to Buffalo and other places. Mr. Clawson will see his handsome mare start for some of the big purses on the circuit and we hope he will have the pleasure of seeing her come to the wire first on more than one occasion.

Tom Ryder 2:13½ was sold at auction at Honolulu two weeks ago for $200.

P. W. Hodges will probably bring his string of horses to the Alameda track to train.

Margaretta 2:15 by Direct will be raced again this year. She is now in Vet Tryon's string at Sacramento.

Wm. Hogoboom took a half dozen horses to the Yreka meeting which took place on the Fourth of July.

Great racing is expected at the Spokane meeting which will open September 10th. Entries close July 25th.

Charley Hayt 2:07½ continues to go sound under stiff work at Syracuse, and Snow now thinks he will race all right.

Races were held on the Fourth of July at Yreka, Rocklin, Oakland, Santa Barbara and several other localities in this State.

Geo. Beckers writes from Salem, Oregon, that good grooms are scarce at that point and that a half dozen at least could get work there.

Phoebe Childers 2:10½ is entered in the 2:11 trot at Memphis. Dolly Dillon, Venus II, and Stamboulette are entered in the same race.

Stamboulette trotted a heat in 2:11½ Saturday, June 22d, and was beaten in 2:30 the following Saturday. He must have been sadly out of condition.

The gate receipts on Kamehameha Day at the Honolulu Jockey Club meeting were $1374, which would be considered a pretty fair gate at any California meeting.

Don't forget the sale of trotters and pacers from the Oakwood Park Stock Farm, which will be held at the Occidental Horse Exchange, in this city, next Friday.

Stam B. 2:11½, has been bred to about forty well bred mares this year. No horse in the country has a better looking lot of foals than the youngsters by him dropped this year.

There are three California horses named in the 2:20 trot at Memphis. They are A. L. Mulcahey's Algonetta, B. O. Van Bokkelen's Vic Shellar, and A. W. Bruner's Harry Madison.

The official score card issued by the Golden Gate Park Driving Association for its meeting on the Fourth of July, is the neatest score card that has been gotten out in this city for years.

There are several elegantly bred young mares catalogued in the Oakwood Park sale which will be held July 11th. They are by Chas. Derby, El Benton, Steinway and Prince Red.

We acknowledge receipt of a complimentary ticket to the eight annual Spokane Interstate Fair. Ten thousand dollars in purses will be given at this meeting and it gives promise of being the best ever given in the Northwest.

Tom Smith, the bay colt by McKinney, owned by Prof. E. P. Heald, president of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, won second money in his only start at Denver. This colt is well entered over the East and will make a good showing unless some accident happens him.

Mr. Frank Falkerton, a popular citizen of Salem, Oregon, has bred his mare Cora to Zombro 2:11. Cora is by Scarlet Letter, he by Red Wilkes. Her dam is Canemah 2:18½, by Altamont, and her second dam Ophelia Chiles (dam of Wallula 2:29½ by Almont 33. Cora is a very handsome mare and considered one of the most promising broodmares in the northern country.

Dr. Kane, president of the Gentlemen's Driving and Field Club of Monmouth county, New York, has practically closed negotiations with George Ketcham for an exhibition mile to speed wagon by the great Cresceus, the king of trotting stallions, at Elkwood Park, before his race with The Abbot. On the same day, Joe Patchen, Searchlight, Anaconda and possibly Connor and Daniel will be driven to wagon to try for a world's record.

A recent letter to the B. and S. from A. G. F. Stice who campaigned a string of horses on the California circuit last year, states that he has the fast and game trotter Sir Charles 2:10½, and several other good ones in his string at Monmouth, Ill. His mare Wayside 2:21 foaled on June 9th a black filly by Direct 2:05½, and Jessie C. 2:10½ and several more of his mares were expected to foal in a few days to the same horse. Mr. Stice added "You can say to the boys that I may bring these youngsters by Direct out to California to train some time in the future. My filly Nellie Colbert, one year old, by Colbert 2:07½, dam Nellie M. 2:10½, is very fine and I think will do to go down the big ring when older."

A most interesting decision has lately been handed down by the Appellate Court of Indiana. A suit for damages was instituted against the Rush County Agricultural Society and the result of the trial in the lower court not suiting the defendants, an appeal was taken. The decision reads thus, the language thoroughly explaining the circumstances of the case: "Where a fair association had a race track where horses could run without injury to spectators occupying seats provided for them, and the association negligently made an opening in the fence surrounding the track, through which opening a horse came from the track and among the people assembled from the main part of the fair grounds, injuring a person, we hold that the fair association is liable for the injury." The opening in question was the draggate, which had not been closed as it should have been, and this apparently the court holds to be negligence. Fair managers will do well to take note.

I. Mulholland is working Osito 2:13½ at Sacramento and has him in good condition. The 2:14 trot in which he is entered at the Breeders will have a good list of starters.

Hi Hogoboom's trotter by Waldstein, out of a Clay Duke mare, is showing pretty well at the Sacramento track. As will be seen by reference to our front page he has his share of good looks.

The Roman 2:18½ is entered in the 2:14 trot at Memphis. Will Durfee names Dr. Book 2:13½, C. L. Griffith names Rect 2:16½, and A. W. Bruner names Our Lucky 2:13½ in this same class.

The California horses will very likely suffer a great deal from the hot spell which has been on during the past few days in the East, and it may prevent them being started at Windsor and Detroit.

Harry Hurst, the chestnut gelding that John Sawyer took to Oregon with him, is owned by J. F. Sutherland and was sired by Delwin, the famous broken legged horse that Sam Gamble formerly owned.

Oro Guy, the three-year-old colt by Oro Wilkes out of the Guy Wilkes mare Roseate, owned by Robert Orr of Hollister, worked a mile in 2:26 over the San Jose track one day last week. He is such a big fellow that he will not be raced this year, although he may be started in the Stanford Stake at the State Fair.

George H. Ketcham has made a proposition to the Mayor of Toledo to let Cresceus trot for charity in that city sometime this fall. He proposes to give an exhibition with the horse, admission charge to be 25 cents, and the proceeds to be donated to charitable institutions of Lucas county, irrespective of denomination.

One of the best looking horses at the Sacramento track is a four year old bay colt by Bay Bird, dam by Imperious, son of Director, second dam by Electioneer, third dam thoroughbred. He is a trotter and has an almost perfect way of going. This colt is owned by the Rancho del Paso and is in Vet Tryon's string at Sacramento.

King Chimes is to be raced this year as a trotter. When he took his record of 2:10½ at the Empire City track he was carrying thirty-eight ounces in front, but is now going very smooth in R. L. Davis' hands with but fourteen ounces. In the workout at Mineola on Saturday he covered a mile in 2:15, and he is expected to materially lower his record this season.

"I never fed a horse over nine quarts of oats a day in my life, and the majority only six," said William Shimmers, the veteran, who brought out Billy S. 2:14½, Cracksman 2:13½, Mascot 2:04 and others, to one of the Buffalo writers upon turf topics. "It is all foolishness to stuff a campaigner with oats, oats, oats all the time. Give him plenty of hay and some grass and he'll not be looking as thin as a railbird and sick half the season."

Here is an item for lax trainers and negligent grooms, to wit: "Scratches are caused by poor blood and dirt, a combination that should not be found existing in well regulated stables; but there may be found many cases of scratches every season. Mild cases can be cured by keeping the legs clean and dry and by applying oxide of zinc ointment. Severe cases should be treated for some time with flaxseed poultices, and after the fever has subsided the ointment mentioned in preceding cases may be used."

Four horse owners of Davisville, Yolo county, have put up $100 each as a stake to trot their colts for this fall and have asked the Woodland association to add a sum to the stake and give the race a place on the fair program this year. The names of the gentlemen who have put up the money are Elmo Montgomery, Carey Montgomery, John Johnson and Samuel Lillard. The Woodland association will doubtless offer a good prize for this race, and is will certainly be one of the big drawing cards of the meeting.

David Cahill said yesterday he would ship Charley Herr 2:07, Willie Herr (3) and Sister Agatheana (3) to Detroit about July 8th, and that John Kelly would drive Charley Herr in all his races this season, as he did last year. This announcement will relieve the curiosity of a lot of people who have been putting in a good deal of their time this spring guessing what disposition Uncle Davy would make of his famous stallion. Now that it is positively known that John Kelly is to pilot the son of Alfred G. in his contests the curious will breathe freer, for they feel that in the hands of this accomplished reinsman the "bulldog" trotter will fully sustain his reputation as a great and honest race horse. If the free-for-all trot at Detroit fills, the public may put Charley Herr down as a sure starter.—Kentucky Stock Farm, June 27.

Says the New York Trotter and Pacer: "An epidemic is raging among the horses in this city that has already entailed widespread disaster, and that threatens to produce still more serious consequences. The disease was first manifested on Saturday, the 15th inst., and it is said that within a week ten thousand horses had succumbed to it. The veterinary surgeons have so far been unable to determine the cause and nature of the disease, which afflicts all sorts of horses, from high bred roadsters and coachers to truck and cart horses. The symptoms are high fever, cough, loss of appetite and general weakness, generally resulting in complete collapse. The best authorities agree that the unusual weather for the past three months is responsible for the disease than anything else. The excessive rainfall in April and May and the cool, even chilly, days of June, have created conditions favorable for the epidemic, which, for want of a better name, the veterinaries call 'laryngeal influenza.' Although there have been no deaths as yet, the authorities declare it to be the most serious outbreak of disease since 1874, when the epizootic decimated the horse ranks by the thousand."

THE SADDLE.

The Hawaiian Gazette, commenting on the meeting says:

"The meeting just closed has been the best on record and the racing as a whole has been of good class

Prince David, thanks to Weller, heads the list of winning owners. J. C. Quinn comes next, and R. Ballentine, another one horse man, takes third place. G. S. McKenzie, who brought a string of five runners from Hilo, has had only a fair share of success, winning three races and figuring fourth on the winning list.

Tom Hollinger has not done as well as was expected, but Racery should win purses for him next year. Col. Spaulding's string has only one race to its credit. The Kealia horses made an uncommonly good showing, however, and the thanks of Honolulu sportsmen are extended both to Colonel Spaulding and G. S. McKenzie for their efforts to make the seventeenth meeting of the Hawaiian Jockey Club an unprecedented success.

James McAuliffe easily heads the list of winning jockeys, with the excellent percentage of 62.5. Thomas comes next with four wins to his credit and a percentage of 40. Both Ross and Piggott have displayed good riding form at the meeting. Cal. Leonard has ridden in several races, but his skill in the saddle was discounted by his mounts. This remark applies in even a greater degree to Kaena.

J. C. Quinn drove to a winning in each of the three races, and proved himself to be the most capable reinsman here. He brought Waldo J. to the wire in such shape that he could have rounded the track in 2:10; as it was, he cut a fraction of a second off the track record of 2:13 2/5, held by Lompe. Wayboy, Quinn's other winner, is a game, consistent little horse which will pace below 2:20.

C. H. Judd and McManus shared the remaining horses in the harness division between them.

The meeting has been productive of track records in the free for all harness race, the four and one-half furlongs dash, the one mile and a quarter, and the one mile and a half races. Also, Edith R. broke the Hawaiian-bred trotting record of 2:42 1/2, held for many years by Fred Mac.

The local horsemen are now looking towards Hilo, and quite a number of racers will be shipped from here to the half-mile track at Honolulu Park. Among those certain to go are Weller, Amarino, Watossa, Venus, Garterline and Minnie.

The Hilo executive are making liberal offers of purses, and with the track in good shape and plenty of horses in sight, the Hilo July meeting should prove a big success.

Results at Butte.

June 29. The Montana Jockey Club meeting opened here to-day with fine weather and a good attendance. The track was not fast, nor was the betting heavy. Results:

Some thoroughbred Gordon Setters are for sale. The announcement, which was received too late for the kennel page ads, will be found on page 12.

Albert Joseph has found a companionable prize in the Cocker Plumeria Cleo, which he purchased at the May show. Cleo is not only a very good type specimen but displays a degree of cleverness and intelligence that is remarkable.

Mrs. E. B. Thompson, a lady of many admirable qualities and a well known St. Bernard fancier, passed away last week, we sincerely regret to announce. Mrs. Thompson was a prominent exhibitor at the bench shows in this city and her dogs won many ribbons for Irvington Kennels.

To possess a poodle with the owner's monogram neatly clipped in curly fur is the very latest fad for fashionable ladies. Between the old-time dog fancier, who grabbed a dog by the neck with one hand while he sheared it with the other, and the modern artist, who clips monograms, rosettes, frills, chrysanthemums, and love-knots in doggy's silken hair, there is as much difference as between the ancient barber with his basin and the latter-day tonsorial artist with his electric tweezers.

Phil C. Meyer lost his handsome St. Bernard bitch Belline one day last week. He had her out in the San Mateo hills near his kennels in company with some hounds. The dogs came across a dead chicken which had been killed by a hawk, and fought over the carrion, each tearing away a piece of the flesh and bones. Next day Belline showed symptoms of serious illness and shortly after died despite all efforts of a vet to save her. An autopsy showed a laceration of the stomach and intestines supposed to have been made by a sharp fragment of chicken bone, which probably had the effect of inducing blood poisoning.

"I've got the funniest dog that ever strutted up and down the thoroughfare frightening little children," said "Hungry Bill" to a bunch of his cronies in Butler's the other day. "I picked him up on the streets about about five weeks ago, and he is a wonder. Everybody calls him a turtle hound, and I guess it is right, too, because he moves so slowly. I took him up to my flat, and all he has done ever since has been to lay in front of the grate with his nose about four inches from the fire. You couldn't coax him away with a dip net, and he's so lazy we have to carry his meals to him."

"That ain't nothing," chirped in Frank Marcus of histrionic fame. "I have a brute that I use in my specialty that makes your turtle hound look like a one cent postage card dipped in oleomargarine. Mino is a fish hound and he fishes for his dinner every day. I call him Jasbo, but that doesn't count for anything, because he'll answer to any other name just as well. All I have to do is to tell him to stand on his hind feet, throw a row of back flips, jump through or anything else, and after receiving the command, he'll look at me instantaneously and then—lay down. I make him up with grease paint, but it isn't a success, as he always licks it off. Last week I decided to put a pair of sluggers on him, but he ate them up, too. I wrote a little one act farce for him entitled 'Quimboleo; or Fun in the Oakum Patch,' but it's a frost. He can't learn his lines, and after several rehearsals I became so discouraged that I called it off. Sorry, too, 'cause I was in hopes he'd be a great success. I'll keep on persevering, however, and some day he might be a good dog. I wish I could sell him."

Advice to Beginners.

In order that our advice may be of benefit not only to beginners simply in the dog fancy, but also to those who have already embarked in the alluring pursuit—as well as to others who may have passed the initiatory stages, but still are what we may term novices—we propose to commence with a young would-be fancier who hitherto has never owned a dog, or at least never been the fortunate possessor of one with any pretensions to show bench distinction, so writes an English authority. After discussing the various breeds from which he may make his choice, we will not only give him our opinions upon the different varieties, but point out to him their virtues as companions, profitableness or otherwise of show dogs, costliness of keep, and all other information appertaining thereto.

Commencing our article thus at the very alphabet of the fancy as it were, and leading our young readers on step by step through all the stages of the pursuit or "profession," as it was once described by an eminent barrister, from the elementary to the more advanced, and from the more advanced to the very proficient and successful fancier, by whose skillful kennel management, and the careful breeding, exhibition and sale of prize dogs, very large sums of money have frequently been amassed, if not a fortune secured. We do not intend to take our reader into the dreamy region of fiction, and there draw upon his imagination, nor yet trespass upon his credulity, by making him believe that the fancy is a paradise, whose ranks he has only to join to be assured of a living right off, and a competency by the time he arrives at that period in life when he is unable to follow his calling. What we shall write shall be truths. The illustrations we shall give will be from the actual, and our advice will not belong to the superficial, but come from long, intimate, and varied experience. It is only he who has "gone through the mill," who has tasted of the hitters and the sweets, that can advise his fellows, or at least whose advice is worth following. Such we claim to be. This being so, as our article progresses, not only may the beginner learn the rudiments of fancier life,—in its higher moral aspect, we hope—the novice pick up much that may benefit him, the amateur profit by a perusal of our serial, but, before it is concluded, the expert may perhaps perceive in it something of which he was ignorant, learn a fresh "wrinkle" or two in a hobby in which he fancied he knew everything. We can all learn something at times, and it is said, "a wise man may sometimes learn from a fool."

We are at the onset supposing that our infant fancier has made up his mind to "go in for dogs," but should this article perchance reach some fancier who has never kept dogs, nor yet contemplated doing so, but who is still a fancier by virtue of having kept some other description of stock, we may have a word to say to him, and if he will but learn what we write, we venture to think by the time he gets to the end of it his canine conversion will have been completely effected.

First of all let us look at the dog fancy as it is to-day, let us consider it carefully and calmly, view its present associations and past history, and see whether or not it is advisable to be connected with dogs.

At one time only two classes of the community were connected with dogs, viz., the very high society in the sporting aristocracy of the country and the very low and disreputable, such as the dog fighter and loafer. Whilst the virtues of the dog has been recognized by poets and great men in all ages almost, yet there was a time when the friend of man was held in very low esteem in this country, as he still is in some less civilized lands to-day. It was, no doubt, this period in the dog's history which gave rise to the common saying, "he's gone to the dogs," meaning a man having gone to the bad, become reduced in life in a low way. All this is changed, however; quite a transformation has taken place. With the advance of civilization, the human part of our nature seems to develop, and to-day the dog holds a high place in the affections of the people of all advanced countries. In later years the breeding and culture of prize dogs, both in England and America, in Australia and on the continent, has reached enormous proportions, so much so that the mongrel is fast disappearing off the face of the earth, and a prizebred dog is now beginning to be considered a necessary adjunct to every well-appointed homestead. Dog shows have become an institution in the country, and are supported by all ranks of society, and instead of any disgrace now attaching to the ownership of a dog, a person possessing a good dog or a good kennel of dogs is looked upon with some degree of envy. This change has no doubt been brought about by the better class of people interesting themselves in dogs, and the establishment of so many exhibitions all over the country. Innumerable specialists clubs devoted to particular breeds of dogs have sprung up, and as a consequence the breeding of prize dogs has developed into a great commercial enterprise in the country. In this way, Britain, as in many other items of merchandise, is the market of the world, and has very largely supplied America, Australia, and other countries with the best of her canine productions.

It is notorious, the writer claims, and not without reason, that whatever breed of dog an Englishman takes up he always improves it. Take for instance the Dachshund, which has been greatly developed and improved in this country during the last ten or fifteen years, at which time public attention was first directed to it, in which breed we have a much better type than that which obtains in its native country, Germany. It is the same with the Basset hound, the Great Dane, the Poodle, the Schipperke and Pomeranian, and it will soon be so, no doubt, with the Borzoi. Coming nearer home, we have in England far better Scotch collies, Scottish and Skye Terriers than are to be found in Scotland, and better Irish Setters, Terriers, and Water Spaniels than our Hibernian friends can boast of.

J. J. Lynn left for Seattle on Tuesday. He will go East from that point and contemplates returning here in about three months.

Hints to Old Beginners.

By Jack Bradshaw.

On rearing a puppy. A few general hints—As the object of (not) rearing pups is of course to get sympathy from your friends and nice, kind paragraphs in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, your pups should not only be of extraordinary value, but of exceptional promise, and when they die you should be careful to suspect foul play, as jealous fanciers never lose an opportunity of poisoning each other's dogs, especially at dog shows. First of all, you must catch your pup, and the best way, unless you can steal one safely, is either to buy one or breed one.

Practical Details—If you prefer to buy one do not do so through the kennel journals (as it is an open secret that the editors of those publications are in collusion with all sorts of respectable persons with real pedigreed pups for sale and exchange at moderate prices), but tell your butcher when he calls for orders, or any grocery store clerk you see with an honest face, that you take a fancy to, that you want a pup, a really good one, very cheap. Do not worry the man by fixing him down to any particular breed; leave all these "finicking" things to him. If he has not one to sell himself that will just suit you (which will be very strange) he is sure to have "a friend" who, to oblige him, will be glad to oblige you with the pick of a champion-bred litter at a ridiculously low price and at a tremendous sacrifice.

But don't pay this philanthropist the price he asks at first. Beat him down to two dollars if you can, which is a reasonable price for a thoroughbred pup of any breed, provided it has enough pedigree and you have the verbal assurance of the vendor that it is bound to win in any company. If you can get the pup at about a week or ten days old so much the better, as you will not have all the bother of "weaning" it, and will be saved a world of trouble with its teething. It should be buried (with a teaspoonful of Squatts' incomparable disinfectant) under a favorite rose-brush. Time, 3 to 4 days; average cost per pup, $2.30.

If, on the other hand, you prefer to breed your own pup, do not harass yourself and keep yourself awake at nights thinking about a suitable mate for your dog. Mating dogs of the same breed, a practice becoming annually more prevalent among fanciers, tends to produce a great monotony in the type, and nothing is more tiresome than monotony. And do not waste time and thought over the "condition" of the parents. Of course, too much follicular mange in either of them is inadvisable, but do not be discouraged by trifles. You will never succeed in the show ring if you are easily discouraged.

The main points when breeding your own pups, are to see that the mother for at least two weeks beforehand is kept on as low a diet as possible (milk especially being avoided), and when the puppies are expected, select some spot for their "nest" that is thoroughly ventilated, and where a keen, hearty draught can blow upon the litter, otherwise there is the danger of the pups being born with sound constitutions. For if you begin by feeding the mother well and finding her a warm corner screened from all currents, you run a great risk of rearing strong, healthy pups which will go romping all over the place, worrying the furniture all to pieces, destroying, for instance, your flower beds or potted plants, committing every sort of mischief, and to the last day of their lives will be a continual source of expense to you in food. If the pups are born alive, do not destroy any of them. This is a very cruel practice. On the contrary, remember the old adage, "the more the merrier," and if you hear of any other puppies that are going to be drowned, rescue the poor mites from a watery grave and mix them up with your own litter. "You cannot have too much of a good thing." Until their eyes are open do not leave them too much with their mother, but take them out with you for drives in the carriage, let the children have them to play with, keep them with you on the lawn or in the drawing-room. This gives the little creatures change of scene, and prevents them over-feeding themselves or over-sleeping, as they are liable to do if left with the mother. (Should they seem to miss their natural food, you cannot do better than keep them for a few hours a day in an empty case of Squatts' invaluable codliver-oil vermicular cakes.) The mother while nursing should be given only meat and custards, and plenty of it, otherwise there is a serious chance of her escaping the maladies incidental to her condition, and the pups run some risk of protracting their existence. It is best to bury the whole litter together (with one tablespoonful of the Damitas Company's matchless powder per pup), leaving room in the grave for the mother.

Time—Eight to ten days. Average cost per litter, next to nothing.

The Mother—If she seems to worry after the loss of her litter, feed her generously on a rich milk diet, and if she does not get worse very soon, give her a dose or two of something that you have invented yourself, and then write and ask Dr. Squills, V. S., to guess how it all happened.

This is a note for hench show enthusiasts, although the average owner of a prize ribbon litter cares little or nothing about the natural history of his animal. The dog is grouped with the fox, although the pupil of the eye is round, whereas the fox owns a perpendicular slit. The dog is found under the division Vertebrata, class Mammalia, order Feroe, family Felidae, and the sub-family Canina. As a species it is known as Canina familiaris. The sub-family is distinguished by the possession of two tubercular teeth placed behind the canines in the upper jaw. Now, then, who says he knows all about a dog?

At the Traps.

The July shoot of the California Wing Club at live birds will take place at Ingleside to-morrow. The club race at fifteen birds will be the main event of the meeting. Sweepstakes will follow the club race.

The Lincoln Gun Club members will shoot at blue-rocks on the club grounds at Alameda Junction. A race at 100 targets, $20 entrance, is billed. A number of shooters have already signified their intention of entering the match.

The Antler Gun Club shoot at blue-rocks will take place to-morrow on the Empire grounds at Alameda Junction.

At Sacramento a large attendance of trap shooters will take part in practice events for the tournament a week hence.

The Union Gun Club shoot last Sunday was fairly well attended by club members and visitors. The opening event at six birds with eleven shooters up, gave four guns a record of straight. Eight entries were in the side pool. The purse being divided by Shaw, Feudner and Walsh. Fifteen shooters competed in the club race at twelve birds, nine entries were in the side pool. George Sylvester was the only contestant who scored clean. Although favored by drawing a number of easy birds he proved to be a steady, calm shooter who made a good many effective centers with the first barrel. He won first money in the side pool. Fred Feudner, who lost his first bird, a hot one from three trap, won second money and Pete Walsh and "Masco" divided third money. The latter shooter is a youth who gives much promise of a clever career as a trap shot. The shooters in the club race were handicapped in distance. Each shooter after killing four straight went back a yard. In a second six-bird race Walsh, Shaw and Sylvester divided the purse. The birds supplied averaged a goodly number of strong ones. The shooting of the participants, considering that many of them are not constant in their live bird practice, was a fair average. Parson Jones was hoodooed by a corduroy hat and Senator Iverson mislaid his rabbit's foot, which accounts for the incomplete scores made by these two shooters. The scores in full were as follows:

First event, 6 birds, 30 yards rise, high guns, $1.50 entrance, birds extra, side pool—

The Capital City Gun Club held its regular shoot last Sunday. Thirty-one members faced the traps, with twelve visitors, making forty-three in all, which was the largest shoot held in Sacramento this season. Stevens won the honors in the championship class. Gusto, though not in the championship class, proved himself to be such by making the best score of the day, breaking 24 out of a possible 25. C. Palm was high in the second class, breaking 20. His scores during the day were remarkable for one who has shot for such a short time, this being his first season at blue-rocks. W. Flint was an easy winner in the third class. He has shown much improvement since the season opened. Heilbron, who looked like the winner in that class, finished second with Dr. Woods. Newbert and Vetter divided second money in the championship class, and Black and Smith divided third. Frazee took second money in the first class, with 23. Maxwell took third money. Just took second money in the second class, and Bauer third. L. Smith took third in the third class. The scores below will show how the others finished.

Club shoot at 25 blue rocks, championship class—

During the day the shooters indulged in pool matches, more than a dozen of which were shot off at from ten to fifteen blue rocks each. Some 3000 of the asphalt disks were trapped during the day.

The members of the Del Paso Trap Club held the final shoot for this season on their grounds Sunday last. Frank Ruhstaller Jr., won the high average for the season, killing 37 out of his last 40 birds. F. B. Adams shot in good form, grassing his birds nicely, and F. Wright, who is a new man before the traps, showed marked improvement. Following are the scores in the club race at 20 birds—

Ruhstaller, F. Jr.	12221	11110	22121	11112-19
Adams, F. B.	12211	12112	21120	1011-18

The blue-rock tournament at Sacramento on the 13th and 14th insts. will be held under the management of Kimball and Upson. The program for Saturday, the first day, embraces four events: No. 1, 20 targets, entrance $1, purse $15, $10 and $5. No. 2, 20 targets, entrance $1, three moneys. No. 3, 20 targets, entrance $1.50, purse $25, $15, $10 and $5. No. 4, merchandise shoot, entrance $1, eight classes, sixteen prizes. Sunday's program, seven events: No. 1, 20 targets, entrance $1.50, purse $25, $15 and $10. No. 2, 20 targets, entrance $2, purse $40, $25 and $15. No. 3, 20 targets, entrance $2.50, purse $40, $25, $15 and $10. No. 4, 20 targets, Kimball and Upson trophy, winner to receive one-third of the entrance money and two-thirds of the entrance money at the next tournament. Trophy must be won three times to become individual property. Cup to be contested for in Northern California only. No. 5, 20 targets, entrance $5, purse $60, $45, $30 and $20. No. 6, merchandise shoot, ten classes (first prize an L. C. Smith hammerless gun), no shooter to receive more than one prize; ties miss and out. No. 7, team shoot for championship of Northern California, entrance $6 per man. Captain Ruhstaller offers a handsome button for the high average gun on Sunday.

From the foregoing schedule it will be seen that a big tournament is on the tapis for Sacramento and visiting sportsmen. The list of cash prizes is an inducing one for a large entry.

The Millwood Gun Club held their first trap shoot last Sunday at Mill Valley. The officers are M. L. Arnold, president; Wm. Mersfelder, secretary; Wm. Crandall, treasurer. The club grounds are located at Dick McDonald's, Mill Valley Junction. The member making the best score each month wears the high gun monthly medal. The records for Sunday's shooting are:

Birds	10	25	15	15
Arnold, M. L.	8	18	10	12
Crandall, W.	8	16	12	15
Mersfelder, W.	5	10	8	9
Murphy, F. Blair	7	12	9	10
Walker, L.	6	18	9	10
Van Orden, V.	6	12	8	8
Broad, A. F.	6	12	8	8
Moldrup, E.	6	10	9	14
Nash, M.	6	15	9	14
Price, W. H.	6	22	12	10

The screaming wallon is a hard duck to kill. Its hide is very tough and is thickly covered with feathers and down. Besides the bird is a great diver, one of the kind that used to "dive at the flash" when hunted with the old arm that flashed when fired. It is of very little value for table use, being so tough. The only way to manage it at all is to skin it and parboil it in a big pot with plenty of water. The negroes make caps of the wallon skins.

"They are great ducks for diving," says Wharfinger Tom Casey, who has taken a shot at nearly all kinds of feathered game. "They can dive quicker, go down deeper, remain under water longer and come up farther away than any other duck that frequents our waters. I remember once, when I was East, I succeeded in killing a wallon, and, being short of game for the table, I determined to cook my bird. I got a negro to skin it, giving him the hide for his trouble. After being cleaned we put him in a great pot full of water and under it kindled a hot fire. After awhile I wanted to see how the cooking of my duck progressed and lifted the top off the boiling pot, but there was so much steam escaping I could not see into the pot and struck a match over it. The blamed wallon, sir, dived at the flash of the match. It disappeared and has never been seen since."

The Walla Walla Tournament.

The annual tournament of the Sportsman's Association of the North West at Walla Walla embraced three days of blue rock shooting, June 27th, 26th and 27th and the two following days at the live bird traps. Over 100 shooters were engaged in the blue rock events, the attendance at the live bird matches was also good. The total number of individual targets the first day for each shooter was 165, second day 190 and third day 165. The total entrance money for the first day was $22.50; second day $25; third day $24; fourth day $22.50, fifth day $25. The moneys in most of the target events were divided under the Rose system which was in vogue when the money was not divided 40, 30, 20 and 10 per cent. Four sets of traps were used. All traps faced the northwest. Nos. 1 and 2 were each a set of three expert traps arranged on the Sergeant system. No. 3 was a set of five expert traps and at No. 4 bulkhead was a Maugratrap for extra events and pool shooting. The annual meeting of the association was held on June 26th and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: Harry Beale, of Portland, President; P. J. Holohan, of Wallace, First Vice President; R. S. Cox, of Seattle, Second Vice President; Dr. T. F. Smith of Tacoma, Third Vice President; Harvey Moreland of Portland, Secretary-Treasurer.

The next tournament will be held in Portland. Several ladies entered in different events and made creditable records smashing blue rocks with their guns. Eight 15 target events were contested on the first day, the trophy races were the fifth event for the Multnomah medal valued at $250, three moneys, 25 blue rocks which was won by Guist; second money ($26.87), Sheard, Cooper; third money ($8.06), Stevens, Ware of Spokane, Engart, Baltimore; fourth money ($2.68), Young, Dr. Smith, Holohan of Wallace, Howe, F. C. Stevens, Brindley, Monteth, Whitworth. The concluding match for the day was the tenth event, a three man team championship trophy race 20 blue-rocks per man, three moneys and trophy valued at $250, 18 entries, purse $185. This trophy was held by the Spokane club. The event did not count in the general averages. This race was a tie, Tacoma and Wallace teams breaking 55. The shoot off was to take place later in the week. The Tacoma team was Smith, Rowe and Sheard; the Wallace team, Flohr, Holohan and Whitlaw. Second money, $13.46, Flint, McBroom and Ware of Spokane; Ellis, MacLoughlin and Stevens, of Seattle; Campbell, Peck and Howe, of Walla Walla, all with 54. Third money, $13.46, Jaeger, Wright and Smith, of Butte; Smith, Cartwright and Clark, of Wardner, both with 53.

On the second day eight fifteen target races were shot up and two trophy events. The Globe trophy race, 50 blue rocks, $5 entrance, was not completed and the Brownlee medal event was postponed. The Globe trophy was shot for Thursday morning and won by Sheard of Tacoma. There were 67 entries and a purse of $385. Ware of Spokane and Sheard tied, and in the shoot-off Sheard won by 43 out of 50. McLaughlin of Seattle, Stevens and Sharp took second; Dr. Smith, L. A. Smith and Hillis, of Libby, Mont., took third. This was the great event of the day.

Event No. 20, shot also on Thursday, was the Brownlee medal and was also won by Sheard of Tacoma, after a hard fight. The medal and a purse of $288 made good shooting. Twenty targets were used, expert rules, indicator pull, known angles, four unknown and one known traps. Clark, Stevens, Waite, took second money; Stevens (F. C.), Sharp, Huse, Nalback, Peck, Smalls, Spargo and Straight third.

In an extra event Sharp won the $75 shotgun donated by the Remington company.

The Anaconda cup was event No. 23, and after a hard day's shooting had to be held over. The Brownlee trophy contest was also unfinished at dark on Thursday.

On Friday principal closing blue-rock events make this showing: Event 23 was the Anaconda cup, Enyart, Cullison, Guist and Howe tied with 24 out of 25. In the shoot-off Guist broke 24; Enyart, 23; Howe, 21; Cullison, 17.

The last event in blue-rocks was the individual championship for a gold medal, 25 targets, $4 entrance, and purse of $252, with sixty-three entries. J. J. Plummer of Boise, Idaho, made 25 straight and tied with Frank Howe of Walla Walla. In the shoot-off Plummer won, making another straight, Howe losing one. This is the best record of the tournament, 99 out of a possible 100. Second went to L. H. Smith, McLaughlin, Holohan, Snyder, Merritt, Ware, Sharp, C. H. Smith, Stacy, Nell, Peck. Third, Wood, Twohy, Hillis, Sheard, Stevens, Cooper, Flohr, Enyart, McBroom, Waite, F. S. Stevens, Knettle, Bigelow.

Live-bird event 1, 7 pigeons, entrance $7.50, with purse of $352, gave first to Wood, McLaughlin, Ellis, Cooper, Denham, Bigelow, Becker, Plummer, Dent, Whitworth, Haight, Sheard, Kelly, Stillman, Murphy. Second, Sear, Huse, Lougee, Merritt, Hughes, Straight, Dr. Smith, McBroom, Guist, Forbes, Russell, Cartwright, Hillis, Waite, Van Dorn, Peck.

The live-bird shooting was very slow and unsatisfactory, the birds being sluggish, many of them young. Three live bird events were shot. In these the number of entries had fallen down, many of the shooters having left.

On Saturday the tournament closed, but one short event being shot off. This was the 25 live bird event, entrance $25, birds extra, 15 entries, open to the world, purse $300. First, 24, Denham of Tacoma; second, 23, Ware of Spokane; Sheard of Tacoma.

Nearly all the shooters had gone home, few waiting for the final shoot, which did not excite a great deal of interest. The individual averages have not been yet made up, either for separate days or for the tournament.

H. G. Lougee, a familiar figure early this season and last year at the local traps shot with the Spokane Rod and Gun Club and was in the money every day of the big shoot.

H. E. Skinner Co., 416 Market street, have received, direct from New Mexico, a choice lot of genuine Navajo indian blankets, which they are selling 25% less than the usual rates. These blankets make the best camping beds on earth, and, in addition, are also largely used as rugs and portieres.

Escaped to the Woods.

We, who were caged as by a wall
 In cities paved and mural,
 Escaped, now seek cool shades, where all
 Is fresh and green and rural.
 Sweet-singing woods, we come to you,
 Whose melody delights us;
 Each nodding bough, as 'round we view,
 But beckons and invites us.

Here, in your song-crowned valley may
 We list to glorious voices;
 The happy birds' ideal lay
 Seems sung but to rejoice us,
 And straying through your twilight dell,
 Leaves wave green banners o'er us;
 Odors from flowers invisible
 Rise o'er the path before us.

With you, dear woods, how calmed our mood,
 Nature her largeness showing,
 Where God is seen in plainest good,
 His growing joys bestowing;
 Where birds and insects, brooks and trees,
 Harmoniously living,
 Together chant their litany
 With praises and thanksgiving.

Hints to Anglers.

Some years ago, when I knew more about fly-fishing than I ever shall again, writes H. P. Wells in "Fly Rods and Fly Tackle," "I made a fishing trip to Tobyhanna, in Pennsylvania. I had frequently fished streams within thirty or forty miles of there, and supposed I at least knew where to look for sport. The weather was propitious, rather showery perhaps, but still a good fishing day. The stream was a wading brook of brownish color, quick water being succeeded by still reaches, apparently stagnant. I fished the rapid water with care and indifferent success. The still waters, though they were less obstructed and easier to cast over, I ignored altogether, because the look of the banks and the water indicated a muddy bottom, and I then believed trout never frequented such localities. When I returned in the evening to the hotel I was astonished to no small degree when the landlord informed me that these were the very cream of the whole fishing. Nor was this all. I found that the small, sober-tinted flies I had been accustomed to were next to worthless, and that flies larger than I supposed were ever successfully used for trout, and much more gaudy in color, were needed in those waters. These revelations had not a little undermined my self-confidence, but its utter annihilation was reserved for the next day.

I then met my landlord on the stream. I was casting in what I considered very fair style, and when my flies lit upon the water I drew them diagonally across the stream, the droppers just skimming the surface. I had then never seen nor heard of any other method of manipulating artificial flies in trout fishing, and that this was not the only proper manner to display them at all times, in all places, and under all conditions, I had never entertained the most remote suspicion. After feeling his way with some caution, in order to be sure the suggestion would not be deemed officious, he said: "That method of handling the flies may be all right on small streams and in clear water, but here it is next to useless."

Had he told me that two flies should be displayed on the bank, rather than on the stream, I could scarcely have been more astonished. Utterly demoralized, I surrendered the rod and asked for a practical exhibition of his method. The first cast at once indicated the expert. The flies lit lightly on the water, and there remained for at least thirty seconds, without other motion than that they gradually sunk below the surface. Then he drew them towards him by a series of very slow and short pulls, each separated by a brief pause from its predecessor, till near enough for another cast.

That trip, though the net result in the way of fish was nothing to boast of, was one of the most remunerative fishing excursions I have ever made; for I then learned to be extremely diffident when strange waters were under discussion, and invariably to listen, with at least apparent patience and respect, to the suggestions or views of others.

No method of fly-fishing possesses the charm of wading. Through scenes where nature shows her utmost loveliness the trout-stream takes its way, itself a jewel mirroring in its bosom every detail of its faultless setting. Deep shadows, gemmed with specks of sunshine cover the water. Stately trees, graceful ferns and flowers and mossy rocks line its banks. Every turn of the stream is a new picture, varied in detail but uniform in beauty—at once the delight and the despair of the artist. The cool, damp air gives new life and vigor to lungs charged with the foul vapors of city life, while over all the murmur of the living water proclaims here is peace.

It may happen to the angler to wander far, and cast his rod upon many waters. But no matter what success attends his efforts elsewhere, his memory still delights to linger, above all, on the quiet beauties of those happy days, when youth and he wandered hand in hand together down the murmuring stream. Not only is it in every way the most delightful, since every sense is fed, but it is at the same time the most artistic method of fly-fishing.

He who thinks to have much sport with the fly at the expense of the trout of the much-fished brooks and streams of the New England and middle states must bring every resource of his art to bear, and that from a well-stocked arsenal. Civilization in its onward march educates trout as well as men, and many an angler, whose catch in the wilds of Maine is only limited by his desires, could hardly take enough in the waters first mentioned to impart a smell to his creel.

It is not my purpose to tell when, where and how to fish these waters, since that has already been described by no less a master than Thaddeus Norris himself, as well as many other and lesser lights of the gentle art. I frankly admit I can improve in nothing on what they have said. But some practical hints what to do that the sport of the present may be unalloyed with injury to the health, and pain in the future, may perhaps not be amiss.

Firstly, the clothing should be sober gray in color, that if possible the suspicious game man may mistake the motions of the angler for the waving of some branch of a forest tree wooed by the summer wind. Upon the feet low heavy shoes should be worn, studded on the soles and heels with a few, and but a few, soft hobnails; or better still, those round headed nails sometimes seen in cowhide hoots. As these wear smooth they should be removed and new ones substituted.

It will be necessary to give your personal attention to this, for the heart of the average shoemaker is modeled on his own lapstone. In vain will be your order to put in but a few, and delusive his promise to comply. Either he revels in the use of hobnails, or his idea of "a few" is complied with as long as any portion of the sole is visible between the heads. It is not alone to the cohesion of iron with stone that the benefit derived from the use of hobnails in wading is due, but also to the interspaces thus formed in the bottom of the sole, engaging with the inequalities of the rocky surface with which it is brought in contact. If the nails are used in excess, the shoes then become practically paved with iron, and the second element of safety is lost.

Through the uppers at the instep and close to the soles, the leather should be pierced three or four times with the small blade of a penknife, that when the stream is abandoned for the bank the water may find egress. But these holes must be small and made as I have said by a single cut with closely adjacent edges, or sand and gravel will enter to the great annoyance of the angler.

The drawers and stockings should be of wool, without the admixture of any cotton whatever. This is of the first importance to health. The difference in comfort arising from this cause is wonderful. After the first immersion, with woolen socks and underclothes, the wader will experience no chill in or out of the water, except, perhaps, a momentary ring of cold when the water rises to an unaccustomed height. He will hardly know, as far as any sensation of cold is concerned, whether he is wet or dry. But if cotton underclothes are worn, or those with an appreciable admixture of cotton, a chill is experienced at once on exposure to the slightest wind, or even on leaving the water when the air is still. This cannot but be prejudicial to health. Red Shaker flannel is the best material for this purpose, probably because it is honestly made.

The landing net for this fishing should be quite small, of oval form, the bow eight or nine inches wide, and a foot long. The handle need not exceed six inches in length, and should be provided with a leather tag containing a button-hole, to be attached to a button secured to the back of the coat just below the collar. This is the most convenient way to dispose of a very inconvenient necessity. Rattan makes as good a bow as anything.

When a fish is struck, get him out of the water in which he was caught as soon as possible, lest the others, which were probably in his company, take alarm—and out of the current as well. Play him till quite exhausted, then reel him in short, drop your wading staff, and reach behind and unbutton the net. Then, throwing the tip of the rod backward, slip the net under him quietly and lift him out. Next support your rod between your body and the upper part of your right arm, take the net in the right hand, and grasp the fish by the gills with the left. Then tuck your net under your left arm and proceed to kill your fish. Never neglect this. It is most cruel and unsportsmanlike to force them to writhe their lives slowly away in the creel. This may be instantly accomplished by striking the head once or twice with the butt of the rod, or the thumb may be placed back of the head and the forefinger hooked under the lower jaw, and the head bent sharply over against the back. Death is instantaneous. Then unhook the fish, replace the net, retrieve the wading staff, and try for another.

In wading keep out of the water all you can, and never, if it is possible to avoid it, traverse a spot where trout are likely to lie. Remember there may be some other angler behind you, and do not spoil his sport because you may happen to have found none. It by no means follows, because you were unsuccessful, that the pool was untenanted; if you plunge through it you may so alarm the fish that they will refuse to rise for hours.

Not unfrequently gentlemen will be met at a fishing locality whose outfit, chosen in ignorance of the peculiarities of that water, is utterly unsuited there. To a brother angler so situated spare freely from your superabundance, giving him all possible assistance. Propriety and policy alike forbid that the eager competition of everyday life should contaminate this sport.

If the beginner will take a piece of Bristol board as long as the pocket of his fly-hook will conveniently hold, mark one edge in inches, and then copy the following table upon it, he will be able by it to ascertain the weight of the trout he takes very closely without weighing:

	Inches.		Inches.
$\frac{1}{4}$ pound.....	9	3 pounds.....	19
$\frac{1}{2}$ pound.....	11 $\frac{1}{4}$	3 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds.....	20
$\frac{3}{4}$ pound.....	13	4 pounds.....	21
1 pound.....	14	4 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds.....	22
1 $\frac{1}{4}$ pounds.....	15	5 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds.....	22 $\frac{1}{2}$
1 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds.....	16	6 pounds.....	23 $\frac{1}{2}$
2 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds.....	17	7 pounds.....	24 $\frac{1}{2}$
2 $\frac{1}{2}$ pounds.....	18

Suppose we wish to ascertain the weight of a trout, and have no means of weighing it. If we cut a twig to the length of the trout over all—that is, from the end of its nose to the extreme end of the tail fin—ascertain the length of the twig by the inch marks on the strip of Bristol board, and then consult the table, we will learn his actual weight so nearly as never to be put to confusion should our statement of its weight be confronted with proof of its actual weight. As the size increases, the margin of possible error increases. If the fish is not over nineteen inches long, and is in normal condition, neither unusually thin nor unusually hog-backed, the table will probably give its real weight within an ounce one way or the other. Should you take a trout twenty-two inches long, for example, he will appear to be a very large trout. I have heard such estimated, even by experienced anglers not accustomed to see trout so large, all the way from six up to seven pounds and a half. But you may be morally certain if that fish is not so hog-backed as to amount to obvious absolute deformity, and does not measure over twenty-two inches in length, that it does not fairly weigh as much as five pounds.

Izaak Walton and his incomparable book, "The Compleat Angler," have been recently brought to the attention of anglers, in a most unexpected and unique form. It seems that a publication that has just come to light in Lancaster, Pa., where it lay unknown and unnoticed for nearly three-quarters of a century, has revived interest in the best known of all fishermen, the peerless craftsman, good old Walton. This publication is neither book, booklet, nor yet a broadside. It is a piece of fine white silk, 3 feet by 2 feet 9 inches in size, and is a fitting memorial to the great angler.

In the center of this silk cloth is a portrait of Walton. He is represented as a man of sixty-five or seventy years, with a most genial face, long, flowing white hair, in robust health, and in good humor with all the world. His name is within the printed frame that surrounds the picture. Arranged around the central figure on every side are pictures of the principal game fishes of Britain described by Walton, such as the trout, perch, grayling, tench, chub, salmon, roach, carp, dace, pike and others, each surrounded by a handsomely painted border, within which is the name of the fish and the proper season for catching it and how to fish for it. Space is also allotted to what is no doubt intended to represent a proper fishing rod of the period, although it is without a reel. A landing net also finds an appropriate place.

Around the outer margin are spaces in which the most taking flies for each kind of fish are figured, and along with them the best natural bait for the various fish and recipes for making many kinds of paste for the same purpose. At the bottom of the picture an "Angler's Song" is given, accompanied by the music. A prominent place in the picture is allotted to the following legend:

"Made by John Potts in 1830. Published by Potts, Oliver and Potts, Engravers, New Mills, Derbyshire."

The printing is done in purple ink of a beautiful shade. There is much fancy work, such as scrolls, borders, etc., and it is of a very superior kind. It is evidently printed from a copper plate, or if from more than one, the union is so exact as not to be visible. Taken as a whole, it is a most artistic piece of workmanship, representing the best printing as well as engraving of that day.

"Black Jack," "Salmon Roe Jack" and "Hungry Bill" fished Lagunitas lake on Monday with indifferent success. Each angler used a boat and tried for fish from the shore, although trout were seen at various times in the water they were totally indifferent to any lures and every effort to hook them. Fishing in this lake is about over for the season it seems, as the lake has been pretty well fished out. "Black Jack" advances the following theory to explain why large fish are seldom caught in the lake. He claims wild cats and raccoons are responsible for their absence. The mountain brook which empties into the dammed up lake, being fed by springs here and there along its tortuous and narrow confined course adown the rocky slopes of Mount Tamalpais, is in many places but a foot or two in width where the water cuts between the rocks on its way to the reservoir. Trout will naturally leave a lake to go up a stream to spawn, the big fellows when they take to the brook are easily whipped out by the cats and coons, which have such easy access to the little stream that it is almost impossible for a fish to escape these, its natural enemies, which vermin abound in that particular locality.

The anglers were well provided with thirst preventatives which may possibly account for a ludicrous adventure which befell "S. R. Jack" on the Sausalito boat when the party returned to this city. When the fishermen walked on board "S. R. Jack" deposited his rod, creel and other dunnage on the platform just under the stairway inside the door on the lower deck. This practice is usual with shooters and anglers. The luggage generally remaining safely where placed until the boat reaches its city wharf. Shortly after the ferry boat left the Sausalito slip something happened to the steering gear, the boat being a double-ender was simply turned around in her course and steamed on, the other rudder being used instead of the disabled one. This reversal was noticed by "Black Jack" who shortly led "S. R. Jack" astern. It was not long before he missed his fishing tackle, etc. He insisted that he was either the victim of a practical joke or that some one had stolen his property. He fumed and fretted until the boat was nearly at the slip when he found his stuff forward. Even then he claimed that someone had maliciously carried his baggage from where he had first placed it. The moral of this story is obvious—Don't go fishing on a windy day, don't have codfish sandwiches in your lunch basket.

THE FARM.

Dairying in Switzerland.

My observation of the dairy business in Switzerland showed it to be rather a different proposition from what it is here, says P. M. Sharples in the New York Produce Review. The pastures are stood on edge rather than laid flat, as is the custom in America. One edge of this pasture will be bounded by an eternal snow field and the other edge, but a comparatively short distance below, will be in the middle of the harvest field. One part of a man's herd will be drinking ice water ten feet from the edge of a glacier, while the other part will be munching fine, green pasture two hundred yards away.

The Swiss cow is probably well known to all—a beautiful and gently, fawn-colored animal, looking something similar to a Jersey cow. These cows do not go down to the foot of the mountain every day, but remain high up in the pasture lands all seasons, stone huts with stone roofs being crowded on to some spot more level than others, where cows are kept at night.

The milk is carried to the bottom in a wooden pail or carried strapped to the back of the milk man. The cheese and butter are made in a small way by each individual. The satisfaction I had and the meeting an old friend feeling which came over me can be understood on my coming occasionally to some inaccessible cow-house with a glacier for a refrigerator and a Sharples separator for handling the milk. In some of the lower, less rugged mountain regions there are butter factories where large quantities of milk are bought to be made into butter.

It is most interesting in some villages located in a wide, fertile valley, to watch the cows come home from the mountain foothills at night. They need no driver, but when the proper time comes the leaders start off for the village, and all the other cows, sometimes hundreds in number, follow them to the village. Each cow knows its own home and will walk up to the door of the home of the owner and stand there bawling until admitted. Apparently, it is let into the best room in the house—the family occupying the upstairs and inferior rooms. Outside in the street is the manure pile, and Mark Twain informs us that each man's or family's wealth is indicated by the size of the manure pile at the front door. Perhaps this is true. I can not say. I vouch only for what I know, but the size of these manure piles would indicate that Mr. Twain was right.

Successful Creamery.

The affairs of the Hollister Creamery are in an exceedingly prosperous condition. The corporation has no debts whatever, and during the year has expended about fifteen hundred dollars in new machinery and improvements. Two of the latest make of separators were purchased and paid for. The Creamery is now making up 400 pounds of butter per day, and needs at least half a ton daily to fill all orders received. Shipments are made daily to San Jose, Santa Clara, Gilroy, Pacific Grove, Santa Cruz, Felton, Boulder Creek, Morgan Hill, Monterey and the New Idria Mines. So heavy is the local demand that there has been no butter to ship to the San Francisco market for some time.—Hollister Bee.

The points of a good dairy cow are: Wide in shoulder blades; well filled behind shoulder blades; wide, open nostrils; large forehead; prominent spine; deep and well sprung ribs; long muzzle; strong jaws; long, flat neck; sharp behind the withers; long body; hips cup away, both behind and before; thin flanks; four well-developed milk wells just back of fore legs; udder well back; very little flesh on face and lower legs; veins in these places prominent; flat, thin leg bones; harsh thin coat.

Smallest of Wild Cattle.

Celebes has the distinction of being the home of the smallest living representative of the wild cattle, or, indeed, of the wild cattle of any period of the earth's history, for no equally diminutive fossil member of the group appears to be known to science. An idea of the extremely diminutive proportions of the anoa or sapiutan, as the animal in question is respectively called by the inhabitants of Celebes and the Malays, may be gained when it is stated that its height at the shoulder is only about three feet three inches, whereas that of the great Indian wild ox, or gaur, is at least six feet four inches, and may according to some writers, reach as much as seven feet. In fact, the anoa is really not much, if at all, larger than a well grown South Down sheep, and scarcely exceeds in this respect the little domesticated Bramini cattle shown a few years ago at the Indian exhibition held at Earl's Court.

The anoa has many of the characteristics of the Indian Buffalo, but its horns are relatively shorter, less curved and more upright. In this, as well as in certain other respects, it is more like the young than the adult of the last-named species, and as young animals frequently show ancestral features which are gradually lost as maturity is approached, it would be a natural supposition that the anoa is a primitive type of buffalo.

A Sutter County Creamery.

The daily supply of milk to the Tudor skimming station has now been increased to about 2000 pounds, and the patrons generally are well satisfied with the returns. Those who have made thorough tests of the profits before and after the skimming station was established find that they are doing far better now than when they made their own butter. Among those who are contemplating going into the business more extensively is A. Grafis, who is making arrangements to secure from 75 to 100 head of good fresh cows and stock a portion of the Asford farm. With this addition and other increased herds the present supply to the station will be more than doubled.—Sutter Farmer.

In an experiment in pig feeding it was found that when hard-wood ashes or bone meal was given with corn meal there was a gain of one pound in weight for less than five pounds of corn meal, while when the corn meal was fed alone it took over 6 1/2 pounds of corn meal to make a pound of gain, or to be exact 4.87 pounds when ashes were given, 4.9 pounds with bone meal and 6.29 when corn meal was sole food. This is a saving of about 25 per cent by adding the mineral matter of ashes or bone meal. The bone meal should be mixed with the corn meal in the mash, but the ashes may be put in a clean place in the yard and the hog allowed to help himself. Whether they supply some need of the animal or act as a stimulant to better digestion is not yet known, and we care more for a knowledge of the facts than for a theory in regard to them.

The grade Shropshire ewes of the western ranges have one paramount virtue other than their excellence as mutton producers. They are prolific and excellent mothers. A Shropshire ewe will not only own her own lamb under difficult conditions and adopt any waif turned over to her with a suggestion that it is her own offspring, but she sometimes gives trouble by taking up with her neighbor's young before her own is born. Under the conditions of handling a range flock this instinct for maternity makes the Shrop a prime favorite.

The best fertilizer for any soil is a spirit of industry, enterprise and intelligence. Without this, lime and gypsum, bones and green manure, marl and guano will be of little use.

When to Shear.

J. J. Edgerton, in Farmer's Tribune, calls attention to the cruel practice still often followed of allowing the fleece to remain on the sheep till late in June or July, the object being to increase its weight. He gives three reasons for shearing earlier in the season. First, cruelty to animals in compelling them to carry these heavy coats into the hot weather. Second, it is hard on the constitution and vitality of the sheep, will lessen its appetite and thrift, and in the case of ewes with lambs, the lambs will not do nearly as well. Third, the amount of wool is not increased, as has been supposed, by late shearing, but is generally lessened in both quality and quantity. If the shearing is done late, there is considerable time beforehand in which there is no growth; the animal is too warm already, while if the shearing is done early there will be considerable time that nature will make the effort to replace the coat, and growth will be rapid. In this way a much greater growth of fiber in a year is secured. Mr. Edgerton considers it best to have shearing done before they go on to grass. With ewes he prefers to have the shearing done before lambing. The fleece will be in much better condition if taken off beforehand, and the lamb and ewe will both do better.

For Good Mutton.

For a good quality of mutton keep the ewes in thrifty condition, says the Farm Journal, but not overfat. Feed wheat bran with a little oatmeal, is a valuable ration for ewes, for it builds bone in the lamb, keeps the ewes' bowels free and open and tends to the production of milk after lambing. About one pound of grain to each ewe should be fed daily.

When giving sulphur to the sheep it should be mixed with the salt, enough only to give the salt a slightly yellowish tinge.

It is a waste of money to grind grain for sheep. Scatter the whole grain over a broad bottomed trough and let them work it out for themselves. Feed the corn on the ear.

A strong taste is imparted to the mutton if the wool is allowed to touch the exposed flesh. Avoid this if you want a sweet leg of lamb.

When we fatten sheep during winter, we usually shear them. They gain faster and take up less room in consequence. In this case, of course, they must be warmly housed, and it is of the utmost importance that the pens be well ventilated.

For Milch Cows.

The parsnip is probably one of the best roots ever grown for milch cows, and it has a great advantage in that it may remain in the ground until spring, when other roots are all gone, and then be used until grass is grown. It is as easily grown as the carrot, and, like that root, it wants a deep, rich and mellow soil. Many object to growing it, even in the garden, because the weeds are apt to get such a growth before the parsnips come up that the labor of weeding is greatly increased, but this may be remedied by mixing a few radish seed with the parsnip seed, which will come out long before the parsnips are up. They can be pulled when the parsnips are thinned.

The breeds used in the make up of the new Buff Orkingtons were the Hamburgs, Dorkings and Buff Cochins. They take their great laying qualities from the Hamburgs. The Dorkings furnished meaty qualities, shape and blockiness and the Buff Cochins size and color.

The farmer who has a milk check coming in every month will tell you that it is a great aid in producing sound and natural sleep, for it relieves the worry of how to meet the current expense bills for the household.

The Florida Razorback.

The Florida razorback is the hog indigenous to this climate and soil. He is usually large of limb and fleet of foot, being the only known porker that can outrun a darkey. He has a tail of wondrous length, which, while he is in active motion, he twists into the tightest corkscrew, but with which while quietly feeding he keeps his leathery sides much in the same manner that the docile cow uses her tail. He is self supporting. He earns his own living, and thrives equally well in the high woods, in the flatwoods, in the hummocks and in the marshes. He subsists on anything he can find above the earth or underneath its surface. He has a clear, far-seeing eye and is very sensitive of hearing. Nature has equipped him with a snout almost as long as the beak of a wild pelican of Borneo, with which he can penetrate the earth many inches in quest of worms, snakes and insects. He is the most intelligent of all the hogs, and is likewise the most courageous. He has been known to engage in mortal combat with a coon for the possession of a watermelon, and to rend asunder a barbed wire fence.

There are five breeds of swine that have a reputation as bacon hogs in England. They are the three Yorkshire breeds, large, middle and small, the Berkshire and the Tamworth. The large and middle Yorksire are thought to be better than the Berkshire, the Tamworth and small Yorkshire not as good for furnishing bacon well mixed with lean meat. They are all rather short in head and neck in proportion to the length of body. To obtain bacon that will sell at the highest prices or nearly equal to the Danish bacon it would be necessary to resort to the English system of feeding, using more barley and oat meal, and little or no American corn, which makes it too fat. They also feed many roots from the time the pigs are weaned until actually put up to fatten unless they have a clover field to turn into.

The tremendous losses that are coming to some men right alongside other men, both keeping cows, is proof sufficient that what ails the losing man is a want of sound dairy knowledge. Every cow census we have taken shows up this fact very clearly.

50 Standard-Bred Trotters and Pacers

From the Oakwood Park Stock Farm, Danville, Cal.

This consignment consists of thoroughly broken sons and daughters of Steinway 2:25½, Charles Derby 2:30, El Benton 2:33, Dan L. 2:35½, Prince Red, Major Ben, etc. out of many of the best bred mares on this famous farm. There are several well-matched, stylish carriage horses as well as fast road teams among them, besides standard mares and two very well bred stallions, also brothers and sisters to noted campaigners. Catalogues issued Monday next. Anyone in need of a first-class "racing prospect," a perfectly gentle roadster that has size, color and speed, or is in need of a fine business horse, should attend this sale. Horses will be at my place three days prior to the date of sale, July 11th.

California Horses Over East.

There were two meetings in which California horses started last week, one at Pekin, Illinois, the other at Minneapolis, Minnesota.

At the Pekin meeting, which opened July 2d, Tags was a starter in the 2:13 class pace on the opening day. There was a drizzling rain and the track was not in condition for racing, but two races were finished in the mud and a couple of heats of the 2:13 pace. Tags won a heat and third money in this race, which finally went to the mare Carmelita by Cornelius, the fastest heat being 2:14. Carmelita was bred at Rancho del Paso, and the time made in this race just equals her record made at Lexington in 1899. The McKinney gelding You Bet took fourth money in this race. Two heats were paced on Tuesday, the 2d, there was no racing on Wednesday owing to the rain, and the race was concluded on Thursday.

In the 2:25 pace on the last named day Dr. Boucher's Harry Logan won in straight heats, the time being 2:15, 2:15 and 2:15. There were five starters and Harry Logan won as he pleased.

On Friday B. O. Van Bokkelen's Vic Shellar was the only California horse to start and he made a poor showing being last in the field of five that started. The heats of this race which was for 2:20 trotters were all close together, the fastest being 2:15 and the slowest 2:16.

On the last day of the Pekin meeting C. E. Clark won the 2:24 class trot in straight heats with Sue by Athadon, defeating among others the horse A. J. D. that won this week at Windsor. Sue trotted a splendid race, putting in her heats in 2:14, 2:14 and 2:14 and she is very likely to be in the 2:10 class by the close of the season. On the same day the free for all pacers made a sensational race. There were four starters. Little Boy, the sensational horse of last year, was the winner, and won the first, second and fourth heats in 2:07, 2:07 and 2:10. Major Muscovite won the third heat in 2:09 and then Little Boy and Edith W. had a ding dong finish in the last heat, Little Boy beating the mare by a narrow margin.

At Minneapolis W. G. Durfee started his horse Dr. Shorb on the first day of the meeting in the 2:30 class trot, and he finished second in each of the three heats. The winner was the mare Meta Arthur and she put her heats in 2:16, 2:16 and 2:15. There were seven starters in this race and Dr. Shorb was a close second each time. The Colorado horse Winfield Stratton by Saraway won the 2:22 class pace in straight heats, each being in the good time of 2:14.

On the second day of this meeting Durfee started Charlie Mac, and Morehead started Maggie McKinney in the 2:18 trot. Charlie Mac was first in every heat, the time being 2:19, 2:17 and 2:19. Maggie McKinney won fourth money in this race.

There was a heavy rain July 4th which prevented racing at Minneapolis on that day, and on the 5th the track was very heavy. Durfee managed to win the 2:30 pace with Floretta Belle by State of Maine, taking the second, third and fourth heats with her. The best time was 2:21. The 2:13 pace on the same day had the mare Queen R. 2:12, by Redondo as a starter. She got third money. The best time in the race was 2:16 made by Dick Turpin in the second heat.

The last day at Minneapolis was not a satisfactory racing day as there was a heavy wind and a poor track.

Will Durfee started two horses, Dr. Book by McKinney and Silver Coin by Steinway, but owing to the fact that he had to ship the same day to Windsor he drew both horses after each had won a heat. Dr. Book took the first heat of his race in 2:16 and Silver Coin won his heat of the pace in 2:19. Durfee probably got a good cut out of both purses by withdrawal.

The Windsor meeting opened Monday, July 8th. Windsor is just across the river from Detroit and many of the California stables which will start at the Detroit meeting have been entered there.

According to the dispatches James Thompson started Captain Goodall's four year old pacer Rajah in the 2:30 pace on the opening day but was outside the money, finishing last. This race was taken by Star Pugh in straight heats, the time being 2:12, 2:12 and 2:12, a fast race for green horses.

Charlie Mac had to be content with second money in the 2:17 trot, which also came off the first day at Windsor. The race went to Metallas, a son of Mambrino King that is expected to trot in 2:06 or better this year, so the showing of Charlie Mac was a very good one, as the heats were 2:13, 2:12 and 2:14.

None of the California horses started on Tuesday, the second day. A. J. D. won the 2:25 trot, best time 2:16; John H. captured the 2:21 pace his best mile being 2:15. The 2:12 trot went to Cornelia Belle 2:11 by Onward. Her best mile in the race was in 2:12 and she won in straight heats.

The racing at Windsor on Wednesday was sensational, the pacer Dan Patch, a son of the mighty Joe Patchen 2:01, taking the 2:15 pace in straight heats in the remarkable time for this season of the year, 2:07, 2:10 and 2:09. That good Colorado horse, Winfield Stratton by Saraway, that defeated everything he met at Denver and Minneapolis, was second to Dan Patch in this race. None of the California horses met Dan Patch in this race and he is not among the original entries in the Hotel Normandie 2:09 pace at Detroit, in which Goshen Jim and Rey Direct are both named, and which is set down for Thursday of next week. Dan Patch is a five year old stallion by Joe Patchen out of Zelica by Wilkesherry, a son of Young Jim. He started a green horse last year, and won every one of the four races in which he started, losing but one heat during the season and took a record of 2:16. He will be a 2:04 horse this year in the opinion of those who have seen him at work.

In the 2:09 pace on Wednesday at Windsor, White Horse, a ten year old mare that took a record of 2:08 last year won, Sidney Pointer, a son of Star Pointer, being second, Goshen Jim third and Rey Direct fourth. Daisy J., a mare that took a record of 2:08 last year, was fifth. The brief dispatch that was sent over the wires by the Associated Press, stated that White Horse won in three straight heats, but as the time of four heats is given, and Sidney Pointer placed second in the summary, it is probable that he won the first heat. The time of the four heats given was 2:09, 2:12, 2:11 and 2:11, a warm clip for the first race of the season for the California horses and their showing was not bad considering the circumstances. They will have to meet White Horse and Sidney Pointer again in the 2:09 pace next Thursday at Detroit, but will not go against Dan Patch as he is named in the Wayne Hotel Purse for pacers of the 2:14 class which is on the program for Wednesday, and to which neither is eligible.

The latest news we have from Windsor up to the time of going to press is a brief telegraphic account of Thursday's races. The first race of the day was the 2:14 trot, which was won by Gunsaulus, a son of the Electioneer horse Sphinx. He won the first, third and fourth heat, and as Dr. Book is placed second in the brief summary it is probable that the son of McKinney won the second heat. The fastest heat of the race was 2:14. Our Lucky, in the stable of A. W. Bruner was fourth.

The 2:25 pace on the same day went to Billy H. in three straight heats after Mr. Bruner's horse Stanton Wilkes by Nutwood Wilkes had won the first heat. It is stated that the fastest heat of the race was 2:10.

Ida Highwood a bay mare by Highwood, a son of Nutwood, won the 2:30 trot off the reel, her fastest mile being in 2:13. This mare took a record of 2:22 last year. Nono of the California horses started in this race.

Next week we will publish the tabulated summaries of the Windsor meeting.

Cleveland Track Notes.

[American Sportsman, July 4.]

In addition to giving Lucille a fast mile, "Doc" Tanner was also out with Texana and Mabel Onward, breezing each a mile in 2:14.

Cresceus took a little slow work, being given four miles, grading from 2:50 to 2:18. He also gave Crescent Route, the three year old son of Cresceus, a half in 1:10.

George Saunders stepped Arch W. in 2:16, his fastest mile this season. Algoneta, Jim Thompson's green California mare, who has been nominated for the M. and M., stepped the mile in 2:17.

Lord Derby was out and, guided by Geers, moved a mile in 2:16. Geers also drove the green pacer Diamond King by Mambrino King a mile in 2:18, last quarter in 31 seconds, Ben White alongside with The Aristocrat by Athanio.

Mr. Louis Streuher, of Erie, Pa., was here Friday to see Millard Saunders work out his two horses, both of whom having been laid up with colds. Eula Mac worked nicely in 2:19, while the roan pacer Funston showed a quarter in 32 seconds.

Miles in better time than 2:15 are now of frequent occurrence at the Glenville track, several such being stepped Tuesday morning when over one hundred horses were given their work. Zarina 2:13 by Dexter Prince, driven by Millard Saunders, and Lucille, the famous matinee mare, and Metallas 2:18, the great young son of Mambrino King, carried off the honors among the trotters, while Hetty G. 2:05, Goshen Jim 2:10 and Emma M. 2:12 showed the fastest miles of the pacing brigade.

The pacer that heats Hetty G. this year will certainly take off the big end of the purse, for the mare is working splendidly. Tuesday, driven by Scott McCoy, she paced a mile in 2:10, the last half being in 1:03, the last quarter in 30 seconds, repeating in 2:12, the last eighth being in 14 seconds. Goshen Jim stepped a mile easily in 2:11, the last quarter being in 30 seconds. Emma M., who will meet Lolita in a match race at Glenville at the Grand Circuit meeting, also worked out in 2:11 or 1 seconds better than her record.

Zarina's mile was, however, the most remarkable performance of the day, as it was the second fastest mile trotted on any track this year, having been excelled only by The Abbot's 2:09 last Thursday. Her time by quarters was 0:33, 1:05, 1:34, 2:10. Only a few minutes later "Doc" Tanner brought out Lucille and sent her a mile in 2:10. The quarters were almost identical with Zarina's, being 0:32, 1:05, 1:34, 2:10. Metallas, the handsome Mambrino King stallion, for whom an offer of $10,000 has been refused, was driven by Charles Eldridge in 2:12. A. W. Bruner drove Harry Madison, his M. and M. candidate, in 2:15. Mr. Bruner has also driven Our Lucky in 2:15 and Staunton Wilkes in 2:14.

JOTTINGS.

THE GRAND CIRCUIT will open on Monday next, July 15th, at the famous track at Detroit, Michigan, and there is every promise of it being a record breaker for the number of extremely fast trotters and pacers that will be seen in the races during the week. The two principal events of the meeting will be the Merchants and Manufacturers Stake of $10,000 for trotters of the 2:24 class, and the Chamber of Commerce Stake of $5000 for 2:24 class pacers. These stakes have very large entry lists and it is probable that 2:10 will be beaten in both. It has been customary in the past to place the Chamber of Commerce on the program for the first day of the meeting and that rule will again be followed this year. Among the California horses that will probably start in this race are Harry Logan, the colt belonging to Dr. Boucher of San Jose, that paced to a record of 2:12½ at Denver and has shown his ability to cover a mile better than 2:10; Stanton Wilkes, a son of Nutwood Wilkes, owned by A. W. Bruner of Los Angeles, that has worked a mile in 2:14 this year; Rajah, the Chas. Derby colt that worked a mile in 2:13 as a three year old last year and was purchased this spring by Captain Goodall of this city. Rajah started at Windsor this week, but was outside the money in a race won by Star Pugh, an entry in the Chamber of Commerce, in 2:12½, 2:12½ and 2:12½. These three are the only California horses named in this race. Plenty, a hay gelding by Superior, that is entered, won a race at Pekin, Ill., last week in straight heats, one of which was in 2:12½. It will be seen that three of the Chamber of Commerce entries, viz: Harry Logan, Star Pugh and Plenty have won races during the last four weeks, heating their fields in straight heats, and getting records of 2:12 and a fraction. There were 26 original entries to the race and it is very likely a large field will go to the post, as is generally the case where big money is at stake. On form as displayed up to this time, I hardly expect Stanton Wilkes nor Rajah to be good enough to get inside the money if they start, but Harry Logan should be one of the first four and if he can show the speed he did in his work at San Jose should be close to the winner. The race will test the staying powers of the horses that start in it. Bonnie Direct was the winner of first money in this race last season. He was doubtless laid up the first three heats, as he was 9, 5 and 8, respectively in those heats, and won the next three. The time of the six heats was 2:10½, 2:12½, 2:13½, 2:13, 2:12½ and 2:12½, a pretty hot clip for a big field of 2:24 class pacers to take.

The M. & M. had three fast California bred trotters named among the original entries this year—Algonetta owned by A. L. Mulcahey of this city. Harry Madison owned by A. W. Bruner of Los Angeles and the black mare Eleata, bred at Palo Alto and now the property of Maplewood Farm, New Hampshire. Algonetta has worked in 2:14 this year and Harry Madison has shown two heats of a workout in 2:14 and 2:15. Eleata is credited with a mile very close to 2:12. The fastest of the six heats required to decide the M. & M. last year was 2:14½ and unless the class is faster than that this year the California mares should be up in the money. I am of the opinion, however, that the heats will be around 2:10 and 2:12 this year and if a big field starts it will require a horse to beat 2:13 three times to win. The bay gelding A. J. D. by Anderson Wilkes, entered in this stake, won at Windsor last Tuesday in three straight heats and beat the three horses that started against him in a rather easy manner in 2:18, 2:16½ and 2:16½, which shows him to be a pretty good one for this time of the year. There are some highly touted trotters among the entries, the mares Rose by Alcazar and Neva Simmons by Simmons being among those that are credited with very fast trials. Out of the 31 original entries the field should be as large as the one which started last year, when ten horses took the wire in the first heat. The race was won by Lady Geraldine, a mare by Constantine that took a record of 2:11½ a month later at Glens Falls.

Besides the horses from California named in these two big stakes, there are a number of higher class ones that have been named in the faster races. The $2500 2:14 trot will have Dr. Book, Janice and Bob Ingersoll as starters if they are right, and the 2:00 pace for $2500 has Goshen Jim and Rey Direct entered. There are several California horses entered in the regular purse races which closed last month and it is very likely that they will make a good showing, as nearly all of those that were taken East have been showing well in their work and races.

Unless the shadows of coming events are not to be deperied upon there will be few processions in the races that are decided at the Breeders meeting at Sacramento, but on the contrary a number of very warm contests, with split heats enough to warm the hearts of the old race goers and make the hetting fraternity wager their money in bigger stacks than they have been in the habit of placing on harness results for several years. There is not one of the thousand dollar purses which closed last week, in which any person who is posted can confidently pick out a horse and say that he outclasses his field. There are several that have worked very fast miles, but in every race where such a one is named, there are two or three others that have shown enough speed to warrant their owners in the belief that they have a good chance to win if they are right when they start. I have seen quite a number of the fast green ones taking their work this year and I never saw a better mannered lot than these trotters and pacers have so far proven themselves. It is true that not many really fast miles have been driven and this is a good sign for fast heats when the money is up and the hell rings. The majority of trainers who are getting ready for the California circuit this year have adopted the plan of making haste slowly, and when they have been shown one or two fast miles, have concluded that condition is the thing to add to it, instead of trying to pile up more speed. I confidently look forward to a season of racing here in which the greatest speed will be shown by the majority at the end of the season instead of during the first week or so, as has often been the case, and I know there are fewer bad legs than ever among the horses in training. Our trainers are men of pretty good average intelligence and are keeping up with the procession as well as the trainers in any part of the country. It is the hardest thing in the world for many people to recognize the abilities of those with whom they come in daily contact, as distance not only lends enchantment but glamour to the view. We hear of trainers who pilot horses to victory over on the Eastern tracks and imagine that they must be far in advance of our local horsemen in ability, but while there are some "bad ones" in this as in every other country, the California trainers will compare very favorably with those of any State in the Union, and if one will but look over the books he will find that they have the records to prove it.

The telegraph announces that a new trotting association is in course of organization over east, Cleveland being the centre of the movement which it is said will extend far enough to take in all the big tracks on the Grand Circuit. The eastern papers that have reached me up to this time are all agreed that the cause of the organization is the attitude of the National Trotting Association toward the amateurs, this organization having decided that a horse winning a cup race cannot escape the record therein made. Some of the leading spirits in the amateur clubs have concluded that they will not have their horses punished when they are racing for fun, and the result is the Continental Trotting Association, unless the organization "dies a hornin'" as some have predicted it will. I wonder if it ever occurred to these amateur gentlemen that for years and years all kinds of sports have been troubled with the very difficult question of determining the proper place to draw the line between professionals and amateurs and that the main cause of the trouble is the desire to enter in professional events without losing amateur standing. Now it seems to me that any person who drives a horse in a race where anything is at stake should be willing to have his horse thereafter confined to the class which his record made in the race places him. In other words, a gentleman who drives his horse in 2:20 in a race for a valuable trophy should disdain to enter him the next week in the 2:30 class. If, as is the case at the Cleveland and Los Angeles matinees, the races are for absolutely nothing, the case is different, but when anything of value is competed for, the horse is as much entitled to a record as though he were the winner of the M. and M. I would not "penalize" the driver in one of these cup races by making him a professional, but I believe the horse should have the record he earns. Where the punishment comes in I cannot for the life of me understand. Perhaps my perceptive faculties are very poor, but it seems to me a very absurd proposition that a person should ask the privilege of racing his horse to a fast record in a cup race and then turn him over to a professional driver to race in the green class. If this action has any of the elements of true amateur sport in it then amateur sport is not what I have always understood it to be. A true sportsman values a cup or a trophy much higher than he does a purse or stake of coin. Why then should he not be willing (if after winning a cup he should desire to race for money) to race in his proper class?

W. F. Steele last week offered George Leavitt $10,000 for the two year old colt Todd by Bingen out of a mare by Arion, and the offer was promptly refused. When Steele asked Leavitt why he thought the colt was worth more than he offered, the latter answered: "Because he is royally bred, is a stallion, the most promising colt in America, and is entered in $40,000 worth of stakes."

Racing at Yreka.

A very successful race meeting was held at Yreka last week, four days' racing being given. The meeting was given by the Yreka Jockey Club, of which J. M. Walbridge is president, R. S. Taylor secretary, and Messrs. G. H. Peters, F. A. Autenreith, W. L. Hobbs and J. E. Harmon are directors. Great credit is due these gentlemen for the excellent manner in which the races were managed and those who attended speak very highly of the good racing that was given. The results were as follows:

WEDNESDAY, JULY 3.

Trotting, 300 class. Purse $150.
Deacon, b. f. (E. B. Smith) 1 1
Midret, b. f. (W. Hogoboom) 2 2
Laurel Dell, b. m. (C. Wheeler) 3 3

Time—2:37½, 2:38½.

Trotting, match race. Purse $250.
Tintonrette (Pendleton) 1 1
Old Folks (Elwood) 2 2

Time—2:32½, 2:38½.

Running, three furlongs. Purse $100—The Wooser won, Montague Maid second, Mercutio last. Time 0:36½.

Running, six furlongs. Purse $50—Skirmish won, Mike Rice second, Red Steel third, Pilot. Time 1:15½.

Running, half mile. Purse $100—Limber Jim won, Swiftwater second, Little Jim third, Harry Gwin. Time, 0:48½.

THURSDAY, JULY 4.

Trotting and pacing, 230 class. Purse $250.
Banker's Daughter, b. m. (Runyon) 2 2 1 1
Tintorette (Runyon) 1 3 3 3

Time—2:35½, 2:37, 2:36½, 2:33½, 2:34.

One-half mile dash—Maggie, Wildwood, Wilbur Smith and Montague Maid started. Montague Maid won easily in 1:52, Wildwood second and Wilbur Smith third.

One-half mile dash—Seven starters—W. H. Henry's Harry Gwin, J. Whalen's Swiftwater, O. A. Martin's Red Steel, S. Olsen's Durango, R. M. McDonald's Blue Bell, C. Cusick's The Wooser and H. H. Mitchell's Carrie Nation. Blue Bell won in 1:48½, The Wooser second and Harry Gwin third.

Seven-eighths mile dash—William McName's Sugden, T. L. McLaughlin's Mike Rice, I. J. Ellis' Sea Spray and B. F. Hobart's Limber Jim started. After an exciting finish Mike Rice won by a nose in 1:29, Sugden second, Limber Jim third.

FRIDAY, JULY 5.

First race, 2:26 class—Prince L. won in three straight heats, Laura Dell second and Freda S. last. Best time, 2:29.

Second race, five-eighths dash—Durango won, Harry Gwin second and Swiftwater third. Time, 1:02½.

Third race, five eighths dash—Pilot won, Red Steel second and The Wooser, the favorite, third. Time, 1:02½.

Fourth race, mile dash—Sugden won, Sea Spray second and Montana Chieftain third. Time, 1:44, the fastest mile ever run on Yreka track.

SATURDAY, JULY 6.

First race, trotting and pacing, best three in five—Lynall, Ruby J. and Deacon started. Lynall took the first heat in 2:25, Deacon took the second in 2:24½. On starting for the third heat Ruby S.'s driver broke his harness and the judges gave him five minutes to fix it. Not returning in time the other two started. Lynall took third heat in 2:25 and fourth in 2:26. All bets were declared off on this race.

Second race, running, quarter mile dash—Blue Bell won, Little Jim second, Durango third. Time 0:23½.

Third race, match race, half mile, between Coyle and Sunlight—Coyle won in 0:49½.

Fourth race, seven eighths of a mile dash—In this race the rider of Mike Rice, Stump Golden, fell twice before the horses started, and after they got off he fell again and was run over and badly bruised, but not seriously hurt. Skirmish won, Pilot second, The Wooser third and Mike Rice last. Time 1:29½.

Fifth race, three-quarters of a mile dash—Harry Gwynn won, Sea Spray (the favorite) a close second, Red Steel third and Montana Chieftain last. Time 1:16½.

Sixth race, match race between Montague Maid and Fille d'Or—Montague Maid won in 51 seconds.

In the Merchants and Manufacturers, Algonetta, Harry Madison and Eleata. In the Russell Hotel and Wayne Hotel, no California owned horses are named. In the Hotel Normandie, Goshen Jim and Rey Direct are entered. The Chamber of Commerce Consolation and the Merchants & Manufacturers' Consolation are for horses that win no money in those stakes.

Holiday Matinee at Rocklin.

The best day's racing ever held at Rocklin was attended by nearly three thousand people on the Fourth of July this year, three harness races and two running events furnishing the sport.

The races were under the auspices of the Rocklin Driving Club, which generally celebrates the national holiday with an afternoon of matinee racing. The judges were the well known reinsmen Ed Lafferty and Al McDonald assisted by Mr. Schlutius of Sacramento.

The first race was the free for all pace, half mile heats, best three in five, for a purse of $150. There were but two starters, the Rocklin pride and up to this time unbeaten horse Munyon, being the favorite over Mr. Callendine's Abdine from Sacramento. Abdine won after a hard fought race of four heats. In each heat the horses were neck and neck nearly the whole distance and the heats were the fastest ever seen in Rocklin. Abdine is a greatly improved horse and should reduce his record of 2:17½ this year.

In the 2:40 class for both trotters and pacers, the first of the get of Stam B. 2:11½ to start in a race, the very handsome four year old filly Rosalind, owned and driven by M. H. Tuttle, owner of her sire, won with ease and paced the last heat in 1:11½, a gait which she can certainly keep for a mile, and take a record under 2:20 before the season is over.

There were four heats in the three minute class race which was for trotters and pacers, Hi Hogohoom winning with the gelding Duke of Waldstein by Waldstein 2:22½.

The summaries of the days events are as follows:

Free for all pace. Purse $150.

Abdine, b g by Wilkesdale.....	(Holmes)	1	1	2	1
Munyon, b g by Wilkesdale.....	(Ivey)	2	2	1	2

Time—1:07, 1:08, 1:08, 1:07½.

Trot or pace, 2:40 class. Purse $50.

Rosalind, b f by Stam B.....	(Tuttle)	1	1	1	1
Old Tom, untraced.....	(Williams)	3	2	2
Lambert.....	(Hogohoom)	2	3	3

Time—1:13, 1:15½, 1:11½.

Trot or pace, 3:00 class. Purse $50.

Duke of Waldstein by Waldstein.....	(Hogohoom)	1	2	1	1
Flossie.....	(Williams)	2	1	3	2
John L.....	(Mitchell)	5	3	2
Polka Dot by Mendocino.....	(Tryon)	4	4	4
Ellen B. by Duke Cameo.....	(Hendrickson)	3	5	5

Time—1:19, 1:17, 1:15½, 1:14.

Running, half mile dash, purse $30—Quoins first, Prince M. second. Time 0:52½.

Running, five furlongs, purse $30—Quoins first, Prince M. second. Time 1:07½.

Shipping Horses at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, July 3.—The South Africa horse and mule trade has shown a great revival in the last few days. Four British transports have reached here this week to load with animals for Cape Town, and four more are dated to arrive during the week. One thousand mules left on the Jamaican to-day, 500 mules and horses to go to-morrow, 1500 mules and 1000 horses the next day. British officers think the present activity will continue until Christmas. The British Government has 8000 head of mules and 7000 horses at Kansas City, which will be shipped to New Orleans as fast as vessels here can load them.

Dr. E. B. Richardson, who has just returned from South Africa, where he has been in charge of shipments of mules and horses, says the more experience British officers have with American animals the better pleased they are. Richardson thinks the British are very hard on horses, and the heavy loss of animals is due to this strain. The horses are allowed only one day's rest after a sea voyage of a month, and are then hurried forward to the seat of war. They are put into actual service at once and get no rest from that time forward until they are worn out.

News from the North.

[Rural Spirit, July 5.]

Dr. E. H. Parker has bought the pacing mare Bonnie Belle 2:24½ and will drive her on the road.

Jim Misner has gone to Montana with Little Maid 2:18 and her Altamont four year old, Printer's Ink.

Kittitas Ranger won the free for all pace at Vancouver, B. C., beating Pathmark and Alta Norte, best time 2:22½.

Pathmark won the free for all pace at Everett yesterday, Starkey second, Kittitas Ranger third; time 2:18. Hattie Holly won the two year old trot in 3:04.

Frank Frazier of Pendleton won the opening event at Butte last Saturday with Mt. Hood in 2:24½, giving his stallion Westfield his first 2:30 performer.

Arketa won the free for all trot at Vancouver, B. C., best time 2:24½. Ahorigine won the Vancouver Derby, one and one-half miles, in 2:27; Faversham was second.

John Pender has returned to Oregon from Sacramento with his stallion Capt. Jones by McKinney 2:11½, out of Midday Belle by Gossiper 2:14½. Capt. Jones is bred like Zolock 2:10½ and Zephyr, the three year old filly that recently sold for $9000 in the East. He will be allowed to serve a few mares at Irvington track, and then put in active training for the fall races. He is entered in the $1000 stake at North Yakima, and will likely start in one or two events before going there. Mr. Pender brought along a two year old filly by Capt. Jones that is entered in the $1000 stake at Salem for two year olds. She is said to be very promising.

Death of Columbine.

The great broodmare Columbine passed away at the Vina Ranch, a branch of Palo Alto on July 3, 1901.

Columbine was a bay mare 15.3 hands, small star, little white on near hind heel and coronet, foaled 1873. Bred by Joseph Cairn Simpson, Oakland, Cal. She was a remarkable brood mare having produced twelve foals, among the number several fast performers and producers. Her blood lines were rich in the thoroughbred, her dam being Columbia, a daughter of imp. Bonnie Scotland, her grandam Young Fashion by imp. Monarch, the next the great racing mare Fashion, by imp. Trustee. The sire of Columbine was A. W. Richmond 1687, son of Blackbird 401, dam a daughter of Rattler.

In 1878 Columbine was owned by Joseph Cairn Simpson and he bred her to Electioneer, she producing in 1879 the stallion Anteo 2:16½, a colt trotter and great sire, having produced Anglina 2:11½, Eoline 2:14½, Faris 2:12½ and 40 others in the 2:30 list. His daughter produced Directum Kelly 2:08½; his son produced Charlie Herr 2:07. Anteo was sold for $30,000.

In 1880, still the property of Joseph Cairn Simpson, she was again bred to Electioneer and produced in 1881 the colt Antevolo 2:19½, a colt trotter and sire of 14 in the 2:30 list. Antevolo was sold for $35,000.

In 1881 Columbine was sold by Joseph Cairn Simpson to Governor Stanford and in 1882 foaled the hr c Anteros by Electioneer. Anteros is the sire of Antidote (p) 2:10½ and 28 others in the 2:30 list. Barren in 1883, Columbine foaled in 1884 by Electioneer the b f Antonia, sold from Palo Alto as a broodmare. Barren in 1885, she produced in 1886 the b c Conrad by Electioneer. Conrad was sold from Palo Alto, is the sire of Alice Main 2:18½ and Zelnut 2:24½.

In 1887 Columbine foaled by Electioneer the bay filly Coral 2:18½, a stake winner, the dam of Norcal 2:29½ and Colonel Edwards. When Coral trotted in 2:18½, it gave Columbine three in the 2:20 list, a remarkable showing in 1892 for a broodmare.

Barren in 1888, she produced in 1889 the bay filly Columbia, this foal died young. Barren in 1890. She produced in 1891 the b c Joseph Cairn Simpson 2:18½ by Electioneer. He is the sire of Sally Simpson 2:21½.

This gave the grand old broodmare four in the 2:20 list. Coral is a broodmare at Palo Alto and has been bred to McKinney 2:14½ in 1901.

Barren in 1892, she produced in 1893 the hr c Elhine by Electricity 1:16½. This colt was taken sick enroute to a sale in the East, and sold at San Antonio, Texas.

In 1893 Columbine produced the beautiful colt Adhine, by Advertiser 2:15½. Adhine was sold at a New York sale, subsequently purchased by Mr. J. B. Haggin and placed in the stud at his Kentucky farm.

In 1895 she produced the h c Columbario, by Advertiser 2:15½, sold in New York. In 1896 barren and in 1897 at the age of 24 she produced the ch f Antevolo, by Dexter Prince, a filly that is reserved at Palo Alto as a broodmare.

Take her all in all Columbine was a great broodmare having four in the 2:20 list, five producing sons and a producing daughter, a great showing for the half thoroughbred daughter of imp. Bonnie Scotland, that carried the blood of Fashion. RIO ALTO.

Turf Scandal at Honolulu.

According to a report from Honolulu sent by the last steamer, Prince David has sworn to warrants for the arrest of W. H. Cunningham and J. Morgan, two well known local turf men, on a charge of conspiracy, alleging that they attempted to hire his jockey to drug the horse Weller in the race of June 14th. Weller is one of the prince's horses and was a strong favorite in the betting until the evening before the race, when his price fell under heavy betting against him.

The jockey informed the prince that the defendants had offered him a large bribe to dope the horse before the race. The jockey declares that he took a pill given him for the purpose, but did not administer it, turning it over to the prince.

Weller was an easy winner in the race. The scandal has created quite a soosation there, being the first of the kind in a long series of Kamehameha day races.

Proposed New Organization.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 2.—Subscription books were opened here to-day looking to the formation of a new trotting association, which will be a rival of the National Trotting Association. It will be known as the Continental Trotting Association. Subscriptions to the $10,000 capital stock came in rapidly. It is said that W. B. Fasig probably will be elected president and Frank L. Chamberlain of this city secretary. The headquarters will be in Cleveland. It is understood that the oow association will embrace practically all the cities now included in the grand circuit.

The two year old sister to Idolita 2:12 trotted a quarter at Readville, Mass., recently in 33½ seconds.

Horse Gossip From Salem, Or.

FAIR GROUNDS, July 8, 1901.

The track here is becoming quite lively as there are more trainers coming in with good horses and they are all commencing to step along a little faster as the rainy season is over now.

The earponers are very busy making improvements. There are at present seven car loads of lumber here at the grounds, and it will all be used in fixing up the building and grounds.

Mr. Rutherford has arrived here from Walla Walla with four head of very promising colts and Mr. J. B. Stetson came in to-day from Boise, Idaho, with five head, three of which are mares that will be bred to Zombro, including Alta Tiel and Lyla 2:27 (both full sisters to Chahalis 2:04½) and Lady Alfred 2:20. The last named mare will be entered in the 2:15 and free for all trots here this year. She is one of the grandest looking mares I ever saw and should raise a great colt from Zombro.

Sam Casto has six head at work here, among them a very hot one. Her name is Alta Norte. She is a full sister to Chehalis and gaited just like him. Sam gave her a pretty stiff work out Saturday and she felt so good on Sunday that she could hardly be led by the halter. Mr. Casto, who was raised in the South and uses many coon phrases says she is his "honey," "sure flour in the bar," and "sure black, but her ha'r aint kinky."

Mr. Hiller has the largest stable of horses up here. He has twelve head and some very good ones among them. A two year old pacing stud colt by Del Norte 2:08, dam by Wilkie a son of Guy Wilkes, is about the fastest thing of his age in the northern country. I don't see how they will ever beat him as it is no trouble now for him to pace a quarter in 35 seconds.

John Kirkland from Independence has five in his string, all going nice and smooth. Once in a while he lets them step for a short distance and how they do go! Johnnie don't say much but keeps "sawing wood." He is the Geers of Oregon.

Mr. Connors of the Williamette Hotel has Stamhoul Bell 2:21, and the easy way she has of stepping the home stretch in 35 seconds looks to me as if she has the 2:20 trot at her mercy.

Mr. I. C. Mosier is the hardest worker and the husiest man on the grounds. Besides looking after the track and keeping it in good shape for the boys to work on, he has six head in training. Among them is a black two year old by his stallion Cœur d'Alene 2:19, which I think is a crackerjack if there ever was one. From what I have seen of her I think Mr. Wisdom might as well pay the first money in the Oregon two year old stake over to Mr. Mosier.

We had a very nice quiet sociable here on the Fourth. The boys all gathered in front of Zombro's stall and tapped a ten gallon keg of Salem beer at Zombro's expense. The boys all drank his health and toasted him as the Geo. Wilkes of the Pacific. Zombro has been here just 34 days and has been bred to 47 mares. Every day will be Sunday with him by and by.

Mr. Shannon has three horses in training which he intends to start this year, but is not talking for publication just now.

There is no one at the Salem track, harring the writer, that can talk the clock down, but we have the hottest coon in America here. He is from the far east. James Edwards is his name and he keeps everybody in good humor with his droll remarks. He says he only wants to live long enough to get a red vest with white polka dots on it, and there won't be any coon with a lady hut him, whenever he casts his "goo goo eyes" on them.

Send us up a carload of swipes, as we are short of some good ones. The wages are $20 to $25 and found, Yours, GEO. T. BECKERS.

The Prehistoric Horse.

Aided by a special fund presented by a friend of the American Museum of Natural History, Professor Osborn sent out two expeditions, especially in search of fossil horses, one to Texas and one to Eastern Colorado. Word has just been received at the museum that the very first discovery made by the Texas party included three skulls of the three-toed horse, protohippus, associated with parts of the legs, feet and hack-bone. This is one of the stages especially desired in a long series leading up to the modern horse.

The skulls are reported to be the best that have thus far been found, and this discovery is an auspicious opening to this special series of explorations. The protohippus belongs to the pliocene and is believed to be the immediate ancestor of the true horse. Whereas, the hipparion, the pliocene horse of Europe, is now found to be not the ancestral horse, but a representative of a side line. All recent researches go to prove that the phylum of the true horse belongs to North America.

ENTRIES CLOSE MONDAY NEXT for fourteen additional stakes to be trotted and paced at the Breeders meeting, which opens at Sacramento July 30th. The six one thousand dollar stakes filled well, and while those to close Monday are for lesser amounts, the stakes offered are as liberal as the California horses which went East have been trotting for up to this time. There is no longer any doubt but the approaching season of harness racing on this coast will be a most successful one. There has not been such large entry lists for years as those already received by the Breeders and the Los Angeles associations for their stakes which closed July 1st. The latter association has as many as thirty entries in one race, a number which has not been received by any Pacific Coast association for years. The harness horse industry is no longer in the dumps. The prices at which good trotting bred horses are held, and which are paid for ordinary ones at auction are evidence of the good condition of the breeding business, and the big lists of entries being received from Maine to California prove that harness racing is still one of our most popular sports. By reference to the advertisement in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week it will be found that a stake (one for the 2:23 class trotters) has been provided in addition to those advertised last week. Up to date there are four high class meetings in sight, the Breeders, Santa Rosa, the State Fair and the Los Angeles. Woodland will take a week preceding the State Fair, but as yet has not announced its purses. The first to close and the first to race is the P. C. T. H. B. A. Give it the best lot of entries you can possibly afford for these additional stakes and there need be no fear of the result. The best meeting given by this association in years is certain.

Santa Rosa meeting opens August 12th; entries close August 3d. See program on next page.

THE BIG LIST OF ENTRIES received by the Los Angeles association for its trotting and pacing purses, which closed July 1st, has so pleased the Board of Directors that they have opened six additional trotting purses at $700 each, five additional purses for pacers at $700 each, besides offering a purse of $800 for the 2:11 class pacers. This is indeed a grand lot of purses, especially when the fact is taken into consideration that no less than 12 purses aggregating $10,000 have already been declared filled. The entries to these additional purses will close on Saturday, August 3d, and we feel sure that the owners and trainers of eligible horses will be as generous with their entries as the Los Angeles association is with its purses. All the horsemen who visited the southern metropolis last year during the very successful fair and race meeting held there in October speak in the very highest terms of the treatment received at the hands of President Wright, Secretary Teed and the other officials of the association, and all are anxious to go again this year. The date of the opening has been advanced this year to September 28th, which is a much more convenient date for the California horsemen, who have, in the entry list just closed, shown their appreciation of the efforts of District No. 6, and will make a still further approval of the same by a generous entry in the purses that close August 3d, which will be found advertised in our columns to-day.

THE FIRST INSTALLMENT of purses for trotters and pacers is announced by the State Agricultural Society in our advertising columns to-day. Eight very liberal purses are offered to close Saturday, July 27th, and 16 more will be announced August 10th. Those to close July 27th are the 2:14 trot $1000, the 2:20 trot $800, the 2:40 trot $800, the 2:13 pace $1000, the 2:17 pace $800 and the 2:25 pace $800. In addition there are two races for colts. The three year old pacers are provided for in a stake in which the entrance is $10, with $20 additional from starters. The Society will add $250 to the stake and if there is a liberal entry list and fair field of starters the stake will be a valuable one. A race for four year old trotters of the green class is provided with the same conditions. It will be readily seen that the State Fair Directors are treating the harness horse owners most liberally this year and there is every reason to believe that these owners will be reciprocal and send in to Secretary Geo. W. Jackson a record-breaking list of entries. Entries will close to this first installment of purses on Saturday, July 27th.

SPOKANE'S BIG MEETING will open September 10th. Entries to the harness events will close Thursday, July 25th. Horsemen who will race in the north this year should not let this date go by without naming their horses in the classes at this meeting to which they are eligible. Ten thousand dollars is offered in purses. Address H. Bolster, Secretary, Spokane, Wash.

Oakwood Park Farm Sale.

At the Occidental Horse Exchange on Thursday of this week auctioneer William G. Layng conducted a very successful sale of fifty head of horses from the well known Oakwood Park Stock Farm, Danville, Contra Costa county, the property of Mr. John F. Boyd. While all the horses offered were broken to harness and were well bred, they were not offered as a picked lot of high class horses from this celebrated farm, and therefore the prices obtained must be considered very good, as the fifty head sold brought a total of $8175, an average of $163.50 per head. We do not believe these horses would have averaged a cent over $200 in Chicago or New York, and the prices obtained show that San Francisco is a very good market at present for this class of horses. The highest prices of the sale were paid for two mares by Chas. Derby, one a three year old for which Captain Matteson paid $325, the other a five year old which brought $320. The prices obtained were as follows:

Five and one-half furlongs—Duckoy won, Espirando second, Moringa third. Time, 1:09.
Five furlongs—Montanus won, Jim Brownell second, Aunt Mary third. Time, 1:03.
One mile and seventy yards—Ting-a-ling won, Old Fox second, Nonesuch third. Time, 1:48. Senator Dubois finished second, but was disqualified for fouling.
July 11.—Pacing, special—Jim Dixon first, Heppie second, Irwin C. third. Time 2:16, 2:18½.
Three furlongs—Walakapugh won, Pay Day second. Time 0:35½. Two starters.
Six furlongs—George H. Ketcham won, William F. second, Sisquoc third. Time 1:14½.
One mile and a sixteenth—Sylvan Lass won, Kenova second, Nobleman third. Time 1:49.
Six furlongs—Julietta B. won, Phil Archibald second, Immodel third. Time 1:17½.
Six furlongs—Odd Eyes won, Blanche Sheppard second, Harry Thatcher third. Time 1:15½.
Four and a half furlongs—Aba D. won, Honest John second, Dan H. third. Time 0:55.

Fourth Payment in Stanford Stake.

in the Stanford Stake to be trotted this year at the California State Fair, fourth payment has been made upon four more entries that were made last year. Eleven colts and fillies have been paid on as follows:
James Coffin's b f Cuba by Oro Wilkes—Mattie Menlo.
W. Hogoboom's br c Charles H. by Lynmont—Elmorene.
Thos. S. Manning's b c Commander Muckle, by McKinney—Cheerful.
J. Doran's b f Della McCarty by McKinney—Lady C.
A. M. McCollum's ch f Jennie H. by Algona—Rosie Lee.
C. A. Owen's ch c Lee Roy by Waldstein—Zadie McGregor.
Santa Rosa Stock Farm's blk f Almaretta by L. W. Russell—Flora Allen.
Santa Rosa Stock Farm's b f Lady Russell by L. W. Russell—Pansy.
Santa Rosa Stock Farm's br c Marengo King by McKinney—Bye Bye.
G. W. Ford's b f Neernellie by Neernut.
P. W. Lee's hr f Fluey by Or Lee—Fleety.

Trilby P. 2:13½, the Colorado mare that defeated Toggles and Stamboutte at Denver, will be retired for the summer. She has won five races this year, and it is the intention of her owner, J. F. Roberts, to give her a well earned vacation through the summer months. Three of her five victories have been neck and neck affairs with Ima Electrite, and two were at Overland Park. Mr. Bernard, who owns Ima Electrite, says that he is through racing his mare when she is not in condition to go. She will be worked all summer, but she will not be started again until she is in perfect condition. The chances are that when Trilby is marched out of the stable in the fall these great mares will clash again, as Mr. Bernard is by no means satisfied with the result of yesterday's race.—Denver Times.

SULKY NOTES.

Detroit meeting opens to-day.

Los Angeles has a large entry list.

Entries for Breeders' meeting close next Monday.

The M. & M. will be trotted at Detroit on Tuesday next.

Woodland's program of harness events will soon be issued.

Charles Marvin will start in on the Grand Circuit at Cleveland.

The pacers are going very fast over East. Three miles below 2:08 already.

The city council of Woodland has voted $300 to aid the county fair this year.

The Chamber of Commerce $5000 for 2:24 pacers will be paced at Detroit next Monday.

Toggles was so lame after winning two heats at Denver that he had to be withdrawn.

Hal B., Coney and Anaconda have all stepped quarters better than 30 seconds this year.

There are thirty entries in the 2:20 pace at Los Angeles. It should result in a great race.

Several good purses for harness horses are advertised by the State Agricultural Society to-day.

The State Fair announces several harness purses in this issue. Entries to the same will close July 27th.

C. E. Clark's mare Sue by Athadon won at Pekin, Ill., last week, and trotted three heats better than 2:15.

Guideless pacers are not heard so much about now. The "regulars" are popular enough to draw the people.

Yarrum 2:19, Ed Gaylord's very promising trotter, is laid up with a sprained ankle and may not be started again this year.

The Horseman says that John A. McKerron reduced his record from 2:12 to 2:10 on June 27th in the office of the National Trotting Association.

Chas. Marvin recently worked his green trotter, Captor, by Electric Bell, a mile in 2:14, and his M. and M. candidate, Chase, by Keeler, one in 2:17.

There will be two "Black Cecils" on the Grand Circuit this year. One has a record of 2:15 and is a trotter, while the other is a trainer from California.

Eleata, by Dexter Prince, Maplewood Farm's candidate for the M. and M., is reported to have trotted a mile in 2:12 and a quarter in 30 seconds, in her work at Dover.

Murray Howe, Secretary of the Memphis track, was recently operated on for appendicitis, but is now up and around as usual, and striving to make the Memphis meeting the best ever held in the United States.

Powers county, Colorado, is inaugurating a county fair, and proposes to construct an ideal regulation track. It will be located at Lamar, Colorado, and it may be that a track will be built and a meeting held this year.

Katie Collins, sister to John R. Gentry 2:00, Theodore Shelton 2:09 and Myron McHenry 2:15, is in foal to Chimes, sire of The Abbot 2:03. She is the property of J. M. Battle, a manufacturing pharmacist of St. Louis, Mo.

Tbos. Clancy, of Seattle, was at Pleasanton last week looking at his horses, which are being worked for the California circuit by S. K. Trefry. Direct C. and Freddie C. are both doing well and should be money winners this year.

Anaconda worked four miles at Roadville, June 28th, in 2:10, 2:05, 2:06 and 2:09. A half was paced in 1:00 and a quarter in 29 seconds. If any horse breaks into the two minute class this year it will probably be the California bred son of Knight.

The entry lists received by the Breeders and the Los Angeles Associations show that there are enough horses in training in California to make the best season of racing held here for many years. Had the announcements of purses been made three months earlier there would have been twice as many horses trained.

A letter from Denver states that W. G. Durfee worked Charley Mac two miles, one in 2:13 and the other in 2:14, after he was shut out the first heat of the 2:17 trot. The cause of his being behind the flag was the throwing of two shoes just after getting the word.

Ed Benyon has not commenced to work the Walnut Hall Farm horses fast, miles in 2:25 being about the fastest he has called upon them to step. This string of Futurity winners and great prospects will be seen at only two meetings this year, those at Cincinnati and Lexington.

The veteran Billy G. 2:18, by Hotspur Chief, trotted his 101st race at Newburg, Mass., last week, and took off third money. Few horses can show the remarkable record of this old campaigner, who in ten years has started 101 times and only been behind the mouch six times. He is now 15 years old, but is apparently good for several more campaigns.

Venus II., Mr. A. B. Spreckels' mare by Cupid, worked a half in 1:02 the other day over the Cleveland track.

It is expected that President A. B. Spreckels of the State Agricultural Society will return from the East within a few days.

Mr. A. W. Bruner drove his pacer, Stanton Wilkes by Nutwood Wilkes, a mile in 2:14 at the Cleveland track on the 4th of July.

Chas. Marvin's Chase is considered a good one for the M. and M. next Tuesday. He recently worked him two heats in 2:13 and 2:14.

The Los Angeles association, pleased with its big list of entries has advertised an additional list of purses for harness horses. See advertisement.

There are a dozen of the get of Dictatus 2:17 that could enter the list this year if trained. Nearly every one of his get shows speed as soon as bridle wise.

In the free for all trot at the Chicago Driving Club matinee, June 29th, the California bred horse Ellert 2:11 won his race easily. His best time was 2:16.

Among the candidates for the M. and M. that have given evidence of their ability to at least trot fast miles is the bay mare Quoddy Girl by Domineer that is in John Kelly's stable. The mare is far above the ordinary, and from the way she works would seem to have an excellent chance in the rich stake at Detroit.

Last week Geo. H. Ketcham sold one of the best and most promising two year olds that ever crossed the Atlantic. This youngster is Creocia, by Cresceus out of the dam of Clara D. 2:14 by Cuyler. The youngster goes to Mr. Walter Winans, of Puckley, England, who paid $2500 for the youngster, and gets a good one.

The Kentucky trainer, Gus Macey, says that his green five year old gelding Country Jay, by Jay Hawker 2:14, dam Paronella by Parkville, is doing all he has asked him to do, and in a way that makes him think that he is going to have one of the best horses he ever drove, and he does not have even Beuzetta or Boralma, both of which he drove to fast records.

Joe Smith, the well known trainer, was thrown from his sulky at Vallejo two weeks ago and suffered the fracture of a rib. While driving a colt around the upper turn where the track is graded, a greyhound in chase of a jack rabbit suddenly jumped in front of the colt, which in turn jumped the fence and fell over the grade. Mr. Smith is around as usual and his injuries were not serious.

Det Bigelow has entered the employ of Judge Colhurn, of Colorado Springs, and will campaign a few of that gentleman's horses in the Mississippi Valley circuit, together with his own mare Tags 2:13. The Judge has secured the services of one of the most reliable and best trainers in California and as the Colhurn string has some young crackerjacks in it, we do not doubt but it will be successful.

Miss Logan 2:06 is the fastest mare that has produced standard speed. Alix 2:03, Nancy Hanks 2:04 and Beuzetta 2:06 of the trotters have no representatives in the list as yet, neither have Lady of the Manor 2:04, Hetty G. 2:05, Lenna N. 2:05, Lottie Loraine 2:05, The Maid 2:05, Baby Ruth 2:06, Edith W. 2:06, Fanny Dillard 2:06, Eyelet 2:06, Choral 2:06, Pearl C. 2:06 and Pearl Onward 2:06, of the pacing brigade, and these are the only mares that have records as fast or faster than the daughter of Gen. Logan. Her son Harry Logan now has a record of 2:12 made at Denver in his second start.

The Gentlemen's Driving and Riding Club of Denver held an afternoon of matinee racing on Saturday, July 6th. It was held over the half mile track and furnished great sport for the large crowd that was in attendance. The first race had but two starters, Trilby P. and Irma Electrite, but it took five heats to decide it. Ima Electrite took the first and third heats and Trilby P. the other three. Mr. Roberts drove his mare while Mr. Gaylord handled the daughter of Electrite. The fastest heat of the race was the fourth which was in 1:07 and the slowest was the last in 1:10. Three other races were decided during the afternoon, all furnishing good contests.

The 2:09 pace at Los Angeles should make a hot race if the five horses entered all keep right and are able to start. Those that have been named for this race are Kelly Briggs 2:10, Myrtha Whips 2:10, Floracita 2:11, Delphi 2:12 and Edna R. 2:11. Floracita is said to be better than ever this year and Kelly Briggs is thought to be better than 2:10, while Edna R. showed in her race at Oakland on the Fourth that she is fully as good as she ever was in her life. Delphi and Myrtha Whips can be depended upon to pace heats in 2:10 when right and are both in excellent shape to begin the campaign. If these five pacers come together there will be a great difference of opinion as to the probable winner and a large sum of money will certainly be wagered on the race.

The three year old sister to Central Girl 2:22, which P. W. Hodges has been working for the past few weeks at San Jose, has made speed very fast for a youngster. She began taking work in April and worked a mile on the 27th of that month in 2:39. On May 25th she showed a mile in 2:38, four days later one in 2:33 and two days later one in 2:30. On June 8th a mile in 2:29 was trotted by this filly, June 15th one in 2:29, June 22d one in 2:28, June 30th one in 2:27, and on July 6th worked three heats in 2:36, 2:29 and 2:24, the last quarter of the last mile in 35 seconds. The filly seems to have more speed every time she is worked and will soon be trotting miles below 2:20. Another three year old by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16 that is showing speed of a high order is T. C., also the property of the Nutwood Stock Farm. He stepped a mile in 2:23 at San Jose last Saturday.

Ho Yow, the Chinese Consul, has two entries for the Breeders meeting—China Maid in the 2:40 class trot and Solo 2:23 in the 2:20 trot. Both mares are by McKinney.

H. H. Dunlap took his horse King Cadenza 2:15 to Woodland this week where he will be handled by Wm. Murray until the opening of the Breeders meeting at Sacramento.

David Cahil had Charley Herr out for a jogging last week and after going in an easy way to the three-quarter pole he was turned loose for the last quarter, which he trotted nicely in 30 seconds.

It is said that Dr. David Randall won about $2000 in the pools on the race which Moth Miller won at Syracuse last week, and that he is now willing to arrange a match with Prince Alert, or Coney, or both.

A Hartford correspondent of the Trotter and Pacer, after seeing Coney by McKinney work a quarter in 29 seconds wrote as follows: This pacer is sure to take a new record this season, as McDowell has him in perfect condition, and he never makes any mistakes, when called on he always responds, and seems to have speed in reserve always.

It is announced that all the trotting bred horses in the breeding establishment at Bitter Root Stock Farm owned by the late Marcus Daly will be sold at auction in New York in November next. The stallions to be sold are Bow Bells, Prodigal, Ponce de Leon and Milroi, and the broodmares are a grand lot of producers and mares with fast records.

Burt H. Whitely, the Indiana horseman, last Saturday purchased the fast pacer Edith W., 2:06, paying $4500 for her, and already has refused an advance of $750 on the price paid him. This mare started in ten races last season and secured winning brackets in all but two of them. She has been placed with Mr. Whiteley's other horses in Levi Turner's stable.

Francis Smart, who owns the fast Colorado mare Lottie Smart, that beat all the fast pacers at the Denver meeting, has reconsidered his intention of withdrawing her from the track and will send her over east and try to secure the pacing record for mares with her. The record is held by Lady of the Manor 2:04. The record of Lottie Smart is now 2:08.

Anzella 2:18, the bay mare entered at the Breeders and Los Angeles meetings in the fast trotting purses, is by Antrim 5918, out of Hazel Kirk by Alwood. Her record was made last year at Hedrick, Iowa, in the fifth heat of a race where she beat Phoebe Onward 2:12 and Liege 2:12. It was one of the most hotly contested races on the Mississippi valley circuit last season.

The Woodland Fair Association has elected A. C. Stevens, President, Jr. Ruth Jr. Vice President, T. B. Gibson Treasurer and C. F. Thomas Secretary. Mr. Stevens is an active, energetic man, who is deeply interested in the success of the annual district fair, with the very efficient Secretary, Mr. Thomas, will constitute a team that will make the fair of 1901 one of the best ever held in Woodland.

Dr. Hammond, the big chestnut pacer by Chas. Derhy, dam Belle 2d by Nutwood, owned by Captain Bennett, worked a mile at San Jose two weeks ago for Will Welch in 2:09. Several watches caught the mile in 2:08. Dr. Hammond was foaled in 1894 and is a mature, sound horse. He is showing so well that it is probable he will not be started this year, but held over for the Grand Circuit of 1902.

John Hussey is doing wonders with the Patchen Wilkes Farm horses, and he recently created a sensation at Louisville, with the green trotter Prince Selma, by Bow Bells 2:19, dam Cora F. 2:20. This horse is a wonder. He gave the track a new record for green trotters in 2:12, going every quarter practically alike. Hussey also worked a filly by Wilton, out of the dam of Prince Selma, a mile in 2:20; a three year old sister to Beuzetta, in 2:26; Frank Herdic, by Patchen Wilkes, in 2:22; a three year old pacing filly, by Onward, in 2:20; a green filly by Patchen Wilkes, in 2:20; a pacer by Director 2:17, dam Mary Marshall 2:12, in 2:19; Axtellion 2:25, by Axtell, in 2:26, and a four year old, by Onward, in 2:28.

Frank Dale, the two year old trotter by Chas. Derhy, which John Blue purchased for Ed Gaylord and which was so seriously injured during the meeting at Overland that it was feared he would never be able to start again, has shown such wonderful improvement under the care of Dr. Dunleavy that he was worked last Saturday for the first time since the accident. He does not show any signs of a permanent injury and Mr. Gaylord is so pleased with his condition that he has decided to start him again this fall. The horse trotted his first race before a crowd during the Overland meeting and, after winning a great race, he became frightened, reared up and fell over on his back and sustained such injuries that it was hard work to get him back to the stable. It was thought for a time that the injuries would prove fatal.—Denver Times.

C. G. Ritchie, a well known horseman and trainer of Lexington, Ky., recently met a tragic death. In the morning Mr. Ritchie took the pacer Crapshooter out to jog, and had driven him for some time and was nearing his home, when he discovered that a hoot was about to fall from the horse's foot. Mr. Ritchie dismounted from the sulky and stooped down to fasten the boot. While in this position the horse became frightened and suddenly started and kicked Mr. Ritchie in the right temple, rendering him unconscious. He was carried to his home, that was only a short distance away, where he died in a very short time. Mr. Ritchie was forty-five years of age and leaves a wife and four children. His skull was not fractured, but death was caused by the bursting of a blood vessel. Crapshooter ran away, but was headed at the city limits.

THE SADDLE.

Saddle Notes.

Seven thousand people attended the races at Butte on the Fourth of July.

Clarence Mackay, it is said, paid Sam Hildreth $12,000 for Brunswick, the son of St. Carlo.

There are three books on at the Butte meeting. Auction pools are well patronized, but the mutuels are neglected.

Gus Abercrombie has engaged jockey B. Gouin to ride for him during the Montana meetings. Gouin has been riding in Chicago, but reached Butte last week.

Robert Waddell won the Oakwood Handicap at Washington Park, on June 29th, one mile and a furlong, in 1:52 3-5. The Conqueror II. was second and Advance Guard third.

Ezekiel D. Mosman, a well-known horseman and trainer of this Coast, died at San Jose last Sunday after an illness of six months. He was 63 years old and a native of Illinois.

Jockey Bullman met with an accident while enjoying a swim at a Chicago natatorium one evening last week, and was so shaken up that he rode in but one race, the last one, on the following day.

"Dave" Gideon, July 2d, purchased John Daly's interest in the Holmdel Stud, N. J., and he is now the sole owner. Mr. Gideon has also purchased Glenueille and several other horses from Mr. Daly. The terms are private.

Vagrant, chestnut colt, 2, by imp. Watercross-The Truant, and Bonita Belle, dam of Beau Gallant, the property of R. Croker, and Beau Imperial, the yearling brother of Beau Gallant, were shipped to England on June 29th.

The following jockeys were at the Yreka meeting last week: Tom McNichols, M. B. Breden, Doc Powell, R. Golden, B. Kelley, R. Hobart, R. Rogers, F. Bennett, O. Olsen, Milt Halsey, W. Gilbert, E. Irwin, A. Everson and J. Harris.

At the St. Louis race track on June 29th the starting was poor, the send off in the fifth race being so inexpressibly bad that there was quite a demonstration by the crowd. As a result Starter Bruen resigned and A. B. Dade has been appointed to officiate at the Delmar meeting, which opened Monday.

Walter Hobart recently purchased from L. C. Williams, of Colorado, the fast quarter horse Silver Dick. This horse is very fast for a short distance. He was bred by the Caviness brothers, celebrated outlaws of New Mexico and Texas. He came by his running qualities through heredity, as his sire, Billy Caviness, was one of the fastest short distance horses that ever raced in Texas.

Goodwin's Official Turf Guide, No. 6, just issued carries the record of racing East and West up to date, the volume including the usual indexed form tables for the Sheephead Bay meeting up to the opening of the July meeting. All the other features of the work, the table of jockeys' mounts, dates of meetings, and important foreign fixtures and statistics of the various American tracks are included in the book.

A Butte, Montana paper, thus refers to Starter R. J. Havey: Starter Havey is possessed of more than the usual patience. He has been sorely tried at the post by bad actors on more than one occasion and yet he has not been severe. More than that he tries and tries again until he can get the field off well. Many a starter would become disgusted and drop his flag on any old kind of a start simply to get them off and have done with them.

The temporary passing of Ethelbert brings to mind the number of crack thoroughbreds that have gone wrong this year. Clarence H. Mackay's Banastar, cut down in the Brooklyn Handicap, is a cripple. Kinley Mack, winner of the Brooklyn and Suburban Handicaps last year, has gone to the stud. So has Standing, another flyer in his day. Ballyhoo Bey, of which great things were expected after he had won the Futurity last season, has turned out to be a "roarer" and will never run again. Verily, the turf loses four stars in these racers.

The innovation of book making, which is being tried at Butte, is thus referred to by the Inter-Mountain: "Syndicate booking does not meet with the approval of the betting fraternity. There is absolutely no competition and the talent is forced to take the odds posted on one book or do without, as the other books will offer nothing better. In fairness to the patrons of any race track the management should throw the betting ring open and give its patrons at least a run for its money. A 'grab-all' game will certainly not make racing popular."

Coburn, the well known jockey, had his left leg broken above the ankle at Washington Park one day last week. The accident happened in a peculiar manner. Coburn had the mount on Emma C. L., and while maneuvering for position Educate, with Knight up, whirled suddenly, its hip striking Coburn's leg. Coburn was conveyed to the paddock and his injury attended by Dr. Morrow, the track physician, and later he was taken to the Chicago hospital. In the opinion of the doctor it will be two months before the jockey will be able to ride again, and in the meantime the Bennett stable will have to secure the services of another rider.

Bonita Belle, recently purchased by Mr. Richard Croker from Mr. W. S. Barnes, was shipped to New York Tuesday June 25th, en route to England, where she is to be bred to Flying Fox. The mare is 16 years old, by Falsetto, out of Bonita, by Lexington, and she cost Mr. Croker $12,500. At the same time he bought her weanling foal, Beau Imperial, by Prince of Monaco entered in the Guineas, Derby and St. Leger, in England for $6000. He was shipped with the mare.

The stewards of the Coney Island Jockey Club have done a wise thing in appointing two patrol judges instead of one, because even with a glass one man can't see all that occurs during a race. If they would have a report from each judge, whether complaint of foul riding is made or not, it would be a good idea. Too much can't be done to discourage careless and reckless riding and nothing so demoralizes a young jockey as to have his claim, when he knows he has been fouled, passed over lightly. It encourages him to do the same thing.

Hatorsa, a full sister to Mesmerist, won the Vernal Stakes for two year old fillies at Sheephead Bay July 1st, defeating some of the best fillies of the year in a romp. A New York writer says: "She made all the fillies in the Vernal look like toy thoroughbreds. She bid them a pleasant adieu at the start, picked up her skirts and they heard nothing more from her until they met again upon their return to the stewards. After they had gone three furlongs and a half O'Connor had to turn half way round in his saddle to see if they were following. Don't know how fast this full sister of Mesmerist is, but she will give all the star fillies a merry game, not excluding Blue Girl, and the chances are that she will make most of the colts dizzy when she tackles them. She has not been asked to go over five furlongs as yet, but if she can hold her present speed for six or seven furlongs there is no telling how far she will heat anything that she is stacked against."

The public's opinion of the best three-year-old was changed decidedly on the Fourth of July, when "Dicky" Wilson's colt, The Parader, won the Lawrence Realization, the greatest stake of the year for three-year olds and upward, from James R. Keene's colt Commando, at Sheephead Bay. If any one of the 25,000 persons present had said early in the day that The Parader would beat Commando, in all probability he would have been laughed at. Commando raced all he knew how to heat the possible runners up, and The Parader, well ridden by Patsy McCue, came on in the last half mile, and a full quarter of a mile from home challenged the favorite and then went on and won very comfortably by two lengths. It was the greatest disappointment of the holiday, and with it one of the most unexpected. McCue, the rider of the winner, has been practically out of the game for more than a month. His riding alone, however, kept The Parader straight, and The Parader ran the best race that he was capable of.

Pierre Lorillard, the millionaire tobacconist and owner of thoroughbreds, died in New York, July 8th. Mr. Lorillard's recent severe illness dated from June 20th. He was in England, and went to his lodge at Ascot, hoping to see his horse, David Garrick, win the Gold Cup. He was stricken with a uraemic chill, and was sick for a week. He was advised to come to America, and boarded the Deutschland, but his condition became graver each hour. His physician, Dr. Kilroy, told him he did not think he would live to get to New York, but the magnate insisted that he would. Various estimates have been made of the value of Mr. Lorillard's estate and, while its exact value at the present time is not known, it is believed it is more than $25,000,000. As long ago as 1884 it was said to be from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000. Mr. Lorillard was the first American to win the English Derby, which he did in 1881 with Iroquois. He started the son of Leamington in the Two Thousand Guineas that year and was defeated by Peregrine, but turned the tables on this horse in the Derby. Iroquois also won the St. Leger, Peregrine having been withdrawn.

The great race horse and sire Hindoo died at the home of his owners, Clay & Woodford, at Paris, Kentucky, July 5th. Hindoo was by Virgil, son of Vandal, and out of Florence by Lexington. He was bred by D. Swigert at the Elmendorf Stud, Ky., and foaled 1878. He was the sensational two year old of his year, starting in nine races, winning seven, was second once and third once. As a three year old he won eighteen out of twenty races, and as a four year old won five out of six races. There is no question but Hindoo was one of the best race horses that has ever appeared in this country. He was a grandly bred horse, his grand-sire being the best son of imp. Glencoe. Through both sides of his pedigree he got a large infusion of Diomed blood, together with a double cross of imp. Buzzard, fortified by stout crosses of Whalebone, Herod and Eclipse on the dam's side. He was a great success in the stud, and his son, the great Hanover, in turn sired the great Hamburg. Hindoo traces to the Helmsley Turk mare, to which trace in the direct female line, Starling, Camel, The Baron, sire of Stockwell, Rataplan, etc.

At the close of the recent meeting at Denver the Times of that city said: "The races are over and the management cannot receive too much credit for the kind of sport that has been furnished the public during the meeting. It was many per cent better than any that has ever been seen in Denver before, and has created a new interest in racing that will do the game good for many years to come. There is no doubt that the people of Denver know good sport when they see it, and that they appreciate it. More people attended the races in three days this year than in two weeks last year. The running races were made a feature of the meeting, and there can be no doubt that good running races is what the majority of racegoers want. The harness races were good, but after seeing the running races won by a head, the finishes in the harness races by lengths seemed tame. Mr. Gaylord, who put the meeting through, says: 'I guess there can be no complaint regarding the character of the races this year, but next year they will be much better. We will offer larger purses and have some stake events for runners, which will attract even a better class than has been seen here this season.' The management of the track has a five year lease, and this is sufficient guarantee that the best races possible in this end of the country will be given. The value of the Colorado Derby will be largely increased next year, and it is expected that the class of horses entered for it will be much higher than this year. The fact that four new track records were established in the running races and a new record for Colorado mares in the harness events shows that the racing was of a higher class than it has been before."

Now that the starting machine has battered down prejudice in England, there can be no harm in stating that even so experienced a sportsman as Admiral Rous, once held the opinion that "any d—d fool could start a field of horses." One day he tried the feat himself, and—well, here's the story: For the Royal Hunt Cup in 1861, Admiral Rous made his maiden bow with the starter's flag, and a nice mess he made of it. There had been a lot of complaints just before this time as to the way the starting had been accomplished, and the Admiral took the duty on himself. It was scarcely wise under the circumstances to commence on a field of thirty-three runners, this being the number in Buccaneer's year; but, boiling over with wrath and indignation, down strode the gallant old salt to the starting post, flag in hand, thinking his appearance alone in the position of starter would strike terror and dismay into the hearts and minds of the hitherto unruly jockeys. So far from this being the case, he absolutely had not the slightest control over them, and such a scene as ensued was probably never witnessed at the starting post. Jim Goater especially was determined not to get left, and at last after an hour's delay, and when if possible, the animals were in a worse position to be started than they had been at any time previously, Admiral Rous, who was completely livid with rage, literally through down the flag, shouting at the same time at the top of his naturally strong and rough voice: "Go, and he d—d to you!" Goater got a flying start, and being on a very speedy horse and quick beginner, rapidly added to his lead, was never headed, and won in a canter with the then big weight of 8st 7lb. This was Admiral Rous' first and last attempt at starting.

It is reported that the deer season in Marin county will be shortened two weeks, open season will be from August 1st to September 15th. The open season on quail, however, the belief is, will not be curtailed, but will be, as provided by the State law, from October 1st until February 1st.

At the Traps.

The local trap shooting attractions to-morrow embrace both live bird and blue rock shooting at Ingleside. The Olympic Gun Club members will shoot animate targets and the San Francisco Gun Club shooters will pulverize inanimate targets.

Across the bay the Empire Gun Club regular monthly shoot at Alameda Junction will be held.

Sacramento and Northern California sportsmen will gather to-day and to-morrow on the Kimball and Upson grounds in attendance at the largest trap shoot ever pulled off in Sacramento. Cash and merchandise prizes, plentiful in amount and of good value and utility, will go to many winning guns.

The California Wing Club live bird shoot on the 7th inst. was slimly attended by club members. The birds supplied were strong and lively. The final shoot will be held next month; the concluding club race will be at twenty-five pigeons. The scores made last Sunday follow:

The feature of the Union Gun Club shoot last Sunday at Ingleside was the twelve-man team race between the Empire and Union Gun Clubs. This race was the second in a series of three shoots for a trophy. The first race took place on the Empire Club grounds last month and resulted in favor of this Union Club team. The contest on Sunday was a tie shoot, each team scoring 177 breaks out of a possible 240 (20 targets per man). The tie will be shot off August 4th at Ingleside. On Sunday, W. A. Robertson was referee. F. Herring represented the Union Club and James P. Sweeney was judge for the Empire team.

The first regular club event shot on Sunday was the club shoot at 25 blue rocks. Fred Feudner was high man with 24 breaks and won first money. M. J. Iverson, H. Schnipper and Pete Claussen divided second money. Third money was cut up by F. Herring, J. Gordon, R. Cooper and Captain Wollam. T. L. Lewis easily won fourth money. In the club handicap medal matches Fred Feudner and "U. M. C." tied with 23 targets each for first medal. R. Cooper and M. Burnell tied for second medal with 17 each, Cooper winning in the shoot-off. Hip Justins won the ability handicap medal race, scoring 21 out of a possible 25. The winners in the added money race were Fred Feudner first money; Iverson and Gordon divided second money.

Handicap medal race—F. Feudner shot at 25 and broke 23; "U. M. C." 26-23; Hoyt, 26-18; Iverson, 26-22; Sylvester, 25-22; Burnell, 26-17; Schnipper, 26-13; Mitchell, 25-11; Lewis, 30-16; Herring, 28-16; Cooper, 28-17; Otto Feudner, 25-24.

Ability medal race, 25 blue rocks—Iverson 20, Sylvester 20, McConnell 20, Justins 21, Donohue 19, Lewis 17.
 Added money race, handicap—Walport, 10 out of 25; Otto Feudner, 18-20; McConnell, 14-25; Justins, 16-23; Donohue, 15-25; Robertson, 16-22; Webb, 18-20; Fred Feudner, 21-21; Cooper, 18-28; Gordon, 20-28; "U. M. C." 18-22; Iverson, 20-25.

Second shoot of the series between the Empire and Union Gun Club, 12 men teams, at 20 blue rocks per man:

Union Gun Club—F. Feudner 17, Sylvester 14, "U. M. C." 15, Iverson 18, Walport 18, Michelissen 11, Burnell 17, Mitchell 7, Pisani 16, Knick 15, Gordon 15, Cooper 14; total 177.

The live bird shoot at the Burlingame Country Club on the Fourth was won by W. B. Tubbs, who shot in clover form and won the F. J. Carolan cup. Mr. Tubbs stopped a number of lively birds with the first and showed good judgment in using the second barrel, making most of his kills very neat center shots. After the club race he continued shooting in six-bird pools. He missed his last bird, the thirty-second shot at, a left quartering out going bird from No. 4 trap. His record of thirty-one straight is the high club score to date; the previous run was twenty-seven pigeons. Mr. Ed. Donohoe, who did not compete for the cup, also shot in excellent form, killing straight in the club race. Fred Tallant, the cup winner last year, withdrew in the thirteenth round. He had some pretty swift birds to bring to grass in the club race. In the pool shoots he scored straight, however. G. H. Lent has now the honor of being twice "runner up" for the cup. Hedrew some hard birds, and finally fell out of the race in the eighteenth round. W. H. Howard, who won the cup two years ago, put up his gun in the tenth round. T. L. Driscoll and J. A. Tobin withdrew in the seventeenth and tenth rounds, respectively. W. B. Bourne was out of form and stopped shooting early in the race. Six-bird pool shoots followed the club race. An interested group of ladies and gentlemen viewed the shooting and frequently applauded skillful shots. Harry Jerome and J. A. Folger proved able to do some trap shooting, if put to it. The scores made were the following:

The distribution of the moneys at the Walla Walla shoot, where the Bennet-Rose or Rose system was followed, did not net the shooters anywhere near the amount anticipated, too many men were in the division to make the individual win of any consequence. From accounts received the money division was unsatisfactory. This we do not state as any reflection upon the management of the shoot, which, by the way, we are informed, was very good, but the system of money division was not applicable. We mention this for the information of some local shooters who have been advocating a similar disbursement of purses.

In connection with the recent international trap shoot the Shooting Times says: "In their practice, previous to the match, the American team showed the style of men they were, and the odds on them at the start of the contest were as much as 4 to 1, although these odds were somewhat reduced after the first 100 birds, as the British team were then leading. The conditions of the match make it rather difficult to make comparisons between the rival teams, the Americans, although limited to the use of only one barrel having the right to use 1 oz. of shot and an unlimited powder charge, whilst the English could use two barrels, but were tied down to an ordinary game charge with 1 1/8 oz. of shot. It has been reckoned that the extra 1/8 oz. of shot is equivalent to 33 pellets, and the heavy charge of powder, there is no doubt, gives tremendous smashing power. Notwithstanding these advantages, we cannot but think that had the teams been equal in skill, the second barrel should have given victory to the British. This was proved over and over again by the successful use of the second barrel, and a comparison of individual scores shows that the majority of the American shooters were unquestionably far superior in the skillful use of their weapons.

This friendly tournament will, we think, lead to changes in the construction of our clay bird shooting guns, as well as the loading of cartridges, as the Americans have evidently, by continued experiments, discovered the best weapons as well as the best ammunition to use in this kind of sport. Their guns, although not bearing comparison in style and finish with the best English made guns, yet give extraordinary close patterns, and are extremely heavy from our point of view. Some of the shells used were $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches, and contained $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 drachms of powder, with about 1 inch of wads. The shot used was No. 7 $\frac{1}{2}$. The proceedings have so far gone off without a hitch, and the meeting of rival teams has been marked by the exchange of the most friendly feelings. The Americans are all keen, thoroughbred sportsmen, and there is no doubt that they fully deserve their success."

A further notice in the issue of the above mentioned journal of June 22d is the following interesting paragraph:

"The Anglo American Clay Bird Contest at Hendon ended, as we anticipated, in a runaway victory for the Americans, the home team being quite out-classed from start to finish. The American team, it was admitted by Mr. Paul North, was composed of the finest clay pigeon shooters that America could produce, and every individual was provided with the best weapon, as well as the most perfect ammunition for the purpose. Their guns were 12-bore, choked to 14, weighed 8 lbs. or more, with 31 to 32 inch barrels, whilst their cartridges, $3\frac{1}{2}$ to $3\frac{1}{4}$ -inch cases, loaded with $1\frac{1}{2}$ oz. of No. 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ shot, were wadded with the very best material that has ever been seen in this country. The inch or so of soft wads in the cartridge was to prevent the escape of gases into the shot charge when leaving the muzzle. Eight Americans shot with Parker guns, and two shot with guns made by the Hunter Arms Co. The English team used guns by Cogswell and Harrison, Greener, Boss, Langley, Boswell, Cashmore, Westley Richards and Rigby. Apart, however, from the question of arms and ammunition, it must be admitted that the English team were much inferior as marksmen. This is sufficiently demonstrated by the fact that in the first match, which was lost by 65 birds, the British team in as many as 150 instances saved the loss of the bird by the use of the second barrel, thus proving that the second barrel was a most important factor.

The American team were, we thought, rather slow and seemed to follow their birds, but there was no doubt about the result when they loosed off. In the great majority of cases the bird was fairly struck and simply vanished in a puff of dust. This result may be explained by the fact that at 40 yards the American guns gave a pattern resembling the top of a pepper caster, every pellet being within a circle only 14 inches in diameter. This closeness of pattern, of course, speaks more eloquently than words as to the fine shooting of the Americans. On Tuesday evening the American team were entertained at a complimentary dinner at the Cafe Royal, previous to their departure for Scotland, where they have arranged to compete against a picked team of Scottish shooters, at the Shooting School Grounds at Stobhill, Springburn, Glasgow, to-day."

The last mentioned shoot was also decided in favor of the American shooters. The match was at 1000 targets for a purse of £200. The use of both barrels was optional with each team. The Americans broke 973 targets, the Scotch team 882. Fred Gilbert and R. Merrill each scored straight strings of 100, Wm. Crosby 99, Tripp, Fanning and Heikes 97 out of the last 500. The best British individual score was 96. The English and Scotch sportsmen present were much surprised by the accuracy of the American shooters and testified their appreciation at the close of the shoot with many cheers.

Trade Notes.

The popularity of a good single barrel, breech loading shot gun is attested in the Eastern country by the constant and increasing demand for a field gun of this description. The utility of a single shot weapon is of a far higher degree than ordinarily supposed. In this respect we will call the attention of our readers to the announcement of the Remington Arms Company, which appears on the last page of this issue.

In another column we quote a representative English sporting journal which unhesitatingly gives credit to American guns and American ammunition as a potent factor in accomplishing winning results at the traps in the recent international shooting matches. (From these results of the different contests it would seem that all American manufacturers have had an opportunity to demonstrate the superiority of American guns over guns of English make. The leading and most prominent guns of foreign make as well as American guns were represented on these teams. The highest average record was made with an L. C. Smith gun, used by "Billy" Crosby. In this connection it can be stated that the Smith gun is claimed to hold the world's record on clay pigeons, the following scores being offered to substantiate the assertion: John Hallowell, high gun 1897, 154 straight breaks. Charlie Young, high gun 1899, 211 straight; "Jack" Fanning, high gun 1900, 231 straight; "Billy" Crosby, high gun 1901, 345 straight; Mr. Crosby also made the highest average during the recent competition "across the herring pond."

In regard to the recent Anglo-American shotgun arguments at the traps some interesting ammunition data is at hand. The American team scored 2586 targets out of a possible 3000. The English team broke but 2334 (this with the use of the second barrel). The majority of the shooters on the American team, including Captain Tom Marshall (twice winner of the Grand American handicap), used "U. M. C." shells, factory loaded. U. M. C. shells were used by the winners at 7 out of 9 Grand American handicap tournaments. The world's record for 100 shots at 100 yards was broken by Dr. Ashley A. Webber, on June 26th, with fixed ammunition. He shot with a service weapon, using factory loaded U. M. C. cartridges, shooting at an 8-inch hullseye and scored 790 out of a possible 1000.

Dry Fly-Fishing.

Fly-fishing with the dry fly quite naturally appears to be an absurdity on the face of it. It will at once be said by the uninitiated that if you cast an artificial fly made of feathers, silk, tinsel, and a steel hook on to the water it will get wet and sink. Some years ago Dr. Prime, author of that pleasant little hook, "I Go a-Fishing," said that to keep a fly dry so that it would float on the water and not sink or get wet was an "impossibility," which only proves that the doctor's knowledge of fly-fishing was limited to the old and excellent style now called wet fly-fishing. As a matter of fact, it is perfectly easy to fish throughout even the wettest day with your fly always floating on the surface, and not merely on still water, but also in a gale of wind, when the surface is broken into waves, or in a rough stream.

In 1879 that excellent fly-fisher and English fishing tackle maker, the late James Ogden of Cheltenham, published that very useful little work, "Ogden on Fly-Tying," and in it he describes how he had introduced his floating flies to the angling world forty years previously—i. e., about 1840, and also how he discovered the advantage of using a dry fly. The passage is very interesting and claims a place in any account of the history of fly-fishing. He says:

"Some forty years ago, when I introduced my floating flies, the love of angling was increasing at the rate of ten to one from when I was a lad. I always found the more a stream was whipped over, the more wary and shy the fish became; and I always made it a rule never to leave a good rising fish while he was feeding. I have tried every dodge and often every fly in my book. By changing my end fly I have occasionally (not intending to do so) made a cast with a dry fly. In those days it was said this would scare a rising trout and cause him to leave off feeding. On the other hand, I found while my fly was still on the surface, without a ripple, it has tempted the fish to seize it, after I have been throwing a sunk fly over him, in vain, scores of times. These observations were the cause of my introducing floating flies. I found it advisable to use one fly only with a shorter casting line."

It was not until the early eighties—about twenty years ago—that dry fly-fishing began to come into general use; its use previously had been confined to a comparatively few experts on a few streams. Up to that time the flies used were, although made specially with a view to their floating, attached to gut in the old way—i. e., the hook was whipped to a strand of gut, and it was found that flies so fastened to the line required very careful casting or they broke off.

The secret of making the fly float was very simple. After casting it on the water, you had only to make half a dozen false casts in the air and the fly was again dry enough to float on the surface over a rising fish, instead of sinking at once. But in drying the fly in this way it often cracked like a coachman's whip, and you found it gone. This was a great drawback, but it was overcome almost entirely by the discovery of that keen and accomplished dry-fly angler, H. S. Hall, that if the hook was made with a metal eye to attach the gut to, it would stand almost any amount of casting without cracking off. After numberless experiments and a great deal of correspondence in the columns of The Field and The Fishing Gazette, he, assisted by another first-rate angler, George L. Bankart, succeeded in getting flies made on special eyed hooks.

These gentlemen did not invent the eyed hook or first use it for trout flies. Wheatley, in his "Rod and Line," published by Longmans in 1859, had fully described the advantages of dressing trout and grayling flies on eyed hooks, but Messrs. Hall and Bankart deserve none the less credit for the immense benefit they conferred on dry-fly anglers by reinventing and improving them. Wheatley used them for wet fly-fishing, for which purpose they are not popular even to-day.

Perhaps next to Mr. Hall's "eyed hooks" the greatest aid the dry-fly angler has received was through the publication only a few years ago in The Fishing Gazette of "The Great Oil Tip," as he called it. Up to that time the difficulty was to keep your fly floating on the surface, especially on a wet day, when no amount of false casting or drying in the air would make it float more than for a few seconds. Anglers owe this great but very simple boon to a Col. Hawker, who imparted the secret to the late Mr. Thomas Andrews, the celebrated pisciculturist of Guildford. Mr. Andrews was a keen angler, and in one of his contributions to The Fishing Gazette he described how the application of a little paraffine oil to the fly caused it to float like a duck, even on the wettest day.

The difference between a fly oiled and one not oiled is this—the latter requires a far greater amount of drying in the air by false casts between each cast on the water, increasing the strain on the wrist and arm quite three times what is required with the oiled fly even on a dry day. On a wet day your unoled fly soon becomes so waterlogged that you cannot make it float, do what you will. The oil makes absolutely no difference to the appearance of the fly, and after a cast or two you would not know it was oiled.

W. J. Street returned Monday from a fifteen days' trip to the Yosemite valley. In describing the trout fishing he says: "The streams are full of trout, but the water was still rather high and fishing not as good as it will be later on. The fish go in on the overflowed places and find plenty of feed among the submerged grasses and other vegetation. When the streams run low later on there will be plenty of good fishing. However, he caught a number of very nice fish; the favorite flies were the white moth, royal coachman and Street's Yosemite fly. The fishing was done generally in the evening for best results. He reports the Big pool in the Little Yosemite good for both the fly and spoon; in about two weeks the angler will find plenty of fish. The best fishing will be found in the Emerald pool, in the Merced river between Vernal and Nevada falls. This pool is full of good sized rainbow trout." "Old Man" Snow, who kept the hotel near this spot some ten years ago, planted rainbow fry in the pool and they have propagated and multiplied wonderfully well. Street struck this water one morning ahead of his party and in an hour he had in his basket twenty beauties caught on a La Forge spoon; when the rest of the party came up and gathered along the banks fishing was over. During the twilight in the valley the streams and pools are good for a few fish. He did not take in the Cascades on this trip. The outing party was composed principally of ladies and gentlemen members of the Camera Club. Many grand and beautiful pictures were taken by the camera enthusiasts, who one and all declared the trip a royal outing from beginning to end—the only regrets were, that such a splendid vacation terminated too soon.

During Clarence A. Haight's recent northern trip he visited Spokane for a few days and was the guest of H. G. Lougee, a sportsman well known in this city. Mr. Lougee has at his residence there as complete an equipment for outing with rod or gun, camping, etc., as the heart of the most ardent enthusiast could wish for. Lougee put his light camping wagon in commission and took Haight off on a three days fishing trip. Our two anglers camped each day on the banks of the Spokane and morning and evening whipped the stream, hooking many splendid rainbows. The largest fish taken on the trip was caught by Lougee one evening just before dusk, it was a three and a half pound rainbow. The fish usually ran from a half to three-quarter pounds in weight and were fighters from start to finish. Before returning to Spokane, the sportsmen visited Lake Hayden in Idaho, distant forty miles from Spokane. Lougee is just as clever with the rod and fly as he is with a shot gun. Mr. Haight has expressed his enjoyment of a most pleasant trip in no unmeasured terms of appreciation.

Reports from all the striped bass fishing resorts are favorable for plenty of sport in salt water. The fish are so numerous in the bay that one day shortly after the season opened they were being sold in the market at one cent per pound. Boswell Kenniff hooked eleven fish, weighing 51 pounds, in the estuary on Sunday. This water has been the resort of numerous anglers daily, many fish have been caught. At Black Point and Petaluma creek striped bass fishing is first class. The Petaluma Gun Club members have had grand sport and caught many fish, the club house has been crowded to its utmost capacity to accommodate the members recently. The "white house" pool at Point Reyes is full of striped bass, and big fellows they are. Last Sunday Frank Vernon, who had been black bass fishing in the lake nearby, tried the "pool" with his light tackle and was cleaned out four times, the last time his line was all taken and the rod smashed.

A paragraph in last Sunday's Bulletin taking us to task for an alleged statement concerning the edible qualities of Klamath river trout is all Greek to the editor of this department—if the writer can find any matter on that subject recently in the columns of this journal we will obligate ourself to lunch on thistles for a month of Sundays. The knowledge of fish and angling, close season, etc., as well as some mind reading talent, displayed by the critic referred to is of so convincing a nature as to create laughter on the part of anglers and sportsmen.

The remark attributed to us appeared in the Bulletin. A typographical error, the word river instead of lake changed the meaning of a sentence, which explanation we make in a kindly spirit to a writer who jumped to conclusions too readily.

Carp have gradually become such a nuisance in Lake Chabot, that the water company have had, under the direction of Fred W. King, a crew of Italian fishermen seining the fish. If this does not prove effective, it is proposed to put a few seals in the lake. After the carp are cleaned out it is intended to stock the lake with 10,000 black bass fry. This water used to be worth a visit for a day's trout fishing, but for a long time past the trout in the lake have been legendary and not actual to any great extent.

A box of trout received yesterday, shipped from Truckee, was a kindly reminder from Al M. Cumming that he is still enjoying the angler's delight at Independence lake. The fish were in splendid condition, packed expertly, and were from 8 to 13 inches in length.

The fly-casters will put out their lines on Stow lake this afternoon and to-morrow morning.

Some new wrinkles in striped bass fishing tackle manufactured by Al Wilson are in big demand and also a new lot of trout rods, reels, lines, flies and a full general line of up to date outing goods at the H. E. Skinner Co, 416 Montgomery street.

Doings in Dogdom.

A litter of handsome and promising Cocker are now ready for disposal. Particulars at this office.

A pair of Great Danes are wanted: must be blue in color, the dog not over two years old and the bitch about twelve months.

Any one desirous of procuring some high bred Bull Terrier or Fox Terrier puppies can do so by addressing the Kennel Editor.

We have a demand for a pair of young pointers to be sent to the Orient. A local sportsman wishes to buy a young Llewellyn setter dog not over a year old, one that he can break this fall.

The Nanaimo Agricultural Association have joined the Pacific Kennel League. A bench show will be held at Nanaimo in September. George Norris, Nanaimo, B. C., is secretary of the association.

A preliminary canvas among the ranks of the local fancy brings to light many earnest promises of support for the Oakland show in December. Mr. John Bradshaw seems to have many well wishers for the success of the fall bench show.

Recent experiments in inoculating dogs against distemper have been wonderfully successful. M. Phisallin, a French chemist, has prepared a serum which has been proved to be most effective. This serum, says the Shooting Times, has been used in the kennels of English Foxhounds, with the result that distemper has been practically prevented.

Clinton E. Worden's Derby entry, Lady Jane (formerly Minnie Cummings) by Ch. Joe Cummings out of Bessie Perry, arrived here about three weeks ago from W. W. Titus, Owensville, Ky. She is a handsome black, white and tan bitch, and should show up well in the January field trials. Her blood lines are of the best, going back to Gladstone, Ch. Count Gladstone IV, Gath's Mark, Ruby's Girl, and other noted Setter cranks.

The Ladies Kennel Club of California will be organized on Friday evening, July 19th, at 8 o'clock. The meeting will be held in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. Lady fanciers are invited to attend. To those of the fair sex interested and who may not find it convenient to be present at the initial meeting, we are requested to announce that Mrs. N. P. Rosenberg, secretary pro tem, 36 Maple street, San Francisco, will receive applications for membership or impart any further information desired.

The Pacific Northwest Field Trial Club have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Dr. J. M. Myers of Tacoma; Vice-Presidents, G. D. Potter of Spokane, P. V. Dwyer of South Bend, Frank Everett of Chehalis, F. D. Black of Seattle and P. J. Pratt of La Connor; Secretary, F. R. Atkins of Seattle; Treasurer, Julius Redelsheimer of Seattle; Board of Governors, R. M. Palmer, Oscar Jones, P. J. Pratt, W. J. Miller, J. A. Peebles and H. C. Bromley.

The club is in a very prosperous condition. The next trials will be held at Whidby Island, commencing October 15th, two weeks earlier than last year. Birds are very plentiful and a large number of visiting sportsmen and handlers from without the State of Washington have assured Secretary Atkins of their intention to be on hand. Any gentleman desiring to join the club can do so by sending in his application and the yearly dues, two dollars.

The Oakland Bench Show.

We are in receipt of the following communication from Mr. Norman J. Stewart respecting the announcement in this journal, of a bench show to be held in Oakland in December under A. K. C. rules.

"The paragraph regarding Oakland show in last week's issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, has brought me many letters from fanciers, asking me if the Collie Club was really not going to hold its show in Oakland this year.

Will you kindly therefore grant me permission, through your columns, to state definitely that the Collie Club will not hold its Fifth Annual Show in Oakland this year.

It was the intention of the promoters of the Collie Club to hold a show in a different town each year, thus working up an interest in thoroughbred dogs in sections where there were no shows and endeavoring to form clubs in those towns to continue the work begun by the Collie Club. We started with San Jose, moving to Oakland next year, where unfortunately we found our associates of the Poultry Club such pleasant companions to work with, that, forgetting the good intentions of the founders of our club, we accepted the invitation of the Oakland association and remained.

The statement of "Occidental" in an Eastern paper that our three Oakland shows were financial failures and that I paid the deficit is neither true nor fair to the Collie Club. Our object has never been to make money, but to try and give a decent little show and please the exhibitors. When we have made money we have used it to give a better show next year, and when we have lost, the deficit has been paid by the Executive Committee, who, having the entire management of the club in their hands, are held responsible by the club for any deficit which may arise in any matter undertaken by them.

Such a combination show as Oakland can never of course hope to pay the dog department its proper pro rata of receipts. As a drawing card the dogs are worth 75% of the gate, but with the other departments to be considered they have never received, nor can they expect to receive, more than 35%. It is therefore scarcely possible to make the dog department a financial success.

The Pacific Kennel League has discouraged such combination shows as those given in Oakland as tending to decrease the interest and lower the standard of the dog, and desires that in future all its members, except agricultural societies, will confine their shows to dogs.

We hope that Mr. Bradshaw may decide to take hold of Oakland show, and assure him of our hearty support in doing everything in our power to make it a success."

Queer Foxhounds of Maine.

The three chief products of Aroostook county Maine, are said to be potatoes, politicians and red foxes. A year ago Charles E. Oak of Caribou, land agent and forest commissioner for Maine, told a legislative committee that his county could furnish 100,000 fox pelts a year for ten years without diminishing the supply. Hunters from Boston and Worcester, who have shot and trapped foxes in Aroostook say that Mr. Oak's estimate is too low by half.

The great wine-red fox that will run for days without tiring; that will double and turn to laugh at the dogs, and then go on refreshed from the exercise, reaches fullest perfection in Aroostook county. Of the 20,000 or 30,000 foxes taken in Aroostook last winter more than half were caught in traps. Nearly all the others were shot while running before the patient and slow-footed hounds that abound in northern Maine.

The Maine foxhound is a hunting machine that was developed for a certain purpose. The result of fifty years breeding is a short-legged, deep-chested, slow-running breed of dogs that will run day and night without tiring, a breed that will annoy foxes and cause them to run in more or less restricted circles, and frighten them enough to cause them to hole. The Maine hound to be of value must also be taught to hunt singly, so that if a hunter takes out a half dozen dogs for a day's hunt every dog will pick up a track of his own and follow it to the death. It is not a surprising feat for a hunter with six hounds to go out in the morning and return at night with ten or twelve pelts. As the skin of an Aroostook red fox is worth anywhere from $1.25 to $2.50, the occupation is profitable as well as pleasing.

To train a hound pup for the duties he is expected to perform requires much time and labor. A dog pup that is 8 weeks old and untaught can be bought for $5, while the same dog will sell for $75 or $100 after he has been educated. No dog is worth having unless his master can shift him from one fox's track to another's or from a fox's track to a rabbit's and back again, but if any dog makes one of these changes without his master's consent he is disgraced and punished severely. It is a point of dog honor among Aroostook hounds to chase a fox by day, by night, and on Sundays until he is caught, shot or run to earth. There are dozens of dogs in the county that have followed foxes from six to ten days without food or rest. Such hounds are beyond value. They have the best the house affords while they live and are decently buried—like one of the family—after death.

These are veritable dog days. The formation of a ladies' kennel club and the proposed issuance and publication of a Coast kennel journal in the near future—so it is rumored—are surely signs of a renewed interest in our canine friends which we are glad to chronicle. Though just why a brand new journal should be put in circulation, when a weekly paper can be bought outright for a small figure, thus saving considerable expense in putting up a plant, is a proposition we are not prepared to answer. To avoid any possible misconception of the above surmise we do not refer to this journal.

Advice to Beginners.

As to which variety of dog a new beginner may elect to go in for will, whatever advice may be tendered him, be guided, no doubt, to a great extent by his own individual taste as well as his position and surroundings. It is very advisable, however, to be set against taking on the very large breeds, unless he has plenty of both room and cash at his disposal. St. Bernards, Bloodhounds, Newfoundlanders, Mastiffs, Great Danes and some other large breeds, are all dogs of a more or less imposing description; but to be successful in their keep and culture, requires unlimited kennel room, and not a little capital. This is in reference to a fancier who desires to take one or more of the breeds as a hobby; to form a kennel of them for exhibition purposes—whether for pleasure or profit is immaterial. This ground area and finance is not necessary, if only one or two at most of the dogs are required as companions; but, where breeding operations are contemplated, adequate kennel and run accommodation are an absolute necessity, if success, however small, is to be achieved. Breeders are not long before they find themselves overstocked with surplus stock, which is, perhaps, the greatest drawback with which they have to contend.

This over-production in the breeding of prize and other dogs has long been a bugbear to the breeder, and its disposition in any profitable way, other than by destruction, is one of those breeders' problems which to-day remains unsolved—and perhaps unsolvable. This being so, it is well to offer a few words of warning at the very onset. The average proportion of profitable animals—that is, dogs of good average merit, which in the market, either as show dogs or for sporting purposes, will command a price over and above cost—which the most successful breeders are able to produce, is not a large one; while in the majority of cases it is very small. The residue, as it may be termed, is, if not the ruin of many a kennel, invariably the means of sapping the life out of the majority, and retarding their possible progress, often culminating in the owner throwing up the sponge and clearing out in disgust. It is, too, the man with either means or magnificent accommodation who is tempted to "run on" his puppies, to "see what they will make," rather than weed them out and rid them at a sacrifice early on in their career. Most breeders are apt to fall into this one trap, and as a consequence the market is glutted with mediocre specimens which in the meantime have, in the vernacular of disgusted breeders, "eaten their heads off several times over." Better by far keep a few dogs and do them well, and be sure that what is kept are good; which will always pay their way, and in nine cases out of ten produce a profit.

Of the larger varieties the St. Bernard, undoubtedly takes precedence for popularity, by reason, no doubt, of the dog's huge proportions, outward beauty, imposing appearance, and, above all, high intelligence and nobleness of disposition—coupled with the fact of his life-saving deeds being writ upon the pages of history, an imperishable monument of his worth. It may, in passing, be of interest to take note that the St. Bernard and the Newfoundland are the only two of the very many varieties of the canine species, whose nature is to save, not destroy life. All other breeds have, by instinct as it were, a tendency to kill. Originally, no doubt, there was not this distinction, for the dog in his wild, or even semi-wild state—without exception—hunted for his food and lived upon the proceeds of his prowess in this respect. Not only has he been completely subjugated by man, but in the cases referred to, his whole nature changed; and now, instead of his carrying on a system of canine brigandage such as we read of in his early history, he has been taught to fulfill the nobler mission of saving (not destroying) human life, and averting human suffering in various ways. Who has not read of the St. Bernards of the Hospice being sent out from their cozy kennels at this historical Alpine home, to carry succor and aid to the wayward traveller on the snow-capped mountains of Switzerland, or of the Newfoundland braving the briny to rescue some unfortunate human being from a watery grave? Then again, volumes might be written of recorded facts setting forth the fidelity of the dog, regardless of his breed, to his lord and master—man. A discussion of this portion of the dog's history, however, is scarcely pertinent to the particular treatise which is at present under consideration nor does it come within the legitimate scope of this article, although this notice would have been incomplete without mention of this part of the history of our four-footed friend, a history which has, no doubt, in the closing years of the present century, in no small measure conduced to the great popularity of the dog, and caused him to be so prized by the community at large in which he is at present held in such high esteem.

The intelligence of the collie is proverbial and it is difficult to understand how any shepherd can get along without one or two of them. Near Three Creek, Idaho, S. A. Newman's bunch of sheep is herded by two Australian shepherd dogs. They were suckled by a ewe and will go out in any direction. One goes in lead and the other drives the sheep. If coyotes come around one dog attends to them while the other takes the flock to the house. These creatures have not been specially trained to this work. In addition to that wonderful natural instinct which characterizes this breed of dogs, they seem to have imbibed from their nurse a special affection for their charge. When the flock becomes accidentally mixed with any other band of sheep on the range, if uninterfered with these dogs will go in and cut out their sheep from the others, one of them holding their own charge while the other drives back the neighboring flock. They keep all cattle or horses from mixing in with or disturbing the sheep. They will attack any stranger who may come in among their sheep when on the range. If darkness overtakes the sheep at a distance from the ranch the dogs will generally stay on guard with them, but it has sometimes happened that one would remain in charge and the other would come to the house and notify the owner.

THE FARM.

Good Advice.

Dairying is a business and should be conducted on business principles. Milk regularly, feed regularly, be acquainted with the cows, take good care of the calves. Don't be afraid to invest a few dollars to improve the herd.

Here is where a great many just commencing in the dairy business fail. They buy cows fresh in the spring. Some of them may be good cows, while others will want to go dry as soon as the dry season comes on. The new beginner will have a lot of strippers on hand to feed during the winter, get disgusted with the business and declare dairying does not pay; while it is not the fault of the business, but the cows and the management are to blame.

I have talked to a few people who are a little skeptical in regard to the future price of dairy products. Dairymen in other states were afraid there would be an over production, and they found markets, though not so high as in former years, but with our improved methods of the twentieth century, the dairy cow herself, upon which the whole business rests, is a different creature from a few years ago. The dairyman that has attended an agricultural college or reads dairy papers, who knows the value of different kinds of feed, and what it takes to make a balanced ration is far ahead of the man that does everything by guess. The cream separator is one of the grandest improvements of the age. The time is coming when milk pans will no longer be seen around the house as the hand separator is fast taking their place. With the silo and the soiling crops to furnish green feed the year around dairying has been changed from the drudgery of the past to a pleasant and profitable business of the present.

With all these improvements we can produce butter much cheaper than our forefathers did.

All that is lacking to-day is the milking machine, so that we can touch the hutton and it will do the rest.

In the Harvest Fields.

The Tulare Register gives the following scale of wages in force in the harvest fields in that county:

On stationary threshers the separator man gets $5 per day, the engineer $3, sack sewers $3, forkers $4, fireman $2.50, and the other men $2. It costs $80 per day to run a good threshing outfit, requiring twenty-two men and thirty horses, and the thresher gets ten cents per cental for doing the work. He has got to have pretty good fortune and few fires and smash-ups if he makes very much money during the season's run.

On the combined harvesters the wages are not so high. The driver is paid $2.50 per day, and the rest of the men only $2 with $1.50 for the roustabout. It takes five men to man a machine that will cut forty acres per day, and if the farmer finds the feed for the stock, the cutting will cost $1.25 per acre ordinarily, or $1.50 if the harvest crew finds its own feed.

In both the case of the harvester and the threshing outfit the owner feeds his own men and the farmer and his family are not bothered with the supply department. Horses cost a bit more than they did three or four years ago, 75 cents to $1 per span being paid for them now, whereas 50 cents a span used to be thought good enough.

The greatest Jersey bull that ever lived was no doubt Golden Lad. He was born May 23, 1888, bred by J. P. Maret, St. Saviour, Island of Jersey. He was a solid colored hull, with black tongue and switch. He was the greatest prize winner ever shown in England and has died within the past year. There are in America six of his sons and sixty-two daughters. Six of his daughters have recorded butter tests.

Roots as a Swine Food.

Prof. H. E. Van Norman and C. S. Plumb report as follows on tests of roots as food for pigs: In 1893 as high as 24 25 tons of mangel-wurzels per acre were produced at the station at a cost of 85 cents per ton when harvested. The r feeding value was tested with twelve pigs, seven of which were pure bred Chester Whites and the remainder Chester White Poland Chinas.

The pigs were weighed only two days before the beginning of the test, when they were about three months old. They were divided into two uniform lots, each lot containing three males and three females. The test began February 1st and closed April 19, 1899. The pigs were confined in small lots fifteen by thirty feet in size, with a comfortable shelter house in each lot.

Lot 1 was fed on a slop consisting of corn meal and shorts, 1.2, and cut mangel wurzels ad libitum. Lot 2 was fed corn meal and shorts only. The pigs were supplied with water, ashes and salt. Weighings were made at the end of each week.

At the beginning of the test the average weight of the pigs in the two lots was 44 and 46.1 pounds respectively. The average daily gains in the two lots were 4.61 and 5.74 pounds respectively. Each lot consumed 3.71 pounds of meal and shorts per pound of gain.

In addition to the grain ration, lot 1 ate 514 pounds of mangel-wurzels during the test. Rating the corn meal at 80 cents, shorts at 70 and mangel-wurzels at 10 cents per 100 pounds, the cost of food per pound of gain was 2.8 and 2.7 cents respectively.

Partial Paralysis of Pigs.

Investigation at the Ontario agricultural college shows that during the winter and spring months many pigs become somewhat paralyzed or lame from an apparent rheumatic affection. In paralysis the appetite is variable, and the hind limbs are so affected that locomotion is scarcely possible. In rheumatic affections the symptoms are similar to those of paralysis, with the exception that the joints are frequently swollen and sensitive.

This form of paralysis is usually the result of digestive disturbances associated with constipation. These digestive troubles are due to overfeeding or improper feeding and lack of exercise. The rheumatic troubles are mostly caused by improper buildings, poor ventilation or damp sleeping places.

The curative treatment for these affections consists largely in correcting these faults in diet or surroundings, the use of tonic, such as nux vomica, and suitable purgatives. Under the head of "Correctives," the report refers to substances which are not strictly foods, but which assist in bringing about a normal digestive action.

Among these substances may be mentioned fresh earth, ashes and charcoal. Suggestions are given on proper plans for building the piggery so that the damp floors may be avoided and proper ventilation secured.

Here is the latest incubator story from the Denver Field and Farm. The story itself is warm enough to hatch eggs: "It is said that Colonel Judson, the great grass expert of the northwest, has invented an interminable incubator consisting of a series of chambers or tunnels heated to the proper temperature, through which a sort of endless chain-traveling conveyor meanders, which is kept supplied automatically with eggs from a hopper at one end. Its speed is so timed that the eggs are hatched just as they reach the other end, so that a stream of eggs is constantly flowing into one end of the machine and a line of chickens always coming out at the other. The machine is to be operated by water from a hot spring, which also furnishes the necessary heat to hatch the eggs and it runs day and night and never gets weary."

About Cream Flavors.

Cream may be ripened, and ripened completely, without its becoming acid in the slightest degree. It is probably true that in the best quality of cream ripening acid should be produced, but its production is not the chief factor in butter flavor. The butter aroma which appears in the butter is the result of the ripening process. Sweet cream butter does not have this delicate flavor. During ripening certain changes take place in the cream, some of which we understand, and others which are at present beyond the reach of chemical knowledge. The composition of cream, except in the higher proportion of fat, is essentially the same as that of milk. It is made up chiefly of the butter fat in the form of globules of casein in partial suspension in the liquid, of milk sugar solution and of a small amount of albumen, probably in the form of a delicate network of fibres, which we call film.

By the time the cream has reached the cream jar it contains organisms varying widely with temperature and other conditions, and it is to these that the subsequent ripening is due. If kept at a moderately warm temperature, say 60 to 65 degrees, the bacteria grow rapidly, and during the 24 hours or so of ripening increases enormously, and at the end of the ripening period the number of organisms varies with the time of the year. In the winter the cold weather keeps the bacteria from growing rapidly, and the cream contains a smaller number of bacteria than in summer.

Oil Meal.

Farmers are sometimes disappointed in the results obtained in feeding oil meal to promote the growth of growing animals or to increase the flow of milk, as high class oil meal will do. The cause is the lack of the most important nutriment, protein, or else the meal has been adulterated. The Minnesota experiment station advises farmers in purchasing oil meal to give preference to the coarsest grades, rather than those ground so fine as to conceal the screenings used in adulteration. Flax screenings can be more readily detected in the coarsest grades. The odor when mixed with boiling water should be noted, and any distinct mustard odor may be taken as an indication of poor quality. A pound of oil cake should absorb at least a quart of warm water, adding the water a little at a time and stirring well. The larger the amount of water absorbed, as a rule, the greater per cent. of protein or muscle-producing, milk stimulating nutriment, and the more valuable the oil meal.

The real value of succulent food for swine can not be measured by simple gains in weights of pigs given such food. Undoubtedly where animals are confined to a pure grain diet the digestive tract is more torpid and sickness is more likely to occur than when succulent food is given. Then the digestive organs are more active and natural in movement and the body is better prepared to resist disease than when pure grain food is fed. The influence of this succulent food on sows in pig or sucking pigs cannot be measured by the scales but the general testimony of practical feeders of experience is that such diet promotes easy parturition, a generous milk flow and vigorous offspring.

Alfalfa Should Not Be Pastured.

On many of the ranches along the Sacramento river foxtail grass is ruining the alfalfa and making it unvaluable as feed and pasture. Stock will not eat this grass while the alfalfa is continuously cropped close to the ground and in course of time the foxtail chokes out the alfalfa entirely. When this grass is mixed with any other feed its herds work their way into the stock's eyes and glands and in many instances injures the stock permanently. It often blinds hogs.

It is generally argued that alfalfa should be mowed and fed to stock instead of pasturing it and the conditions above referred to prove the correction of this theory.—Sutter Farmer.

This is what the Sun has been preaching for years. Where there has been a good stand obtained, enough pains should be taken to keep the weeds and foxtail out. To do this no pasturing should be done, especially in the early part of the season when the weeds are growing. It is evident that if the stock eats the alfalfa and leaves the weeds the latter will get the advantage of the former. It will pay to cut the grass and feed it green if desired. It pays to exercise the intellect on any of the affairs of life.—Colusa Sun.

To kill lice on pigs use crude carbolic acid and lard, equal parts. Apply on the neck, around the ears, back of the fore legs, on the back part of the hams, in the flanks and on the back. Coal-oil and lard or coal oil and linseed oil equal parts is also effective. In addition to the application to the animal the sleeping quarters should be thoroughly sprinkled several times with coal oil or the crude carbolic acid and water. The lice will remain in the crevices of the pen and in the dust for several weeks.

QUINN'S OINTMENT FOR HORSES

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Sprains, Curls, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bol, brother of late Bol Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curls, Splints, Sprains or Bunches it has no equal.

JOTTINGS.

THE WINNER of the Merchants and Manufacturers stake this week at Detroit was bred at Palo Alto stock farm and sold as a two year old in 1899 at Cleveland for $900. The statement that Superintendent F. W. Covey made at the time she was put up was that he considered her "one of the best in the sale, that she was not only an exceptionally fine looking filly but gaited right to go fast," and she has more than fulfilled this brief description. In the catalogue of the sale her name was given as Elata, but we notice that it is spelled Eleata in the entry lists and the reports of the races in which she has started. By her heat in 2:08½ Eleata becomes the third 2:10 performer for Mr. A. B. Spreckels' stallion Dexter Prince. The fact that Eleata is owned by Senator Jones of the Maplewood Farm, New Hampshire, and was driven in this race by Tom Marsh, who drove the memorable race two years ago with Kingmond in the M. & M., in which he lost first money by trying for every heat, is a source of gratification to those who admire the pluck and honesty of both owner and driver. Eleata had started in but one race prior to her start at Detroit. It was at Dover, New Hampshire, on the 10th of this month where she met several high class horses in the 2:23 class for a purse of $500, and won in three straight heats in 2:16½, 2:13½ and 2:14. Eleata races in quarter boots forward, scalpers and shin boots behind, and is very clean and rapid in her gait. A tabulation of her pedigree for three crosses is as follows:

ELEATA	Dexter Prince.....	Kentucky Prince.....	Clark Chief
		Lady Dexter.....	Kentucky Queen
	Elden (3) 2:19½.....	Nephew.....	Hambletonian 10
			Clara
			Hambrino 2:21¼
		Eleanor.....	Trotting Sister
			Electioneer
			Sally Gardner

Dexter Prince, her sire, is one of the greatest speed producers that ever came to California, although many of his get are accused of being "rattle headed," and there is no doubt but there have been many bad actors among them. He had at the close of 1900 thirty-eight trotters and thirteen pacers in the standard list, and four of his sons and four of his daughters had produced standard speed. Of Dexter Prince's list of performers nine have records better than 2:15. He is a beautifully bred horse, his sire, Kentucky Prince, being the best of the sons of Clark Chief 89, one of the stoutest of the sons of Mambrino Chief. The dam of Dexter Prince, Lady Dexter, was a full sister to the famous Dexter 2:17½, the champion of his day, and also of Dictator, the founder of the great Dictator family which contains the names of such champions as Director 2:17, Direct 2:05½, Directum 2:05½, Directly 2:03½, Bonnie Direct 2:05½, Jay Eye See 2:06½, Nancy Hanks 2:04, Egozen 2:06½, and many others whose names I cannot recall at this writing.

So much for the sire of the M. & M. winner of 1901. On her dam's side the blood is fully as rich. Her dam was Elden, that took a trotting record of 2:19½ as a three year old. Elden was by Nephew, a horse that produced speed and stamina. The fastest of his get were Laurel 2:13½ and Beaury Mac 2:14½, both as game trotters as ever looked through a bridle. Nephew was by Hambrino 2:21½, a son of Edward Everett, he by Hambletonian 10. The second dam of Eleata was Eleanor, a mare that was bred on the "Stanford theory," being by the greatest of all trotting sires, Electioneer, out of Sally Gardner, a thoroughbred mare by Vandal, next dam by imported Mickey Free, and so on through nine or ten more thoroughbred mares recorded in the American Stud Book to imported Selima by the celebrated Godolphin Arabian. Eleata's blood lines are certainly rich and royal.

The mile trotted by the great chestnut gelding, Boralma, in the second heat of the 2:08 class at Detroit last Tuesday, when he made the circuit of the track in 2:07½, reducing his record three-fourths of a second, shows that he is an improved horse over his last year's form, and will arouse in the mind of every horseman in America a desire to be present at Lexington, in October, when this son of Boreal will meet The Abbot and Cresceus in a race for the championship. With these three trotting wonders in condition it will be a race worth crossing continents and oceans to see, and although The Abbot and Cresceus have respectively 4 and 3½ seconds the best of Boralma as far as speed shown up to date is considered, there are many horsemen who will pin their faith to Mr. Lawson's horse in this race. Boralma has done everything up to date that has been asked of him. He was unbeaten as a three year old and took a record at that age of 2:13.

They could not beat him the next year and he equalled the world's record of 2:08 for four year old trotters held by John Nolan. He is five years old now and undoubtedly a better horse than ever. His pedigree to the third generation is as follows:

BORALMA	Boreal 2:15¼.....	Bow Bells 2:19¼.....	Electioneer
		Rosie Morn.....	Beautiful Bells
	Earalma.....	Earl 2:33¼.....	Alcantara
			Noontide
			Princes
		Amal.....	Clay 2:25
			Alameda Maid 2:27½

There is considerable California blood in that pedigree, and the greatest broodmares in the world are represented. There are two crosses of Electioneer (through Bow Bells and Clay) and if carried out the pedigree would show the names of Green Mountain Maid, Beautiful Bells and Alma Mater, the greatest broodmares in the books. Alameda Maid 2:27½, the third dam, was bred by John Livingston of this city and sold by him to Senator Stanford. She was by Whipple's Hambletonian out of a mare called Mary Taylor that was by Biggart's Rattler out of the Taylor mare of unknown breeding. Like Eleata, the winner of the M. & M. Boralma has many crosses of the great Hambletonian 10.

Ever since the Breeders Association, in deference to the wishes of the district fair associations, abandoned the plan of giving its annual meeting in the fall and took the first week of the circuit, its entry list has naturally not been as large as it was previous to the change. In spite of the weather conditions prevailing in California, which permit training all the year round, many horses are raced each year that are not ready to start before the State Fair. I believe the Breeders would make their entry list much larger, keep at home many of the good green ones that now go East, and induce the training of many more horses here, if they would give a good sized early closing stake for trotters of the 2:25 class and one for pacers of the same class. These stakes should not be less than $2000 each, should close not later than February, with entrance due in several easy payments. Get a couple of such stakes established and it would not belong until buyers would be scouring the State looking for horses that had a chance to win them and an interest in the races would be aroused that would draw larger crowds to the meeting where they were decided than any other attraction would. I heard a follower of the Grand Circuit say last winter that the M. & M. and the Chamber of Commerce brought over ten thousand dollars in gate money to the Detroit meeting that it would not otherwise get. I suggest to the P. C. T. H. B. A. that it think this matter over between now and the first of January next.

Hats for Horses.

It is not uncommon to hear the Pan-American visitors to Buffalo dilate upon the beauty and progressiveness of Buffalo, but perhaps the thing which attracts more attention and genuine curiosity than any other is the new headgear of horses. Like the up-to-date woman, the horses have adopted the shirt-waist hat and appear equally as chic and as comfortable as does the woman with the same sensible headgear. The horses that are so fortunate as to possess such hats wear them with dignity and consciousness that is extremely amusing, their large, sympathetic eyes expressing more plainly than words the gratitude they feel to their humane masters.

The hats are made of a perforated straw with two holes through which the ears extend. The crown is conical in shape and the brim is wide enough to shade the eyes. The only trimming is a binding of turkey red on the brim and the earholes. The hat is held fast to the head with bonnet strings—a slight extravagance over the woman's shirt-waist hat—which are tied under the animal's chin. In the crown is placed a wet sponge that keeps the brain cool, and together with the perforations in the straw, prevents the presence of any dead air, or a hot, perspiring skin, which would be caused by keeping in the animal heat.

The innovation of hats for horses during the sultry season is an important step on the part of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This society has done much, not only in the interests of horses, but of other animals. The supply of hats has been exhausted and although the organization is receiving orders for large numbers every day, it has been unable to fill any orders for several days and does not expect to be able to do so for three or four days more. Several dealers in horse supplies have also been handling the now headgear, but they, too, are now waiting for the manufacturers to fill orders. The hats are very inexpensive, costing 35 cents.

The hat idea, however, is not entirely new. Farmers for years have used burdock leaves for this purpose and with good effect. Four or five burdock leaves are dipped into a spring of water, then two holes are made for the ears and the leaves without any additional trimmings are placed on the horses' heads, shading the eyes from the glare the sun's rays and the wet leaves keeping the head cool and comfortable.—Horse world.

Horse Notes From the Blue Grass.

[Kentucky Stock Farm.]

C. W. Williams shipped five carloads of horses from Lexington to Galesburg, Ill., last Wednesday. The lot included the five stallions, Allerton 2:09½, Expedition 2:15½, Infant 2:26½, St. Vincent 2:13½ and Belsire 2:21½. In all about eighty head were shipped. Williams will stand his great stallions near Lexington again next year, but after that he may make other arrangements. His five stallions have done a splendid business in the Blue Grass this year, and doubtless will do as well next season, as there has been a very general revival of the breeding industry throughout the country.

George A. Bain, Lexington's great horse auctioneer and a gentleman well known and popular with every trotting horse lover in America, has, in company with Virgil McClure, the Secretary of the Transylvania Printing Company, purchased of J. D. Armstrong the Elite Printing and Stationery establishment on Main street, in Lexington, and will take possession of the business about July 15th. The purchase will not interfere with Mr. Bain's business as an auctioneer, but he will always be found at the Elite when not engaged at sales.

Speaking of a handsome stallion, there are few better looking horses anywhere than Moko, and if the proverb, "pretty is as pretty does," be applied to him he is handsome to an impressive degree. He is beautifully bred, is fashioned on model lines, and is the sire of the double Futurity winner, Feren (3) 2:10½, and of Mobil (3) 2:16½. Moko is a grand individual, and no visitor to his stall has ever been heard to say that he was lacking in any of the particulars that go to make up beauty in a horse.

A Lexington turfman, just back from a visit to the Oakley track, says Benson's stable will be shipped to Glens Falls, N. Y., this week. The string is made up of ten horses, headed by The Roman 2:18½. He says the son of McKinney recently stepped a mile around 2:15, which is good evidence that he has his speed. Silver Wilkes 2:10½, Sybil S. 2:16½, Estrella 2:24½, Phoebe Childers 2:10½, Tom Tipton 2:15½, Walter K. 2:08, a green gelding by Silverthorne, a four year old mare by Wilton and the black gelding they call Sable Kid are in this string. Budd Doble goes with the stable to Glens Falls.

Charles Marvin will ship a string of seven horses to Cleveland next week. The stable includes Captor by Electric Bell, dam Eula Lee by General George H. Thomas; Furl (3), brown filly by Belsire, dam Miss Royster by Red Wilkes; Grace Eldred (2), bay filly by Cecilian, dam Eldred by Red Wilkes; Aylwin (3), bay colt by Electrite, dam Silver Bell by Simmons; Major, bay gelding by Dr. Hooker, dam by Red Wilkes; Chase and one or two others. Captor has been a mile in about 2:14, and is in fine condition. The others of the string are looking well and need only the finishing touches to fit them for racing. Marvin is a veteran reinsman, an ornament to the profession, and probably the greatest colt trainer in the world. His horses have been doing well for him this season, and the best wishes of everybody will accompany him through the circuit. The gelding Major is in fine condition and has shown a great deal of speed in his work. Grace Eldred is entered in the Futurity for two year olds, and is stepping satisfactorily.

Organizing Driving Clubs.

SAN JOSE, July 16.—Dr. D. E. Nash, Al Hanks, Chief of Police Kidward, Lou Sonniksen, George Y. Bollinger, Joe McKiernan, R. Messing, C. M. Barker "Tootsy" Hartman and others are agitating the question of organizing a gentlemen's driving club. Dr. Nash, by the way, has recently purchased a new roadster which he expects to drive beside his Red Wilkes trotter.

WHITTIER, July 15.—A gentlemen's club, under the name of the Whittier and Rivera Driving Club, has been organized here, holding its first meeting Saturday, at the old Pico house, when the following officers were elected: A. H. Dunlap, Jr., President; E. C. Coffman, Vice-President; H. H. Judson, Secretary; William Moss, Jr., Treasurer; J. H. Taylor, Marshal. At present the club numbers twenty-five members, all of them owners of good horses, who have felt the need of some place other than the public roads to speed their animals, and as a result they have leased a strip of land of Charles Prager and will put it in shape for a private speedway. The plan is for a road eighty feet wide, and nearly a mile long, with about two acres at the finish for spectators, and the road will be ready for the use of members by August 1st. The club is a purely amateur affair, no racing for money or betting being allowed and all expenses of the club are to be met by the monthly dues of the members. The following gentlemen compose the club at the present time, A. H. Dunlap, Jr.; Dr. T. B. Moorhead, W. W. Flanders, E. C. Coffman, J. W. Galbraith, Jr.; W. T. Dunlap, E. W. Johnson, W. H. Davis, Watt Tyler, William Moss, Jr.; J. T. Kirkwood, J. Alex Cate, F. A. Coffman, H. H. Judson, D. S. Reynolds, J. H. Taylor, W. A. Lont, Charles King, Os Burke, G. H. Murphy, W. H. Taylor, Guy Tyler, Ira Isbell.

California Horses at Davenport.

A very successful harness meeting was held during the week of July 8th, at Davenport, Iowa, at which some of the California horses which left here a few months ago were started. On the second day of the meeting C. E. Clark won the 2:40 class trot in straight heats with Sue, and the general comment of the horse-men who saw her race was that she could have beaten 2:10 in the race if necessary. Sue had won her race at Pekin the week previous in straight heats, all of them in 2:14 and a fraction and was therefore made favorite. There were seven other starters, and some good ones among them, but Sue outclassed them all. The purse was $800. The time of the three heats was 2:13½, 2:12½ and 2:14½. These are the fastest miles by a green trotter this year up to the date of this race. Sue was raced in California in 1899 by Mr. Clark, but did not win a heat. Her best race was her first, when she stayed through five heats of the race won by Sybil S. 2:16½. After that she was usually distanced or drawn after a heat or two had been trotted. She had great speed but was unsteady and it was predicted that a fast record would be within her reach whenever she steadied down. Sue is by Athadon 2:27 (son of Matedon 9392 and Athalie, dam of Athanio 2:10, Athavis 2:18½, Athadon 2:27 and Athalbo 2:29½) out of Gypsy by Scallion's Hambletonian.

On the third day of the Davenport meeting, Carmelita by Cornelius won the 2:13 pace in three straight heats after dropping the first to Kassell, a bay son of Dunton Wilkes. Det Bigelow's mare Tags got third money out of this race, her positions in the summary being 4-4-2-5. You Bet 2:12½ by McKinney also started, but failed to get inside the money. The time of the four heats was 2:13½, 2:10½, 2:12, 2:13½.

Every race on Thursday, the fourth day at Davenport, was won in straight heats. The gray mare, Frequent by Florida, won the 2:20 trot, reducing her record to 2:15½ in the first heat and trotting the other two but a quarter of a second slower. The 2:25 pace was won by Major Mason, a bay gelding by Onward. He turned the track the second heat in 2:13½ very handily. None of the California horses started in either of these races. There were three starters in the 2:11 trot—Alan, Stamboulette and Pero Belle. Alan won in straight heats, the fastest mile being the second, which was trotted in 2:12½. It was not much of a race, as the first heat was in 2:14 and the last in 2:17½.

Sensational pacing by the three great pacers, Little Boy, Major Muscovite and Riley B., was the feature of the fifth and last day of the Great Western Circuit races on the Davenport mile track. In the fourth heat of the 2:07 pace Little Boy began to act badly just after the word was given, and he did not reach the quarter post until 12 seconds after Riley B. and Major Muscovite had passed it going neck and neck. Then Little Boy settled down and Palmer drove to keep from getting the flag. Little Boy made the last half in 1:01 and came under the wire in a jog. The race was won by Little Boy, the best time being 2:07½. Riley B.'s sensational work was in the second heat, when Ervin made a drive that landed the black stallion in second place, pacing the last quarter in 29 seconds.

In the 2:30 trot, the bay horse Captain Bracken was the favorite, but B. O. Van Bokkelen drove the Hambletonian Wilkes gelding, Vic Schellar, to victory and gave the horse a mark of 2:18½ in the last heat. The first heat was won by Luzon in 2:21½, Vic Schellar finishing fourth. Van Bokkelen went to the front in the next heat, however, and won handily in 2:18½. He also won the third and fourth in 2:20½ and 2:18½.

The 2:14 trot was won by Ida Sultan after five heats had been trotted, the gray mare Bessie Gilbert winning the first two in 2:14½, three seconds faster time than any of the others were trotted.

The Weight Rule.

Some writers are advocating a change in the rule that requires a trotter or pacer to carry 150 pounds weight besides the harness and wagon or sulky. We believe that the best interest of the light harness industry will be served by keeping the rule as it now stands. One strong objection to requiring less weight is that it would have a tendency to encourage the production of a class of horses deficient in weight pulling capacity.

There is no doubt but that some horses perhaps most of them, could make faster time pulling an expert driver that weighs only one hundred pounds than they could with an equally skillful driver weighing 150 pounds, or the 100-pound driver with an additional weight of 50 pounds of lead or other material in the sulky, but is there any demand abroad for a trotter or pacer that can't win races pulling a light ball-bearing pneumatic-tired sulky with 150 pounds weight in it? Will gentlemen pay high prices for such horses for pleasure driving on the boulevard, and especially on hilly roads?

Another serious objection is that it would place a premium on light-weight drivers and place some of the best and most competent trainers and drivers at a disadvantage. The average weight of drivers is probably not less than 150 pounds, and some of the best of them exceed that. By requiring horses to pull at least 150 pounds weight exclusive of sulky or wagon and harness they are placed very nearly on an equality, or at least much more so than with less weight.

The object of the National Trotting Association is to improve the breed of horses, to encourage breeders to produce better animals. It seems to us that a rule requiring less weight would have a tendency to defeat this object. The ability to pull weight is a valuable quality, and one that breeders should not be encouraged to neglect.—American Horse Breeder.

News From the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit, July 12.]

The track record at Everett was lowered from 2:17 to 2:15½ by Pathmark.

W. W. Smith of Lafayette is doing a big stud business with his stallions Vinmont 2:21 and Malbrino.

Messrs. A. T. Van De Vanter and Jas. Erwin's stables will remain in training at Everett, Wash., for the present.

Saltese 2:29½, Santiam (p) 2:24½, Francisco (p) 2:25, all sired by Caution, went in the list at the Everett meeting.

John Green drove the pacing gelding Nabob by Hambletonian Mambrino in 2:25 at Tacoma last week, placing him in the list.

W. O. Trine's Oregon Bull won the 2:20 pace at Butte this week and took a record of 2:19. He is a new performer for Roy Wilkes.

Cris Simpson called at this office on his way home from the Everett meeting. He says they had a rousing big meeting. On the Fourth 8000 people turned out.

C. P. Webb sent his pacer Prince Tom 2:25½ to A. E. Heller's stable at the State Fair grounds, where he will receive the finishing touches for the season campaign.

Frank Barrows of Walla Walla has sent his three year old trotter Phal Norte by Del Norte to Sam Casto to be conditioned for the races. He is a very promising looking three year old.

Frank Frazier won the 2:22 pace at Butte last Saturday with his green pacer Hassalo, giving him a record of 2:19 and placing another new performer to the credit of his stallion Westfield.

F. W. Baltes has bought the pacing mare Alta Dell 2:16, and will drive her with his pacing gelding Altas 2:15½. They should make the nobbiest and fastest team on the coast, as they are both level-headed and good at the pole.

Cris Simpson has engaged Bob Breeze to handle his stable of harness horses for the season. Cris' time will be fully occupied with his wheat crop for the next two or three months. His horses will remain at Everett for the present.

J. B. Stetson passed through this week on his way to Salem. His stable contained Lady Alfred 2:19½, Major Rudd (s) 2:30, Lyla 2:27, and Altatiet. The last two are full sisters to Chehalis 2:04½, and, together with Lady Alfred, will be bred to Zombro 2:11.

Will Taylor has shipped the bay pacing mare Madeleine to Salem, where he will work her. She was recently sold by J. B. Stetson to Ed McLaughlin of Salt Lake City, Utah, and will be started in the slow classes this year, and should be quite a good mare, as she could beat 2:20 in her three year old form.

E. E. Staats has moved over to the State Fair grounds with his stable of harness horses. He has Isabel, a green trotter by Cœur d'Alene, out of an Altamont mare, and Delmont, a two year old pacer by Del Norte, out of an Altamont mare. The two year old is entered in the Breeders' stake and will start in the pacing division.

R. B. Rutherford has arrived at Salem from Walla Walla with three two year olds and a green trotter. Two of the two year olds are sired by Chehalis and are owned by Judge Brentz of Walla Walla, and the other is by Del Norte, owned by Mr. Rutherford. They are all entered in the two year old stake. The trotter, Lady Mack, belongs to H. A. Gardner and is entered in the $1000 stake at North Yakima for 2:30 trotters.

Tacoma gave a race meeting on July 4th, which drew out a very good crowd of people to witness some sharp contests. The first event was a half mile and repeat race between Billy Edwards and Sorrel Dick. Edwards won, time 0:55. The next event was a mixed race between the pacer Nabob and the trotter Ben Star. Nabob won, best time 2:25. The big event of the day was the special race between the noted veteran of the turf, Hamrock 2:17½, Estella (p) 2:17½, Combination George (p) 2:18. Combination George won in straight heats, Estella second. Best time, 2:18, which is considered very fast for the track. The last race was one-quarter mile dash between the pacers Maplemont and Sleepy Tom. Maplemont won in 0:37.

Races at Hilo.

A well-attended race meeting was held at Hoolulu Park, island of Hilo, H. I., on July 4th, 5th and 6th, this year. The Hawaiian Gazette says of the meeting: The sport was of an interesting nature and the majority of the events were well contested. The crowds on Friday and Saturday were naturally somewhat smaller than was the case on Thursday, but the racing was of better class and productive of several exciting finishes. On each day the band enlivened the proceedings. Several new track records were created, among them being the half mile :49½, by Molly Connors, and the mile 1:47½, by Dixie Land. Old Amarino took three purses, Billy McCloskey two, Violin two, Frank S. three and Dixie Land two. With few exceptions the horses ran true to form, the biggest surprise being the defeat of Billy McCloskey by Dixie Land, on the last day of the meeting. The Alexander Button mare Violin beat Wayboy in two races, the fastest time of any of the heats being 2:26½.

Chas. Dorby has a new 2:20 performer in the pacing mare Christabel that took a record in that notch at Butte the other day. Andy McDowell took this mare to Montana in 1896 when she was a three year old. Christabel's dam, Algetetta, is by Allandori, and is the dam of Sablo Stoinway 2:23½, Allandora 2:18½ and the three year old Thornway, owned by Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick of this city that James Thompson took East to race this year.

THE WOODLAND FAIR. Everybody has been talking about it for months, and now that the race program is out they will be getting their entries ready and making arrangements to be there when the races start. The Woodland fair is second only to the State Fair and not far behind that big exposition. One reason is that the Board of Directors of District No. 40 are all wide awake enterprising men and work like Trojans for the fair's success. Another is that the people of the entire district take a pride in the fair, contribute liberally to the fair fund and endorse the action of the Supervisors and city trustees in appropriating money to help it along. The Knockers Club always fails to get its work in at Woodland when the annual district fair is talked about. It is probable that the officials of the district board set such a hot pace at the start and keep driving so hard that the knockers get discouraged and don't go to the post at all. At any rate, everybody in Yolo county and Sacramento, too, seems to be pulling for the success of the Woodland fair this year and it's Kelly Briggs 2:10 to the ghost of an army mule that it will be the best ever held in the northern part of the State. By referring to our advertising columns the racing program will be found, and it will be seen that entries close July 29th, which is one week from next Monday, and one day prior to the opening of the Breeders meeting at Sacramento, so that if you enter at Woodland in the slowest class a record of two minutes made at Sacramento or Santa Rosa will not bar you from starting at Woodland. Look over the classes given and make your entry in time.

SANTA ROSA'S FAMOUS TRACK will again be the scene of a high class race meeting this year. The newly organized Santa Rosa Association of which Mr. P. H. Quinn is President and Thomas Bonner Secretary has announced a six day meeting for the week of August 12th and advertised ten good purses for harness horses. It is proposed to give two harness events and two or more running races each day. As every horseman knows, the Santa Rosa track is one of the best mile tracks in America, and horses go faster there than anywhere in the State. Santa Rosa is one of the most enterprising of California towns, while its climate is as near perfection as can be found. One week will intervene between the closing of the Breeders meeting at Sacramento and the opening day at Santa Rosa, and another will intervene between the closing of the Santa Rosa meeting and the opening of the Woodland meeting. Thus it will be seen that those who race at the Breeders meeting and do not enter at Santa Rosa will have a three weeks lay off during which time there will be no possible chance for them to earn a cent with their horses. Arrangements will be made for a special train to convey horses to Santa Rosa from Sacramento on Sunday, August 4th, the day following the Breeders meeting. Entries to the Santa Rosa harness events will close August 3d, which is the last day of the breeders meeting and as Woodland's entries close July 29th, the records made at Santa Rosa will not be bars to starting at Woodland. Santa Rosa has always been popular with the California horsemen. The new association there should have a big entry list and a liberal patronage to encourage it to give a meeting every year.

COL. J. C. KIRKPATRICK left this week for the East and will be absent four or five weeks during which time he will see some of the racing on the Grand Circuit. The Colonel will also gain a much needed rest from business affairs. He is about the busiest man in San Francisco, as in addition to managing the Palace Hotel and the Sharon estate, he is a member of the Harbor Commission, Yosemite Commission, a director of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association and member of the Pacific District Board of Appeals of the National Trotting Association. And he keeps his health by driving fast horses on the roads through the Park and on the beach every day. He is the owner of the three year old colt Thornway that James Thompson took East and is interested in the racing qualities of Goshen Jim 2:10. We hope that he may have a pleasant trip and escape any spells of hot weather that may be moving about the Eastern country.

CAPT. TOM MERRY of Los Angeles, a pioneer Californian, at one time editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, and one of the best posted and entertaining writers on the thoroughbred horse that ever picked up a pen, arrived in San Francisco this week with his estimable wife on his way to British Columbia, where the Captain will enjoy a couple of weeks trout fishing and then leave for Europe by way of New York. The Captain and Mrs. Merry will visit France, Ireland and England, and return to America in the fall, possibly passing the winter at Mobile, Alabama. During his trip the Captain will send to this journal a number of letters descriptive of what he sees, and his keen eyes miss very little that comes within their range, while his descriptive faculties are of a high order. His letters will be an attractive feature of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN's columns during the time he is in Europe and while sojourning in the South during the coming winter.

THE CONCORD FAIR will open September 25th, this year, and continue four days. Entries to its races will close September 20th, and the program has already been arranged and will be found among the advertisements in this paper. There are two purses of $300 each for pacers and trotters, the 2:25 class pacers, 2:30 and 2:40 class trotters being given $250 each. Other purses for harness horses range from $100 to $150. Runners are also provided for. The Concord fair is one of the best little country fairs held on the Pacific slope, is well managed and well attended. No better outing can be had than a visit to the annual fair at the little town of Concord in Contra Costa county next September. Write to Secretary A. B. McKenzie at Martinez for premium lists and entry blanks.

THE BREEDERS MEETING is sure to be a great success. The program for each day will be arranged in time for publication next week and it will be the best issued by the Association in years. Much interest is being manifested among horsemen all over the State and a very large attendance is expected. The Southern Pacific Railroad Company has granted a reduced rate during the last two days of the meeting of one fare and a third for the round trip on all roads leading to Sacramento. The races for members of the driving clubs of San Francisco and Sacramento have aroused a great deal of friendly rivalry and will be very hotly contested as the horses are well classified. The six $1000 purses will furnish enough sport in themselves for a five days program and there is not one but will result in a good betting race.

A HUNDRED HORSES AT AUCTION on Tuesday next, sale beginning at 10 A. M. sharp at the Occidental Horse Exchange, 721 Howard street. This lot of horses is a choice selection of a hundred head from those purchased by the German Government for artillery purposes. They weigh from 1000 to 1350 pounds and have passed the veterinarians. This is a good opportunity to get work horses at your own valuation.

Notes From Sacramento Track.

SACRAMENTO, July 17, 1901.

Everybody in this part of the State that knows a horse from a cow is talking about the approaching Breeders meeting and predicting its success.

Vet Tryon has ten horses in his string and some very promising green ones among them. Margaretta 2:15 by Direct worked a mile in 2:16 the other day.

Holmes is getting Pansy in shape for the road race and has a lot of green ones that are doing good work.

Ed Lafferty has a string of six. His handsome stallion Boydello trotted a mile in 2:15 the other day very nicely. He is entered in the 2:14 trot.

Al McDonald has a couple—one entered in the 2:20 class, the other entered in the 2:40 class; the last one has stepped a mile in 2:15.

Mr. Alex Brown, of Walnut Grove, has 6 horses. His trainer, C. A. Spencer, is going slow with them, but they will be heard from later—when they start.

Wheeler, of Chico, has Harry J., that worked 3 miles this morning, one as good as 2:16; he also has a pacer entered in the green class.

Brown from Red Bluff has three green ones—Banker's Daughter has paced 3 heats as good as 2:16. She is entered in green pacing purses. He also has Prince L., a trotter entered in green classes that is a good one.

Mr. Mulholland has Osito entered in the 2:14 trot. He worked in 2:16 easy. He has also the pacing mare Edna R. She worked a mile in 2:13. Another of his string is Peter Jackson, a trotter without a record.

Sam Hoy has five. Kelly Briggs worked a half in 1:04 easily and a green pacer of his by McKinney, entered in the green class, also worked a half in 1:04.

Hi Hogoboom has seven. Arthur W. 2:12, pacer, worked a half this morning in 1:06. Duke of Waldstein, a trotter owned by Mr. John Rupely, worked a half in 1:10, and Central Girl 2:22 by Nutwood Wilkes worked a mile in 2:20.

Geo. Buckman, a green trotter owned by James Faris, worked a half in 1:09.

Mr. Kelly, of Washington, has his mare Anzela 2:13 entered in the 2:14 class. I heard she worked in 2:13 lately.

Mr. O'Kane's horse Sandow by Dictatus worked a mile in 2:18.

Mr. Steve Trefry has two Directs—little fellows, but they can fly.

Mrs. Callendine's pacer Abdine 2:17, worked a mile in 2:20 easy this week.

Frank Wright's Baby Button, Payne's Peo and Frank Rubstaller's pacers are all doing well.

Mr. Brown, of Alameda, has just arrived with Doc Wilkes and two others.

Joe Smith, from Vallejo, is here with Gaff Topsail and several others.

Dora Doe's trainer, Mr. Mose Hart, has five or six he is going easy with. There are some good green ones among them. Dora Doe is being entered in the free for all races.

Steve Upson's pacer is doing well for a young horse and I think will make a mark.

Mr. Ward, of Alameda, has arrived with two three year olds that are both doing well.

Mr. Clark has just arrived with his horse by Stamboul. He just came to work him and not to race.

There is lots of speed at the track every morning and the Breeders meeting is bound to be a great success.

Mr. J. G. Cuicello names b g Puerto Rico by Sable Wilkes.
Mr. Neil Prendergast names b g Boliver.

Alameda Track Open to All on Sundays.

ALAMEDA, July 18, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—If you have the space to spare will you please state in the BREEDER that for the balance of the season the Alameda Speed track will be thrown open to the public on Sundays, free of charge. The only requirement will be that those using it conduct themselves in an orderly manner and observe the regular rules of a track, viz: Turn out to the left and speed only the right way of the track. Of course those who use the track on other days and for regular training purposes will be expected to pay and thus help keep the track in condition.

Yours very truly, A. O. Gott, Sec'y.

Opening of the Grand Circuit.

Never has there been a more auspicious opening of the Grand Circuit of harness racing than Monday last at the famous Point Grosse track at Detroit where the annual Blue Ribbon meeting is held. The weather was warm but almost perfect and a large attendance was there to see the contests.

The Chamber of Commerce Stake of $5000 for pacers of the 2:24 class was the principal feature of the day's sport, although each one of the four events was a high class race. Star Pugh, the chestnut gelding by Tom Pugh, was the favorite on the strength of his easy win at Windsor one week previous where he put in three heats in 2:12 and a fraction, and did it with such ease that 2:10 was predicted for him when he struck Detroit, a prediction which he fulfilled in this race. Dr. Boucher's good colt Harry Logan was played some, and considerable money was played on Plenty, the gelding by Superior owned at Sioux City, Iowa. Star Pugh won in straight heats, pacing the first in 2:09½ with Harry Logan a good second. The son of Miss Logan remained in second position during the race and was awarded second money which amounted to $1250 or $750 clear of entrance. There were eleven starters to face the flag and according to the summary telegraphed the California horses Rajah and Stanton Wilkes got no part of the money. The winner is by Tom Pugh 8007, a producing son of Red Wilkes and is out of a mare called Maggie Casey by Charles Casey.

The McKinney horse Dr. Book, that W. G. Durfee campaigned over east two years ago, driving him to a record of 2:13½, made a splendid showing in the 2:14 trot on the opening day, winning the first two heats and reducing his record to 2:12½, but the black mare Lady Thisbe by Milroi 20,585 out of Lady Wilton 2:11½ by Wilton, beat him the next three heats and forced him to take second money. Lady Thisbe took a record of 2:11 in this race. She was bred by the late Marcus Daly on his Bitter Root farm in Montana. The California mare Janice 2:13½ by William Harold was a starter in this race, but is given the last position in the summary.

The 2:20 trot for a purse of $1500 was best two heats in three. All Right a bay gelding by Enright, won the first heat in 2:12½ and Ida Highwood, the favorite, took the next two, her best time being 2:13½. Vic Schellar started in this race but finished fifth, just outside the money. Ida Highwood is a bay mare by Highwood, the sire of Caid 2:07½ and others, and her dam is by California, a son of Sultan out of old Minnehaha, the dam of Beautiful Bells.

James Butler's mare Hetty C. 2:05½, took the last race of the opening day right off the reel in two straight heats, pacing one of them in 2:05½, a wonder. fully fast mile for the first time out this year. She had Riley B. 2:06½, Edith W. 2:06½, Bonnie Direct 2:05½, Paul Revere 2:07½, Daniel 2:07½, Harry O., 2:06 and Eyelet 2:06½ behind her in that order.

There were ten thousand people on the second day of the meeting to see the Merchants & Manufacturers stake of $10,000 trotted. The Californians present were greatly pleased to see the Palo Alto bred four year old filly Eleata, by Dexter Prince, capture the first money in three straight heats, the last heat being in 2:08½, two full seconds faster than a heat had ever been trotted in this great annual event. Fifteen horses scored up for the word in the first heat with Neva Simmons at the pole. After considerable scoring the word was given and the Simmons mare went to the front, but broke before the first turn was reached and Eleata went to the front in the back stretch and held it to the wire trotting the mile in 2:12. Neva Simmons was second in this heat, trotting very fast after Price, her driver, got her squared away. In the second heat Eleata was first all the way although the chestnut gelding Country Jay by Jay Hawker, made a splendid showing and came very strong through the stretch. In the third heat Eleata showed still more speed and came under the wire in 2:08½, with driver Marsh looking back over his shoulder and shaking his head at the others. Of the stakes $2000 was held out for the consolation stake on Thursday and the remainder with the added money went as follows: Eleata $5650, Country J. $3250, Neva Simmons $1350. This is the first time since Emma Offutt's victory in 1896, that the M. & M. has been won in straight heats. The only California owned horse that started in the stake was Mr. A. L. Mulcahy's mare Algonetta by Eros and in the summary her place was eleventh.

The 2:16 class pace on the same day was won by Braden, a son of Brown Hal in straight heats in 2:10½ and 2:12.

But three horses started in the 2:08 class trot—Boralma, The Monk and Kingmond. Boralma won in two straight heats and in the second reduced his record three-fourths of a second, trotting the mile in 2:07½.

Wednesday was decidedly a California day at the Detroit track, three of four races being won by California horses, while Coney, the hopped pacer by McKinney, lowered his own and the track record to 2:02 in the free for all pace. The first race was the Russel House stakes of $2500 for the 2:17 class trotters. There were seven starters in this event including the Mambrino King horse Metallas that won at Windsor the week previous, beating Charlie Mac and other good ones and he was made favorite. He took the first heat in 2:12½, but young Durfee landed his big gelding Charlie Mac first under the wire in the next three heats, the fastest of which was 2:14½. Metallas took second money, Sybil H. second, Al K. third, while Belle Curry, Marique and Clara Kimball were classed as "also started."

Dan Patch, the son of Joe Patchen that paced to a record of 2:07½ at Windsor had an easy thing of it in the Wayne Hotel purse of $2500 for pacers of the 2:14 class, winning in straight heats, the fastest of which was 2:08. Captain Sphinx, Amorel, Fred the Kid and Lady All Right were the other starters and were placed in the order here given in the final summary.

Anaconda and Coney demonstrated the fact in the free for all pace in which Indiana 2:04½ and Connor 2:03½ were the other starters, that they are not only in better form this year than ever, but that their new trainers Jack Trout and Andy McDowell can handle them as well as anyone. Coney paced a wonderful mile for the first start of the year, making the mile in 2:02 flat, reducing his own and the track record. It was no disgrace for him to be beaten by Anaconda, one of the greatest race horse pacers that ever wore harness, especially as it was the fastest three heats ever paced in a race. Indiana had the pole in the first heat. The four horses were sent off to a perfect start. As they rounded the first turn Coney took the pole and led with Anaconda next. When they flashed by the quarter pole everyone realized that it was a fast quarter and enthusiastic cheers greeted the figures that were hung out by the timers—29½ seconds. With Coney still in the lead they passed the half mile post in 1 minute flat, the three-quarter pole in 1:31½, and Coney whizzed under the wire in 2:02 flat, winner by three lengths.

In the second heat Coney was favorite in the auction pools at $50 to $25 for the field. It was a fair start and Coney and Anaconda were in front, racing together at the quarter, which was done in 29 seconds flat. Just as the figures were hung out Coney broke and Anaconda shot ahead alone. With the others five lengths behind he paced the half in 59½ seconds, one of the best performances ever seen, and duplicated Coney's time to the three-quarters, 1:31½. The mile, however, was three-quarters of a second slower, 2:02½. Coney made up a great deal of the ground he had lost by his break, but was several lengths behind at the finish.

Anaconda won all the way in the last heat, and Connor was second, McDowell not driving Coney hard as he had second money won and saw he could not beat the Kangaroo horse.

Dolly Dillon, daughter of Sidney Dillon and Dolly by Electioneer, walked off with the 2:10 trot in straight heats, the fastest 2:11½. Satin Slippers 2:13, King Chimes 2:10½, Stamboulette 2:10½, Phoebe Childers 2:10½ and Annie Burns 2:10½ were the other starters in this race. According to the brief summary received by telegraph Stamboulette was fourth and thereby saved his entrance, while Phoebe Childers was fifth. Second money went to Satin Slippers and third to King Chimes. Every horseman in California is pleased over the showing made by Millard Sanders, the trainer and driver of Dolly Dillon, and hope to see him land her in front in many more races on the Grand Circuit and bring her back home this fall with a record below the 2:10 mark. She is a great little mare and Mr Sanders one of our best trainers.

There is evidently nothing the matter with Cresceus 2:04 this year, as on Thursday in the free for all trot, with Charley Herr 2:07, as his only competitor, the great son of Robert McGregor trotted the two heats of the race in 2:06½ and 2:05, the latter the fastest heat ever trotted in a race. We doubt if The Abbot or Boralma could have kept up with the champion stallion last Thursday had they started against him, and this mile in July in 2:05 is evidence that George Ketchum, owner and driver of Cresceus, made no idle boast when he predicted the other day a mark of 2:02 for his horse before the end of the racing season. Charlie Herr was in good condition and trotted in grand style but he was simply outclassed. Following is the time by quarters: First heat—0:30½, 1:02½, 1:35½, 2:06½. Second heat—0:34½, 1:02½, 1:35, 2:05.

The 2:27 trot took six heats to decide, Coxey, a bay gelding by Judge Cox, a grandson of Phallas, winning the last three, Springdale by Kingmaker, had taken the first in 2:16, and Meta Arthur by King Arthur the second and third in 2:14½ and 2:15. Coxey's best time was 2:16½. Van Bokkelen by hard work kept Vic Schellar close up every time and saved his entrance money. Seven other horses, all owned in the East, were starters.

Goshen Jim and Rey Direct were among the also started crowd at the close of the 2:09 pace which was won by Sphinx S. after seven heats had been paced. Sidney Pointer won the first heat in 2:07½, Argetta got the second in 2:08½. George took the third and fourth one of them in 2:08½, and Sphinx S. a grandson of Electioneer won the next three, his fastest heat 2:09½. The positions of the other starters at the end of the race were as follows: Carmine, Arbuteskan, White Hose, Goshen Jim, Rey Direct and Annie Thornton.

The Montana Meeting.

[Butte Inter-Mountain, July 15.]

There has been much said and written of the Montana Jockey Club and the race meet being conducted by it. Some of the comment has been favorable and more of it adverse and it is not amiss to say a little more and give credit where credit is due. The officials of the club have labored hard and assiduously and they have worked under many disadvantages, but notwithstanding it all, it can be said that the meet is a success, everything considered.

There was considerable dissatisfaction expressed by horse owners at the shaving of the purses, and there was more dissatisfaction among the talent at the slimness of the odds offered by the books. Then, too, there were frequent kicks and grumbings, about alleged questionable riding and form reversals, that looked palpable enough to have been brought about for an individual advantage. That is all a thing of the past now, and the jockey club to-day enters on the third week of its meet, with the knowledge that it has done its best to make sport good, has accomplished it and above all has satisfied its patrons that everything will be on the level and first class, if it is possible to make it so.

The horse owners are no longer dissatisfied and the talent feels that it is getting a run for the money invested. The bookmakers have loosened up and no one can, with reason, kick against the odds offered. The attention of the Jockey Club officials was called to the evident penuriousness of the books and the result is that the odds are now as liberal as could be wished for.

As far as in and out running is concerned, there is little to say, except that the judges have shown that they will not tolerate it. On more than one occasion, jockeys have been called into the stand and warned and the result is that no jock has repeated the offense against which he was admonished. All that is necessary is, for the judges to make it plain, that nonsense will not be tolerated and that crooked work will result in summary handling of the offenders and all will be well. The judges have made it plain that they will stand for no funny business and the result is that clean sport will be the order of the day.

Hanford Items.

HANFORD, July 17, 1901.

The directors of the Kings County Fair Association began work yesterday on the fair grounds and race track which are to be built one mile west of town. It is the intention of the association to be up to date and the fair will be second to none in any part of the State. The premium list covers all classes of live stock, poultry, grain, fruits, etc., and it is proposed to have a regular "down East pumpkin show," while arts and mechanical products will receive special attention, ranging from a silk gown to a calico dress and from a roll of butter to a loaf of "mother's bread."

The imported horse San Jacinto by Othello died at John Arnett's Stock Farm lately.

S. Eddy has a string of very promising green trotters and pacers at work and thinks he has another Goshen Jim among them.

Colonel C. K. Ragan is quite sick and has quit training for the present, although he has four fast green ones.

Ed Erlanger has another Toggles he thinks, which he is giving road work.

Frank Johnson, or "Pedigree" Johnson as he is often called, is training several runners here.

It looks as if all the stalls at the new track will be filled by the local horses, as they are being engaged before they are built.

HOOF BEATS.

On July 10th the Brighton stewards investigated Turner's ride of Wax Tapor July 9th, for which he was temporarily suspended. They found nothing criminal and removed Turner's suspension, but fined him $100 for carelessness in handling his mount.

William K. Vanderhilt has purchased from Julius Fleischmann the noted stallion Halma for $25,000, and will have him shipped to France in a short time, where he will be continued in the stud. It was recently reported that Halma had been sold to Jean De Reszke, the opera singer, and that he would be sent to Russia, but it now turns out that the sale was not consummated, though negotiations were under way for some time. Mr. Vanderhilt has also engaged Burt Knapp, the well known Western jockey, to ride for him in France during the balance of this season.

SULKY NOTES.

Sue 2:12½ by Atbadon.

Coney 2:02 by McKinney.

Stanton Wilkes 2:10½ by Nutwood Wilkes.

Eleata 2:08½, winner of the M. & M., by Dexter Prince.

Agitato 2:09 has been entered in the 2:09 class for pacers at Memphis, Tenn.

Harry Logan 2:12½, second money in Chamber of Commerce, by Harry Gear.

Vance Nuckols will handle C. A. Winslip's horses. Mr. Winslip has returned to California.

Sam Hoy has a green pacer by McKinney that is showing speed of a high order at Sacramento.

An offer of $10,000 was recently refused for the Buffalo stallion Metellas 2:12½ by Mambrino King.

The Breeders meeting at Sacramento will be the best barness meeting given at the capital in years.

It is said that the three year old Directum Miller, by Directum, has been a mile in 2:13½ for Roy Miller.

Last year 4933 horses were imported to Ghent, Belgium, 3303 of which were slaughtered for human food.

Thirteen California horses have been entered at Memphis and we hope the number will not prove unlucky.

One hundred head of trotting bred horses from the Hamlin's Village Farm will be sold at auction in Chicago this fall.

Yarrum 2:19½, who a year ago at this time was counted a good M. & M. horse, but went lame, is again on the shelf.

The Ann Arbor, Mich., meeting was not a success financially and the stockholders were called upon to make up a $500 deficit.

The three year old colt Silver Coin by Steinway, that paced to a record of 2:16½ at Denver, is the fastest three year old of the year up to date.

Superior is the first sire to secure two new 2:20 performers this year, Nancy M. 2:18½ and Plenty 2:17½ having given him this honor.

Herbert Gray, manager of the Lawson stable, predicts that Boralma 2:08 will trot three heats which will average faster than 2:06 before the end of the season.

Zephyr, the $9000 three year filly by Zombro 2:11 worked an easy mile in 2:25 at Cleveland the other day hitched to a cart. The last quarter was in 32 seconds.

Doc Tanner worked John A. McKerron below 2:2 for the first time this year on the 8th instant. The son of Nutwood Wilkes put in two miles in 2:19½ and 2:19.

The trotting track at Cleveland Park, Denver, will have a new coat of clay six inches in depth spread over its entire surface. The new management propose to make the Denver track one of the best appointed in the country.

According to a summary published in the last issue of the American Sportsman, a gray mare called Emily O., by McKinney, won third money in the 2:30 pace won at Tiffin, Ohio, by the Superior gelding Plenty in 2:15½, 2:12½ and 2:12½.

When Metallas, the bay stallion by Mambrino King, trotted the first heat of the 2:17 trot at Windsor in 2:13½, he only beat Charlie Mac a short head, and then the McKinney horse came back and made him trot the next heat in 2:12½ to win.

A purse of $500 was given for 2:11 trotters at Davenport, Iowa, week before last, the starters being Alan 2:12½, Pero Belle 2:12½ and Stamboulette 2:10½. Alan won in straight heats and Stamboulette was second. The fastest heat was 2:12½.

It is estimated that something like two thousand horses were killed or disabled by the heat in and about New York last week. Nearly every one must be replaced immediately, and dealers say the effect on the market is already noticeable.

C. A. Winslip has sold his old gelding Aster 2:12 by Dexter Prince to a Cleveland gentleman who will race him at the matinees in that city. He has disposed of Lady Waldstein 2:15 also and now has but two horses left of the consignment he took East.

S. K. Trefry and Geo. A. Kelly, who have been training their horses at Pleasanton, left there for Sacramento last week. Mr. Trefry has Direct C. and Fredillo C., and Mr. Kelly has Anzella 2:13½ by Antrim. All are entered at the Breeders' meeting.

The owners of the two good mares Trilby P., and Ima Electrico are still unsatisfied as to the speed of their respective good ones and have stuck up $500 a side to try final conclusions at Roswell park in Colorado Springs about September 10th.—Denver Field and Farm.

A vehicle wheel, supposed to be the oldest in existence, is to be seen at the rooms of the New York Historical Society. It was found in Egypt and is believed to have been made about four thousand years ago. Hub, spokes, felloes and all the essential features of the modern wheel are present in rudimentary form.

Hambletonian Wilkes has another 2:20 trotter. Vic Shellar trotted to a record of 2:18½ in the fourth heat of a race which he won at Davenport, Iowa, July 12th.

Excursion rates have been secured on all the lines running out of Sacramento for the week of the Breeders meeting. The round trip rates will be one fare and a third.

William G. Layng's pacer Sir Albert S. by Diablo, will probably be the favorite in the first race in which he starts. Jack Groom is showing two minute speed with him.

Joe Tbayer has given his Futurity candidate, Carrie Bel by Lynne Bel, slow work only since his arrival at Readville. The filly worked in 2:17½ before leaving Kentucky.

When The Charmer by Epaulet took a record of 2:27½ last week, he made the seventh of the get of Charm by Santa Claus, out of the sister to Trinket, to enter the list. Of these five are by Epaulet and four are in the 2:20 list.

The race won by Anaconda at Detroit last Wednesday in which Coney paced the first heat in 2:02 and Anaconda the next two in 2:02½ and 2:03½, is the fastest three heat race ever paced. Up to Wednesday the record had been held by Star Pointer who won a three heat race at Medford, Massachusetts, September 18, 1896, in 2:02½, 2:03½ and 2:03½.

A bay four year old filly by Dictatus 2:17 that has just been broken and drives nicely is for sale. Also a small black mare, two years old, by Director 2:17. Both these mares are well bred on the dam's side and the four year old is a splendid prospect for some one to buy and train. The price has been placed very low in order to make a quick sale. Inquire at this office for particulars.

Those $1000 purses to be decided at the Breeders meeting will result in great contests in several instances. One of the best posted horsemen in California who has seen many of the horses work says there will be more split heats this year than for some time past and that many hard fought races will be trotted and paced. The meeting will be worth attending from the first day until the last.

"Trotwood" says that the horse trainers in Tennessee generally get about $25 per month for working a horse, but that the leading trainers get more. There are some trainers in California who handle horses for that sum, but the more horses they have the deeper they run in debt. A man cannot work a horse for $25 a month and pay for sufficient feed for himself and the horse to say nothing of feeding the swipes.

Horses have to step fast nowadays to win small purses in slow classes. At Pekin, Ill., on the 2d inst., the time in the 2:35 pacing class, purse $500, was 2:20½, 2:12½, 2:19½. Four heats were contested in the 2:13 class over the same track and on the same day for a purse of $500. The time in each heat was 2:14½, 2:16½, 2:16½, 2:16½. The time in the fastest heat of the 2:13 class was 2½ seconds slower than that in the 2:25 class. The fastest heat in the 2:16 trot, same day and track, was 2:20, or 7½ seconds slower than the fastest heat in the 2:35 pace.

Ecstasy won the Minneapolis trotting derby last week, trotting the three miles in 7:17½, within a second and a quarter of the world's race record for the distance as made in the same stake six years ago by Fairywood. She is by Red Baron, dam Salome, by Bulletin.

The average received for the fifty head of trotting bred horses sold in this city July 11th by the Oakwood Park Stock Farm was $166.20 instead of $163.50, as stated in these columns last week. It was one of the best sales held in California in years, and not only pleasing to Mr. John F. Boyd, breeder of the horses, but also to the purchasers, who all are confident that they received full value for their money.

Zombro has been bred to more mares since he reached Oregon than he was bred to altogether during the first three years his owner had him in the stud. While, therefore, there are not many colts sired by him over three years of age, the quality seems extra good and are already making the horse a reputation. Walter Maben worked a three year old filly by Zombro a mile in 2:16½ at the trot in Los Angeles two weeks ago.

There is a two year old filly over in Illinois that is showing great speed at the pace. She started in a race for two year olds at Peoria, July 11th, and was asked to go three heats, something unusual for two year olds. She won so easily that the spectators said it was but a jog for her, and yet the time was 2:17½, 2:25½ and 2:21. Her name is Miss McClintock and her sire is Ashland Wilkes, sire of John R. Gentry 2:00½.

Geo. H. Ketcham desires to start Cresceus 2:04 in the amateur contest for the $1000 Boston cup over the Cleveland track. Under the conditions named by the Boston Club, Mr. Ketcham claims that Cresceus is eligible to start. Mr. Ketcham is a member of the Toledo Driving Club, and although he cannot be allowed to drive Cresceus in an amateur contest, he has selected a member of the Toledo Club, a real amateur, to drive in the event.

Geo. W. Bixby, a prominent hotel keeper and a well known horseman of Boston, died recently of heart disease at his home in Roxbury, Mass., aged 50 years. Many of the most prominent horses owned in Boston were the property of Mr. Bixby, or passed through his hands to Boston horsemen, and became well known on the track and road. Altogether he had owned at various times 50 horses with marks better than 2:28, 20 of them being better than 2:20, among the better known were: Adonis 2:11½, Tuna 2:12½, Artful Maid 2:13½, J. B. S. 2:16½, J. B. Richardson 2:16½, Allie Gee 2:16½ and Iona S. 2:17½.

Emma M. 2:12½, that will meet Lolita 2:12½ in a match race at the Cleveland Grand Circuit meeting, recently worked out in 2:11½ or 1½ seconds better than her record.

Howland Russell, of Boston, has wagered $1000 with George Van Dyke, of the same city, that his mare Mazette 2:07½ will win a faster heat this year than Frank Bogash 2:03½.

Wm. McFarland, the Philadelphia horseman, offers to bet that he has five two year olds which can beat any other five of the same age over any track in any part of the country.

Last Saturday afternoon, July 16th, lightning killed the famous stallion Mahogany 2:12½, at Goshen, N. J. He was owned by Guy Miller, Chester. A valuable colt by Electioneer was also killed.

While carriage builders generally are disposed to frown on the pneumatic tire and small wheel for road wagons, horsemen who drive trotters are almost unanimous in the opinion that for speeding purposes a pneumatic wagon is seconds faster than the old style high wheel vehicle.

At Windsor, on July 11th, when Billy H. beat Stanton Wilkes and a field of several other good ones, the Nutwood Wilkes gelding paced a remarkable race for a green horse. He paced the first heat in 2:10½, and was beaten a short nose by Billy H. in the next heat in 2:10½. It was the opinion of many that the driver of Billy H. laid up the first heat, as the horse showed the ability to pace better than 2:10 in a workout two days before the race.

Humboldt Maid started for the first time this year at Peoria, Ill., July 10th in the 2:14 trot. She was 2-4-3-2 and took third money. The best time made in the race was 2:16½. The judges fined Creasy, the driver of Huxam for interfering with Benson, driver of Humboldt Maid, and it is evident that the little daughter of Waldstein would have won one or more heats had there not been collusion to prevent her beating Gold Standard, the winner.

At Pekin, Ill., Will Durfee had the mare Queen R. entered in the 2:13 pace. In three of the five heats of the race Durfee had finished third with her and in the fourth heat she finished second, but kept breaking and acting badly, although the mile was as slow as 2:18. After the fourth heat Durfee complained to Secretary Jones that his mare was acting very badly, and in a joking way remarked, "I guess I'll let you drive her in the next heat." Jones was dressed in a Prince Albert and wore a silk tie, but he cheerfully accepted the banter, exchanged his high hat for Durfee's cap and drove Queen R. the fifth heat. He made a good drive but could not land her better than fourth.

The fast Colorado pacer, Winfield Stratton 2:15, has been leased by his owner, Walter Wood of Denver, to Boh Smith, a Pennsylvanian who has for some time been in Colorado for his health and likes harness horses. Mr. Smith will take the pacer, as well as the good trotting mare Vendora 2:18½, which he recently purchased from Kansas parties, on through the Great Western circuit. Mr. Smith, though an amateur, has been driving and training at the Overland Park course just enough for pleasure to develop into quite a clever reinsman, and will drive the horses himself in their future engagements. Both showed good enough during the Denver meeting to make them look like probable good winners.

S. R. Leach of Enid, O. T., has a horse with a history. It is a common cow pony, and Mr. Leach bought the animal 26 years ago, when it was six years old. The purchase was made in the southern part of New Mexico, the consideration being $3. The animal had been stolen, however, and the rightful owner appearing Mr. Leach settled with him for $5, making the total cost of the horse $8. Mr. Leach rode the animal to Cincinnati, and has used him for a saddle horse ever since. The horse has worn out a number of saddles, and only recently a new one was received, made especially for him. The horse is now 32 years old, and is still a pretty good saddle horse, and his owner would not part with him for any consideration.

C. A. Durfee had his eyes fixed on two green mares by McKinney that he considered good enough for Grand Circuit material and mentioned their names recently to a millionaire friend of his, who asked what they could be purchased for. "It will take big money," said Durfee, "up in the thousands." "Go and buy them," said the moneyed man, and Durfee with visions of first money in the M. & M., the Transylvania and other great stakes before him tried to get the owners of the mares to set a price on them, but the answers received were almost identical—the mares were not for sale. Durfee says that while he was greatly disappointed in failing to get these mares, his head swelled quite perceptibly when he realized that the McKinneys are getting so good that they are not for sale at any price, and that he will wear an india rubber hat from now on.

In J. P. Adams' collection of horseshoes at the Cleveland track are many interesting curios. There is one of the shoes worn by Star Pointer when he reduced his mark to two minutes at Hartford, Conn., August 31, 1899. Another was worn by Prince Alert when he paced a mile in 2:02 over the Cleveland track, establishing the track record for pacers. Then there is a Morocco donkey shoe loaned Mr. Adams by Mr. J. B. Perkins. A Spanish horseshoe also owned by Mr. Perkins is an odd looking affair. It is very heavy, with large square holes and large square-headed nails. The toe is turned up, giving a rocker-like appearance. An Arabian shoe, the property of Mr. H. M. Case, shows that the Arabians have not learned anything of the art of shoeing in the last 300 years, as it possesses huge bolt-like nails, and has a narrow closed heel, the toe and the heel tipping up. Altogether, Mr. Adams has about 300 shoes in his collection, no two of which are alike.

THE SADDLE.

The Horses.

Climb the ladder to the loft, lad and throw down plenty hay,
And pour into the mangers deep the golden ears of corn,
For Bill and Pete and Moll and Fehle have been tolling hard all day
Since first the early sunbeams kissed the blushing face of morn.
Their heaving flanks were white with foam, and thro' their nostrils wide
Their heated breath poured forth as steam in many a rushing tide

Dear Bill and Pete, dear Moll and Fehle! I wish that you could know
How well I love you in my heart and how it pains me so
To see you drag the heavy plow and weary thro' the mud,
To make for me the water ditch before another flood.
But all my farm is low and flat, and tho' the soil is rich,
I cannot make much corn for you unless you plow the ditch.

The day's been one of gloom and dark; just once I saw the sun.
It seemed the clouds would drop their flood before the ditch was done,
And once I thought to rest awhile beneath the dogwood tree,
But all its blooms were drooping low, and wet as they could be,
Along the branch the killdeer cried with many a hob and twist,
The old crow, hoarse with too much gah, went croaking thro' the mist.

And now, good lad, make their beds soft with plenty of that straw
The wind blows chilly thro' the barn, the air is damp and raw.
While all night long the whippoorwill from her green covert calls.
Content they'll munch their fragrant hay and rest in hedged stalls.
Come here, old Pete, and let me rub and hug your glossy neck,
As soft as velvet to the touch, without a stain or fleck.

Your glossy mane is fine as silk, your eyes a lovely blue;
And you're so gentle and so kind that I'm in love with you.
If horses have immortal souls—and they must have, I know—
Then when their work on earth is done, to Paradise will go.
I hope myself some time to reach that country bright and fair,
But heaven, I feel, won't be complete unless I find you there.
—Everett Maxwell in Oregon Statesman.

The Art of "Broncho Busting."

[H. A. C. in Breeders Gazette.]

The broncho is probably the most vicious of the equine race. He sprang from the Mexican mustang, and was bred largely in Texas for use on the cattle ranges. When the cattle business in the North grew to such enormous proportions, the broncho was driven thither in large herds and sold from $25 to $40 per head for cow ponies. Finally they were raised in the North, being used principally as saddle horses, but in many instances for general purposes. A pair of bronchos hitched to a light vehicle will easily make one hundred miles over the roads and trails of the Rocky Mountain region in a day. Gradually the broncho has been bred up with the American horse, which has increased his size and softened his temper. Still, the broncho is much in evidence yet all over the great cattle ranges, and the "broncho buster" is still a feature of Western life. Formerly the broncho was about the only horse seen on the round-up, but now he is one of two classes in use in that field of action. "Circle work"—that is, the work of gathering the cattle in—is now performed with a larger saddle horse than the broncho, the latter being used as "cut-out" horses. The "cut-out" is the selecting and separating of certain animals from the general herd, for branding purposes or for beef, and for this purpose the broncho is preferred on account of its greater nimbleness.

Every cowboy who follows the round-up must of necessity be more or less of a "broncho buster," for when the round-up starts out, each cowboy is given from eight to eighteen head of bronchos to ride the range with. Some of them are bound to be badly broken, while others are chronic degenerates, and will buck whenever inclination moves them. So the cowboy, if he has any "sand," takes his bunch of bronchos as he finds them, and in turn rides them one and all, even though he is obliged to try conclusions with more than one of them. But, again, there is the professional "broncho buster," who makes a regular business of it. He may be employed on a single ranch where a large number of bronchos are either in use or bred for sale. Here he is paid about $15 per month. Or he may be an itinerant "buster," traveling from place to place breaking bronchos at so much per head, or so much for the bunch. These men naturally become very expert, and fear nothing in the shape of a horse. Some of the most daring broncho busters have been colored men. There was Broncho Jim, who used to operate in Colorado and Wyoming. For a dollar, and a few drinks of whiskey, he would mount the wildest broncho without saddle or bridle and always come out victor. He simply "froze" to the animal until the latter had to give up from sheer exhaustion. A favorite trick of his was to mount the crosspiece of an old-fashioned farm gate, and then, as a herd of bronchos were driven through the gate, drop upon the back of the first animal he had a mind to choose. Of course, the animal would be maddened by fright, which, coupled with its natural viciousness, would cause it to make a frantic effort to rid itself of its rider. It might be a headlong bolt out upon the plains, or it might be a double and twisted exhibition of bucking, but not an inch would the plucky negro budge.

In breaking a broncho the first thing to do is to cut him out of the herd, lasso, throw and rope him. Then he is saddled and bridled. As his captors loosen the ropes, the "broncho buster" bestrides the saddle and is lifted as the animal rises to its feet. Then the fun begins. Besides bucking, the vicious brute bites, strikes and kicks, shaking his head furiously. His ducking is a variety performance in itself. He bucks idly, forwards, backwards and perpendicularly. In the last-named performance, he gathers his four feet into as narrow a compass as possible, humps up his back, lowers his head and lifts himself heavenward. This is all well enough. It is when he returns to earth that the damage is likely to be done; for he comes in such violent collision with the mundane sphere that the shock is very liable to displace the vital parts of his rider. The latter simply raises himself in his stirrups and saves himself by the elastic action of the knees. But many a one has been caught unawares and had the daylight jarred out of him. There was Joe Sullivan, one of the early Wyoming cowboys, as plucky a man as ever lived, and an Indian fighter and an all around plainsman, who would never give in to the worst broncho you ever saw. They got hold of the meanest broncho on record. Nobody could handle him, until one day Joe took the job, and then it was a fight to the death. For fully an hour man and beast were in deadly conflict, but the man did not give up until the beast was dead, and then his comrades knew by the look on the man's face that it was an even thing. They sent for the post surgeon down at Fort Laramie, but Joe was dead before the man of science arrived. Internal hemorrhage had intervened, and there was no more broncho-busting for Joe.

The broncho buster is always armed with a pair of heavy spurs and a "quirt." The latter is a short whip with a heavy handle. With both heels he plies the spurs to the animal's flanks until the blood comes, and belabors him over the head, neck and sides with the "quirt." He always pulls hard on the bridle reins in order to keep the horse's head up, for the animal can buck much harder if he can get his head down between his front feet. If there is any brush or timber nearby, the broncho always makes a break for it in order to rid himself of his tenacious burden by rubbing him off against a tree or an over-arching limb. Then the broncho buster is obliged to lay himself as near the pony's back or side as he can get in order not to be brained against a limb or crushed against the trunk of some tree. Then the broncho has a trick of rearing up on his hind feet and falling over backward on top of his rider. Then the rider's only safety is in slipping from the saddle and landing on his feet before the horse reaches the ground. Then the broncho has another trick of suddenly laying down and attempting to roll over upon and thus crush his rider; but the expert broncho buster merely slips around on the upper side of the animal and comes down on top. Then the broncho is no sooner upon his feet again than the rider is in the saddle and ready for business.

One of the most important things in broncho busting is to get a good "cinch" on the saddle. The "cinch" would be known in common parlance as a belly girth. But the cowboy on the pony has two "cinches"—the body "cinch" and the belly "cinch." Each consists of a band fully six inches in width, composed of leather, and strands of hempen cord. Back and front the "cinches" are drawn as tightly as a strong man can pull them by bracing his foot against the animal's side and pulling with all his might. At each pull the broncho lays back his ears, and the air is very likely to be presently full of flying heels. The Mexican bit, with a high port and a tremendous leverage, is commonly used in busting bronchos, and if the animal in hand is inclined to be unruly pressure is brought to bear upon the bit until blood flows copiously from his mouth.

One flash of lightning cost John E. Madden, the horseman, $10,000 July 13th. It struck his barn, near the Sheephead Bay track, where Moondyne, the bay yearling colt by Hamburg-imp. Mintcake, was quartered and killed him instantly. Moondyne was the "star" yearling of the late Marcus Daly's sale at Madison Square Garden in May. He was eagerly sought by several horsemen, but Madden outbid them all and secured him for $10,000. Miles Finlan, the owner of Lucky Star, a wealthy mine owner and an old friend of Marcus Daly, bid against Madden for Moondyne. He started him at $2500 and contested Madden's $500 raises until $9500 was reached. When $10,000 was bid Mr. Finlan took his hat off to Madden and retired. At the sale it was rumored that W. C. Whitney was to be a half owner of Moondyne, but Madden denied this and paid for the colt with his own check. Moondyne was a typical Hamburg in miniature. He looked like his sire and had his conformation. It was too early in the season to ask any fast trials of him, but he gave every indication of fast speed, and Madden intended to enter him heavily in all the valuable stakes.

Six furlongs—Monda won, Yule second, Distance third. Time 1:15.
Five furlongs—Barney F. won, Amaza second, Abba L. third. Time 1:02.

Saddle Notes.

Several owners of jumping horses that are over East at the present time, have made inquiry of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN as to whether the California Jockey Club will give any purses for jumpers at its meeting next winter. While nothing definite has been announced yet, it is very probable that the C. J. C. will keep to its rule of refusing to make any provision for this class of horses.

Earl Linnell, the well known horseman of this State, is now at Chicago with a string of six horses in training. In his stable are the two well known horses Olinthus and Negligence owned by J. J. Moore, and he is also training the horses Viking, Alaska, McCaffrey and What'er Lou, belonging to A. M. Linnell & Co. He states in a recent letter that all the horses are doing well except Olinthus, who pulled up very lame recently, but that up to that time the son of Red Iron and Lilly Wright could give any jumper in Chicago 20 pounds and a beating.

Methods for Catching Big Trout.

Lake fishing is treated by H. P. Wells in his Fly-Rods and Fly-Tackle in the following manner whilst describing his experience on the royal Maine trout waters:

During the first of a companionship, in which some of the happiest moments of my life have since been passed, I was fishing in the Rangeley lakes under the tutelage of that well known guide, John S. Danforth. I asked him: "John, who catches the most big fish of any of the sportsmen who come here?" He replied that a Mr. S— of Boston was the most successful in that respect. I asked him how he handled his flies, and made him show me, rod in hand. But a single fly was used, and that large—one tied on a No. 2 Harrison Sproat hook is none too big. The fly was cast fair and straight, allowed to sink six inches or even a foot where it fell, then it was moved very slowly three or four feet, then followed quite a pause, when it was again put in motion, drawn slowly to within convenient distance for the back cast, and taken quietly and smoothly from the water. The main points were to keep the fly below rather than on the surface, and to move it slowly. Better fortune at once attended the adoption of this system, especially in the size of the fish taken.

Those having the best opportunities of observation think that in that region the large fish are not surface feeders, at least on insects. Of course, every one has seen them, when in the twilight the lakes are unruffled by a breeze, and the slightest dimple of the mirror-like water is conspicuous—everyone has then seen large trout dash from underneath through a school of minnows playing on the surface. For large trout to roll up during the month of September is also of frequent occurrence. But I believe no one has yet fathomed the cause of this. The most careful observations fail to show that any food is then taken; and, as I have said before, it is by some regarded as an unfavorable indication, as far as successful fishing is concerned. But I have no recollection, in ten quite protracted fishing excursions to those waters, ever having seen a trout of over two pounds take a natural fly at all, nor have I ever seen a trout of over four pounds ever take the artificial fly, or even a bait on the surface of the water. It may happen, but it is certainly by no means common. Small fish up to two, or even two and a half pounds, may readily be enticed to take a fly manipulated in the usual manner; but if the larger fish are desired, and a surfeit of the smaller are soon had, a large fly must be used, and it must be moved slowly, and somewhat below the surface, the deeper the better.

Locate your boat first, if you fish from a boat, as is there usual, passing over barren water if possible, and as slowly and noiselessly as though paddling up on a deer; or, if your stand is ashore, take your stand. Then allow some minutes to elapse that any alarm occasioned by your approach may subside, after which begin. Start at about thirty or thirty-five feet, and cast around your position, directing the fly at each cast about six feet to one side of where it last fell, and so cover the water like the rays of a fan. When one circuit has been completed without a rise, lengthen out about six feet, and, beginning at the same starting point, repeat. Continue this until you have all the line out you can cast perfectly straight every time, and do not go a single foot beyond.

Should, however, a distant rise be seen, yet within reach, go for it, but in the following manner: Lengthen the line in the usual way, but without allowing the fly to touch the water. When enough line to reach is out let the fly settle, and, elevating the point of the rod well, reel slowly in. To retrieve the line by the back cast will be impossible, if the fly is left long enough in the water to tempt the fish. I repeat, in this fishing more than any other, it is indispensable to success that the line fall absolutely straight. The fish will not hook itself, nor will it afford time to gather slack line before it rejects the fly.

Nor should discouragement follow because success is deferred. In the month of September, as far as I have been able to observe, these large trout are in almost constant motion, slowly cruising about some fixed locality which they have selected for their spawning bed. For an hour or more not a single fish may be within reach, yet the next ten minutes a dozen may have approached.

After having been in position for an hour or so, if in a boat and moderate quiet has been preserved—that is, if there has been no concussion upon its sides or bottom—reel in short and try close to the boat, particularly on the shady side. Here let your fly sink pretty well, and draw it slowly to the surface, for the fish love the shade and are apt to settle there.

The foregoing is the only method by which I have ever known a fish of over four pounds' weight to be taken with the fly. Occasionally one may rise at and take a fly on the surface, but I have never known or even heard of such a case. I have heard not infrequently of such rising to the fly of an angler who habitually fished by drawing his flies over the water in the usual manner; but on investigation it has invariably appeared that the rise took place after he had become discouraged, or when his attention was elsewhere, and that at the time his flies were lying idle and were submerged.

I strongly prefer one fly for this fishing to a larger number. When first struck these large fish seem utterly uncontrollable by any tackle such as anglers use. Not that they move so rapidly, for their motions are even then, when life itself is at stake, rather deliberate; but there is a power in them that seems irresistible. If any obstruction is near, how heartily does the angler then wish he was rid of that second fly. Besides, these large flies are difficult to retrieve, if they are allowed to sink as they should; and if the resistance of a second is added to that of the first, the range of the cast is considerably diminished. Still there are times when a second fly does good service. It is not uncommon to take a smaller fish on one fly, and for him to tow the other through the water, and thus tempt and actually fasten a much larger fish. It is not very sportsmanlike, but when large trout are known to be within sight of the fly, and they stubbornly refuse to be tempted, this has been tried with success.

What flies take best in those waters? There is a wide divergence of opinion as to this; still I will give my own for what it is worth.

My first favorite is the "Parnacheene Belle." Perhaps I am too partial to this fly, since it is, in a measure, my own child. John and I seldom fish between half-past eleven and four o'clock. That interval is passed prowling about the woods, or shooting at a mark with a rifle, or in some other similar way. Often the fly-tying box is produced, and the word is, "Well, John, what shall we tease them with this afternoon?" Thus, on joint suggestion, very many difficult combinations have been tried, and so over twenty years ago was the "Parnacheene Belle" born. It was a success, and since then I have used it four-fifths of the time when fishing the headwaters of the Androscoggin river. The body is lemon yellow mohair, wrapped with silver tinsel; tail two to four strands of white and scarlet; hackle white and scarlet (I have sometimes wound both hackles on at the same time, and sometimes the white first and the scarlet afterward, and over the white, capping it as it were; the latter is the better); wings white, striped with scarlet, the white decidedly predominating.

Place the whole catalogue of known flies on the one hand, and this single fly on the other, and force me to choose and confine myself to that choice, and for fishing in those waters, I would choose the "Parnacheene Belle" every time. I have tried it in sunshine and rain, at noonday and in the gloaming, and at all times it has proved successful.

June and September are the best months for fly-fishing, the large fish being taken at other times only by deep trolling, or still-fishing with bait in deep water. Fly-fishing is not commonly practiced in June, but judging from a single experience in 1883, I think this a mistake.

Stow Lake Fly-Casting.

The fly-casting at Stow lake last Saturday and Sunday was of an excellent order of skill. In fact, in one event Sunday, the record made by C. R. Kenniff—a new member and faithful and industrious worker—is the best score ever made at the club contests here, and is but a little behind the best Eastern showing. The work in long distance casting on Sunday is also worthy of attention. The cast of Mr. Golcher, 132 feet, is but eighteen inches behind the champion record of Walter D. Mansfield. Messrs. Brotherton, Everett, Davenport, Grant and Boswell Kenniff all scored their best casts for the season on Sunday. Taken as a whole the work for both days is of a high order, the delicacy records for Saturday being particularly good. The records are given in detail below.

Doings in Dogdom.

We know of some excellent Emin Pasha puppies that can be bought by anyone desirous of having a high bred Greyhound.

A bench show will be held in Los Angeles under the auspices of District Agricultural Association No. 6. the dates for the fair and race meeting are from September 28th to October 12th, thirteen days. D. J. Sinclair has been employed to manage the bench exhibit.

The Pug dog has an interesting origin. He was at first imported from China and Japan, and came into fashion in the reign of William III. It is stated that the King believed his life to have been saved by a dog of the breed awakening him to his danger when a murderous attack was about to be made on the Prince.

The California Cocker Club held a meeting on the evening of July 5th, W. C. Ralston presiding. Much important club business was transacted. The club will possibly undertake to arrange a system of tracing members' dogs when lost. The club will hereafter have a time limit for new members joining just prior to a bench show. The Executive Committee will specify and report upon the eligibility of new members in competition for club prizes. The club has placed itself on record as in favor of Chas. H. Mason for judge of Cockers at the Oakland show. As local judges only will be selected a preference for F. E. Miller and H. H. Carlton is expressed.

A press colleague, over a show lunch, told us a good tale of a show of other days, says The Stock-Keeper. He was invited to judge, and upon reaching the town-let he was met at the station by a member of the committee, who took possession of him, conducted him to a hotel, and there locked him up in a room with the other judge. This precaution, we learned, was taken to prevent exhibitors from approaching the judges and endeavoring to suborn them. After being incarcerated like a troublesome jury the judges were marshalled into a procession composed of the executive, and preceded by the village band, they all marched to the show ground. By the side of our judge walked the member of the committee who had been acting as his jailer, and who now profited by the opportunity to slip into the hand of the judge the number of his (the jailer's) own exhibit. Our friend was so struck with the compromising innocence of the act that he purposely forgot the hint when the dog appeared before him.

Without doubt the British Bulldog is having a great time just now, says The Field, and never in the whole course of his career has he been so popular and so numerous in his various forms. He is not quite the one-sided animal he was in earlier days; the Boston

Terrier, an American product, if not a Bulldog, is nearly so, and we have the so-called Toy Bulldog. An endeavor is being made to keep the French Bulldog distinct from him, and there is, of course, our notable national dog, which two or three years ago seemed to be degenerating into an imbecile nondescript with legs and muscles so inordinately weak as to be unable to support the carcass and the head, which had been produced to the extreme of exaggeration. Certain members of the British Bulldog Club, and one or two critical admirers of the dog as he ought to be, bear the credit of smothering most of the cripplings; we regret we cannot say all of them. However, things Bulldog way are better than they were, but it is not likely the establishment of a club for French Bulldogs in contradistinction to that for Toy Bulldogs will be of any benefit, especially as the first named as a sine qua non persists in the doctrine of erect ears, and erect ears only. No well-regulated Bulldog ought to have these stiff, upright aural appendages, but to put an animal out of court altogether for a certain point of this kind is where fanciers overreach themselves and make such a greivous error. A good and perfect animal ought to be so all round, without any one feature exaggerated at the expense of another. Malformed heads and chests and shoulders nearly killed the Bulldog, and now we have admirers of the same race making a crusade against what are called "button ears." Why a Bulldog has not as much right to have a "button" or drop ear as a Fox Terrier no one can understand.

His Majesty King Edward VII has consented to continue to be a patron of the International Kennel Club.

The Heart of the Woods.

I hear it beat in morning still
When April skies have lost their gloom,
And through the woods there runs a thrill
That wakes arbutus into bloom.

I bear it throbbing in sprouting May—
A muffled murmur on the breeze,
Like mellow thunder leagues away,
Or booming voice of distant seas.

In daisied June I catch its roll,
Pulsing through the leafy shade;
And faint I am to reach its goal,
And see the drummer unafraid.

Or when the autumn leaves are shed,
And frosts attend the fading year,
Like secret mine sprung by my tread
A covey bursts from hiding near.

I feel its pulse 'mid winter snows,
And feel my own with added force,
When red-ruff drops his cautious pose,
And forward takes his humming course.

The startled hircs shake their curls,
A withered leaf leaps in the breeze;
Some hidden mortar speaks, and huris
Its feathered missile through the trees.

Compact of life, of fervent wing,
A dynamo of feathered power,
Thy drum is music in the spring,
Thy flight is music every hour.

—John Burroughs in the Atlantic Monthly.

Cartridge and Shell.

The California valley quail are fairly plentiful in certain districts of New Zealand where they have been liberated.

Reports from Marin county are to the effect that quail are more numerous this season, particularly on the preserved grounds, than they have been for years past. The young chicks are well grown and so tame that they have been caught by hand at times. The old birds are also very tame; they have been seen to invade camps, hop on the tables and pick up bread crumbs, etc.

As the open season for deer approaches the temptation to violate the law, by being a few days "previous" in procuring venison, is more than some people can withstand. There seems to be now a general alertness in many counties by the officials and sportsmen for the purpose of apprehending "sooners." Mendocino county has enjoyed the reputation for some seasons past of jealously protecting her game and fish interests in close time. On Tuesday last W. N. Dutton was arrested for killing deer and fined $40 next day. E. Brown and L. Lenbe were also arrested and convicted for the same offense and fined $25 each at Ukiah.

At the Traps.

The Olympic Gun Club regular monthly shoot at blue rocks will be held to-morrow at Ingleside. The club match at 25 targets and three 15 bird races, added money, are on the program. A 100 bird race for the Bekeart perpetual challenge cup will take place between A. J. Webb, the present holder of the cup, and Otto Feudner. This race is the result of a challenge made by Feudner last Sunday.

The monthly shoot of the Empire Gun Club, held at Alameda Point Sunday, was only fairly well attended, many of the members are now away on vacations. The day was a perfect one and many good scores were made in the different events. A. J. Webb was high for the day in the club championship race with a clean score of 25 breaks to his credit. For the state championship "Yellowstone" trophy Debenham and Hauer divided honors with 21 breaks each. The best scores for the Schumacher handicap trophy were likewise made by Debenham and Hauer, who scored 18 breaks each.

Club diamond medal championship race, 25 targets—Webb 25, Webb (back score) 21, Ireland 21, Baird 19, Reed 19, Swales 19, Hauer 18, Debenham 18, Searls 18, Fish 16, Cullen 15, Allen 14.

The scores in this event also classified in the Mooney Match and the shoot off for the club's monthly purse of $15 which resulted as follows: Webb and Ireland being tie for the first money, $6 divided. The remaining classes shot for the balance of the purse at 25 birds (15 singles and 5 pair doubles), distance handicap. Second class: Swales, 13 yards, broke 21; Hauer, 20-39; Searls, 18-16; Reed, 18-15; Debenham, 20-14; Baird, 18-8. Swales being high in this class won the money,

$4.50. Third class: Allen, 18 yards, broke 17; Fish, 18-15; Cullen, 18-14. Allen won the money, $3.

State championship "Yellowstone" trophy, 25 birds—Hauer 21, Hauer (back score) 20, Debenham 21, Debenham (back score) 19, Fish 16, Fish (back score) 17, Reed 16.

Schumacher handicap trophy, 20 birds shot to 10 singles and 5 pair doubles, distance handicap—Swales, 18 yards, broke 17; Debenham, 18-18; Haver, 20-16; Allen, 18-12; Searls, 18-15; Fish, 18-13.

Several 10 bird events showed the following scores—Swales 10, 5, 7, 6, 7; Webb 9, 7, 9; Fish 4, 5, 4, 8; Reed 5, 7, 7; Debenham 6, 7; Ireland 7, 6, 7; Baird 8, 9, 6; Cullen 8, 6, 6; Allen 8, 4; Searls 6, 6, 7, 8; Hauer 8, 6, 6.

The San Francisco Gun Club blue rock shoot last Sunday was interesting to trap shooters, being the occasion of the initial shoot for the Phil. P. Bekeart perpetual challenge cup. Seven men entered. A. J. Webb won the race with the excellent score of 94 out of 100 targets. He also won 50% of the purse, M. O. Feudner won 30%, Ed Schultz and W. J. Golcher divided 20% of the money. The purse was increased with the addition of $10 by Mr. Bekeart. The winner was challenged by Otto Feudner on the conclusion of the match. The high score in the club race was made by Edgar L. Forster, who broke 25 straight. The scores made during the day follow:

A lively bunch of birds last Sunday made trap shooting agreeable for the Olympic Gun Club members. In the club race "Slade" shot a clean score in high class style, good centers and a quick second on dangerous pigeons showed "Slade" to be in splendid shooting form. Otto Feudner and Geo. H. T. Jackson also made straight strings. Shaw had the bad luck to lose two strong birds, loaded up with shot, which dropped dead out. In the club race "Slade" and Feudner divided the side purse, two moneys, high guns. Jackson and Shaw won the eight bird purse. In a seven bird sweepstakes Donohoe, Haight and Jackson divided. Golcher and Jackson won the money for high guns in the ten bird pool. Jackson and Donohoe divided in the concluding race for the day at six birds. The scores made were as follows:

The Sacramento Tournament.

The Northern California bluecock tournament on the Kimball & Upson grounds at Sacramento on Saturday and Sunday last was attended by 63 shooters on the first day and 79 on Sunday. In many events the 17 men were not in the money. The high average of the first day was made by J. B. McCutchan, breaking 133 out of a possible 140. Johnson of Chico won the Ruhstaller Gilt Edge trophy for high average on Sunday, scoring 116 out of 120 (96%). The Chico team retained the Northern California champion team trophy.

The winners in the different events are given below. The conditions and the program of events for each day were given in full in our issue of July 6th:

SATURDAY.

Event No. 1—McCutchan, McElwain, Vetter, 20 each; divided first money, $15. Zentgraf, Peterson, Hotchkiss, Rust, Peck, Kindburg, Newbert, Melor, Herold, 19 each, divided second money, $10. Gusto, Hoxie, Hughes, E. L. Feudner, H. L. Stevens, Epperson, Ruhstaller, Weldon, Brock, Eckhardt, 18 each, divided third money, $5.

Event No. 2—Jones and Johnson, 20 each; divided first money, $23. Buergi, Scatina, Peterson, Newbert, Melor, Palm, Herold, 19 each; divided second money, $13.80. Gusto and Stevens divided third money, with 18 each, $9.20.

Extra event—McCutchan, Peterson and Palm divided first, with 20 each, $20.50. Hoxie, Scatina, Feudner, McElwain, Apperson, Black and Johnson, with 19 each, divided second money, $12.30. Buergi, Hughes, Burston, Rust, Weldon, Newbert, Vetter, Wilson, Thomason and Melor, with 18 each, divided third money, $8.20.

Event No. 3—McCutchan and Thomason, with 20 each, divided first money, $25. Gusto, Gould, Peterson, Jones, McElwain, Rust, Weldon, Newbert, Vetter, Eckhardt, Johnson and Brooks divided second money, $15, with a score of 19. Buergi, Zentgraf, Scatina, Black, Barnham and Frazee divided $5, with 17 each.

Merchandise shoot—McCutchan won first in class 1, Weldon, Peterson and Salisbury were 1, 2, 3 in class 2; Hotchkiss and Rust were the winners in class 3; Eckhardt and Brooks in class 4; Buergi and Just in class 5; Herold and Eckhardt in class 6, Brock and Palm in class 7; Gould in class 8, and H. Williams in class 9.

Extra event—Newbert won first, with 20, $10.50; Buergi and Black second, with 19 each, divided $6.30; Eckhardt, Brock, Hotchkiss and McCutchan with 18 each, divided $4.20.

Extra event—Gusto and Black, with 20 each, divided first money, $8.50; McCutchan and Gould, 19 each, divided second money, $6.10; Hotchkiss, Garnett and Eckhardt divided third money, $3.40, with 18 each.

SUNDAY.

First event—Black, Jones, Vetter, Johnson, Lange and Maxwell divided first money, $25; Newbert, Peterson, Palm, Milor, Brooks, Lowry, Tooley, Hughes and De Shiels, with 19 each, divided second money, $15. Kindberg, E. L. Feudner, O. Stevens, Zentgraf, Rohwer, Just and Eckhardt, with 18 each, divided third money, $10.

Second event—Newbert, Peterson, Zentgraf, Palm, Thomason, Tooley, Just and H. L. Stevens, with 19 each, divided first money, $40; Black, Jones, Gould, Johnson, Brooks, Burston, Barnham and Eckhardt, with 18 each, divided second money, $25; Ruhstaller, Kindberg, McElwain, Gusto, Vetter, O. Stevens, Buergi, Hotchkiss, Lange, Rohwer and Epperson, with 17 each, divided third money, $15.

Third event—Johnson and Hotchkiss, with 20 each, divided first money, $40; Kindberg, McElwain, G. Feudner, O. The Woodsman's Wild Garden.

Some interesting suggestions and sensible remarks regarding a subject that is of much importance to campers and hunting parties is given in the following article by Mr. J. Buckham, which appeared in the American Field:

The greatest need of the nomadic woodsman is what we comprehensively call "garden stuff." Of meat he generally has a plenty, and is only too apt to make that practically his sole article of diet. The natural craving of the stomach for vegetable food, especially fresh green vegetables, is habitually ignored by hunters and trappers who penetrate far into the wilderness, and the result is that the system gets clogged with the waste of animal matter. The kidneys and bladder are irritated by excess of phosphorous, the blood is overheated, and constipation, with its invariable accessory of rheumatism, becomes the familiar ailment of the woodsman.

All this is the result, I believe, not so much of necessity as of ignorance. It is by no means impossible, as the woodsman commonly believes, to obtain fresh vegetable food, even in the remotest fastnesses of the wilderness. Indeed, the woods and ponds and streams are an inexhaustible wild garden, well stocked save in the dead of winter with native vegetables whose edible qualities need only to be understood by the camper in order to furnish him with a most wholesome and delightful addition to his meager bill of fare.

I am surprised that this fact seems so little known even by skilled and veteran woodsmen. Having camped with some of the best guides and sportsmen, I have invariably found that their knowledge of the edible plants of the woods was just about as extensive as a cat's knowledge of astronomy. The botany of their own domain is thus a terra incognita to them. And this seems all the stranger when we consider how intimately and thoroughly the trained woodsman understands everything else about him—everything that can minister to his comfort, health, profit or sport. He can tell you enough about birds and beasts, signs and seasons, to make an encyclopedia; but he will sit down to a meal of everlasting pork, venison and trout, and simply sigh for the tang of some green vegetable to "take the lump out of his stomach"—simply sigh for it, I say, when by going six rods from camp with a little elementary knowledge of his resources he might have his heart's (and stomach's) desire.

From May until December no woodsman who will take the trouble to study or learn from another's experience a little of the botany of the woods need go without a sufficient supply of vegetables from his wide-stretching wild garden. Or perhaps if he will only watch the deer and bear for awhile, instead of shooting them on sight, he will learn, as the newspapers say, "something to his advantage."

There are times when it seems to the meat-clogged hunter and fisherman as if he would give half his kingdom for a mouthful of some tart or peppery or bitter vegetable, to cleanse and purge his alimentary canal and get the leaden feeling out of his stomach. At such times, instead of sighing for the vegetable pots of civilization, let him devote half an hour to gathering a bunch of the roots of the toothwort or crinkled root, which may be eaten, like radishes, dipped in salt, and will lend a delicious savor to a meal of meat and bread. Another pungent root or tuber growing plentifully in the woods is the ground nut or dwarf ginseng. You can find it in almost any moist clearing, though you must dig deep for the small round tuber that tastes so grateful to the meat-jaded palate.

I hesitate to speak of mushrooms as an article of woodland diet, because, plentiful as they are about old stumps, logs, etc., a special knowledge of them is necessary to guard against confusing them with poison toadstools, which they so closely resemble. But if some member of the party only possessed this knowledge, what a feast might be enjoyed far from the luxuries of civilization!

The woodsman's wild garden, however, grows many varieties of wholesome and delicious "greens," which, in the spring, any camper may easily recognize and have for the picking. Along the brookside in how many old beaver meadows have I crushed while trout fishing the luscious leaves and stalks of marsh marigolds or cowslips! None in the river meadows of the settlement grows finer than this unmarketed vegetable of the wildwoods. And how these cowslip greens refresh the whole system, when boiled in the camp pot and served with a dash of vinegar, salt and pepper! Every camper should take a small jug of vinegar with him into the woods, "just for greens," as the boys say.

Then there is that other wholesome and delicious pot herb of the woods called familiarly cow cabbage (botanically Hydrophyllum virginicum). This has not so wide a range as the marsh marigold, but in localities where it is found it grows abundantly, and has the advantage of leafing out earlier than cowslips, and remaining tender and edible for a longer period. Trilliums also make excellent greens, and as the camper will find them growing late into June, in the open woods, he can prolong with them his pot herb diet until the very height of the trout season.

The wild parsnip, found growing along water edges in May and June, is fully as palatable as the cultivated variety, and is an excellent appetizer when fried or browned in the camp spider. The Indian cucumber root, which any field botanist can unearth for you in the fall, is not much behind the garden cucumber in succulence and flavor. The Indians used it for a relish and the woodsman will find it a welcome addition to his bill of fare. Serve with vinegar, pepper and salt.

The roots of the yellow pond lily, chopped fine and fried, have a very pleasant taste, and make a wholesome and readily accessible vegetable food in the woods. Wild radish; if you know it and can find it, is a really crisp and pungent relish, with much the same taste as the garden radish, which was derived from it.

Almost every boy should remember the watercresses he used to gather in the cool brooks about his native town. The camper will find it in the quieter reaches of mountain streams, and under the banks of mountain lakes. In the latter, too, he will find the wild celery, of which ducks are so fond, and which is grateful also to a discriminating human palate. How nicely either the cress or the wild celery spices the guide's biscuits and the flaky pink flesh of mountain trout! Wild mustard and horseradish, too, will put a keen edge on a dulled appetite, if you cannot find watercress.

THE FARM.

The Work the Hogs Do in the Feed Lot.

It is my custom to grow two small lots of hogs each year, 30 to 40 in a bunch. The spring farrowing I want to sell for market by the time the fall farrowing is a month or six weeks old; the fall farrowing to go out to market in the spring without being fed on grass. Last winter 34 head had the run of a ten-acre clover sod field. They did more rooting than is usually done by the hogs wintered this way. They had salt and ashes constantly before them, but were not fed very much mill feed. When fed liberally of the latter, and the former always before them, they do not root constantly as they do when they have only corn as their grain ration. Probably the only advantage to be credited to their rooting in this case, writes John M. Jamison in the National Stockman, was the worms destroyed, cut worms and others that would have fed to some extent on the corn. The land required more work to get it in order for corn than other fields that the hogs did not run over. This bunch of hogs I wanted to sell without having them go out of pasture. But before going I wanted them to work up the coarse manure in the lots where I fattened lambs. Lambs, when fed fodder, break it up less than any other farm stock to which it is fed. To fork this over and tear it to pieces so that it will rot quickly and be easily handled with the fork in loading and unloading the wagons is hard work. The lambs in waste from their corn troughs left considerable shelled corn in this accumulation of corn stalks from day to day.

The hogs when turned in the lots worked very steadily, turning over the stalks for corn scattered through them. I did not compel them to depend entirely on what they found here for their feed, but fed them ear corn and a small feed of middlings and clover chaff that had been soaked over night. They appeared to thrive first rate on this kind of treatment. The hardest manure we have to handle on the farm is that made in the sheep shed where they are fed clover hay and corn, being bedded occasionally with clover or wheat straw. It is packed so tight that we have found it easier to remove when cut in blocks with the axe. To avoid this cutting and to fine the manure so that it could be scattered I tried the hogs for turning and tearing it to pieces, and found that they could do better work than I could get done in any other way.

The amount of waste shelled corn scattered through the manure was sufficient to keep them at work until the manure was all torn to pieces and put in shape to be easily forked to and from the wagon.

I do not think the hogs were any the worse for this exercise that saved so much hard work. Last year I tried scattering some shelled corn in the bedding, intending to scatter the manure in blocks as cut from the stable and have the hogs tear it to pieces hunting for the corn it contained and finish the work of scattering while getting the last grain of corn, but I found this was not as satisfactory as to have them do the rooting before it was taken out of the shed.

R. A. Pearson of the Dairy Division of the Department of Agriculture, just returned from a three-months' tour in Cuba and Porto Rico, says there is a large demand there for dairy products, especially cheese, which is now supplied by Holland, Denmark, Italy and Switzerland, but might just as well be supplied by American dairymen.

When a paring or butcher knife becomes loosened from the handle, take out the knife, fill the cavity two-thirds full of mixed resin and brickdust, heat the shank very hot and press it in quickly; when cold the whole will be firm and solid.

Managing Hogs for the Market.

For myself I would prefer the Poland-China, as we want a good, large frame when we commence breeding, writes O. W. B. in Indiana Farmer. Also find that they make the largest hog at the earliest age. No farmer can make hog raising profitable if he keeps his hogs 12 to 15 months. He can have them large enough for the market in six to eight months. To do this keep the sows that are good breeders, and above all a good, strong male hog, as all are aware of the fact that the male counts half in breeding. Keep the sows in a healthy condition, and in some field where they can have plenty of exercise and running water. I give slops of soft food in connection with corn. So many say they cannot make hog raising profitable, but I find that if handled right they are the feeders that make the bank account for the farmer. They need good attention and plenty of feed; also good, warm feeding in the winter season.

I would prefer my sows to farrow in March, and again in September. The spring pigs soon begin to eat grass and clover in connection with their slop and a mixture of shorts which I find make a fine feed for them. And my pigs farrowed in September get a good start for winter. My sows are also in a good condition for winter. Just how to feed and when to sell is the most important of all. I do most of my feeding in the spring and in summer do not try to fatten hogs on dry corn alone. I find that plenty of clover or grass is necessary to have in connection with corn; also all waste from our kitchen, with a mixture of shorts and bran. This keeps hogs healthy and hearty. In fall and winter feeding if possible secure some soft food for your hogs.

In selling I manage if possible to sell when I have a sure profit. We sometimes hold our hogs too long, when we could have sold and realized a good profit.

Hay and Straw Blend.

More than twenty-five years ago we gathered from the Mark Lane Express the fact that in England they always stacked straw with layers of freshly cut grass well salted. The grass need not lie in the field at all, for the straw will take the moisture out of it and will not heat or mould. We advocated trying this year in and year out. Hon. John Boggs tried it, and practiced it when he had the alfalfa ready when the straw was being stacked, and it was a perfect success. It brings the straw up to first class hay. All the aroma and strength of the hay that evaporates in curing is taken up by the straw. Farmers who have alfalfa to cut after harvest should make a practice to make layers of say four feet deep of straw and two feet deep of fresh cut alfalfa, and throw on salt very liberally.—Colusa Sun.

Reports from Arizona are to the effect that more than one large cattle company has gone out of the business because it cost too much to protect stock against rustlers, and if not protected the loss was too great to admit of any profit being made. The Aztec Cattle Company, for instance, had by its book account some 35,000 to 40,000 head, but when it rounded up its cattle but 16,000 were obtained. These were promptly sold and leases of lands and water-rights transferred.

A dairyman in Marin county a short time since sold three of his cows because he did not think they gave enough milk for the amount of food they ate. He says his profits the following month were larger than they were the month previous to the sale. Many dairymen have cows in their herds which are unprofitable and they could easily find it out were they to keep a record of each individual.

If sheep are not constantly in a good condition, the quality of the wool is affected to a more or less extent.

Value of Regular Milking.

The practical value of regularity in milking has long been recognized, but few dairymen observe it strictly to the letter every day in the season.

Some years ago a series of tests showed me that cows milked at irregular intervals although twice within the twenty-four hours, shrank in yield on an average to each animal of half a pound daily, or three and a half pounds during the period of a week. During this time other cows in the herd milked with the utmost regularity as to hour, morning and night, maintained an even flow without shrinkage.

Not caring to render the first number wholly unprofitable, a return to regular milking was made at the end of a week, but even with this it took three weeks' subsequent time before they regained the original yielding status.

On even so-called dairy farms this subject is not given the importance that it merits, as witness, how oversleeping in the morning, or prolonged evening labor in the field, are made to infringe on the milking hour.

Bear this in mind that if you milk cows at all, no other work on the farm that you are called to do is more important than this self-same milking.

If you stay an hour late in the evening in the field to finish planting a crop of potatoes while your herd of cows stands at the pasture gate waiting to be milked what have you gained?

The few extra rows of potatoes would grow as readily if planted the next morning, while what you have lost in milk yield may not be gained in many days of renewed vigilance.

On this subject a cow is wiser than some of her masters. Milk her at a certain hour a few days, and while she carries no watch, animal intelligence guides her unerringly at the self-same hour to the accustomed milking place.

You see, the average cow is anxious to be a good, faithful and profitable servant to her owner, but he often opposes this endeavor by his own carelessness or stubborn ignorance.

In the flush of feed of summer it is sometimes expedient to let only ten or eleven hours intervene between the morning's and the evening's milking, while thirteen or fourteen hours might separate the night's from the morning's lacteal extraction.

The reason for this is obvious, as the milch animal feeding more industriously during the day, secretes more milk in her udder by evening than through a corresponding time in the night, thus demanding earlier relief from her load.

In every event see that your cows are fed at a regular hour from day to day and you will have mastered one of the secrets (?) of profitable dairying.—Dr. George E. Newell, Buena Vista, Col.

Col. W. R. Nelson, proprietor of the Kansas City Star, who is building up a fine herd of Shorthorn cattle, has tendered the management of the National Show to be held at Kansas City this fall a prize for the best bull and five of his get; the bull not to be considered in the contest but to be shown with his progeny. The latter need not necessarily be owned by the exhibitor. The prize is to go to the exhibitor of the bull. This presents an interesting proposition to cattle breeders.

Number of Times to Feed.

The number of feeds which an animal receives daily and the hours at which the feed is administered is more or less a matter of custom or habit. We observe the same thing in regard to the human family. Our German friends, for example, deem it best to partake of food five times a day, while the Americans usually follow the rule of three meals a day. All of us have met individuals who eat but twice daily, but are healthy and vigorous, and believe more frequent eating would be injurious rather than beneficial to themselves. The old saying that "there is no accounting for tastes" holds in relation to the times food is taken as well as to many other matters in life. Fattening cattle will make satisfactory gains if given a full grain allowance once daily, with roughage in the feed rack to be consumed at will. The dairy cow is a hard worked animal, and twice daily she returns to her owner the milk which she has produced in the wonderful transmutation from coarse provender to a wholly digestible substance. Under this heavy drain it seems reasonable to allow her grain twice a day, with coarse forage supplied not less frequently. The writer doubts the wisdom, however, of feeding a dairy cow first a little of this and then a little of that from time to time, as practiced by some dairymen who are anxious to procure the best possible returns, thinking they will gain by these never-ending attentions. The horse has a relatively small stomach and should receive food not less frequently than twice daily, morning and evening, and probably it would be better to allow him a little grain at noon if he is hard worked and can be allowed a little time for midday rest. Idle horses need not receive their limited grain allowance more than twice daily, in addition to a liberal supply of roughage.—W. A. Henry in Breeders' Gazette.

LEG AND BODY WASH

Tuttle's Elixir.

Apply to the legs and put on light bandages. Sponge the body and put on light blanket. Guaranteed to produce desired results or money back.

Reading Trotting Park, Mass., March 23, 1900.
Dr. S. A. Tuttle, V. S.
Dear Sir: I have used your Elixir for the past ten years, in the diluted form for a leg and body wash. I consider it the best wash for keeping horses from soreing up. Horses done up with this wash are much less liable to take cold than when done up with witch hazel or any other wash I ever used.

JOTTINGS.

THE CALIFORNIA CIRCUIT will open at Sacramento next Tuesday with the five days meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. Seldom has as good a program been offered for an opening day. There are two purses of $1000 each, down for decision, either one of which should furnish sport worth going a long way to see. The 2:40 class trot has twelve entries and there will probably be at least eight horses score up for the word and perhaps ten will be ready to face the starter. Among those that have been showing speed sufficient to have them spoken of as probable winners are C. F. Bunch's entry Nora McKinney, Walter Maben's Doctor Mac, A. G. Gurnett's gray gelding What Is It by Direct out of the dam of Who Is It, Albert Joseph's chestnut mare Floradora by Sable Steinway, Dr. F. Oglesby's Almonada by Eros, and P. H. Quinn's Black Bart by Robin. I do not expect from the best information of these horses I can get, to see many heats below 2:18, but I think the race will be trotted around that mark, perhaps a couple of heats a shade faster and I also expect to see split heats. If any horse trots in 2:15 or better, I look to see him win in straight heats. The 2:25 pace is about the best matched lot of green ones that have started in the slow pace here for years. Among those that have shown race horse speed are Enoch by Sidmore, Bankers Daughter by Arthur Wilkes, Direct C., by Direct, Sandowdy Dictatus, Sir Albert S. by Diablo, Montanic by Chehalis, Rita H. by McKinney and Advertiser by Advertiser. All these have worked miles around 2:15 and the heats will be paced in that time or better in all probability. It is the fellow that can go three heats in that time that can win in my opinion. No better looking lot of trotters and pacers ever lined up for the word in California than the horses that will start in these two races on Tuesday, and the person that can pick the winner will be able to carry home quite a pocket full of money if he is willing to back his choice. There will be good odds to be had on every horse that starts.

On the last day of the Windsor meeting there were five starters in the 2:18 pace, one of them being the California Cicero, James Thompson, with the three year old pacer Thornway by Steinway. Fleety was the favorite and won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:13 or better, but the first heat was won by the mare Manzanilla in the slow time of 2:19½. It was so evident that the other four horses were pulled to permit Manzanilla to win that the judges fined their drivers $25 each. Thompson's speech in his effort to escape the fine was probably the oratorical effort of his life, but it had no effect. The fine went.

The suggestion is hereby respectfully made to the officials of the district fair associations of California that more attention be paid this year to the comfort of those who pay at the gate to see the races. Dust is one of the greatest annoyances at California race tracks owing to the fact that from May to November but very little if any rain falls, and summer showers are unknown. While it is not within the power of district boards to produce rain, they can cause a great deal of the dust to be effectually laid with the aid of sprinkling wagons. Money spent in this way is about the best advertising a board of directors can do, and will do much to increase the attendance. The managers of the running tracks here and in the East understand this and by laying out lawns, planting trees and shrubbery and beautifying the grounds in every possible manner, add to the enjoyment of a day spent at the track and by keeping down the dust enable the ladies and their escorts to appear in attractive dress without the danger of ruining their clothes. By a generous sprinkling of the roads leading to the tracks and also that portion of the infield where the rigs of those who drive out are permitted to stand, the dust nuisance can be materially assuaged, and if the sprinkling could be extended to all portions of the grounds used by the crowd, the race tracks would be much more popular than they are now. It is almost out of the question to have lawns of blue grass of any extent at the California country tracks as the expense for water would be too great, but I offer the suggestion that lawns of alfalfa could be laid down that would not only solve the problem of dust during a meeting, but be a source of profit during the remainder of the year. The district association that can provide a clean grand stand and a course comparatively free from dust during a meeting, will have hit upon a plan that will bring in more dollars at the gate than they now think possible to secure.

A report comes from Cleveland that The Abbot 2:04 and Lord Derby 2:07 are both sick and that neither can take his regular work. They are said to be suffering from the disease which has afflicted so many horses in the East and West this year and which resembles the epizootic. It would be a national calamity for the champion trotter and Lord Derby, a horse that has shown championship form, to be kept from the tracks this year by sickness. Should The Abbot fail to meet Cresceus in the races already scheduled it would be a great disappointment to the entire trotting world. It is to be hoped that the illness of these two great horses is but slight and that they will speedily recover and be in perfect condition to meet their engagements.

If the 2:25 pace, which is practically a race for green horses, were to be held on the Grand Circuit this year with the same starters that will take the word at Sacramento next Tuesday, there would be a hundred thousand dollars in the pool box before it was over. I do not believe there is a horseman in California who has seen any of the horses that are entered taking their work but expects it to be one of the greatest races ever seen in the State. Last week an item in this paper stated that William G. Layng's pacer Sir Albert S. would probably be favorite. Since that just five trainers who have entries in the race have stated that they know they can beat Mr. Layng's horse and will buy all the tickets against him that they can possibly dig up the money to pay for. A visitor to the Sacramento track told me yesterday that he had seen enough to convince him that there were at least a half dozen horses among those entered that will take a record of 2:15 unless the horse that beats them makes faster time. He said he saw four of them pace miles from 2:11 to 2:14 last week, another that went the last half in 1:03 and still another that came a last quarter in 29½ seconds. Now that is grand circuit speed, and where a half dozen are showing such form, it will only need a few men with money to back their opinions, to make the best betting races seen in California for years. There were horses in the Chamber of Commerce at Detroit this year that could not win any part of the money in the 2:25 pace at Sacramento next Tuesday that were played for thousands. Of course Sacramento is not Detroit, but if there is such a revival of the interest in harness racing as is expected, pools will be bid on in a lively manner when the 2:40 trot and the 2:25 pace are called next Tuesday and there will be four or five "favorites" in each.

American Trotter the Best.

[N. Y. Sun, July 20.]

A short time before the breaking out of the trouble with China three agents of the Japanese Government came to this city to buy American trotting mares and stallions for the purpose of improving the native breed of horses. They were B. Hirosawa, a special representative of the Imperial Government; N. Kunogi, director of the State stallion depot at Miyagi, and K. Tange, director of the State stallion depot at Iwate. A number of breeding establishments were visited, but before any purchases were made they were recalled by their government. Before leaving this city for San Francisco Mr. Hirosawa said that he was most favorably impressed by the quality of American bred horses and would return as soon as the Chinese trouble was settled and buy some of the best bred stock he could find. It had been his experience, as well as that of his colleagues, that the most satisfactory results were obtained by mingling the American trotting blood with that of the Japanese.

"We have tried it," he said, "on a very small scale, it is true, but the result has been so gratifying that our Government has decided to go into it more extensively. We have experimented with stallions and mares from every country where horse breeding is a recognized industry, and have found that the American trotter suits our purpose best."

The Japanese have a system of encouraging horse breeding which in some respects might be followed to advantage by this Government, as it would be especially advantageous to those farmers and others whose means do not permit them to breed to the best stallions. Mr. Tange said that his Government had established stallion depots and those who owned mares were free, in fact required, to take them there to be bred. At that time there were two stud farms, called shubaboku-kujo, located at convenient points throughout the Empire, and more would be established, as the Japanese were taking a deeper interest in horse breeding than ever before. Messrs. Hirosawa, Kunogi and Tange are experienced horsemen and know a good animal when they see one. They are quick to detect any fault and are shrewd buyers. They returned to New York a few days ago and through the Fasig-Tipton Company went to the Village Farm last Saturday, where they closed a contract for the purchase of fifteen head of royally bred mares and young stallions, as published in The Sun of yesterday. Following is a complete list of the animals bought:

Waygrass, b f, foaled March, 1899, by Dare Devil-Rahway by Lord Russell.

Alice Chimes, b m, foaled May, 1896, by Chimes-Doris by Mambrino King.

Bonnie Kate, br m, foaled March, 1898, by Mambrino King-Kate.

American Princess, b m, foaled June, 1897, by Rex Americus-Rahway by Lord Russell.

The Pirate, b s, foaled May, 1897, by Rex Americus-Floes by Almont, Jr.

The Fanatic, b c, foaled May, 1899, by Chimes-Miriam Law by Heir-at-Law.

The Defender, ch c, foaled July, 1898, by Mambrino King-Dottie by Almont, Jr.

Euphony, b c, foaled February, 1900, by Rex Americus-Duenna Chimes by Chimes.

Exact, b c, foaled February, 1900, by Rex Americus-Janet by Mambrino King.

Racket, b c, foaled May, 1900, by Mambrino King-Miss Clifford by Chimes.

The Carlist, b c, foaled April, 1900, by The Pretender-Lena by Hamlin Patchen.

The Doorkeeper, b c, foaled May 1900, by Mambrino King-Dorcas Chimes by Chimes.

Chickering, a colt by Lord Regent, Lord Bright and Foss.

The last three were not bred at Village Farm. The Japanese agents will return to this city to-morrow and it is probable they will buy a few more horses before returning to the Orient. The Fasig-Tipton Company would not give out the price paid for the Village Farm lot, but it is stated to be in the neighborhood of $25,000.

New Outlet for Horses.

Another outlet has been supplied for the great American horse. Previous to the first day of the present month the Republic of Mexico imposed a duty of several dollars a head on all horses, mules and "similar beasts of burden," but on that day this duty was done away with and now all American horses and mules will enter Mexico free of duty. An exception has long been made in favor of pure bred breeding stock under regulations somewhat similar to those governing the United States customs in respect to such animals and also in favor of high class coach and carriage horses, of which none, practically speaking, have been produced in Mexico. It is easy enough to discover the reason why Mexico has placed horses on her free list. She is short of horses like her greater sister on the North, and horses she must have not only for military purposes, but for the ordinary civilian walks of life. The fact is, that Mexico has not horses enough in any one department of her business. Her cattlemen have not enough; of high class harness horses she has hardly any at all; of truck and business horses the supply is woefully inadequate. Her merchants and hacendados must have horses. Then Mexico is extraordinarily prosperous. Immense amounts of foreign capital are being poured into her banks, mercantile houses, mines and fields. Her exports are increasing. Only her luxuries are imported and they are well covered with a high tariff. All her poorer people need to eat and wear comes from her own soils, but with all her prosperity she needs horses. Therefore, another market is opened to American horse breeders and what is more, a market where the less valuable grades of our horses will be wanted. We can well afford to part with many of the horses Mexico will buy in the next few years.—Breeders' Gazette.

English Care of Horses.

An English groom who spent twenty years in the stables of royalty thus spoke of the way we treat horses in America and the way they are treated in England: "You," he said, "do not take good care of your horses. You think you do, but you do not. When a horse comes in all wet with perspiration you let him stand in the stable and dry with all the dirt on. In England we take the horse as he comes in from a drive and sprinkle blood-warm water all over it from head to feet. Then we scrape it down and blanket it, rubbing the legs and face dry. Thus, in an hour it is clean and dry and ready to take a good feed, while by your way the animal will stand and swelter for hours and finally dry sticky and dirty. Our horses never founder and never take cold. We never use a curry comb. You scratch your horses too hard. The only care necessary is to have the water not very cold, then bathe them quick and blanket them instantly, while rubbing their legs."

Petaluma road drivers are contemplating the formation of a driving club, leasing the historical old track and fair grounds and holding amateur meetings and probably race meetings once or twice a year. The Petaluma track has been the scene of some of the greatest harness racing ever seen in California.

Helena, Montana, Correspondence.

HELENA (Mont.), July 16, 1901.
BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Since leaving California on June 12th, I have been doing business in Helena, and, of course, had to get up a little horse information for you.

The Helena Racing Association has recently been formed, and Helena is again in line with a seven days' program and ten thousand dollars in purses; races to take place in September after the Butte meeting is over.

Mr. Walter Parks has taken charge of the race track and grounds and Mr. Parks certainly is taking great pains to make the track fast, and he knows how.

Since coming here there has been quite a lot of interest taken in harness horses and the track and grounds look quite lively once more.

Mr. J. J. Kelley has his horse Wakefield 2:16 in charge of Mr. Pat O. Rice. This pacer starts to-day at Butte in the 2:16 pace. Mr. Rice also has J. S. 2:30, a pacer, and a green horse by Simmons out of a famous race mare that Splan raced, whose name I now forget. This horse is a trotting wender.

Mr. Walter Parks has a few very fine horses in his stable. George Ayres 2:16, pacer, by Bay Bird, heads his list; Major Puff by Bay Bird, dam Pattie Puff, dam of Dr. Puff, is a green one, but he steps a quarter in 32 seconds like a veteran, and he is 16 hands high, weighs 1150 lbs. and no pacer has a license to beat him. Parks has a mare named Dot by Bay Bird, dam by George Wilkes; this mare is also a green one, and she can trot a mile quite handily in 2:20. She is as sweet a going trotter as ever lived and great things are expected of her in Mr. Parks' hands. He has a green horse by Simmons that Sam Pyle sold to a Mr. Dillon, and this horse is for sure a trotter that is causing a lot of comment. He is as speedy as anyone might wish for and a good actor. His dam is by Strathmore.

James Misner, the veteran trainer from Portland, is here with three horses, viz: Florence M., a sorrel mare by Hambletonian Wilkes, dam Anna Belle 2:27 by Dawn 2:18½; this filly recently came from California, and her photograph will show that she is a beauty, and for a green trotter she is all that can be asked for; she stepped one-quarter in 37 seconds recently and Misner says she will be as good as Phoebe Wilkes ever was. She is a full sister to Robert I., the pacer that caused tags to pace in 2:15 at Tanforan last fall, and Maud Murray, who trotted in 2:12 in Germany; she is a good behavior. The pacer Little Maid 2:18 by Rockwood, dam by Hambletonian Mambrino, in Misner's stable, is stepping along some. She stepped an easy mile in 2:23 recently and quarters in 32 seconds. This mare is getting a slow preparation and is entered at Los Angeles this fall. She will render a good account of herself when she gets to the city of Los Angeles. Her four year old son, Printer's Ink by Altamont, is a trotter, and Misner predicts a race horse in him. He certainly looks like one and acts that way. His dam is one of the most perfect actors imaginable.

Bourbon Wilkes Jr. 2:12½ is here. His owner, Mr. Fisher, expects to start him in the free for all this fall, and with George Ayres and Bourbon it will be an interesting event.

There are more first class horses pulling buggies in Helena than any town I ever saw. Horses from such sires as Ben Lomond, Gold by Director, Bishop, Kentucky Volunteer, Ranchero, Bay Bird, Simmons and a host of speed producers.

The gentlemen who are at the head of the new racing association are all good men and in earnest, and I look for a first class meeting, and it will be a great benefit to horsemen here. The stables at the track are in good shape, good water, plenty of grass, shade trees, etc., and horsemen coming here will be assured of first class treatment.

Mr. L. A. Walker, whom I succeeded as manager of the Helena Hotel, is the president of the association; he is also the superintendent of the U. S. Assay Office here and is sure to suit every horseman.

P. S.—Wakefield won first heat in the 2:16 pace at Butte to-day in 2:13½, Jim Dixon winning the race in the three following heats: time, 2:16, 2:20, 2:15.

To a man up a tree it looks as though it should have been Wakefield's race in straight heats, even if Jim Dixon is touted as being unbeatable. Frank Frazier is winning bunches of money at Butte and an occasional good race. He drove Hassalo to-day and also drives Mt. Hood.

Yours truly,
CLINTON A. HARRISON.

During the past two days there has been considerable talk among lovers of fast horses of a three days' racing program to be given early in September. It is a fact that in and about Chico are many buggy horses that if entered in the various events, would give some very interesting exhibitions of speed. It is stated that three afternoons' racing could be provided for by the expenditure of a little money, and would, in a measure, take the place of the "race meeting" which we are not to have this year.—Chico Record.

News From the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

A. A. Wright of this city has bought from J. C. Mosher the black stallion Black Egypt 2:34 by Cœur d'Alene, out of Skeeters, and will likely use him on the road.

W. F. Watson has bought the handsome driving stallion Woodmon 2:28½ by Monon, son of Nutwood, and is using him on the speedway. Woodmon is a toppy fellow in harness and a hard one to curry on the road.

J. W. Tilden of Vancouver, Wash., will ship his stable of horses to Salem this week. He has about 10 head, among them is Package 2:24½, May Tilden 2:27½, Nellie Coovet, three year old pacer; Hattie Holly, two year old trotter; Mack Gosc, three year old pacer, and a very promising green trotter by Scarlet Letter.

Since the announcement of the Spokane speed program quite an interest is being taken there in harness horses. The gentlemen's road race will bring out all the fast drivers of the city (we mean horses) and some skirmishing is being done to buy a fast one or two from the outside. Thos. S. Griffith, who always takes much interest in racing, has sold his road mare Kate Cogswell to Frank W. Bronson, manager of the Diamond Ice Co., who will start her in the road race, while Mr. Griffith will start either Tattletale or Nancy Lee. Quite a number of trainers are located at Spokane now and others are coming. Among those having harness horses are: Lou Childs, L. B. Lindsley, Joe Huber, John Lance and L. D. Lott.

Fred Brooker writes to the Rural Spirit as follows from Yakima: "Matt Williams is working the two Jim Wright green pacers, Daniel J. and Lady Pearl. They have both been miles in about 2:20.

Bob Pryor is working Sam Bowers and Chester Abbott, both pacers entered in the $1000 2:20 pace here. He also has several colt trotters and pacers.

I am working the bay mare Diodino and the chestnut two year old Flaxie D., which Mr. D. M. Sbanks and myself recently purchased from Dr. Powell Reeves. I am also working my stallion Senator 2:26½. He recently went a half mile against a bicycle in a match race; time, 1:06. I am working him slow, but do not think his legs will stand it to race again, although we shall try to give him a fast mark at fair time. There are also several runners in training here."

The best guess on the result of the M. & M. at Detroit was made by the editor of the American Horse Breeder who wrote as follows: "It looks from a distance as though the contest may be between Neva Simmons, Eleata, Iva Dee and Country Jay." That was a mighty good guess out of a field of fifteen horses, as the four named were the ones in the money. They were placed in the following order at the close of the race: Eleata, Country Jay, Neva Simmons and Iva Dee.

According to official reports in 1900 running races were held in 80 cities, while harness events took place in 889 places, with 200 extra meetings, making a total of 1089.

THE FIRST MEETING of the harness racing circuit in California for 1901 will open at Sacramento next Tuesday under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. Laying aside all the feeling that induces one in our position to praise and hoot a meeting before it commences, we say with the utmost confidence in the truth of our predictions that there will be some of the greatest racing at Sacramento next week that the admirers of harness horses have seen for years in this State, and that in some of the races time will be made that would be considered fast on the Grand Circuit now in progress over East. The fields of horses that will start in the main events each day will be large and will rank in looks and breeding with the product of any country on earth. That a few very high class trotters and pacers will be developed from the green ranks is as certain as fate, and from those that will start at Sacramento will come several with speed enough to cross the mountains next year and do battle with the speed giants that start for the big purses and stakes over there. The arrangements for the meeting are more complete than at any previous meeting of this association within our knowledge. Everything is in readiness. The track, covered last summer with a new coating of yellow clay is in the very best possible shape for fast miles, and those who have visited the famous State Fair track know that it is an ideal place for a race meeting. The very best accommodations can be had at the hotels and restaurants of the capital city and the weather is more pleasant at this time than during the middle and latter part of August. The outlook is for a splendid meeting with high class racing and fast time and those who fail to attend will miss a week of rare enjoyment and good sport. One of the features of the meeting is the generous provision that has been made for horses owned by members of regularly organized driving clubs, and some very warm contests will result from those races that have been placed on the program. The Sacramento Driving Club and the Golden Gate Park Driving Association will both be represented in these races. The matinee given on the Fourth of July by the latter club at the Oakland track furnished as good a day of sport as can be enjoyed in any Eastern city and it has been a matter of general remark that the racing lately furnished by the members of this organization are a great improvement over those of former meetings. The driving clubs are organizations that have done, and are doing, much for the development of the American trotter, and they should be encouraged by the regular racing organizations. The

P. C. T. H. B. A. recognizes this fact and has placed several events for these clubs on its program, and we are glad to know that every one has filled with a good list of entries, so classified that good contests are almost certain in every race. The six $1000 stakes, with the other regular events, will furnish racing that will be second to that seen at no place in America unless it be the Grand Circuit. The Breeders meeting will be a success this year and you should be there to take part in it.

LETTERS WERE RECEIVED during the past week by Secretary Kelley of the Breeders association and Secretary Teed of the Los Angeles association for audacity of the pure unadulterated variety undoubtedly lead anything we have seen for years. The letter addressed to the secretary of the Breeders meeting was a sort of round robin and contained the names of several well known trainers and horsemen, some of whom have since written that they never signed such a document, did not know of its existence and utterly repudiated its contents. This letter purported to express the sentiments of a number of owners and trainers who had met and declared they would not take their horses to Sacramento to race unless the meeting was postponed one week. The letter to the Los Angeles secretary, although signed by but one name, stated that "a mutual agreement between every horseman here and a good many others elsewhere" had resulted in a determination among them to pay forfeit in purses already closed and not start at Los Angeles unless the date of closing the additional purses advertised was changed from August 3d to July 29th. This letter further stated that "Woodland had already accepted this reasonable suggestion, and the Breeders are considering it now," statements which were entirely without foundation, and it was added: "If they don't, not one horse here (some 58) will leave for Sacramento." We will not mention the name of the party who signed this audacious letter, nor the track from which it was written, but we will state that none of the horses that he controls stayed away from Sacramento, but are there now and we doubt not will start in every race where their owner thinks he has a chance of getting his entrance money. As for there being 58 horses at the track in question that will be entered this year there were not one-third of that number. It has already been considered eminently proper for horse owners and trainers to write to Secretaries of racing associations and offer suggestions as to classes, purses and dates of closing entries, and all such suggestions have been courted and gladly received, but such letters as the two above referred to are not only impudent, but misleading and unfair in every way. The one written to the Breeders association was answered and its demands refused, and the one sent to Los Angeles got a prompt and emphatic reply to the effect that the dates of closing would remain as advertised and that the Los Angeles association does not propose to be dictated to by any body of horse owners or trainers who desire to get their horses into classes where they do not belong. It would serve the instigators of such letters no more than right if their entries were refused in the future by every association that receives such impudent epistles as those here referred to.

THIS IS THE DAY for the closing of entries to the trotting and pacing purses offered by the State Agricultural Society for its fair this year at Sacramento. The 2:40 and 2:20 class trots are for $800 each, the 2:14 class trot is for $1000. There are two pacing events, the 2:25 and the 2:17 class, for which $800 are hung up, and $1000 will be given the 2:13 class pacers. There are also three stakes, one for pacing three year olds, one for pacing four year olds and one for trotting four year olds. In each of these stakes the entrance is $10, the starting fee is $20, all of which goes into the stake, and the Society adds $250. The money is divided 60, 30 and 10 per cent. There is a novel condition in the 2:40 trot. Horses entered in this race that trot to a record of 2:25 prior to August 10th will not be eligible to start, but the entry may be transferred to the 2:20 class, and in the event of his being already entered in this class, the entrance money in the 2:40 class will be refunded. The same condition accompanies the 2:25 class pace and applies to horses getting a record of 2:20 or better and transfers them to the 2:17 class. The State Fair will furnish an excellent program of harness races this year. In addition to these preliminary stakes there will be enough additional purses offered to make 24 races for the meeting, or two races per day. Don't forget that the entries to these preliminary races close to-day, Saturday, July 27th, and see that you mail them in time.

MR. J. C. QUINN, the leading harness horse trainer of the Hawaiian Islands, who has the "gray ghost of Santa Paula," Waldo J. in his string, came up from the Islands on the last steamer for a few weeks' visit in this State. Mr. Quinn is renewing old acquaintances while here and will take in the Breeders meeting at Sacramento next week.

WOODLAND'S MEETING should be attended by every harness horse owner and trainer in California. Entries to the harness races close next Monday, July 29th, and the entry list should be a big one. The Woodland Association always gives a good fair, always pays its purses in full, provides well for the horsemen in every way and holds meetings and gives racing when other districts are idle. This year the harness horses in training in California would have but very little earning capacity were it not for the State Fair, the Breeders Association and the Woodland. Santa Rosa and Los Angeles Associations, and it is no more than right that owners and trainers should show their appreciation and gratitude by giving these associations liberal entry lists. Especially is this the case at Woodland and we hope to see the purses which close on Monday next get a very large entry. The Woodland track is one of the best on the Coast, the stall and other accommodations most ample, and there is no district fair in Northern California where the betting is as good as at Woodland, and those who back their horses there can win large sums if their horses are first to the wire. The time for closing these purses Monday next, permits all horses entered to go out and race to a fast record at the Breeders meeting and at Santa Rosa without barring them from starting at Woodland. Get your entry blank filled out next Monday and mail it to Secretary Thomas at Woodland.

TWELVE RUNNING STAKES with a good sum of added money for each are announced by the Los Angeles Association, District No. 6, in this issue. The Los Angeles meeting will open this year on September 28th and there will be thirteen days of racing. In addition to the stakes advertised there will be three or more running events each day, entries to which will close over night. The Los Angeles meeting will be the best ever held in Southern California.

SANTA ROSA ENTRIES close next Saturday. This will be a well attended meeting, and as the track is a great favorite with the horsemen, a big entry list will be made. Mind up your mind to enter there. A special train will take horses there from Sacramento at a low rate.

BIDS for Betting Privileges at the State Fair are advertised for by the California State Agricultural Society. They will be received up to 11 A. M. August 10th, by the Secretary, Geo. W. Jackson, at Sacramento. See advertisement.

American Horses in England.

The sum of $100,000 won by our equine representatives in England, up to the 1st day of July, is not to be sneezed at. Of course, W. Whitney leads the list of winning American owners, but chiefly through an English-bred horse, Volodyovski, Mr. Keene being second through the Oaks victory of Cap and Bells. Domino ranks first among the American sires with the handsome veteran Sir Dixon next in say. After him come the big Englishman, Watercross, and the dead hero Hanover. The following table shows the amounts won by each stallion's get, together with the number of races won:

Stallions' Names.	Races Won.		Value.
Domino.....	2	$6,175
Sir Dixon.....	6	3,190
Watercross.....	6	2,634
Hanover.....	2	2,464
Galore.....	2	1,017
Sailor Prince.....	3	644
Henry of Navarre.....	1	782
St. Andrew.....	1	387
Bassetlaw.....	2	370
Potomac.....	3	385
Pontiac.....	3	320
Hayden Edwards.....	1	261
Sir Modred.....	2	218
Hindoo.....	1	195
Riley.....	1	198
Tammany.....	1	186
Cavalier.....	1	100
Deceit.....	1	100
Goldfinch.....	1	100
Luke Blackburn.....	1	100
Sensation.....	1	190
Savior Magus.....	1	121
	45	$30,369

The probabilities are that the July winnings of the several American stables will bring this total up to about $125,000 in American money, as both Mr. Corrigan and Mr. Croker have won several races since the fore part of the month. Mr. Keene's horses have not run much lately, but will probably be in evidence at the Goodwood meeting, which opens next week. It is held in the Duke of Richmond's park, one of the most beautiful spots in all England. It was at Goodwood that Ten Broeck first achieved his great victories with Umpire, who won the Ham and the Molecomb Stakes in one week; and carried off the Goodwood Stakes with Starke (by Wagner-Reel), who won the Goodwood Cup in the year following. Umpire was by Leconte-Alice Carneal and, after his failure to gain a place in the Derby won by Thormanby, was sold to the Emperor of Russia for stud purposes, after having won eighteen races in England. Starke was sold to Austria, where he got Weissenrahd, the first winner of the Vienna Derby.

HIDALGO.

Henry Burgess, a steeplechase jockey, was killed last Saturday near New York while schooling a horse over the jumps. The animal bolted in front of one of the obstacles and threw the rider, whose neck was broken by the fall.

The Cleveland Meeting.

Our California horses have not been doing as well during the second week of the Grand Circuit as they did at Detroit. On Monday, the opening day, the 2:10 trot had the three Californians Venus II., Phoebe Childers and Stamboulette as starters but they all finished outside the money. The race was won by Sister Alice in straight heats, 2:12 and 2:13 being the time. In the 2:13 pace there were ten starters Queen R. and You Bet representing this State. They were last in the summary. Andy McDowell won the race with Martha Marshall in straight heats, best time 2:09½. Metallas, the Mambrino King stallion that sold for $16,000 at Detroit won the 2:16 trot, best time 2:11. None of the California horses started in this race. In the 2:20 pace, the three year old pacer Thornway, bred at Oakwood Park and owned by Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick, was started in a big field of aged horses. He won fourth money which was a pretty good showing as there were fifteen starters and the heats were paced n 2:10 and 2:09¾, Andabon Boy winning.

On the second day Dr. Book trotted into the 2:16 list in the 2:14 trot, winning the first and second heats in 2:10 and 2:11½. Janice, William Harold's daughter, then took the third heat in 2:10½. The dispatches say that as Dr. Book had won his heats easily, young Durfee was reprimanded by the judges, fined $100 and Kenney substituted as the driver of the McKinney horse. The next three heats went to Palm Leaf, however in 2:11½, 2:13½ and 2:18½, so it does not look at this distance as if the judges bettered the condition of things any. Our Lucky was also a starter in this race but finished last. The 2:07 pace went to Riley B. Charley Hoyt won the first in 2:06½, Riley B. the second in 2:08¾, Eyelet the third in 2:11½ and Riley B. the fourth in 2:09¾. No California horse was entered in this race. Dan Patch repeated his Detroit victory by winning the 2:15 class pace in straight order, the fastest heat 2:10½. California was not represented in the race, nor in the 2:27 trot which was won by The King in straight heats in 2:13.

Wednesday was a scorching hot day at Cleveland. Eleata, winner of the M. & M., won the 2:24 class trot with ease, her heats being in 2:11¾, 2:09 and 2:10. Country J was second and Neva Simmonds third, the same positions they held at Detroit. The 2:17 pace was won by Richard A in 2:10½ and 2:10½, one of the Coast horses starting. In the 2:09 pace George was returned winner. It was quite a fast race. Argetta won the first in 2:09¾, George taking the next three in 2:08½, 2:10½ and 2:09¾. Sphynx S. got third money and Goshen Jim fourth. Rey Direct also staid but was last in the field of ten horses. Tom P. on the 2:21 trot, best time 2:10½. Vic Schellar took third money.

On Thursday, the fourth day, 15,000 w in attendance, the 2:07 trot with Charley Herr, T Monk and Kingmond as starters, being the drawncard. The Monk took the first heat in the slow one of 2:13. Charley Herr won the next too hand in 2:09 and 2:10¾.

Star Pugh, winner of the Chamber Commerce Stake, won the 2:23 class pace after six heats. He took the first in 2:11, Helen D. the second in 2:09¾, Plenty the third and fourth in 2:10½ and 2:10½, Star Pugh the fifth and sixth in 2:12½ and 2:14½. Harry Logan got fourth money. Stanton Wilkes waight in the summary, Thornway ten and Rajah five. Dolly Dillon took third money in the 2:12 t but did not win a heat. Cornelia took first two in 2:11 and 2:12. Onward Silver the next three in 2:10½, 2:12 and 2:12. There were eight starters. None of the California contingent were starters in the 2:27 e. Billy H. won in straight heats 2:11½ and 2:10½, there were a dozen starters in this race. Thus Eleata is the only California bred horse to win at Cleveland.

Driving Club for Sacramo.

A meeting was held in Sacramento last Tuesday evening to take preliminary steps toward organizing a driving club. Those present at the meeting and those who have already signed the membership rolls are F. E. Wright, L. S. Upson, C. W. Paine, J. Rubstaller Jr., William Trust, H. A. Bell, T. J. Hahan, G. W. Jackson, George H. Clark, Albert A., Fred W. Keisel, H. O. Buckman, W. O. Bowd, W. E. Lampert, A. P. Booth, E. W. Hale, John Key.

The greatest enthusiasm was shown by those present and it was the belief of all that the club would start off with a hundred charter members. Mr. E. Wright was temporary chairman and L. S. Upson temporary Secretary.

C. W. Paine, L. S. Upson and Frankstaller, Jr. were appointed a committee to draw constitution and bylaws, for submission at the next meeting.

A Committee on Membership consisting of C. W. Paine, L. S. Upson and George W. Jackson was appointed to work up interest and get many charter members as possible.

It was agreed to meet on Monday evening next at the Capital Hotel to perfect the organization and elect officers for the ensuing year.

HOOF BEATS.

Montallade broke the record of the Butte, Montana, track last Wednesday by running seven furlongs in 1:27½.

Some large pools are sold at the Butte meeting. One day last week several were sold that called for from $600 to $900 each.

"Cash" Sloan recently rode nineteen consecutive winners at the Warsaw, Poland, meeting. Jean De Reszke, for whom "Cash" is riding, also made a record. In the course of thirteen days he started fourteen horses in forty races, winning thirty and being placed in all but two of the others.

They are breaking records up in Montana. On Wednesday of last week Odd Eyes broke the world's record for a mile and an eighth over the hurdles, running the distance in 1:20. The record was formerly held by Winslow, who made the distance at Chicago in August, 1888, in 2:02¾.

A. H. & D. H. Morris' Compute, at the lucrative price of 30 to 1, won the rich Foxhall stakes of $15,000 at Brighton Beach last Saturday. In one of the most sensational races of the meeting he won by a scant half length, while Hyphen beat William C. Whitney's Goldsmith a head for the place.

George Bernard, the well known Denver horseman refused an offer of $4000 for Rex Blees, his gated saddle horse. The offer was made by E. R. Sims of Kansas City, who owns Limestone Bell, the greatest high school mare of the country. Mr. Bernard states that he would not take less than $5000.

If Sir Thomas Lipton fails to "lift" the America's cup this year with Shamrock II, he intends to drop international yachting and devote his leisure to the turf. R. S. Siever, a professional backer of horses, now owns what are regarded as the best four two year olds in training in England—Scepter, Duke of Westminster, Lavengro and Doochary—for which Lipton, anxious to begin racing with a big boom, has offered $300,000, a record price. They are entered in all the classic races, and Siever has asked Lipton $100,000 more.

Cash Sloan had an introduction to a Russian mob recently at Moscow and narrowly escaped with his life. He has been riding in front so often on the Russian tracks that the people who attend the races there began to believe he could win on any old horse and when he lost a race the other day a raging mob of males and females attacked him. Had it not been for the protection afforded by a strong detachment of police Cash would have been torn limb from limb in the true Russian fashion. This goes to show that the people who play the races in Russia are very much like those who play them in America. They are ready to attack any jockey who finishes in the wrong place according to their dops.

Several Californians who have returned from Montana are industriously circulating the report that the meeting there is not up to the mark which was expected. While it is doubtless true that the demise of Marcus Daly has made it impossible to hold race meetings at Butte and Anaconda on the same generous plan that was pursued when he was the power behind it, the records show that the meeting being given by the present management is fully up to the standard of racing in other communities of the same population. California race goers, especially those who are constant attendants at the winter meetings here, should not compare a small meeting in Montana with those given in San Francisco. The conditions are not similar. We doubt if a high class meeting could be given here during the summer while all the big Eastern tracks are running, and if such be the case, how can the comparatively small town of Butte be expected to? The racing at Butte has been clean, there is a fair amount of betting, and the officials have been attentive to the wants of horsemen and the comfort of the public. Nothing more could be asked in reason.

SULKY NOTES.

Attend the Breeders meeting.

State Fair entries close to-day.

Woodland's harness purses close next Monday.

Directum Fay 2:20½, is a new performer for Directum 2:05½.

Dr. Book 2:10, is the fourth 2:10 performer for McKinney.

Valentine by Boodle won a heat in 2:20 at Cleveland recently.

Winfield Stratton was separately timed in 2:08 at Windsor.

August 3d is the date of closing of Santa Rosa and Los Angeles entries.

Sacramento will have a driving club with a hundred charter members.

The 2:13 pace is on the program for Wednesday at the Breeders meeting next week.

Santa Rosa harness races close Saturday next, August 3d. See the advertisement.

There will be more than one 2:10 pacer brought out in California this year in our opinion.

Neva Simmons is the sixteenth 2:15 trotter for Simmons, but none of them have ever reached the 2:10 list.

Derby Simmons, a brother to Owyhee 2:11, by Chas. Derby, is being trained by Frank Sbank at Litchfield, Ohio.

An exchange says that by all odds the pacer Plenty 2:12½, by Superior is the homeliest horse out this season.

Metallas, the $16,000 horse, rounded to on reaching Cleveland and won his race, reducing his record to 2:11 in the third heat.

Vance Nuckols is again in good standing with the National Trotting Association, and is out winning his share of the money.

W. J. Connor of Springfield, O., has bought Lady Waldstein 2:15, by Waldstein, and will use her for road and matinee driving.

How fast will they go at Sacramento this year in the green classes? is the question of the hour. We will be able to tell you next week.

Woodland's trotting and pacing purses close next Monday. Don't miss the Woodland meeting. It will be one of the best ever held there.

Aster 2:12, was 2-3-4 and out in a matinee race at Cleveland two weeks ago where the heats were in from 2:17 to 2:20. He must have lost his speed.

Stanton Wilkes 2:10½, by Nutwood Wilkes, won the consolation purse of the Chamber of Commerce stake at Detroit and showed himself a game race horse.

The valuable mare Arline B. 2:26½, that was a close second at Denver in 2:15½, was killed by lightning at Colorado Springs, July 16th. She was valued at $4000.

The 2:25 pace at the Breeders meeting will be one of the best contests ever seen in California from present appearances. It will be held on Tuesday the opening day.

The Woodland track is in first-class shape, and will be kept so. The horsemen are always given a fast track at Woodland and this year it will be better than ever.

The Horseman says that Miss Mary E. Munson, secretary of the Pekin, Ill., trotting association is the only woman secretary of a trotting association in the west.

Several of the California trainers who went East with visions of first money in nearly every start are said to be sitting up nights studying Murray Howe's Excuse Book.

Francis Smart of Denver has reconsidered his intention of retiring his fast mare, Lottie Smart, and will start her at Terre Haute and Columbus. He will also ship Dudie Egmont with the mare.

The largest pool sold on the M. & M. at Detroit called for $15,000. E. E. Smathers of New York paid $10,000 for the field in this race, and N. W. Hubinger paid $5000 for the ticket on Eleata.

The famous pacer, Coney 2:02, now wears a set of web hoppers with black leather loops that were made by J. O'Kane, of New York and San Francisco. Webb hoppers never stretch, are lighter than leather and very strong.

Mrs. I. M. Lipson, of Los Angeles, sends us a snap shot of her fourteen months old colt Zanut by Zombro out of Miss Goldnut. He is entered in the Occident Stake and the Stanford as well. The picture shows him to be a very handsome colt, a worthy descendant of an illustrious sire, and we shall give it a place among our illustrations in the near future.

When your horse begins to show signs of lameness don't delay the matter, but put on a liberal quantity of Vita Oil, rub it in well, wrap with a damp bandage and it is a pretty good proposition that the lameness will not show the next day. Now give needed rest and the chances are that you will be able to start him when the bell rings at Sacramento.

The Concord fair will be one of the best of the small country fairs. It will be held September 25th, 26th, 27th and 28th. Entries will close September 20th. Read the advertisement in this issue.

Col. J. C. Kirkpatrick's three year old colt, Thornway by Steinway, started in the 2:20 pace at Cleveland on Monday and saved his entrance by finishing fourth in the race. The heats were in 2:10 and 2:09½.

Saturday, the last day of the Breeders meeting, will have a great program. The 2:20 trot and the 2:17 pace are down for decision that day and a race for driving club horses will make out a program that will be worth going to see.

Waldo J. 2:08 is by Bob Mason, dam by A. W. Richmond. The omission of three words in the caption under the picture on our front page last week made it read as if the last named stallion was the sire of the Honolulu champion instead of the sire of his dam.

The three year old Thornway by Steinway must have paced a good race at Cleveland when he got fourth money in the 2:20 pace. It was won by Audobon Boy in 2:10 and 2:09½ and a field of sixteen horses started, all of them aged except Mr. Kirkpatrick's colt.

The sale of the German Government horses held at William G. Layng's Occidental Horse Exchange was quite successful. Seventy-five head were disposed of in three hours, which, considering the fact that the teamsters' strike is on this week, was very good selling.

The well known writer and specialist, Gilbert Tompkins, has left the Chicago Horseman, in which he has conducted the balancing department for the past three years. He is going into the work of stopping gait faults and regulating trotting and pacing action.—N. Y. Spirit of the Times.

King Cadanza, the Steinway pacer, and Mary P., he Alex. Button trotter, were worked a mile at the Woodland track last Saturday and stepped it together in 2:19½. Alta Vela 2:15½ showed a mile in 2:17 very handily, and John A. 2:12½ was driven a mile in about the same notch. All these horses were taken to Sacramento this week and will start at the Breeders' meeting.

Here is a sample pool on the M. & M. sold just before the race was started: Eleata $400, Neva Simmons $200, Country Jay $45, Quoddy Girl $75, Iva Dee $105, George Smith $40, Porto Rico $20, A. J. D. $55, Algoneta $10, Alberta D $15, Belle Kuser $20, Louise Jefferson $50, Pointdexter $65, Ted $100 and John Hooper $10. The total amount in this pool was $1210.

Klatawah 2:05½ is now being worked with the hoppers by trainer Allen at Empire City track, New York, and is said to be showing his old time speed and going kindly. Don Derby, the full brother to Diablo, that Keating gave $2000 for, is also being worked by Allen and showing well. If these two horses show capacity to race this year the credit will have to go to young Allen.

Metallas 2:12½, the son of Mambrino King that beat Charlie Mac at Windsor and was in turn beaten by the California horse at Detroit, was purchased by Nick Huhinger prior to the Detroit race for $16,000. In justice to Metallas it should be stated that he was a very sick horse after winning the first heat of his Detroit race and was withdrawn after the second heat, in which he finished seventh.

Arrangements have been completed for the champion trotting stallion Cresceus to go an exhibition mile to wagon, in an effort to beat the wagon record, 2:05½, held by The Abbot, at Elkwood Park on August 7th, the opening day of the meeting. The receipts of that day are to be donated to the Monmouth county hospitals. Other noted horses will trot or pace exhibition miles in addition to the regular program.

Harry Logan was made favorite in the Chamber of Commerce according to the Chicago Horseman, which adds that his chances were undoubtedly interfered with by the great use that was made of his speed in the middle half of the first heat, which he paced in 1:01. Star Pugh, the winner, was always so complete a master of the situation, however, that the result would have been the same under any circumstances.

W. F. Steele says he knows he made a big mistake when he sold the trotting mare Lamp Girl 2:09. She was only in training twelve weeks, and the wonderful improvement she made in that short time is attested by the good race she put up at Lexington, Ky., in October. "She can beat all trotters in Europe over any distance of ground they race, and I don't know of a horse in her class capable of defeating her in this country."

Mr. Ben Davies of San Bernardino, writes the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN under date of July 22d, that Zolock 2:10½, his great son of McKinney 2:11½, has had a very successful season, having been bred to 93 mares up to this time, with eight more booked. Many of these mares are high class in individuality and breeding. Mr. Milo M. Potter of the Van Nuys Hotel, Los Angeles, bred ten very fine mares, and has purchased eight Zolock colts. He has one that is very promising, having driven him a half the other day in 1:13. Mr. E. D. Roberts drove his filly by Zolock a quarter in 38 seconds with a month's work, and Mr. Sumner Wright has a beautiful brown yearling filly by Zolock that went a quarter in 45 seconds. It looks very much as though Zolock would be a producer of extreme speed the first year any of his colts start as they are a very promising lot. Mr. Davies believes that from his breeding and the form he has shown, Zolock is McKinney's heir apparent and that he should be the best entire son of that horse. Zolock will be bred to but a few choice mares next year and then raced with the idea of giving him a very low record, which he is certainly capable of securing, and it should be 2:05 or better.

On Friday at Sacramento the 2:14 trot will be decided. It will be an unlucky day for the losers.

The opening day of the Breeders meeting will furnish one of the best programs of harness events ever seen on a California track. The 2:40 trot and the 2:25 pace will bring out all the best green trotters and pacers in training in this State. Those who miss the opening day will miss the best day's racing of the meeting.

There is a mighty fast trotter over East this year that ought to pace in two minutes before the summer is over. His owner handicapped him with the name of Goo Goo Eyes, yet he went out and won his first race and got a record of 2:18½. A horse that can go that fast and win with a name like that must be a good one.

The Buffalo Driving Club has declared off the 2:07 trot announced for the Grand Circuit meeting, August 5th to 8th, owing to the fact that there were but two entries, Kingmond and The Monk, and a free for all pace, for which it is expected the crack pacers from the Detroit and Cleveland meetings and from the East will enter, has been opened in its stead.

H. B. Brastew, Secretary of the Santa Barbara Racing Association, reports that the two days' racing given over the Santa Barbara track on July 4th and 5th was very successful and that the association will probably give a couple of days' racing again this summer. This is not the district association, but a recently organized club that provides racing for local horses.

Sue, the bay mare by Athadon, which C. E. Clark of Fresno is campaigning over the Great Western Circuit in the Mississippi Valley, is making a sort of triumphal procession through that country. Since starting at Denver she has not lost a race and has won them a in straight heats. Her race at Des Moines, Iowa, July 16th, was easy for her, the miles being 2:19½, 2:3 and 2:14½. Her record is 2:12½, made at Davenport, but will be 2:10 or better before she heads for California.

Louise Jefferson was sold at Detroit to C. K. G. Billings of Chicago for $7500. Louise Jefferson, who is by Jeffersomut of Brown Bess, is a Colorado-bred mare. She was purchased by George Estabrook when she was a three-year-old from Charley Owens, whose stock farm hasnet out some of the greatest speed in the West. She was trained very carefully by Joe McGuire and was a winner of two events this season at Deuver, one of the events being a $1000 stake.

Mr. Jos Mueller of Portland, Oregon, has recently purchased from Geo. T. Beckers a two year old stallion by Zomb 2:11, dam Mineola by McKinney 2:11½, second da Kitty Baker by Echo, third dam by Gen. Taylor, 1:30 mile champion. The colt is a handsome bay and aery promising young trotter. He carries more of the blood of McKinney than any stud colt living and he is sired by McKinney's greatest son should be very valuable horse in the stud.

John Bl, who has been at Denver with the string of horses longing to Ed Gaylord ever since the close of the mong there, left there on Wednesday of this week for the East and hopes to start soon on the Grand Circuit. He had in his string the two year old filly Confiza 2:41 by James Madison, Lee Crawford, a three year old by Steinway, Frank Dale (3) by Chas. Derby, the much touted trotter Yarrum 2:19½ by Dictator Prince and the fast green pacer Geo. E. Bennett by Alex. Bion. The last named horse after pacing trials in 2:14 Pleasanton went lame while working a mile in 2:46 Denver, but it is thought he will round to. Frank Dale, the colt that reared and fell at Denver, is ming around all right and will start again later on. Ed Gaylord will join Blue about the middle of September.

The stall Wilkes Boy 2:24½, one of the best sons of George Ilkes, died July 13th, at Elmhurst Farm, near Lexington, Ky. Wilkes Boy is the horse that made T. C. Anglin famous as a breeder of trotters, and enabled him to retire with a good fortune. He was sired by Gage Wilkes, dam Bettie Brown, dam of Anglin 2:22 and Parnell 2:29½, and the granddam of Anglia 2:14 and Patchen Boy 2:19½ by Mambrino Patchen, sed dam Pickles by Mambrino Chief. He was 21 years old; inflammation of the stomach caused his death. Ilkes Boy was the sire of 60 horses in the 2:20 list, the best of which are Courier-Journal 2:06, Judge Swin08½, York Boy 2:09½, Patchen Boy 2:10½, Constantine 2:1, Oratorio 2:13, Grattan 2:13 and St. Vincent 2:1. Wilkes Boy was owned by Henry Schmulbach Wheeling, W. Va., and Robert C. Estill, of Logon, they having purchased him for $35,000 at the closing out sale of Mr. Anglin in 1898. He has stood a private stallion of late.

But one can win the M. & M. each year and many owners fail to get inside the money think they are in luck. There are few who get it any worse, howe, than the New York road driver Chas. Wieland dids year. Here is the story Percy tells about him: o man about town is more discouraged than Charlie Elland. He made two nominations for the M. & M., 000 race, and named Zarco and Lorna McGregor, hiding to start the better after trying them thoroly. Zarco was in W. H. McCarthy's stable at Cler Oak and worked miles below 2:20 easily. Lor McGregor was sent to Empire City track, and Tier Flynn gave her a gradual preparation 2:19½ thest mile. She seemed sensationally fast, and it led as if she would be the choice for the Detroit stake then suddenly she developed a lameness. This Zarco to start for the Welland interests and McCarthyhipped him to Windsor to give him a preparatory. He won two heats and was favorite but lamenessed him to drop behind the distance flag. Next the son of Artillery died. Mr. Wieland is $500 of pocket, besides a good trotter and several mont training hills, shipment and various incidentals."

THE SADDLE.

A Good Lot of Runners.

While there are a very large number of California thoroughbreds now racing at St. Louis, Chicago and New York, there are quite a number still in training in California and running at the Montana meeting. The following are expected to take part in the early California running meetings:

The two year old division will be comprised of some of the best two year old performers on the Coast, namely: Glendenning, Achilles, Berkeleyite, B. C. Green, Botany, Carlo, Cayenne Pepper, Clear Sky, Coal Oil Johnny, Constable, Cruzados, Dan Collins, Dandy, Divina, Dawson, E. M. Brattain, Escalante, Estado, Flattered, Florista, Fred Alterbury, Gerardo, Graham Green, Gus Abercrombie, Hainault, Hon. Peter Stirling, Huachuca, Innocencia, Irma A., Jarretiere d'Or, Knockings, Lady Carlo, Lou Welsea, Morelio, Montoya, Parizaide, Pepper Sauce, Prestenne, Remele, Resin, San Lution, Shell Mount, Snowberry, St. Philippina, Torso Maid, Tyrannus, Water Scratch, Yellow Stone, You You, Vazalla.

The following three year olds: Ada N., Beau Ormonde, Byron Rose, Catherine Bravo, Cora Goetz, Corn Cake, Cousin Carrie, Diderot, Eonic, Flatterer, Articulate, Galen Brown, Graftor, Jim Hale (winner of the Montana Derby), Lief Prince, Mamie Hildreth, Matilda O., Oscar Tolle, Parsifal, Phil Archibald, Princess Titania, Quito, Rey Dare, Rio Del Altar, Screenwell Lake, St. Rico, The Gaffer, Triple Cross, Wardman.

Of the aged division the following ones are expected: Alaria, Alicia, Almoner, Amasa, Bavassa, Bogus Bill, Brown Prince, Burdoc, Canejo, Clarando, Coming Event, Cue, Dolore, Donator, Doublet, Dr. Nombula, Duckoy, El Mido, Espirando, Fannette, Flamero, Flush of Gold, Gauntlet, Good Hope, Grand Sachem, Guilder, Gusto, Hagerdon, Harry Thatcher, Herculean, Heigh Hoe, Hilary, Horton, Katie Walcott, Kitty Kelly, Lavator, Lost Girl, McAlbert, Mechanus, Merops, Midlove, Mike Rice, Mike Strauss, Mission, Mocerito, Montallade, Novia, Ned Dennis, Odd Eyes, Ostler Joe, Ping, Prestidigitator, Proclamation, Racetto, Ralston, Rio Chico, Rixford, Soa Lion, Sir Dougal, Sir Hampton, Snips, Spike, Stromo, The Buffoon, The Fretter, The Miller, Tiburon, Tom Calvert, Torsina, True Blue, Valenciennes, Vantine, Wyoming, Yule.

The above horses are either in California or racing in Montana; every effort will be made to secure all of them that are ready to race at the time of the Oakland race meeting, beginning September 16th.

Racing at Santa Monica.

The twelfth annual races of the Southern California Polo Club will be held August 2d and 3d, at the race track of the Ocean Park Country Club, near Santa Monica. The officials who will be in charge of these races are the same as have conducted these meetings for eleven years, and are T. H. Dudley, J. E. Hoy, J. B. Proctor, W. H. Young and G. L. Waring. All of these gentlemen are well known in connection with amateur sport in California, and the program which has been provided promises to afford plenty of clean sport. The racing program includes the following:

1. Three-quarters of a mile, polo pony race, for qualified polo ponies, 165 pounds top weight; weight for inches; gentlemen riders allowed seven pounds; $40 to first, $20 to second.
2. Trotters or pacers, 2:30 class, three-quarters of a mile, heats, two in three; $50 to first, $25 to second.
3. Three-quarters of a mile, Galloway race, for horses fifteen hands and under, handicap, top weight 160 pounds; gentlemen riders allowed seven pounds under handicap weights; $50 to first, $25 to second.
4. Half a mile and repeat, for local saddle horses, 140 pounds; $20 to first, $5 to second.
5. Half a mile, for horses, ten pounds above scale; $50 to first, $25 to second.
6. Five-eighths of a mile, for horses, ten pounds above scale, winner of race 5 to carry ten pounds extra; $50 to first, $25 to second.
7. Harness race, not yet decided upon.
8. One mile, pony race, for ponies fourteen hands two inches and under, handicap, minimum weight 125 pounds; gentlemen riders allowed five pounds below handicap weights; $50 to first, $25 to second.
9. One mile, for local saddle horses, handicap, minimum weight 15 pounds; $20 to first, $5 to second.
10. Seven-eighths of a mile, for horses, fifteen pounds above scale, winner of race 5 or 6 to carry ten pounds extra; gentlemen riders allowed seven pounds; $50 to first, $25 to second.
11. One mile, for horses, thirty pounds above the scale; gentlemen riders allowed seven pounds; $50 to first, $25 to second.
12. Three-quarters of a mile, consolation, for ponies that have not run first or second at the meeting; $20 to first, $5 to second.

Ponies are fourteen hands two inches and under. Galloways are fifteen hands and under.

Weight for inches is five pounds allowed for every half inch under the standard.

The secretary is G. L. Waring, Santa Monica.

Cunningham Discharged.

(Honolulu Republican, July 2.)

In the decision rendered yesterday morning by Judge Wilson in the District Court, W. H. Cunningham, the well known horseman, and J. A. Morgan, the blacksmith, charged with conspiracy to dope the horse Weller, the property of Prince David, were discharged.

The opinion of the court was rendered orally. Judge Wilson maintained that there was a reasonable doubt in his mind regarding the guilt of the defendants in the case. The court did not believe that the prosecution had made out a strong enough case to warrant the defendants being held for the Circuit Court. The judge also took occasion to refer to the testimony of Leeper, the only important witness for the prosecution. It was the opinion of the court that the evidence of Leeper was very contradictory and upon such testimony he failed to see where any jury would convict.

With the discharge of Messrs. Cunningham and Morgan it is believed that Prince David will not attempt to prosecute farther. On the other hand, it is reported that Mr. Cunningham is seriously considering the filing of a suit for damages against the prosecutors in the conspiracy case. Cunningham avers that his business interests have suffered as a result of the charges made against him.

Saddle Notes.

The Conoy Island Jockey Club has opened an extra stake for the Autumn meeting at the Sheephead Bay race track in the Rockaway Steeplechase Stakes, for hunters four years old and upward, that have been qualified under the rules of the Steeplechase and Hunt Association by being hunted regularly through the season of 1900-1901, at special weights, with penalties and allowances. To the stakes of $25 each, play or pay, the club will add $900, with an additional $100 in plate in case the winner should be a horse ridden by a gentleman rider. Horses owned and hunted in Canada are eligible to the race. Entries will close for the race on Monday, July 29th.

Tod Sloan has gone into the racing business in France and has secured the services of C. E. Durnell as trainer. He has registered his colors with the Steeple Chase society, as "yellow jacket, blue sleeves and black cap." J. Reiff won the first race for him the other day.

Goodwin's Official Turf Guide, No. 7, the first issue of the second volume of the work, has just been issued. The book carries the record of racing East and West up to date, with the usual indexed tables of form. A new feature of the publication is a list of the jockeys riding in all parts of the United States, with the lowest weights that each can ride at.

Messrs. Clay & Woodford have purchased through the American Blood Stock Agency the English stallions Bridgewater and St. Evox. Bridgewater is a bay horse foaled 1894 by Hampton, dam Barnmaid by Gallard, out of Loch Garry by Blair Athol, etc., and St. Evox is a bay horse foaled 1895 by St. Simon, dam Saltire by Bend Or, out of Stillwater by Cathedral, etc. Price private.

Pink Coat took the lead at the last furlong post in the Wheeler handicap at Chicago July 20th, and, holding his advantage to the end, finished a handy winner by half a length from the heavily weighted Advance Guard. The Conqueror II was a close third, being a neck behind the second horse. The attendance at Washington Park was 15,000. Twelve horses went to the post. Five to one was offered against any horse in the race.

The registry of the racing colors of William K. Vanderbilt with the registrar of The Jockey Club, the body governing racing and turf affairs on the tracks in the Eastern States of the United States, last week, gave the first intimation of the intention of Mr. Vanderbilt to engage in racing in America. Promptly following the record of the colors claimed by Mr. Vanderbilt, white jacket, with a black hoop on each sleeve, and a black cap, the statement was made by persons who pretended to know that Mr. Vanderbilt had become tired of his plan of racing exclusively in France, and would send a choice lot of horses of his own breeding from his French breeding farm to America and campaign them on the New York tracks. He has been engaged in racing in France for the past three years, and formed an establishment there, because under the French law only French-bred horses can compete in races other than a few open events of the nature of the Grand Prix of Paris. To form this breeding stud, Mr. Vanderbilt, through an agent, bought fifteen of the best bred mares that the late Pierre Lorillard would sell, the price at the time being stated at $50,000. These mares were sent to France, where Mr. Vanderbilt placed them at Maison-Lafitte, a great estate that he purchased for the purpose, while on the race-track at Poissy, which he also secured, he established training quarters. Last year the first of the horses of the Vanderbilt breeding raced, but with little success. In the fall of last season Mr. Vanderbilt followed the example of other European turfmen and engaged an American jockey, in Eddie McJoynt, but McJoynt rode for him only a part of this season, and a short time ago asked for and obtained his release. The names of half a dozen well known trainers were mentioned in connection with the expected Vanderbilt stable in America, but no positive announcement of an engagement was made. Mr. Vanderbilt fifteen years ago, was the reputed owner of several fair horses that raced in this country, but the ownership always was denied. He has been a constant visitor to races at the Sheephead Bay track, however, and has been known to hack his fancies with a great degree of success there, acting as his own betting agent. His fondness for the Coney Island Jockey Club's track may be in part explained by the fact that he is the largest stockholder in the club, his holdings, in fact, giving him practical control of the property, the most valuable of all the New York race tracks.

GUN.

At the Traps.

The Olympic Gun Club live bird and blue rock medals, five of each, are now on exhibit at Clahrough, Golcor & Co.'s saleroom. The prizes are of gold, tasteful in design and beautifully chased. The trophies for the two championship classes are studded with diamonds.

The regular monthly blue rock shoot of the Empire Gun Club will bring out a large number of trap shooters to the club grounds at Alameda Point to-morrow.

The blue rock hulkheads at Ingleside will be at the disposal of shooters who wish to smash a few clay pigeons for practice.

The State Live Bird Tournament, under the auspices of the California Wing Club, Olympic and San Francisco Gun Clubs, will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 30th, 31st and September 1st, on the association trap grounds at Ingleside. Except in two events, the Gold Dust trophy and the Fay diamond medal, the shooters will be handicapped in distance by the official handicapper, on a sliding scale, determined by the individual performance during each day. Accordingly as a contestant shoots well or indifferently, after killing a certain number of birds, he will be put back a yard, or should he fail to connect with his pigeons, he is put forward a yard from time to time. The distance limit is from twenty-six to thirty-two yards inclusive. To penalize the gun beyond the thirty-two yard mark was believed to practically handicap a shooter out of the contests, hence the limit at that point. Messrs. Geo. H. T. Jackson, J. J. Sweeney and Clarence A. Haight have started the preliminary work necessary and from all indications a large entry and a generous list of cash prizes, etc., will be given with a splendid program of events.

The San Francisco Gun Club live bird shoot for July will give club members and pigeon shooters an opportunity to grass live birds at Ingleside to-morrow. The final live bird shoot of the club will take place on Sunday, August 26th; the concluding club race will be at twenty-five pigeons. The member making the highest score for the season will win an elegant diamond medal. The other members who have competed in the six club races will be divided into four classes after the final shoot. The high gun in each class will receive a cash prize of $30 and $20 will be awarded to the second high gun. The classification will be arranged as follows: The list of members who have shot up scores in the six club shoots, highest to lowest scores inclusive, will be divided into four equal parts. The two high guns in each class resulting will be awarded the cash prizes. The high average medal winner is barred from any money awards. In the four monthly shoots held already this season, out of a possible sixty, the scores stand in the order given below, it will be seen that Karnoy and Jackson are high men so far. Dr. Derby and C. A. Haight can tie the high guns by a straight back score, and C. A. Rosenberg with one clean back score would be high, by three birds, for the four shoots:

† Back scores shot up * Scores to be shot up.

The initial tournament of the Avalon Gun Club at Catalina island was well attended by sportsmen. J. E. Vaughan was high average man and won the Tufts-Lyons challenge medal, Hotel Metropole trophy and purse. Dr. A. M. Barker was second high average shooter. A. M. Shields and T. L. Lewis of this city participated in several events.

Following is the total score and average of the leading contestants in the two days' shoot: Mathfeld 308—89.2, Alexander 259—75.0, Van Valkenburg 298—86.3, Jewell 220—63.7, Loud 268—77.7, Barker 310—80.8, Vaughan 314—91.0, Wisley 268—87.6, Gilbert 278—80.5, Orr 264—76.5.

At Ingleside last Sunday some good scores were made at the live bird traps. The birds were a very fair lot as a rule; weather conditions however were not enjoyable, a west wind and cold foggy day prevailing during most of the shooting. Mr. Haight killed two dozen birds very cleverly from the 32-yard mark. In this shoot Mr. Donohoe missed two and one pigeon dropped out. In a fifteen bird shoot Mr. Haight again shot a clean score, Mr. Donohoe lost a bird "dead out." In a race at six birds, shooting from the 35-yard line, Donohoe killed straight beating Haight one bird, both shooters had previously tied with ten each in a twelve pigeon match. Two races between Mr. Donohoe and Dr. McConnell followed, Donohoe finally won on a straight, beating the Doctor by one pigeon. In this event Donohoe shot a strong race, making killing centers with the first barrel on every bird. Geo. Sylvester, in shooting up a string of fifteen birds, lost the tenth over the wire fence. H. Justins lost three birds out of twenty-one, missing his sixth and eighth, the thirteenth hard hit, fell dead out of bounds. The scores made were the following:

The Olympic Gun Club monthly blue rock shoot at Ingleside last Sunday was but slimly attended, the fact that the weather was dreary and windy possibly accounted for the lack of interest shown by the members. The usual gold and silver bar competition, however, was indulged in; Will J. Golcher and M. Burnell each won a gold bar, two winners of silver bars were: A. J. Wobb three, E. L. Forster two, H. Justins two, C. W. Debenham and C. A. Haight one each. In the first fifteen bird pool event, Haight and Forster divided first and second moneys, Webb, Debenham and Cooper up third money. Webb won first and Haight and Debenham divided second and third money in the second add money fifteen bird race. Forster and Webb with fifteen straight took first and second money and third was divided by Golcher, Haight and Justins in the third fifteen bird race. Webb was high gun in the regular club race. The scores in the several events were as follows:

The Sacramento Gun Club held the final blue rock shoot for the season at Eckhardt's Park on the 21st inst.

The event of the day was the contest by the club members for the first class medal put up by W. H. Eckhardt, who had won it five times. Only the winners of the second and third class medals were barred. The prize fell to Mr. Gusto, with a score of 21 out of 25. Charles Palm secured the second class medal for the season, having (including Sunday's shoot) won it four times. Messrs. Davey and Beardsley tied for the third class medal, each having won it three times, and in the shoot-off Davey won with a score of 16 to 11 out of 25.

For the first prize in the merchandise shoot, a 22-caliber rifle, there was a tie on twenty-two between Mossrs. Davis and Maxwell, which they settled satisfactorily between themselves, Mr. Davis becoming the owner of the rifle. Kindsberg, Stevens and Vetter tied on 21 for the second prize, a Victoria gun case, and Vetter won in the shoot-off. For the third prize, a sole-loather shell case, Black and Bosco tied with 20 each, and in the shoot-off Black won. Charles Palm took fourth prize, a cleaning rod, with a score of 19, and Shaffer won fifth, a hand protector, with 18 breaks.

Following are the scores of the several events:

A live bird shoot at Cordella last Sunday was held under the guiding hand of mine host Charley Hall. Several six, ten and twelve bird events were on the schedule. C. H. Shaw was high gun for the day. In a six bird match for creature comforts Hall beat Col. Hosmer by the small margin of one bird. In one six bird pool, six shooters dropped every bird, the purse was carried over and put up in a twelve bird race, the winners were C. H. Shaw and Andrew Jackson. The scores in the several events were the following:

Match at 10 pigeons—

Shaw, C. H.	22222	12012—9
Jackson, G. H. T.	21111	*1111—9

comprises "a valuable food supply for the people" and should be taken care of accordingly. This means that the general sportsman, lacking a lucky acquaintance or not having the proper influence to secure a permit, will have to pay a fee for the privilege of hunting over some one else's possessions. While this prospect is not so particularly bad in principle it will, however, work disastrously against the sportsmen at large. Should this custom prevail to any general extent, the solution of the question will be settled by the establishment of a preserve system that will in a few years embrace all of the shooting country, particularly deer hunting districts, in the State. While it is very apparent that eventually the only manner by which game may be had in sufficient numbers for the sportsman to enjoy a shoot, will be through protection and propagation on preserved lands, the time for a change to this system is not by many years at hand, and so radical a change now is harsh and unnecessary and in the nature of an imposition and hardship upon the majority of sportsmen.

The open season for doves will prevail from August 1st until February 1st. All of the county ordinances in vogue last season are in whole or partly in conflict with the present game law and consequently of no effect now.

Doves are reported to be plentiful in many sections. In the vicinity of Marysville, where the birds have heretofore been numerous, the report is that they have apparently deserted that section.

An Incident in the Marin Hills.

The western portion of Marin county, extending northerly from the shadows of Mt. Tamalpais, is a series of ridges and mountains whose rugged sides and verdure clad slopes are escalloped with deep and tortuous gulches, wooded canyons and interspersed with picturesque valleys. In this region deer abound. The adventure described below by our correspondent took place within twenty-five miles of this city and is interesting in many respects. In this section deer have been rigidly protected, does and fawns have, as a general rule, enjoyed immunity from molestation. The ability of bucks to fight off a dog is well known, but it falls to the province of but few observers to witness an occurrence such as is here given:

OLEMA, July 11, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—A little thing happened this morning under my observation that might possibly interest some of your readers. "To reap and sow and plow and mow, to be a farmer's boy," is not all a farmer's life. He must haul in his harvest. In "Merrie England" it is customary to set apart a day as a holiday, to commemorate the ingathering of the crops, this day is called the Harvest Home.

This morning just about noon I was driving four horses along a steep side hill, two men were gathering up the scattered hay and pitching the cocks of hay into the wagon preparatory to carrying it home. Turning my head I saw within one hundred feet of the crest of the hill a doe and a spotted fawn. "Mira! Mira!" (see! see!) I called to my Spanish men at arms. Looking up from their work, they hid my Pointer dog onto the pair, mother and fawn. At the first approach of the dog away went the fawn like a flash, out of sight. Not so the mother. She faced the oncoming dog, shook her head, stamped her forefoot, gave battle and drove back the canine intruder. The doe then complacently walked back on to the ridge. Soon after the doe had reached her point of observation, the spotted fawn came out of the brush, moved around a stump in a semi-circular direction, to meet the maternal protector. Don, the Pointer, was again put after the doe by the men; their curiosity was greatly aroused, the doe showing that she was eminently capable of protecting herself and progeny. Again the fawn skipped afar to the brush for safety. Not so "mater cervus," again she faced the foe gallantly, charged the dog and drove him back to within forty feet of our wagon and then, when in reaching distance, she struck the Pointer a vicious hard slap with one of her front feet which made him retreat, howling with pain, for safety under the wagon. The doe then turned and swaggered up the hill, a veritable hullyling rowdy in carriage, on the crest she wheeled about, looked down upon the surprised outfit with an air akin to contempt, snorted a farewell defiance and then quickly bounding away disappeared, in quest probably of her spotted offspring for whom she had battled so bravely, risking freedom and for whose welfare and safety she showed she would have given up her life. The Fishin' Fever.

'Long about this time o' year I sort o' get a wish
I'd jis' cut loose a spell an' fish, an' fish an' fish;
Gittin' all-fired weary of th' stuffy, sweaty town,
Want to go where I can hear the water tricklin' down
Thru a medder summers an' in underneath a tree,
Where th' ol' sun kind of peeks an' shimmers down at me,
Set there by a pool an' smoke an' think an' fish. W'y Sir,
'Long about this time o' year that's wuth a livin' fer.

One day saw a little gal a dabbila' of her feet
In a gutter stream that made a puddle in the street,
Sittin' there upon the curb an' keepin' mighty still,
Had a heat pin on a line an' fishin' 't to kill.
I stood there a achin' fer to hug that kid an' say
Your all right, an' this ol' man is feelin' jis' that way.
'Long about this time o' year fer workin' I ain't fit;
Got the fishin' fever on an' can't git over it.

Want to git out all alone an' set a dreamin' dreams.
Want to smell the pine trees an' to hear the mountain streams;
Want to git on top th' range an' waller in th' snow,
Then look down an' see the world a mile or two below;
There is somethin' magic in a breath o' mountain air,
Makes a feller feel somehow that God Himself is there.
'Long about this time o' year, w'y, don't you understand?
Want to go to Nature an' to grab her by the hand.

Denver News.

Fly-fishing on the Truckee is now in the best condition and will continue for some time.

Striped bass fishing is improving. Catches are reported at numerous points around the bay. The fish caught in the estuary are tainted with petroleum from the tank ships loaded at the oil wharf.

An antidote for mosquito poison has been published by Consul General Guenther who writes from Frankfurt: "Professor Doctor Voges, Director of the National Board of Health at Buenos Ayres, according to German papers, has found a remedy for mosquito bites. He states that he discovered it by accident during his trip to Paraguay to study the pest. He had been supplied with all sorts of remedies, among them naphthalene, an article of no value whatever against the insect, but on using it for mosquito bites, he found it of surprising effect. It neutralizes the poison, even when the bitten spot is greatly inflamed. If fresh bites are rubbed with naphthalene, no swelling follows. The professor considers naphthalene almost a specific against mosquito bites."

The striped bass angler halts his fishin' hook
With his, fat clams as he has dug.
And while he waits for hites with anxious look
Yer hears the gurgle gurgle uv his jug.

A Bench Show at Los Angeles.

The local fancy are well pleased to know that the bench show at Los Angeles under the auspices of the Sixth District Agricultural Association is now an assured fixture. The officers of the association are E. T. Wright, President; F. G. Teed, Secretary; H. J. Fleishman, Treasurer; C. E. De Camp, H. J. Fleishman, E. T. Wright, S. N. Andrews, G. B. Barham, C. M. Baker, N. A. Covarrubias and Martin Nash Board of Directors. A dog show will be a new departure as one of the features of the Los Angeles Fair—the proposition to hold the show in Los Angeles originated with progressive spirits in the South and immediately found general support. Under the present guaranteed auspices, and particularly as an exhibition of this nature has not been held in Los Angeles for four years or more, the project has taken a firm hold. The show will be given under A. K. C. rules, for which the proper credentials have already been issued by Mr. J. P. Norman, Secretary of the Pacific Advisory Board. The premium list has been submitted for approval and will be issued at as early a day as practicable. The list is almost identical with that issued by the S. F. Kennel Club last May, the changes in regard to classes being of minor importance only. The cash inducements are liberal—$5.00 to first, $2.00 to second and a medal or diploma to third is a satisfying concession. Generous cash prizes will also be offered to handlers.

The vexed question of judging seems to have been settled by the proposal to select resident talent. It is believed that among the eligibles, Mr. L. A. Klein will be invited to judge the big breeds, pet, toy dogs and all terriers, excepting Fox Terriers, which breed can be looked after in the ring by no one better qualified on the Coast than Charles A. Sumner, of Los Angeles, a Fox Terrier fancier and breeder well known and able. The sporting breed would be properly looked after by Mr. J. B. Stoddard, of Encinita, San Diego county, should that gentleman accept the invitation to judge Pointers, Setters and Spaniels.

Mr. David J. Sinclair has been appointed Superintendent of the bench show. His connection with bench shows for many years past and personal acquaintance with most of the fanciers on the Coast is a strong endorsement that the preliminary routine and detail and the conduct of a successful show in Los Angeles is assured.

A partial canvas among the prominent lights of dogdom here is encouraging for a large entry from this city. Mr. L. A. Klein will take down a string of dogs, for exhibition only, that will be remarkable in many respects. Some of the dogs in his string have gone over the Eastern circuits several times and won out over all competitors. Others again have cleaned out everything in their class in England before coming over here. The advertisement appears on page 12.

Doings in Dogdom.

We have an order for a King Charles Spaniel bitch. Particulars can be obtained from the Kennel Editor.

Mr. Byron Erkenbrecher of Los Angeles informs us of the recent loss of his Bull Terrier Teddy Roosevelt. On page 12 of this issue will be found a notice of $50 reward for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties now having the dog in possession. We hope Mr. Erkenbrecher will soon have his dog.

Fifty Setters and thirty Pointers, a total of eighty entries for the Manitoba Derby, is a record entry. The list is also a record one for quality. The All-Age and Championship Stakes close August 1st, these stakes promise as well for entries as the Derby. The trials at Carmen this year will be the largest ever run by the club.

The Ladies Kennel Club was organized at a meeting held in the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN on Friday evening, July 19th. Mrs. A. A. Roi, who has a penchant for Maltese Terriers, was chosen temporary chairman; Miss Belle Woodward, who fancies the "Holy breed," was elected secretary. Mrs. M. Tromboni, a lady who favors Dachshunds, and Mrs. N. P. Rosenberg, who banks on Irish Terriers, were appointed a committee on constitution and by-laws. Communications were received from a number of ladies desirous of joining the new club. A meeting will be held again at the same place Friday evening, August 2d, at 8:15 P. M.

We note with regret the death of a staunch, good old Pointer, a dog known and liked by every sportsman in this city, Dave Thom's Nick. Nick was a black dog of the old Pape stock, being a son of James Watson's Black Joe and Black Bess—two noted black Pointers brought out here by Mr. Watson some twelve years ago. Rex, a litter brother to Nick, was given to Crit Robinson by Dave Thom when both dogs were very young puppies. Mr. Robinson in a recent letter mentions Rex as being on his last legs and ready to succumb—as did Nick, to the decline of old age. Nick has been the canine chum and hunting companion of Dave Thom for about eleven years. An illustration of the dog's faithful character is shown in a picture taken by James Maynard, Jr., during a quail hunting trip in Alameda county. Mr. Maynard's black Pointer Thom, a son of Nick, and Clarence Haight's Setter Starlight are shown standing in the road in front of two sportsmen, both dogs intently facing the camera. Old Nick is seen to the left, standing rigid and steadily watching a fence gate—he knew his friend and master was inside the enclosure and he had thought for no one nor anything else until Uncle Dave came outside again.

We note in Kennel Registry to-day a notable whelping of Dachshunds. On the 18th inst. in the kennels of Mr. J. C. Berret, a prominent San Jose fancier, three dogs and one bitch puppy were whelped by L. A. Klein's Champion Venlo. Mr. Berret reports that the matron and young ones are doing nicely. This is the first litter of Mr. Klein's California bred dogs, they were sired by Col. Walter S. Martin, Jr.'s Rex M. Mr. Klein brought this bitch purposely to San Francisco to breed to this particular dog. This mating is an exposition of high art in breeding. A careful perusal of the pedigrees will illustrate why it should be so considered. Rex M. is by Champion Phenomenon Reinecke (imported from Germany by Mr. Arthur Frommholz of Chicago, and it is a true type of the German working Dachshunde) out of Champion What's Wanted (imported from England by Mr. Klein, and a bitch of pronounced old English type and quality). Champion Venlo, by Champion Venlo's Best Man (Professor Puck ex Champion Venlo's Squaw, second dam Champion What's Wanted) out of The Shrew of Venlo, a full sister to Rex M.

It is a noticeable fact that a number of very good specimens of Dachs can be found in this city. Among the recent arrivals of good ones can be mentioned Prof. C. E. Strashurger's Heisel. Mr. Klein who always had a penchant for the "long variety" since he was a youth, breeding and showing winners in Germany when he was a school boy, would particularly like to meet fanciers interested in the Dachshund and invites Dachshund men to meet him at his office Room 7, 420 Montgomery street.

Glenwood Kennels' Bull Terrier bitch Newmarket Queen is heavy in whelp to Woodcote Wonder.

Norfolk Truman's first Coast progeny arrived here on the 12th inst. in charge of W. J. Foster's Lillian Sage, a good brood bitch, too.

Louis Schneider, who used to own Old Jacob, a noted dog in his day, has purchased a bitch puppy, one month old, by Monk of Frisco out of Nellie G. This litter of English Setters belonging to Stange and Henning are said to be splendid young puppies.

P. D. Linville is banking on a prospective litter of English Setters out of his good bitch Love Knot by Henry L. Betten's Cavalier. Love Knot is by Mercury out of Sweetheart's Last. This litter will be bred in the purple most surely. The lines on both sides are of the best.

Plumeria Fancy, the handsome red Cocker bitch winner of first, limit, open and winners here in May will soon be sent East by C. E. Plume to the Buffalo Pan-American bench show. The fact that Ben Lewis will handle the local crack shows the good judgment of Mr. Plume and is also a criterion of merit in the bitch's favor. Mr. Lewis has the reputation of not wasting any talent on undeserving material.

It has always been more or less of a puzzle why "just dog" owners and breeders of dogs should foster the idea that the male sex of the genus canine is preferable to the female as a house companion. Much of this antipathy to the bitch is due to imagination or misinformation, says The American Stock-Keeper. Of course, the main objection, unless one is so situated that the trouble in finding a safe retreat during the periods of oestrus is reduced to a minimum, is the care at the period named. This, happily, covers out a month or so out of the twelve. There are always facilities in every house, and even in a flat some corner can be found, where the family pet may be secured for the time. In the village home, where the bitch is allowed free run, either the afore-suggested corner is always available or a room in the attic, or, failing that, a box. This naturally entails a little extra care, but is it not worth while when one considers the more tender and undivided and sympathetic affection which a bitch devotes to its master or mistress than does the male. The male has his affairs, takes an interest in the canine politics of the village and at times his duty to his master is but lightly considered, while his manners are not always to be relied upon. Mind, we do not decry the male dog as a companion but the raison d'être of our complaint is that there should be such an inconceivable preponderance of leaning towards his sex in preference to the "ladies." The short periods when the bitch is in retirement are very much more than offset by the greater cleanliness of the female in the house. Some dogs are downright nuisances and no one knows how a puppy may turn out, and, in any case, as much trouble in training is necessary as would offset the month's care of the bitch at the time named. Then again, in the matter of sport, which sex is the keener on a bit of vermin or sport?—the female. It is well known that a bitch pack of hounds usually affords the faster, keener sport. Again, supposing one's inclination and facilities of menage run to several dogs, and there is no comparison between the sexes in the care and watching they will require, for the bitches are not prone to quarrel and more bitches will dwell in harmony together than dogs. Then let the voice of the breeder, and the kennel journalist who leads so many to the dogs, be lifted in favor of the "ladies." Many a good dog is "paled" because it is a bitch, and all on account of this foolish predilection for the male sex as loving companions.

The Trimming of Dogs.

The trimming of dogs for the passing purposes of the public show has always been a vexed problem for exhibitors, says London Field editorially; they balt between opinions—some defending the custom, while others, unfortunately the minority, deprecate it. The advocates of the custom argue that they have as much right to trim the hair or coats of their dogs as their neighbors have to subject their horses to similar treatment, with no better object than to display their leading features to the best advantage. It is perhaps a good thing that the horse and the dog are not in this matter on an equality. The supporters of dog trimming, indeed, might find a better analogy in the curious device of coloring sheep for glorification at shows, but they should note that there is a movement on foot to abolish the practice, which has for so long been followed by flockmasters in connection with certain varieties of sheep. The fact remains that the trimming of many breeds of dogs, such as Terriers, has latterly been advanced to an extent that approaches an art. A recent writer, a large exhibitor and breeder of Scottish Terriers, says that the sides of the dog's head are "trimmed" down pretty well to the bare skin until the animal has been thoroughly transmogrified, and if the majority of our leading Terriers were shown absolutely au naturel they would find it a difficult thing to "struggle into the money." This refers to but a single variety of the dog, one less trimmed than some others. Though the custom is to some extent encouraged by the Kennel Club, it is impossible to say what latitude is allowed. The exhibitor, therefore, does not know how far he may go. It is to be deplored that the judges themselves are so mixed up with the custom of trimming and with the Kennel Club that they are incapable of taking action with regard to the former. As the matter stands at present, the sin is not so much in its commission as in its discovery, and, so long as the operator is clever enough to hide his handiwork, the breed or variety upon which he manipulates is the sufferer, and not, as justice would ordain, himself.

Scottish and Irish Terriers.

The claim that the Irish Terrier is the Scottish Terrier under another name, and for which warrant is found in books published twenty years ago, is one that will not stand the test of investigation. The reason is that the dog we now know as the Scottish Terrier was not then called by that name, and what was then classed as a Scottish Terrier was a rough dog of about the size of the wire-haired Fox Terrier, not particularly hard in coat. Any red or sandy dog with a rough coat, including head as well as body, was in those days called a Scottish Terrier in England, and our present day Scottish Terrier had various local names, and was generally considered a variety of Skye Terrier. In fact, the best picture we have seen for a present-day Scottish Terrier of that period appears in the late Hugh Dalziel's British Dogs, and is there styled a Skye Terrier. Mr. Dalziel was a Scotchman from Ayrshire, if we mistake not, and was well acquainted with the dogs of Southern Scotland, and yet he makes no reference to the commonly called Scotch Terrier of that time as a breed, for there was no breed that was recognized as such. Neither does Stonehenge touch upon them. If we say that the Irish Terrier was developed from the nondescript, commonly called Scotch Terrier, it is a very different thing from alleging at this date that because such was the case, if it was so, that the Scottish Terrier was the origin of the Irish Terrier.

Apart from that we have what every one can see for himself, that the Scottish Terrier is very much lower on the leg and that he is entirely different in color from any other variety except the Skye. The Irish Terrier, on the other hand, is the highest on the leg of any variety, and his color, so far as there is any record, was never that of the Scottish Terrier's which, when not very dark, are white. The special chroniclers of these two national breeds have taken pains to assure us that for at least one hundred years the present-day type was what was then the rule as to size and build; and where, may we ask, was the parting of the ways which led to their being so established.

If it is correct to assume that the Scottish Terrier is the progenitor of the Irish Terrier, why was it when the quoted authorities so stated or guessed, they gave no account or description of the Scottish Terrier from which the Irish Terrier descended. It would be only natural for a novice seeking information as to the various breeds from Stonehenge or Vero Shaw, when he comes across the assertions that in all likelihood the Irish was merely the Scotch Terrier in a new guise, to seek for some account of the breed from which the descent was made, and to find that no such breed is described, must be somewhat puzzling and difficult to understand. It is true that in Vero Shaw we find the author in his few introductory remarks prefacing a description of the Scotch (Scottish) Terrier by Mr. Morrison, for at that time Mr. Shaw knew so little about the breed he could write nothing of personal knowledge, alleging that there is fair ground for assuming that the Irish originated from the Scotch Terriers, but if any one who possesses his book will refer to the illustration on page 124 of two alleged Irish Terriers of 1875 he will see what Mr. Shaw and writers of that period meant by Scotch Terriers. He quotes a dissenting opinion as to these being Scotch Terriers, to the following effect: "Look at the head of this dog (Kate)—if Scotch blood is not stamped on it then I know nothing. Look at the long hair on the forehead, with the vein or equal division in the centre. Look again at the long hair on the muzzle and under the jaw. And if, as I say, this does not denote the Scotch cross and a good deal of it, then I know nothing about the points which constitute an Irish Terrier. The surest sign of Scotch blood in a rough Terrier is the length of hair on forehead. Another thing which goes to prove the Scotch cross is the vein or furrow running at the center of the forehead. This is not met with in the Irish Terriers." The furrow referred to is the parting of the hair in the center. We thus find that the Scotch Terrier, as then generally understood, was a dog rough all over, as we have stated. Yet when we turn to the description of the Scotch (Scottish) Terrier, a few pages further on in Vero Shaw, we find that the head must be "free from long, soft or woolly hair or topknot. Shaw, in saying that Scotch emigrants took their dogs to Ireland and established the breed, and then publishing the statement that the Scottish Terrier was a breed of the islands and maintained on the northwest of Scotland, contradicts himself, for the people of that section did not emigrate to Ireland and take the Presbyterian religion with them. The Southern Scotch undoubtedly did, but they had none of the Scottish Terrier breed to take with them. The fact is Shaw knew practically nothing about the Scottish Terrier, and it was that dog he meant when he wrote his book.

Little as Shaw knew of the Scottish Terrier, Stonehenge knew less. In fact, a more over-rated reputation as an all-round canine authority was never accorded anyone. On the Greyhound and coursing he was almost the authority of England, and he had good knowledge of Hounds, Setters and Pointers, but outside of these his knowledge was from casual observation. We will take his third edition of the Dogs of the British Islands, 1878, as proof. Book III. is "Terriers (other than Fox and Toy)." Chapter I. is "Nondescript Terriers." Chapter II., "Special Breeds of Rough Terriers. The Skye—drop and prick-eared—Dandie Dimont, Bedlington, Yorkshire, Irish Terriers." Chapter III. is confined to smooth Terriers.

A few extracts from the letterpress will show that the statement of his lack of knowledge is fully warranted outside of any facts with which we are personally acquainted: "Since the first edition of this book was published a considerable change has taken place in the type of several of the Terrier family. At that time the Yorkshire Terrier was represented by an animal only slightly differing from the old Scotch dog, his shape being nearly exactly the same, and his coat simply differing in being more silky. Such an animal was Mr. Spink's Bounce, as introduced in the accompanying engraving." This engraving shows what we would now-a-days call a rough mongrel Terrier, and he is somewhat larger than a white Terrier which stands this side of him, and which is described as follows: "Mr. Pierce's Venture represents what is now called the rough Fox Terrier, but formerly known as the white Scotch Terrier." Because this was said by Stonehenge in 1878, would anyone now-a-days assert that the wire-haired Terrier is descended from the Scottish Terrier?

The third rough Terrier in the group resembles in his prick ears and size the Scottish Terrier, but his head is not smooth, though not so rough as to cover or hide the eyes. We will now extract from Chapter II., under the head of Skye Terriers: "As both definite strains recently described by Mr. J. Gordon Murray under the various names of 'Moystads,' 'Drynocks' and 'Camusenarries,' I confess I am not a little sceptical. In any case, it is premature to attempt a description of them until some further evidence is afforded, which has not yet appeared, although his (Mr. J. Gordon Murray's) article and portrait of a specimen brought by him to London appeared several months ago, and if the likeness is a good one a very ugly brute he is." Now, this likeness was that of Otter, a very typical present-day Scottish Terrier, referred to above as being illustrated by Dalziel as a Skye Terrier, and of which Dalziel himself writes—and he had seen the dog: "Otter has nothing but his decidedly 'varmint' look to recommend him. He is decidedly ugly, and to ask fanciers of dogs and lovers of the beautiful in these animals to give up the charming Skye Terriers, brought to their present perfection by careful and judicious breeding, and take in their place such a dog as Otter, I can only consider one of those ponderous things known as a 'Scotch joke'." To ask us to change the coats of dogs principally kept for their beauty, one of the great charms of the modern Skye, for the harsh, uncultured one as covers Otter would be equivalent to asking the descendants of Highland gentlemen settled in the South to give up all the advantages of modern civilization and culture and betake themselves to the garb of a Dunneivassal of the last century; but all this is giving Mr. Murray the benefit of his assertion, that a short coat is the correct thing and the original, which I do not grant.

These extracts are not meant to in any way disparage the Scottish Terriers which Otter so well represented, but to demonstrate convincingly that when writers of that period said or implied that the Irish Terrier was akin to the Scotch Terrier it was not the Otter kind they meant. To go back to Stonehenge and his assertion that Otter was a very ugly brute, we find appended to the article on the Irish Terrier contributed by Mr. Ridgway, illustrated by the good bitch Spuds, a footnote by Stonehenge that it was inserted at the request of influential breeders of the strain, there being twenty-five signatures to the description and scale of points, and he then adds: "I am still, however, of opinion that the dog differs in no respect from the rough Scotch Terrier commonly met with throughout England during the early part of the present century." It was really the influence of Mr. Dalziel, who wrote much of Stonehenge's book, that secured the insertion of Mr. Ridgway's article in the third edition of the Dogs of the British Islands.—Field and Fancy.

THE FARM.

Breeding Age for Heifers.

There seems to be present in the minds of most dairy farmers two ideas when they come to consider the question of the right time to breed a heifer for her first calf.

Those who have thought the most thoroughly on the subject generally agree that the main consideration to be kept in mind is to start the working of the maternal organs at an early age, so that the internal development of the cow shall be along the line of milk giving. They realize that there is a chance that the development of flesh making will overwhelm the tendency to milk secretion unless the heifer is started on that road at a sufficiently early age. So with men who think along specific dairy lines, who are after the best dairy cow they can produce, the heifer is bred young, say at 12 to 15 months of age. One thing more, however, must be done. It is not enough that the heifer should be bred at the right period; she must not be allowed to become too fleshy before breeding, else she may have difficulty to get in calf and the tendency of her secretions started in the wrong direction. She should be kept in a thrifty, growing condition, and her grain feed from calfhood up mainly oats and bran and other food of a protein character. There is nothing better in the way of a food for the proper development of a heifer than skim milk. Most farmers relinquish feeding the calf skim milk at 6 months of age. It can be profitably fed until she is 10 months old.

The other idea spoken of at the beginning of this article is the question of the size of the future cow. And so farmers in whose minds there is the preponderating idea breed their heifers at 18 to 20 months of age.

They believe that early maternity will reduce the size of the cow somewhat, so they take the risk of reducing the milking power in order to secure more size.

In some places in Europe the practice prevails of breeding the heifers at 15 months and holding them back for the second calf until they are 3½ years old. But this practice is in vogue mainly among men who are anxious to produce the best beef animal. They recognize the value of early maternity in securing a good start in developing milk secretion and to prevent future barrenness; but what they are after in the main is size.

On the whole we believe it the wisest course for those who wish first class dairy cows to breed the heifer at 15 months of age and keep her steadily at her work thereafter, so long as she will breed and is a profitable cow, with about sixty days' intermission between calves.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Tax on Sheep.

Judge Morrow of the United States Circuit Court has issued an order which will be of great interest to sheep men who use mountain ranges during the summer. Several of the mountain counties have a special tax of 10 cents per head on all sheep and lambs in the county owned by non-residents. The case in question was brought by P. J. Flanagan against Sierra county and August Burch, License Collector of that county, for an order restraining them from collecting this tax on 30,000 sheep owned by plaintiff. Judge Morrow granted the order on the ground that the tax is unconstitutional, as it discriminates in favor of resident owners and does not impose a license on hogs, cattle or horses grazing in that county and owned by non-residents.

The report of a recent Hereford sale held at Sydney, Australia, shows that this breed is also in high favor in that country. The top price at the sale was 175 guineas, or about $894, and a number of animals were disposed of at a figure not far below this.

Sheep Notes.

The ewe flock should have the best pasture on the farm.

Keep salt in the pastures where sheep can help themselves.

Sheep should have a change of pasture as often as possible.

The best mutton is obtained from sheep kept growing.

Sheep always do better when kept quiet. Do not frighten them.

Regular feeding and steady growth make good wool and good lambs.

Many good shepherds claim that sheep are healthier than any other stock. To make the most out of sheep, they should be kept a series of years.

Sheep restore to the soil a large proportion of the elements they take from it in grazing.

A good way of cleaning up a field in which sprouts are growing is to turn in the sheep.

Sheep are close grazers and on this account ought not to be allowed pasture in the meadows.

To secure the best profit with sheep the wool, mutton and lambs must do their part.

The weight of the fleece and the quality of the mutton has more to do with profit than anything else.

If sheep's hoofs get long they should be trimmed. A little attention to this may save much trouble.

A week of scant feeding or of exposure to storms will show its effect by making weak places in the staple.

Scab, foot rot, liver trouble and catarrh are all diseases that are induced by lack of thrift and lack of care.

Properly managed sheep will eat up and convert into a valuable product much coarse food that would otherwise be wasted.

A short-legged, short-bodied sheep is often heavier and will produce more wool than one that looks considerably larger.

Sheep, through the peculiar nutritiousness of their manure and the facility with which it is distributed, are valuable aids in renovating the productiveness of the land.

A fairly well graded flock of ewes bred for a few years to none but a first class ram will in a short time give as fine a flock as any could desire for practical purposes.

The only way to keep a flock up to a high standard and to keep the standard raising higher all of the time is to cull and cull. Poor mothers, poor eaters and weak constitutioned sheep should be fattened and marketed.

Do not try to crowd too many chickens into one coop or give too many to the care of one hen. Much of the mortality among young chickens is due to this cause, and many think themselves fortunate to raise one-half the chickens that are hatched out, while others by having vigorous breeding stock, taking care to keep coops clean and free from vermin, to give only wholesome food, which is not necessarily the fancy foods of boiled eggs, oatmeal, boiled rice, bread crumbs, etc., which are recommended by many, and by overcrowding in coops do not lose one in a hundred.

A rule is becoming common in Scottish show yards that no man shall act as judge in any ring in which any of the animals shown shall at any time have passed through his hands as owner. Much discussion pro and con has been indulged in touching this rule and some managements have refused to endorse it.

A friend of the cow comes to the front with the following defense of the innocent and unsuspecting victim of misplaced confidence, the common, every-day cow: There has been more ingenious cunningness developed in connection with the single item of cows' milk and its products than in any other thing produced on a farm. The dairymen early learned to water and skim it, the milkmen who peddled it in dose it with formaldehyde and salicylic acid to keep it from souring, the butter maker to work casein and water into the butter and then the steer man and the hog man and the cotton seed man each took a hand to beat old Bossy out of her vested rights, while only a few commission men can handle butter and keep the ten commandments. Think of a well bred cow, one of the creator's best gifts to man, having as competitors the pump, the steer, the hog, the southern oils mills, the Chicago stock yards and northern drug stores. The wonder is that she is willing to do business at all

There is great difference in the quality of dairy salt, due both to difference in chemical composition and to the physical properties of the salt. The salt particles range in size from large blocks known as rock salt to a fine powder that gives a smooth surface when a knife is pressed to it. The coarse salts are much slower in dissolving and require longer working to work in the salt, which injures the grain of the butter. Salt that is too fine is also open to as serious objections. If the butter is worked too dry and a large amount of fine salt used, the salt will separate and form a crust on the surface of the butter. A salt that cakes or becomes quite moist when exposed to the air is not good salt for dairy purposes, as it usually contains impurities in the form of lime or magnesia.

The first beef cattle for the season of 1901 to leave Klamath county for the California market were shipped from Louis Gerber's Brookvale Farm in Klamath county, Oregon, on the first of July. There were 300 head in the drove, which were in charge of T. J. Offield. The cattle were in fine condition.

I never have as yet discovered any way of keeping my farm in a state of fertility as well as by keeping cows, says a farmer. The day has gone by when we can depend upon unaided nature to supply the elements taken by man from the soil from year to year. We have been unmerciful in our robbery of the land with which we have been intrusted, relying upon nature in some mysterious way to make up to the soil the fertility we have taken away; and she has been more than kind to us in this respect; but now at last she has drawn the line and says to us that we must give back something of the much we have stolen in years gone by. Dairying enables us to do this more effectually than we can possibly do in any other way.

Germany eats considerable horse meat, and her dealers deplore the present high price of horses in America which precludes the exportation of horse quarters. The Germans have gone into horse-steak eating with their eyes wide open, and the history of the custom is not uninteresting. In 1847 the Society for the Protection of Animals at Frankfort gave its first "fresh horse-meat dinner." Thereafter, as soon as a horse was killed, the Society advertised the sale of the meat at four cents per pound. It is only in recent years that Frankfort has had a horse-meat restaurant. Frankfort slaughters, at the present time, about one thousand horses annually, employing a separate slaughterhouse for this purpose.

The proper time to market lambs has to be determined by the condition of flesh and not the size. One year after another it does not pay to hold for higher prices when they are once ready to go. If the feeder has the capacity of foretelling a better market he would better sell out those that are already fat and replace with good growers. While the markets just now are somewhat depressed future prospects seem to be good. The country is not overstocked with sheep and the people are more and more forming the mutton-eating habit.

Dried Blood for Calves.

Dried blood is not only good for a weak calf, but is an excellent remedy for any calf subject to scours. Recently a test was made with five calves that happened to be scouring at the same time. With two of these, dried blood was fed, after reducing the regular feed of milk. With the other three, the dried blood was fed without changing the supply of milk. In the former case the calves recovered from the scours after two feeds; in the latter after three feeds. With the seventy head of young calves under experiment at the Kansas Station during the past year, there has not been a single case of scours that dried blood failed to check.

In feeding dried blood, a teaspoonful at a feed is a great plenty. This should be continued until the scours disappear. In case of a weak calf, the allowance may be gradually increased to a tablespoonful at a feed. To prevent the dried blood from settling to the bottom of the pail, where the calf will be unable to get it, it may be stirred in the milk while the calf is drinking, or the milk and blood may be fed immediately after being thoroughly mixed. Since dried blood is such a cheap and effective remedy, it will pay anyone who raises young calves by hand, to have a little available, whenever a calf shows signs of disorders in its digestive tract. It can be obtained from any of the large packers. When ordering, state that the blood is wanted for feeding purposes.

A condition from which butter might be termed oily may come from several causes. The principal oils going to make up normal butter fat are olein forty per cent., stearine and palmitine fifty per cent. Olein is the factor that tends to make butter soft, the melting point being considerably below that of normal butter, while stearine and palmitine are the factors tending to make it hard, the melting point being considerably above that of normal butter. The combination of the two in the given proportions makes butter with good texture. When from any cause there is an excess of any one, then we have butter which is either too hard or too soft.

In all lines of live stock the tendency is more and more towards early maturity, and it is to be the type of hog best suited for that purpose that we should give encouragement. I believe, as a rule, we are doing so. This type is as far removed from the little, under-sized, fine-boned kind as it is from the big, coarse fellows. Intensive rather than extensive farming is the tendency, and the hog bred for quality and early maturity is most surely to be the hog of the future.—W. M. McFadden.

Top dressing the land with stable compost by mulching the grass roots helps to subserve moisture, which is fully as important in stimulating the growth of feed as is the fertilizing principle that it imparts. Shade trees in the pasture judiciously placed also serve the same end, and at the same shield the cattle from the sun's rays.

Free for all Road Horses owned and used as such by residents of the District. To be eligible the horse must have been owned by the party making the entry on July 1, 1901, and must not be entered in any race other than a local or road race. The Directors reserve the right to reject any entry to this race.

N. B.—Owners are respectfully asked to enter their horses in two classes and the Program will be arranged so that they can start in both events.

Owners of Runners, attention! One or more Running Events will be given Each Day, Entries to Close the Night Before the Race.

CONDITIONS.

Entries in the Stakes for named horses to close with the Secretary Monday, July 29, 1901. Eight entries required to fill each Stake, but the Board of Directors reserve the right to hold the entries and declare the race filled with a less number and deduct a proportionate amount of the Stake.

Stake will be divided into four moneys: 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent. 5 per cent. of the amount of the Stake will be deducted from each money won. The Board of Directors reserve the right to declare two starters a walkover. When only two start they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided 60% per cent. to the first and 33% per cent. to the second horse. A horse distancing the field shall be entitled to first and fourth moneys only, and in no other case will a horse be entitled to more than one money.

The Board of Directors reserve the right to change the hour and day of any race, except when it becomes necessary to ante-date a race, in which instance the nominators will receive three days' notice by mail to address of entry.

The right reserved to declare off or postpone any or all races on account of weather or other sufficient cause.

Entries not declared out at 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race shall be required to start and declarations must be in writing and made at the office of the Secretary at the track.

Racing colors must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race and must be worn on the track in all races.

The Board of Directors reserve the right to start any heat after the fourth score regardless of the position of the horses.

Hopples barred in trotting races, but will be permitted in pacing races.

All Stakes are guaranteed for the amount offered, and for the amount offered only.

Otherwise than as herein specified the Rules of the National Trotting Association to govern.

Two in Three.

The plan of having a few races on the two in three system is successfully tried at Detroit, and almost to a man the spectators and horsemen that have expressed an opinion on the subject are in favor of it. The only tiresome races during the meeting were the two long-drawn-out ones won by Spear and had these been two in three, much more interest would have been taken in them by every one, with the possible exception of a few bettors. Only those who have a selfish interest in racing object to this plan, and wherever it is tried the races are won by the best horses. The racing public, or that part of the public that attends trotting races for pleasure, and that pays to see the sport is desirous of a change from the present system. In races of the two in three plan there is always more life and more snap than where several horses win heats, and as a consequence drivers begin to lay up. The racing public that must be looked to as a support for racing if it shall thrive is in favor of the two in three plan, and within the next three years all but the fixed events will be on that plan. The change will come even though the bookmakers and drivers do not wish it. The present plan is responsible directly or indirectly for nearly all the evils and for all the wrecks that are seen among trotting ranks at the latter end of the season.

Given fewer heats in one day the horses will go faster and last longer.—Ky. Stock Farm.

Queer Pool Room in Chicago.

Six detectives, in charge of Clifton Woolridge, recently raided the meat market at 191 Madison street, Chicago, where William Boardman, proprietor of the place, was conducting an alleged poolroom. When the policemen entered there was no evidence of a poolroom. Instead of placards announcing the entries in the different races quarters of beef and yellow covered hams adorned the walls.

The officers, however, made a thorough search of the premises. A large dummy ham was found filled with records of bets accepted on the result of racing at Washington Park. The results of the wagers ranged from $2 to $20, and all were deposited in envelopes.

In a corner of the refrigerator was a ticker, from which was flowing the tape with all the sporting events.

The only occupants of the place at the time were William Boardman and three men, each wearing the garb of a butcher. All were arrested and taken to the central station in a patrol wagon. The dummy ham, with the registered bets and the ticker, was confiscated, and will be used as evidence in Justice Prindiville's court at the Harrison street station.

Caustic Balsam Cures Poll Evil.

Some time back I wrote you about a horse of mine having a swollen head and appearance of poll evil. His head is well or about well now, by using Gombault's Caustic Balsam.

BLANK, W. Va., Jan. 19, 1900.

R. A. SMITH.

is now the property of W. F. Steele, of New York, who formerly resided at Chicago and owned and campaigned the good Dexter Prince gelding James L. 2:09½. Capt. Roper has purchased from the Burlingame farm, Washingtonville, N. Y., the grand looking broodmare Helice, by Norval, dam by Onward, and she has at her side an unusually attractive looking bay colt by Burlingame, the son of Guy Wilkes.

Of the harness stallions kept for service in Virginia, one who represents the highest type of the trotter is the bay horse Kelly 2:27, the Palo Alto bred son of Electioneer and Esther, dam of Expressive 3, 2:12½, by thoroughbred Express. Kelly was very fast, but ever singularly unfortunate. He has sired McChesney 2:19½, about the only one of his get to be regularly trained and raced. This son of Electioneer was formerly the joint property of John E. Madden and James Cox and they refused some tempting offers for the horse, more than one reaching five figures. Later he passed to Mr. Cox and now heads Belgravia Farm, the beautiful estate of the latter near Mt. Jackson.

Mr. Cox also owns another Palo Alto bred trotter in Libbie Whips, a mare of massive build like Azote 2:04½, and others of the get of her sire Whips. Libbie Whips dam was Amrah, dam of Electwood 2:29½, by Nutwood. Another of the Belgravia farm mares is Erena 2:19½, dam of Allereyone 2:17½, and two others by Alecyone. Her foal of 1901 is the chestnut filly Helen Wilmer by Kelly, and there is no grander looking suckling in the East. Helen Wilmer is bred the reverse of what I hear spoken as one of the best at Palo Alto, viz., a yearling by McKinney, son of Alecyone, out of Expressive, the full sister to Kelly. Erena and Libby Whips were both bred this season to Supremacy 2:29, the son of Bell Boy and Susan, full sister to Allen Lowe 2:12, by Alcantara, and from the union fillies are hoped for that may in time be mated with Kelly.

In a recent issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN I noticed that McKinney had served 104 mares this season, which you thought was a greater number than had been mated with any other trotting sire during 1901, but Supremacy, the son of Bell Boy referred to above, had been bred to 108 up to July 8th, while sixty more were hooked for the summer and fall. Supremacy is owned by Dr. D. D. Carter, of Woodstock, Va., but controlled, I believe, by George W. Linaweaver, of the same place. However, it may be added that Supremacy's fee is only ten dollars the season, while your great California sire readily commands ten times that sum.

In glancing over your advertising columns I notice the announcement that Castleton farm, Lexington, Ky., is for sale. This grand estate is one of the finest in all the famous Blue Grass region. It was there that B. W. Ford, now of this city, bred that brilliant campaigner Trevillian 2:08½ and other crack light harness performers. Since then the Keenes have made the place famous as a nursery of thoroughbreds with Commando, Cap and Bells and others as shining lights. Maj. Daingerfield, to whom was presented and shipped from California a generation since by Mr. Keene the crack trotter stallion of those days, Sam Purdy 2:20½, presides over Castleton and guided by his hand its fame has widened.

W. J. CARTER.

The newspapers sometimes get hold of some pretty old stuff which they print as news. For instance an item has been going the rounds of the eastern horse papers during the past few weeks stating that Billy Andrews 2:06½ has been gelded. The report is true enough but not news by any means as the Year Book of 1899 stated the fact and for three years he has figured in the summaries as a bay gelding.

CALIFORNIA CIRCUIT OPENS.

Excellent Racing and Good Attendance at the Breeders Meeting.

SACRAMENTO, July 30, 1901.

Never has that sterling organization, the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, had a more auspicious opening for its annual meeting than to-day, when the gate receipts were larger than on any first day for years, and the racing of such high class that words of approval and commendation were heard on every hand, although the two main events were won in straight heats by horses that seemed to outclass their fields. There were probably fifteen hundred people on the well kept grounds of the State Agricultural Society when the bell called the horses for the first race, and Secretary Kelley had everything in readiness. Director T. J. Crowley had the starter's flag for the first event, as Director A. L. Cohen, who is the official starter of the organization, was disqualified by reason of his ownership of Advertiser, one of the competing horses. The day was cloudy, but hot and sultry. The track was in good condition, but not what might be called a fast track, as it can be made a couple of seconds faster than it was to-day.

Ten good looking horses were lined up at the hundred yards pole by assistant starter Jack Dinne for the first event, which was the 2:25 pace for a stake of $1000. In the draw for position Enoch got the pole, with Direct C., Toppy, Sir Albert S., Alsandy, Banker's Daughter, Nellie I., Advertiser, Our Boy's Sister and Harry J. in the order as named. The last three had to go in the second tier, as but seven horses can score abreast with safety. Just prior to the race, pools sold as follows: Sir Albert S. $10, Toppy $8, field $10, and the books offered the following odds: Toppy 4 to 5, Sir Albert S. 6 to 5, Enoch 4 to 1, Alsandy, Banker's Daughter and Direct C. 6 to 1 each, Advertiser, Our Boy's Sister, Harry J. and Nellie I. 10 to 1 each. The result showed that while the two favorites had been sized up pretty well by the bookmakers and the public, a total ignorance existed in regard to the capabilities of the field horses. After a few scores the word was given to a good start and Direct C., a little son of the ex-champion Direct, shot out in the lead with a rush that gave promise of fast time. He was at the quarter in 31 1/2 seconds, closely followed by Toppy, with Sir Albert S. three or four lengths behind going easily and the others strung out and seemingly in difficulties. Halfway between the quarter and the half Direct C. left his feet and went to a tangled break, from which he did not recover until hopelessly out of the race. Toppy, whose speed had kept Direct C. tiptoeing, assumed the lead, but at the turn Jack Groom came alongside with Sir Albert S. and the two horses were lapped until they turned into the stretch. Here the son of Diablo assumed command in a manner that showed his class and with a sweeping, frictionless stride led to the wire by a length in 2:11 1/2, with every appearance of a horse that could have come the mile three seconds faster had it been necessary. Toppy was second, Our Boy's Sister third, Advertiser fourth, Harry J. fifth, Alsandy sixth, Enoch seventh, Nellie I. eighth and Banker's Daughter and Direct C. behind the flag. It was a great heat for a lot of green horses their first time out this year and the owner and breeder of the winner, Mr. William G. Layng, former editor of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN, now proprietor of the Occidental Horse Exchange in San Francisco, came in for many congratulations which were further extended after the horse had won the next two heats as he pleased in 2:12 1/2 and 2:12. Jack Groom, the trainer and driver of Sir Albert S. also received many words of praise for the masterly way in which he handled the horse in the race, while William Murray, owner of Diablo 2:09 1/2, was showered with congratulations over the fact of this son of his unbeaten stallion being one of the greatest green horses ever seen in California. It is said that Sir Albert S. worked a mile in 2:08 1/2 the week before the race, and a dozen watches caught him a quarter in 29 1/2 seconds in his warming up exercise just prior to the race to-day.

The second and third heats require but little description. Sir Albert S. completely outclassed his field. His driver seemed able to place him anywhere and no campaigner that has followed the circuit for years has any better head than this son of Diablo. He played with the field in the second heat finishing the mile in 2:12 1/2. Farmer Bunch beat the others with Our Boy's Sister in this heat and again finished second in the third heat, far in advance of the field. She paced one neat as good as 2:13 and ought to reach the 2:10 list this year. Toppy took third money and also showed high class for a green colt. Advertiser was fourth and had to fight to get there, the Gossiper mare Nellie I. giving him a battle. With Sir Albert S. out of the race Our Boy's Sister would probably have been the winner and all the heats would have been in 2:14 or better. The summary of the race is as follows:

The 2:40 trot also went to a favorite. It had a field of nine starters, not a poor looking among them and containing at least four that should get into the 2:15 class before the year is ended. In the auctions before the first heat a number of pools were sold with What Is It bringing $10, Nora McKinney $5 and the field $3. In the books the odds were Floradora 4 to 1, Pearl K. 8, Prince 10, Nora McKinney 3 to 2, What Is It 1 to 2, Peter Jackson 6, Black Bart 5, Almonada 10, Cornelius D. 6.

There were but two or three scores before the word was given, and this was the rule all through the race while the starting, as in the pace, was excellent. Trainer Al McDonald, who drove Mr. A. G. Gurnett's gray gelding What Is It (by Direct, out of the dam of Who Is It 2:10 1/2), seemed to have the same confidence in the speed of his horse that Mr. Groom displayed with Sir Albert S. and was content to get away in any position as long as he could see clear sailing. When the word was given the first time, Cornelius D., Nora McKinney and Peter Jackson went to the front and it looked as though the namesake of the dusky puglist would be able to finish very close to the winner or do the trick himself, but he must have stepped on the same watermelon seed that Direct C. slipped on in the first heat of the pace, as he broke at the same place and saw the red banner waving in the sky as he came toward the wire. Around the turn What Is It came up with Nora McKinney and Cornelius D. and they trotted around the turn abreast in one of the prettiest races imaginable. The gray was on the outside and the two led him down the stretch until the draw gate was reached, and here he shot to the front with a great burst of speed heating Nora McKinney out by two lengths, Cornelius D. dropping back to fourth place, Ed Lafferty trotting into third place easily with the handsome chestnut mare Floradora, Cornelius D. was fourth, Black Bart fifth, Prince L. sixth, Almonada seventh, Pearl K. eighth and Peter Jackson distanced. The heat was in 2:16 1/2, fast for the first heat of the year on this track.

In the second heat What Is It and Nora McKinney raced out in front all the way, Floradora following them in a manner which said "I may not be able to get up there in front, but I can beat those behind me." Pearl K. caught the flag in her face this time. The time was the same as the first heat. What Is It pulled up lame.

The third heat was won by What Is It easily in 2:18 1/2, although his lameness was very perceptible when scoring. Nora McKinney trotted a splendid race and is evidently a very high class mare. Two weeks ago she was so ill at San Jose that it was considered very doubtful if she would be able to start at this meeting. She was not in shape to race to-day, but her perfect gait and gameness attracted the attention and admiration of every horseman who saw her trot.

What Is It, the winner, is the third of the foals of Lassie Jean to enter the standard list, and he has a way of going that leads one to believe him capable of taking a mark around 2:12. He looks something like his famous half brother Who Is It 2:10 1/2, but is a smaller and stouter built horse. He is owned and was bred at Sulphur Spring Stock Farm, the property of Mr. A. G. Gurnett, vice-president of the Breeders Association, and has been trained and driven by the farm's trainer Al McDonald, who deserves much credit for the manner in which he brought this horse to the post. What Is It is a horse of perfect manners, can be driven by a child and is a square line trotter. The mare Floradora will trot to a mark of 2:15 this year if she does not have to meet Nora McKinney and What Is It or some other green one that is as fast as they are in her races. She is a handsome individual and Ed Lafferty has her in good shape. She has had but a limited amount of training and a mile in 2:15 will probably be her limit this season, but she should be able to beat it next year several seconds. Floradora was bred by Mr. A. L. Cohen and is now owned by Mr. Albert Joseph of San Francisco. Cornelius D., the winner of fourth money, will get a mark below 2:20 a few seconds before long. He is a son of McKinney.

The third race of the day was the Palace Hotel Stakes for members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club. There were but three starters, with Eden Vale the favorite. Bollivar was distanced the first heat, which was won by Durfee Mac driven by his owner, Albert Joseph. Eden Vale had the most speed, but Mr. Jacobs did not seem able to keep him on his feet and lost in the slow time of 2:28 1/2. The second heat was a little faster, 2:25 1/2, with Eden Vale again losing by breaking and acting badly. Mr. Jacobs secured permission for Mr. Patrick to drive his horse and Eden Vale won the next heat in 2:20 with Durfee Mac stopping badly. The next two heats and the race went to Eden Vale in 2:25 and 2:26.

SECOND DAY.

July 31.—The day opened hot. As hot weather is prevailing over East where the Grand Circuit races are being held, the Weather Bureau at Sacramento probably thought a high temperature was the proper thing for a high class meeting in California and furnished it accordingly. The thermometer registered over 100 in the shade at noon, but the dry heat of the Sacramento valley enables one to enjoy himself and feel comfortable at a temperature that would be killing on the Atlantic Coast. The heat did not keep the people away nor make the horses go any slower.

The main event of the day was the 2:13 pace in which another son of Diablo showed himself a game race horse as well as a fast one. This was El Diablo, a horse that appeared on the California circuit in 1899 and started in two races. In his first essay that year he started in the 2:30 class pace at Santa Rosa which was won by Wild Nutting after six heats. El Diablo's place in the summary was last, his positions in the heats being 9-10-ds. There were ten starters. This was not a very creditable showing. His next and last start that year was at Oakland where in a field of 12 horses he again had last place in the summary. He was second the first heat which was in 2:15 and won by John A. El Diablo won the second heat in 2:16 1/2 and then had to be drawn and it was announced that he had broken down. Roblet won the race. El Diablo was then retired until this year when J. W. Thompson of Riverside purchased him and put him in charge of C. W. Farrar who has trained him and drove him to victory to-day. El Diablo met a field of five good horses this afternoon, and after Margaretta had taken the first heat in 2:12 1/2, reducing her former record of 2:15, El Diablo won the next three in 2:12 1/2, 2:15 1/2 and 2:17. In the first heat Margaret was never headed, but Doc Wilkes fought every inch of the way and was beaten but a half length, El Diablo at his wheel.

The speed shown by El Diablo in the stretch caused him to be made a favorite for the next heat and he sold for $10, John A. for $4 and the field $7. The Direct mare led again to the half, Doc Wilkes lapped on her with El Diablo a length back. Going onto the far turn Farrar pulled his horse to the outside, and went round the leaders easily and beat Doc Wilkes home in 2:12 1/2, the same time as the first heat. Margaretta dropped back to last place in this heat and could not get up in the lead afterwards. El Diablo won the next two heats as he pleased, the contest in them being between John A. and Doc Wilkes for third money, which the former won. El Diablo is a royally bred fellow, his dam being Elwood 2:17 1/2, dam of three in the list, by A. W. Richmond, second dam Crichton's First (dam of Arrow 2:13 1/2) by Crichton, a son of imp. Glencoe.

The Speedway Stakes for members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club was won by Mr. Geo. Swett's Steve S. by Steve Whipple in straight heats.

A most interesting race was the 2:23 trot, half-mile heats, best three in five. It had five starters, and the favorite, Solo by McKinney, was the winner. This mare was purchased last spring by Farmer Bunch for Ho Yow, the Chinese Consul in this city, and this was the first race in which his gorgeous colors had been seen. Ho Yow sat in the stand and was an interested spectator throughout the race. The colors worn by Bunch were a handsome blue jacket on the hack of which was embroidered a brilliant dragon. The cap was red and carried the mandarin button and tassel. The second heat of this race was trotted in 1:06 1/2 and all were battles from start to finish.

Solo is a royally-bred mare, her sire being McKinney 2:11 1/2 and her dam was sired by the famous Stamboul 2:07 1/2. Her record of 2:23 was made over the Concord track in Contra Costa county two years ago.

Before the regular races of the day two three year old trotters belonging to the Meek Farm at Haywards were started for a record and got into the list without much trouble, driven by Barney Simpson. They could have gone much faster but it was simply desired to give them standard records as a precaution. One, the SANTA ROSA'S PURSES for harness horses will close to-day. The Santa Rosa track is in better condition than ever, every effort is being made to hold a race meeting that will be a credit to Sonoma county and there is every prospect of a big attendance. Owners of trotters and pacers should enter liberally at Santa Rosa, as the purses offered are generous and the conditions liberal. The Santa Rosa Racing Association is a new organization, with the best citizens of that thriving city among its members. They will keep every promise made, and should receive a big entry list.

WOODLAND'S PURSES HAVE ALL FILLED with the exception of the one offered for three year old trotters. This means that District No. 40 will give one of the best meetings ever held in the State, as there is a high class of horses to compete in every event. The races for trotters will be the 2:12, 2:15, 2:20 and 2:30 classes; those for pacers the free for all, 2:12, 2:15, 2:20 and 2:30 classes. Secretary Thomas telegraphs that all the above races have been declared filled and that the full list of entries will be sent in time for publication next week.

TWELVE BIG PURSES offered by the Los Angeles Association for trotters and pacers close to-day. Turn to our advertising columns and it will be seen that every class not already given in the events already closed, are there offered by the enterprising and energetic association of the southern metropolis. The Los Angeles meeting will be the best held in years and more money is offered the harness horse owners there than at any other place on the California Circuit. Let there be a big, generous list of entries. They close to-day.

EIGHT RUNNING STAKES offered by the State Agricultural Society, to be contested at the State Fair this year, close to-day. The conditions of these stakes are fully set forth in the advertisement which will be found in our business columns, and the owners of thoroughbreds should see that all entries are mailed in time. These stakes have from $300 to $500 added in each instance and are the richest stakes offered in California during the season of summer racing. Entries close with Secretary Geo. W. Jackson at Sacramento to-day.

WESTCHESTER RACING ASSOCIATION conducts annually at Morris Park one of the highest class race meetings held in the world, and offers a large number of rich stakes for every meeting. Its annual announcement of these stakes is made in our advertising columns to-day. We would call the especial attention of breeders to the events named to be run in 1902, 1903 and for foals of this year to be run in 1904. Those of 1902 to be run at the spring meeting are the Juvenile, $2000 added, for two year olds, five furlongs; the Fashion, $1500 added, for two year old fillies, four and a half furlongs; the Eclipse, $4000 added, for two year olds, five and a half furlongs. At the autumn meeting the same year the Nursery Handicap, $2500 added, for two year olds, will be run on the Eclipse course. In 1903, at the spring meeting, will be decided the Withers, $2500 added, for three year olds, which is run over the Withers mile; the Ladies, $2000, for three year old fillies, also at the Withers mile, and the 37th Belmont, $5000 added, for three year olds, one mile and a furlong over the hill. Mr. August Belmont adds plate to the value of $1000 to this rich stake. For 1904, the 38th Belmont is offered. This historical race will close for foals of this year at $10 each, on Thursday, August 15th, and on the same date entries close on the other stakes above mentioned.

There has been considerable speculation among the horsemen here as to why the judges at Cleveland fined Billy Durfee $100 in the 2:14 trot on July 23d. The latest report by mail is that they thought he was not trying to win, but it looks as if they were making fish of one and flesh of another as the following from the Chicago Inter Ocean's report will show: "In the first race, the 2:14 trot, Dr. Book went to the post a strong favorite at even money. He won the first heat with speed to spare. In the second he heat he simply walked in a winner by three lengths, but the best he could do in the third heat was third place. The judges did not like the way Durfee handled Dr. Book in the heat and he was called to the stand. The explanation he furnished evidently did not satisfy the judges, as they fined him $100 for pulling his horse. In the next heat the California driver was requested to take a seat among the spectators, and Kenney was put up. At this stage of the game McCarthy, who had previously been back in the ruck, and who might have been cited to explain why he laid up the first three heats came on and won in straight heats. Kenney did not do as well as Durfee had done."

Good Racing at Columbus.

COLUMBUS (O.), July 29.—The Columbus Grand Circuit meeting opened auspiciously to-day with fair weather. A good crowd and some excellent racing were the features. The 2:14 pace was the first race on the program and thirteen side-wheelers answered the bell. Martha Marshall, driven by Andy McDowell, was installed favorite at $25 to $20 for the field. Captain Sphinx won the first heat in a drive from Winfield Stratton and Martha Marshall.

The favorite took the next two heats, pacing the second in 2:07½, reducing her record a full second. In the fourth and fifth heats she caused trouble while scoring and got away badly each time, giving Nouamie and Shecan a chance for a heat apiece. Only the four heat winners appeared for the sixth heat, and Martha Marshall stepped to the front at once and kept her position to the wire.

The 2:20 trot was a disappointment in that it had only four starters. Country Jay, who was second to Eleata at both Detroit and Cleveland, was looked upon as a sure winner, but May Allen, an Indianapolis mare, took his measure, out-trotting him and winning three straight heats.

The last race was a gift to Dan Patch, the handsome son of Joe Patchen, who tiptoed his field and was never forced to go to the top of his speed. Summary:

Pacing, 2:14 class, purse $2000—Martha Marshall won the second, third and sixth heats. Best time, 2:07½. Shecan won the fifth heat in 2:21½. Captain Sphinx won the first heat in 2:08½. Nouamie won the fourth heat in 2:11½. Carnot, Furioso, Colonel Dick Thompson, Trinkle, Winfield Stratton, College Boy, Alvin R., Frank Yokum and Jackmont also started.

Trotting, 2:23 class, purse $5000—May Allen won in three straight heats. Best time, 2:09½. Country Jay, Neva Simmons and Vic Schiller also started.

Pacing, 2:16 class, purse $2000—Dan Patch won in three straight heats. Best time, 2:10½. Frank Marriott, Paul Dinghoy, Legal Hal and Barolette also started.

July 20.—At the Grand Circuit meeting to-day the 2:20 pace, a $5000 early-closing stake, brought out such good ones as Audobon Boy, Star Pugh, Captain Brino, Shadow Chimes and Helen D. Audobon Boy was installed favorite, the pools averaging $50 to $40 on the field. Captain Brino showed a world of speed in the first heat, leading all the way. The mile was paced in 2:07½, the fastest time of the day. The effort was too much for the Brino horse and Audobon Boy went out and won the next three heats, reducing his record from 2:09½ to 2:08½. In the 2:17 trot Charlie Mac reduced his record and won a hard fought race.

Pace, 2:20 class, purse $5000—Audobon Boy won the second, third and fourth heats. Best time, 2:08½. Captain Brino won the first heat 2:07½. Star Pugh, Dick Lee, John H., Helen D., Shadow Chimes, Braden, Challie Downing and Laura McCord also started.

Trotting, 2:17 class, purse $2000—Charlie Mac won the second, third and fourth heats. Best time, 2:13½. Porto Rico won the first heat in 2:15½. Re-elected, Marique, Al K., Tivellino and Maggie V. also started.

Trotting, 2:20 class, purse $2000—Ebba won in three straight heats. Best time, 2:14½. Henrietta, Effie G., Hydra Stine, Phoenix Lassie, Ononta, Colonel Clary and Improve also started.

July 31.—Perfect weather and the largest crowd of the week greeted the grand circuit performers at the Driving Club this week. Last night's rain put the track in excellent condition and all three heat winners in the 2:09 pace broke their records, as did Onward Silver, winner of the 2:12 trot.

Pace, 2:09 class, purse $2000—Stacker Taylor won first, fifth and sixth heats in 2:08½, 2:08½, 2:09½. George won second and third heats in 2:06½, 2:08. Carmine won the fourth heat in 2:07½. Effie Powers, White Hose, Red Seal, Argetta and Rey Direct also started.

Trotting, 2:12 class, purse $2000—Onward Silver won third, fourth and fifth heats in 2:11½, 2:10½, 2:10½. Cornelia Belle won first and second heats in 2:11½, 2:11½. Allan and Dolly Dillon also started.

Trot, 2:14 class; purse $2000 (unfinished)—Dr. Book won first and second heats in 2:11½, 2:11½. Gracie Onward won third heat in 2:12½. Wauhan won the fourth heat in 2:12½. Nancy King, A. J. D., and Dot Miller also started.

August 1.—This was the big day of the Grand Circuit meeting and more than 5000 people watched the harness horses perform over the fast track. The weather was absolutely perfect, and all the conditions were conducive to excellent sport.

Unfinished 2:14 trot, purse $2000 (four heats Wednesday)—Dr. Book won the first, second and sixth heats. Best time, 2:10½. Wauhan won the fourth and fifth heats. Best time, 2:11½. Gracie Onward won the third heat in 2:12½. Nancy King, A. J. D. and Dot Miller started.

2:24 class, pacing, purse $2000—Dainty Queen won the third, fourth and fifth heats. Best time, 2:12½. Nava won the first heat in 2:10½. Miss Gertrude won the second heat in 2:10½. Jean Cuyler, Charlie Hoffer and Ethel Brown also started.

2:06 class, pacing, purse $2000—Edith W. won the third, fourth and fifth heats. Best time, 2:05½. Hetty G. won the second heat in 2:05½. Bonnie Direct won the first heat in 2:05½. Eyelet, Milton S. and Egozen also started.

2:25 class, trotting, purse $2000—Captor won the second, third and fourth heats. Best time, 2:12½. Captain Brocker won the first heat in 2:15½. Algonetta, Del Rio and Big Dutch also started.

Answers to Correspondents.

R. L., San Diego—Cornelius 11,335, the sire of the mare Carmelita that paced to a record of 2:10½ this year, is by Nutwood 600, first dam Jennie G. by Echo 462, second dam Jennie Noyes, a mare whose breeding is untraced. Cornelius is a bay horse, foaled 1882, was bred by Con Mooney of San Francisco, and is now owned by J. B. Haggin. The mare Jennie Noyes had a record of 2:40 and is the dam of Gus 2:26½.

H. J. G., Paanilo, H. I.—Please give me through your query and answer column the following: The dam of Liz Givens by imp. Langford. First and second dams of Vincente Nolte by Am. Eclipse. If there is a thoroughbred mare by Alta, registered under the name of Alta Mia, or Altamia, please give her breeding?

Ans.—The dam of Liz Givens was Charlotte Pace by Sir Archy, second dam by imported Restless, third dam by Celer, fourth dam by Partner, fifth dam by Apollo. The first dam of Vincente Nolte by American Eclipse was Hortensia by Contention, second dam a mare by Perfection. There is no mare of that name by Alta registered in any volumes of the Stud Book up to and including Vol. VII, which was issued in 1898.

G. & S., Hayward.—In your next issue will you please give the extended pedigree of Nutwood 2:18½ to settle a dispute. One man says Belmont 64 was by Hambletonian 10 (Rysdyks), and the other says by Abdallah.

Ans.—Nutwood 2:18½ was by Belmont 64, he by Abdallah 15, and he by Hambletonian 10. The dam of Nutwood was Miss Russell (dam of Maud S. 2:08½, etc.), by Pilot Jr. 12, next dam Sally Russell by Boston, etc.

Johnny Armstrong.

Poor Fred Archer had a keen sense of humor as well as an emphatic style of expressing his views on racing and things in general.

"What was your jockey doing?" inquired Fred on one occasion, after a race at Newmarket of the owner of the second, which had started a hot favorite, and in reality could have won by the length of the street.

"Oh! well—a—" replied the shady owner, "you see—a—the poor boy broke a stirrup-leather!"

"Broke a stirrup-leather!" repeated the Tinman, with scorn. "Yes; and he d—d near broke the reins, too!"

CRESCUS THE GREAT.

Trots to a World's Record of 2:02 3-4 at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 26, 1901.

When, to the surprise of everybody, the chestnut son of Robert McGregor flashed under the wire to-day in 2:02 $\frac{3}{4}$, it was simply a case of the greatest trotter America has ever produced assuming his rightful title of king. For over a year he has been king in deed, if not in name, and if the long-dreamed-of two-minute trotter is to put in his appearance, Cresceus is likely to be his name.

The circumstances connected with this remarkable performance were anything but conducive to fast time as, owing to the heavy rains of last night, the track was not in the best of condition to-day, and it was about 6:30 P. M. before the track was deemed to be in sufficient good shape to warrant making the attempt. At that time the sun's heat had been replaced by cool breezes. Even then there were but very few horsemen that looked for a mile better than 2:05.

HOW THE MILE WAS MADE.

After going a few preliminary miles, George Ketcham came out with the stallion to attempt what seemed an impossible feat. He nodded for the word on the third score, the horse trotting true and strong.

Accompanied by a runner, the chestnut stallion fairly flew to the quarter, the timers watches registering just thirty seconds flat.

As Cresceus swung into the back stretch he was joined by a second runner, and although many predicted that the footing was such as would retard his speed, he reached the half in 1:01. As the time was hung out the immense crowd broke out in cheers, as it was evident that the mile would be a fast one.

The three-quarters pole was reached in 1:31 $\frac{1}{4}$, and as the great stallion trotted into the stretch, a runner on either side, his frictionless, machine-like stride was fairly eating up the distance.

Never once faltering, notwithstanding the terrific clip, he fairly flew to the wire, being sustained only by his indomitable courage and almost human intelligence not being touched once by the whip, his sole urging being the driver's voice and the whacking hoofbeats of the accompanying runners.

As the time for the mile was announced—2:02 $\frac{3}{4}$ —and the immense crowd realized that a new world's record had been established, Ketcham and his favorite stallion were tendered an ovation such as has been but seldom witnessed on a race track. Thousands of enthusiastic people rushed out on the track, and Ketcham was lifted from his sulky and carried to the grandstand on the shoulders of admirers. Cbeer after cheer was given, while shouts of "Cresceus!" and "Ketcham!" "Ketcham!" rent the air. The owner of the sturdy stallion was almost carried to the judges' stand, where he delivered a brief address.

George H. Ketcham deserves much credit for the remarkable achievement of the great son of Robert McGregor, as he has the proud distinction of not only owning the world's champion trotter, but also having bred him and driven him in all of his races from the time he was a three year old

THE GOAL OF HORSEMEN'S AMBITION.

From the time when David Bryan, at the old Beacon

ZEPHYR, by Zombro 2:11—Gazelle 2:11 1-2.
The Three-year-old Filly that sold for $900.

course at Hoboken, N. J., on Oct. 13, 1848, drove Lady Suffolk a mile in 2:29 $\frac{1}{2}$, the greatest ambition of every breeder, owner or driver of a trotting horse has been to own the world's champion, and the one great effort of every breeder in later years has been to raise one that would finally knock off the 29 $\frac{1}{2}$ seconds of the first standard record—the two-minute trotter being the coveted goal. The struggle has been going on for over years, and, while the record has been reduced thirty-five times by sixteen different horses, the total reduction for the half century has just been 20 $\frac{3}{4}$ seconds.

From Lady Suffolk's time it is only necessary to mention the names of the successive champions to recall the prowess of such turf idols as Flora Temple, Dexter, Goldsmith Maid, Rarus, St. Julien and the never to be forgotten Maud S., as well as the later day kings and queens, Sunol, Jay Eye See, Nancy Hanks, sweet little Alix, and the now deposed The Abbot, who, still sick from his recent attack of distemper, had to stand in a near-by stall and listen to the acclaim that greeted his forced abdication of the crown his head has worn so uneasily since the 25th of last September, at which time by trotting in 2:03 $\frac{1}{2}$, he clipped a half second off Queen Alix time that had stood for six years.

CHAMPION OF CHAMPIONS.

Cresceus is now not only king of all trotters, but in his varied career of four years he has placed the following championship records to his credit:

Fastest time ever made by a trotter.....	2:02 $\frac{3}{4}$
Fastest time on half-mile track.....	2:09 $\frac{1}{4}$
Fastest heat in a race.....	2:05
Fastest second heat.....	2:05
Fastest eighth heat.....	2:11 $\frac{1}{4}$
Fastest two-heat race.....	2:06 $\frac{1}{2}$, 2:05
Fastest three heats by a stallion.....	2:07 $\frac{1}{2}$, 2:06, 2:06
Fastest five-heat race—Cresceus winning last three.....	2:07 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:07 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:08 $\frac{1}{4}$
Fastest eight-heat race—Cresceus winning second, seventh and eighth.....	2:15 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:13 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:12 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:12 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:14 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:12 $\frac{1}{4}$, 2:11 $\frac{1}{4}$

Cresceus to Come to This Coast.

The following dispatch was sent out from Toledo, Ohio, by the Associated Press on Monday last:

TOLEDO (O.), July 29th—George Ketchum, owner and driver of Cresceus, the world's champion trotter, announced to-day that he would spend next winter on the Pacific Coast, where the famous horse will give speed exhibitions. He will stop at Denver, Salt Lake City, Sacramento, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

By McKinney, dam Stemwinder, dam of Directum 2:05 $\frac{1}{4}$.

By McKinney, dam by Son of Venture.

TWO PROMISING THREE-YEAR-OLD FILLIES.

SULKY NOTES.

Cresceus 2:02½.

Champion of champions.

Santa Rosa entries close to-day.

Dan Patch 2:07½ is an honor to his dad.

Diablo 2:09½ has a great son in Sir Albert S. 2:11½.

Were Eden Vale a sound horse he would pace in 2:10.

Cricket 2:10 has a standard performer in Iloilo 2:29½.

Thornway finished up a close third in 2:10 at Cleveland.

Pathmark by Pathmont, has reduced his record to 2:15½.

Barring hoppers did not prevent Readville from filling every class.

The next big stake is the $10,000 free for all at Brighton Beach.

Hetty G. promises to dethrone Lady of the Manor 2:04½, as queen of pacers.

Dolly Dillon knocked a quarter of a second off her record at Detroit. It is now 2:11½.

Will Anaconda step in two minutes? It begins to look as though he has a chance to do so.

Geo. B. Kelly will receive entries for the Santa Rosa meeting. He is at the Sacramento track to-day.

William G. Layng will hold an auction sale of Palo Alto horses on the 15th inst. See advertisement.

Diodine 2:25 is a new comer to Diablo's list of standard pacers. She took her record last month in Oregon.

An odd fact in connection with the $16,000 Metallas is that not one of his ancestors had a standard record.

Dr. Book's race at Cleveland was very creditable. As will be seen by the summary he was in the fight all the time.

Van Bokkelen landed Vic Shellar a close second in 2:12½ at Cleveland, which shows that the horse is improving.

Brown Hal 2:12½ is now the leading sire of 2:10 pacers, with seven inside the list headed by the champion Star Pointer.

When you read that the Santa Rosa entries close to-day, August 3d, make out your entries right away and mail them.

Eula Mac was a good third in a heat won by All Right in 2:13 at Cleveland. Charley Mac won the race in the sixth heat.

The program for to-day at Sacramento should draw a big crowd to the track. The 2:20 trot and 2:17 pace will be won in fast time.

They are looking for Freddy C. to make Sir Albert S. stretch his neck to-day. El Diablo ought to be close to him at the wire also.

The McKinney gelding Cornelius D. that Walter Maben started in the 2:40 trot will be a 2:20 performer for McKinney before long.

Our Boy's Sister got second money in the 2:25 pace at Sacramento last Monday and was separately timed two heats better than 2:14.

McKinney's daughter Nora McKinney trotted a great race Tuesday for a mare that was dangerously ill two weeks previous to that date.

Patron 2:14½ is dead. He won the Charter Oak stake in 1897, and was the sire of Ananias 2:05, and thirteen other 2:20 performers.

Two races in one week at Cleveland is a pretty good showing for Charlie Mac. He won also at Columbus and reduced his record to 2:13½.

G. Y. Bollinger of San Jose owns a great mare in the dam of Our Boy's Sister. She will have one or two more in the list in another year.

Eight trotters and five pacers won $1000 or more at the Detroit meeting, and the grand total distributed among the horsemen there was $48,595.

Brown Hal 2:12½ now leads all sires as regards 2:10 performers, with eight such to his credit. His new ones are New Richmond 2:09½ and Braden 2:10.

What is it 2:16½ by Direct 2:05½ out of the dam of Who is It 2:10½ and Dolly Marchutz 2:19½, is one of the best gaited trotters in this or any other country.

Niek Hubinger was the plunger who bought nearly all the tickets on Harry Logan at Detroit and he paid $200 each for the pasteboards that he tore up after the race.

Frank Williams, the owner of Charley Hayt 2:06½, declares that he would not take less than $15,000 for that horse, and says he expects him to pace in 2:03 this season.

Three heats better than 2:13 in the first race of the season for the green pacers shows that the California horses that stay here are about as good as those that go abroad.

Don't fail to enter at Santa Rosa. It will be one of the best meetings ever held in the town.

Harry Hurst, the pacer by Delwin that was formerly in Fred Chadbourne's string at Pleasanton, and was taken north by John Sawyer, has paced to a record of 2:24½ in a race.

Eleata was saved for this year's M. & M. through the efforts of Tom Marsh. Her owner, Hon. Frank Jones, intended to race her last year, but wisely listened to his trainer.

It is a singular coincidence that McHenry, the man who had John R. Gentry in his palmy days, should now be riding in front behind a son of the little red horse's lifelong rival, Joe Patchen.

Col. Higby's fine colt Stam Medium is going great guns at the local track. On Saturday he pulled a heavy cart an eighth of a mile in fifteen seconds. This is a two minute clip.—Salinas Journal.

It is safe to say that Allerton has been bred to more good mares this season than any stallion in America. There is such a great demand for his services, that his fee will probably be increased next year.

R. I. Orr, of Hollister has taken his fine colt Oro Guy home and will turn him out until next year. Oro Guy can show a mile in 2:20 and if nothing happens him will get a mark much below those figures.

There was a rumor at Sacramento this week that Dr. Boucher was on his way home with his pacer Harry Logan 2:12½. The pace is a little too hot for the big four year old in his present condition.

A chance to get something good. Fifty horses from Palo Alto Stock Farm will be sold at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city August 15th. Eleata, this year's winner of the M. & M., was sold at auction by this farm.

There were hoppers on four out of the ten starters in the 2:25 pace at Sacramento. These were Alandy, Bankers Daughter, Harry J. and Our Boy's Sister. The first three were distanced and the last named got second money.

Those who were so sure in the spring that Jack Trout would not get along well with the California gelding will have to acknowledge that they were wrong, as the Detroit race was the best race Anaconda ever paced in his life.

How do you account for Durfee Mac backing up so after a fast mile. The McKinney's are game, the dam of Durfee Mac is by Nephew a horse whose get are noted for gameness, while his grandson is by Gen. Taylor, the 30-mile champion.

The betting has been very brisk at Cleveland, about $55,000 being paid into the auction pools on Monday, and Tuesday was estimated to have been the best betting day of the Grand Circuit this season with the exception of M. & M day at Detroit.

Nellie L., the chestnut mare by Gossiper that Billy Donathan drove in the 2:25 pace Monday has lots of speed and will get there later on. She took a record of 2:24½ down at Santa Barbara July 5th this year. Nothing is known of her dam's breeding.

At the Detroit 1900 meeting 66 heats were trotted and paced which averaged 2:13 11-100. An unusual coincidence is the fact that exactly the same number of heats were contested this year, but the average time was 2:11 23-100, a reduction of nearly two seconds.

Algonetta, Mr. Mulcahey's mare by Eros is now in Millard Sander's string. In her race at Cleveland she won the first heat in 2:14 and was a close second in both the others won by Coxey in 2:15½ and 2:13½. She trotted a game race and had a half dozen good horses behind her.

Adrian Wilkes son of George Wilkes and sire of Roy Wilkes 2:06½, died at Williams Valley Stock Farm last Saturday, at 24 years of age. While Adrian Wilkes had sired fifty-four standard performers twelve of them with records below 2:15, the pacer Roy Wilkes was his only representative in the 2:10 list.

The report going the rounds of the various turf journals that Lord Derby 2:07 may not be seen in public this year is incorrect. This fast trotter is taking his work nicely and Mr. Geers gave him a mile in 2:09½ last week, the half being in 1:03. He is looking splendid and when he turns for the world will bear watching.

The Abbot has been engaged to trot against the gelding's record of 2:03½ (his own) at the Syracuse meeting in September, which includes the State Fair and a Grand Circuit meeting. The Abbot, after his recent indisposition, is doing a little work, and it is to be hoped that he will be able to fill his engagements at Brighton Beach and Syracuse.

There is a difference of opinion among experts as to whether the life of a pneumatic tire is best expressed in years or miles. It is often said that with ordinary use, a rubber tire of this type will last two or three years. But some experienced builders assert that a tire will not last more than two years on an average, if never used. The rubber loses its life in this length of time, so it is said.

George W. Leavitt, of Boston, in speaking of his great two year old colt, Todd by Bingen, recently said: "As sure as can be no two year old was ever foaled that is so fast with so little training as is Todd. Though he never stepped a mile at speed till he arrived at Readville in June, yet Arion or Bingen could not begin to show the speed he has when they were the same age—that is, so early in the season. Can you blame me for thinking I have the chance to set a new two year old record for the world with Todd?"

Dr. Monical 2:09½, the five year old brown stallion by Gambetta Wilkes 2:19½, dam Me Too by C. F. Clay 2:18, that has been making such a splendid showing in the West, is thought by many who saw him perform to be able to go close to 2:05 right now. He is the fifth 2:10 performer for Gambetta Wilkes.

"The man who misrepresents the breeding of a horse and makes a sale on the strength of it obtains money under false pretenses and should be made to suffer," remarks the Horse Breeder. "The only safe way is to buy of honorable, reliable dealers, men who have the means to make their word good, as well as the disposition to do so. A word to those who have common sense is sufficient."

The filly Rosalind, that won a half mile heat at Rocklin, July 4th, this year, making one of the heats in the good time of 1:11½, is a trotter and not a pacer as reported. She was taken off a grass pasture just three weeks before the race, given very little work and her showing is therefore remarkable. Her sire is Stam B. 2:11½ and she is owned by M. H. Tuttle, of Rocklin.

The fastest horse by the records in Virginia is the giant bay gelding Mosul 2:09½ by Sultan, dam Virginia Maid by Sam Purdy. James R. Keene, who once owned Sam Purdy, gave the stallion years ago to his brother-in-law, Major Dangerfield, who stood him for a long time at Harrisburg, Virginia. Major Dangerfield now manages the famous Castleton Farm in Kentucky.

The Oregon Stake of $1500 for foals of 1900, to be raced for in 1902, at the Oregon State Fair, closed with sixty entries. A lot of well bred colts and fillies have been named and no owner has more than four entries. Among the stallions represented are McKinney, Zombro, Capt. Jones, Stam B., Nutwood Wilkes, Coeur de'Alene, Montana Director, Holmdel, Bonner N. B., Lovelace and others. The large entry list is proof of the popularity of such stakes.

Mr. H. L. Frank, owner of the McKinney colt Ben Liebes, will not have him started this year, but will race him over East next year. Mr. Frank recently purchased three fillies by McKinney from the Green estate. Two are out of the famous mare Stemwinder, dam of Directum 2:05½, one being three, the other two years old. The third is a three year old, out of a mare bred very much as Stemwinder is.

The full extent of the havoc wrought among horses in New York by the recent hot wave is just beginning to be realized, so the dealers say. Developments of the last few days indicate that thousands of animals that escaped death were affected by the burning rays of the sun and are now disabled whenever the mercury gets up above the point of summer heat. Horsemen say these horses are practically ruined for hard work in hot weather, as they will never fully recover.

One of the greatest, if not the greatest yearling filly the turf ever knew was Leone by Lancelot, a son of Messenger Duroc and Green Mountain Maid. In 1892 she won six races and a second money in seven starts, trotting 12 full miles of which her last in 2:28½, was the world's record for her age. Last month she became a great broodmare at ten years of age, her second in the list being the four year old filly Edna Dillon, that trotted to a record of 2:23½, and her other performer Lord Linton, also proved a winner last month, trotting to a new record of 2:15½. Both are by Baron Dillon 2:12.

Peko was hooked to sulky Friday for the first time in years. She worked a mile as follows: 0:33½, 0:32½, 0:33½, 0:33, 2:12½. It was a much easier mile for her than any she ever trotted to wagon in 2:15, and no effort was made with the idea of having her go a fast mile. Track was soft and strong wind blowing up the stretch. She did not tire as she does in a wagon. With her there is no doubt two to two and a half seconds difference between sulky and wagon. John A. McKerron worked his best mile to date, 2:15½, half 1:05, quarter 32 seconds, last eighth 14½ seconds, and be seemed to go this high rate quite comfortably and without much driving.—Cleveland Sportsman.

Tom Brennon of Boston, better known as "Gamey" had the result of the M. and M. down pat. They sold a few pools on the race at Old Orchard, and Eleata brought 2 to 1 over the field. During a lull "Gamey" spoke up saying: "That's right, you short enders, blow your coin. I switched my junk on that black filly after her race at Dover and caught her a quarter in 30 seconds. That showed me. Those wild gyps at Detroit will remember Marsh and Kingmond and will lay up a couple of heats. Then they will turn Neva Simmons, Country Jay and the rest of the bunch loose. That's all the good it will do them, too, for Eleata will make monkeys of them. Cattle of that kind beatlier! well I guess not. Crescents, The Abbot and Boralma have got a chance with her, and all the others are dead ones."

There are trotters by Dexter Prince whose pedigrees show a much deeper piling up of trotting crosses on the dam's side than does that of Eleata, and yet Eleata 2:08½ holds a faster record than any other son or daughter of Dexter Prince. A horseman when speaking of her chances last Monday of winning the M. & M. at Detroit, expressed doubt of her ability to do so. He said that her stride was so great and her gait so pure that she would tire before the race was over. Her third mile in 2:08½, with the middle half in 1:04 and the third quarter in 31½ seconds, shows that she has remarkable staying qualities, thanks to her dam's thoroughbred racing ancestors, and also those of her sire's dam through Seely's American Star. Many of the pure gaited trotters in the past, especially those raised in New England, have not been able to fight out split-heat races successfully. The trouble in most cases has been a lack of near race-winning thoroughbred crosses of the right kind.—American Horse Breeder.

The Horse of the Year.

The question, "Which is the horse of the year?" comes around as regularly as the racing season, and once the discussion begins there is no stopping it until well after all the dates on the racing calendar have been filled, says the New York Sun. Even then the question is rarely settled to the satisfaction of all those interested in its solution. It often happens that "the horse of the year" is two horses. Each has its partisans, and they will argue themselves blue in trying to convince the other fellows that their choice is the real champion. At the end of last year, for instance, the friends of Kinley Mack and the friends of Ethelbert were no more willing to agree as to which was the faster of the two than they were at the beginning.

The summer racing season on the metropolitan circuit will close in about two weeks with the meeting at Brighton Beach. The horses have been traveling the tracks since April, and yet there is nothing very positive about "the horse of the year." This is undoubtedly due to the evident fact that the real champion has yet to prove his title. Kinley Mack's legs doubled under him before he appeared in public, Ethelbert went stale, and Wax Taper and Prince of Melbourne and King Bramble must do more racing before serious consideration can be given to them. Brigadier flashed in the pan, and Voter has been kept too much in the stable. Roebampton, a three-year-old, has been one of the most consistent performers of any age, but he must meet some of the other high-class three-year-olds and some of the all-agers, like Prince of Melbourne, to prove that he is made of high-class stuff.

A few weeks ago the track rang with praises of Commando. He seemed to be as invincible a three-year-old as he was a two-year-old. But one day the great son of Domino was asked to go a furlong further than he had ever gone before, and The Parader took his measure. Yet in so doing the son of Longstreet by no means cleared the title to the championship. Commando beat him every time they had met before, and a colt named Robert Waddell, of no particular pretensions to class, raced The Parader off his feet in the American Derby at Chicago. To be sure, The Parader had traveled nearly half across the continent to enter that race, and some fault was found with the way he was ridden, but too many excuses must not be offered for "the horse of the year." After Commando's defeat by The Parader it was discovered that he had a cracked hoof. Cracked hoofs are not easy to cure, and maybe it will be another year before we shall know just how good Commando is. And then there is Conroy, the sturdy son of St. Leonards, which ploughed his way through mud fetlock deep in the Brooklyn Handicap, and showed that he could give any man a run for his money. But Conroy cannot aspire to championship honors on a single race, although he is the first three-year-old to win the Brooklyn Handicap.

The races at Saratoga have yet to be run, and the fall meetings at Sheephead Bay, Gravesend, Morris Park and Aqueduct are yet open for the clearing of titles. Before the question can be satisfactorily settled, however, some standards must be established by which to judge "the horse of the year." What must he achieve in order to be declared the champion? Shall he be elected because of his winning a few fashionable stakes from noted company? Or, because running in all kinds of weather and in all kinds of company and at all kinds of distances, he fought his battles as he found them, and got the money? It was by such a standard that "the horse of the year" was judged in the old days of the American turf. In the days of Kingfisher and Enquirer, of Harry Bassett and Longfellow and Preakness and Glenelg, of Alarm and Tom Bowling and Springbok and Buckden, that horse was declared the champion which picked up his burden, whatever it might be, and carried it first past the winning post most frequently, no matter what his opponents might be or whence they came.

Before Commando was beaten by The Parader it was often said that this particular three-year-old of Mr. Keene's was the greatest horse which had appeared in a decade, and that it was only about once in ten years that a really great thoroughbred was produced.

Great thoroughbreds have had a habit of appearing oftener than once in a decade, and the probabilities are that the habit will continue. In 1870 there were three. Kingfisher and Enquirer divided the honors in the three year old division, and Helmbold was probably the best of the all-agers. Longfellow was a three-year-old in 1870, but he did not reveal his real quality until the following year. Then Henry Bassett and Salina were three year olds, and who shall say that these were not great racehorses? Harry Bassett and Longfellow, the latter Bassett's senior by one year, met and raced and walloped each other until their performances made the year famous on the American turf. In 1872 there were the memorable contests between Woodhine and Eolus; and Fellowcraft and Buckden and Alarm fought it out for championship honors in the three year old division. In 1873, there were Catesby and Slyboots and Tom Bowling. All horses that left their impress on the American turf, and they followed each other in quick succession.

Coming down the years, Duke of Magenta and Himyar, the sire of Domino, and Bramble and Pique were three year olds that fought for the championship in 1878. Duke of Magenta won the title, because he suffered but one defeat, and won the most money. Himyar was a close second, and Bramble was not far behind. In 1879, Harold and Kingston and Ferida, that wonderful mare of George L. Lorillard's that never found a journey too long, and Uncas and Monitor and Spendthrift were the three year olds that lent lustre to their year. In 1880, Luke Blackburn, perhaps the greatest of the get of Bonnie Scotland and the greatest horse, in their opinion, ever owned by the Brothers Dwyer, appeared, and it did not take him long to prove that he was, without the shadow of a doubt, the best of his year.

A different story might have been told had Pierre Lorillard's Sensation, of the same age as Luke Blackburn, continued, as a three year old, his whirlwind record of the year before. When Sensation was a two year old there was nothing on four legs of equal years that he could not beat. The record shows that great horses followed immediately after Luke Blackburn and Sensation, for in 1881 Hindoo and Thora were winning the races for three year olds. And then followed Runnymede and Barnes and Drake Carter and Bootjack and Pearl Jennings and Getaway and Eole and Miss Woodford and Salvator and Tenny straight down to the days of Hanover and Tremont, Handspring and Requitall, The Butterflies, Hastings, Domino, Dobbins and Hamburg.

This is the recent record of the blue book of the American turf. It shows that the great thoroughbreds have not been so far apart. The record also shows that the horses entitled to be called truly great were the horses that asked and took no particular odds from any of the runners of their time. By this standard the champion of this year may be chosen. If Conroy can perform again as he did in the Brooklyn Handicap, if he can win races in any kind of going and company, he will come pretty near having a clean title to the championship of 1901.

Stakes for the Winter Meeting.

The new California Jockey Club has issued the books containing the stake events for next winter's racing. There are twenty-five stakes, aggregating $56,000 in value. The increase in the number of stakes is due to the fact that the new California Jockey Club will not divide dates with any other club, a departure from the custom for several years past.

The principal new stakes are the California Derby for $3000, the California Oaks for $2500, the Waterhouse handicap of $2500 at two miles, the Bell stake for two year olds for $2000 and the Adam Andrew selling stake, the Crocker handicap and the Christmas handicap of $3000 at one and one-eighth miles.

The following ten stakes to be run the first part of the meeting will close on September 16th:

$1500—The Opening Handicap, three year olds and up, one mile; $1500—Produce Exchange Stakes, two year olds, six furlongs; $1500—Golden Gate Selling Stakes, three year olds and up, seven furlongs; $1500—Crocker Handicap, two and three year olds, six and one-half furlongs; $2500—The Thanksgiving Handicap, three year olds and up, one and one-eighth miles; $1500—The Burlingame Selling Stakes, three year olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles; $1500—The Trux Beale Handicap, three year olds and up, one mile; $1500—The Junior Stakes, two year olds, seven furlongs; $3000—The Christmas Handicap, three year olds and up, one and one-quarter miles; $2000—The New Year's Handicap, three year olds and up, one and one-eighth miles.

Entries for the following events will close on November 4th:

$10,000—The Burns Handicap, three year olds and up, one and one-quarter miles; $3000—Thornton Stakes, three year olds and up, four miles; $3000—The California Derby, three year olds, one and one-quarter miles; $2500—The California Oaks, three year old fillies, one and one-eighth miles; $2500—The Waterhouse Handicap, three year olds and up, two miles; $2000—The Palace Hotel Handicap, three year olds and up, one and one-eighth miles; $2000—The Bell Stakes, two year olds, five furlongs; $200—The Pacific Union Handicap, three year olds, one and one-sixteenth miles; $1500—The Adam Andrew Selling Stakes, three year olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles; $1500—The Lissak Handicap, three year olds and up, one mile; $1500—The McLaughlin Selling Stakes, three year olds and up, one and one-eighth miles; $1500—The Naglee Selling Stakes, four year olds and up, six and one-half furlongs; $1500—The Gunst Handicap, three year olds and up, one mile; $1500—The Follansbee High-weight Handicap, three year olds and up, seven furlongs; $2000—The Gebhard Handicap, two year olds, Futurity course.

In addition to the above events there are to be special races at intervals with $500 to $1000 added. The racing season is to begin over the Tanforan track, on Saturday, November 2d. A special condition of interest to horsemen reads:

No selling stake or race shall be a claiming race, unless so specified in the conditions.

The Monadnock Handicap at Hawthorne Park, Chicago, was won by Cambrian on Saturday last at 10 to 1. Knight took him right to the front and set the pace most of the way. Advance Guard came in the stretch, but Cambrian finished with remarkable gameness, winning by half a length. A length away from Advance Guard came Louisville, John Bright and The Conqueror, all heads apart.

THIRD DAY.

THURSDAY, August 1.—This was an off day at the Breeders meeting, a rather indifferent program offering but little inducement for the people to turn out in large numbers. However the races carded for Friday and Saturday, when excursions will be run on all the roads leading into Sacramento, should serve to draw out a big attendance.

The first race to-day was for members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club and was won by H. W. Meek's mare Crieri, a daughter of Direct 2:05½ and Cricket 2:10 by Steinway. Crieri is the third of Cricket's foals to enter the standard list and she now has to her credit William Harold 2:13½, Crieri 2:20 and the three year old Isobel 2:29½. These three are by Sidney, Direct and McKinney respectively.

The race for horses owned by members of the Sacramento Driving Club was won in staaight heats by Regina F. driven by Mr. Upson and the mare's record was reduced to 2:29½. Mr. Bell landed Pansy second and Mr. Ruhstaller was third with Monroe Jr.

The 2:35 pace was the first race of the week to have a bad look, but the judges Messrs. E. P. Heald, A. G. Gurnett and William G. Layng, promptly substituted drivers for those who seemed to have little ambition to ride in front and a pretty good race was made of it. The event was won by Penrose after Miramonte and Deacon had each taken a heat. The summaries of the days races are as follows:

The County Fair.

I want to see the apples all
 A-shining in a row,
 I want to see the pumpkins and
 Their cherry golden glow,
 I'm longing for the fragrant alsies
 Of good old home-made cake,
 And jars and jars of sweet things just Like mother used to make.
 And tho' you think me flighty and
 Perhaps a little slow,
 I'm longing for the county fair
 Of twenty years ago.
 For every one you ever knew,
 And lots besides were there,
 Tho alsies were strewn with sawdust and
 The sunshine filled the air,
 It smelled just like a circus and
 A field of new mown hay,
 With happiness enough for all
 And chunks to give away.
 Perhaps I ain't progressing much.
 But anyway I know
 I'm longing for the county fair
 Of twenty years ago.
 I'd like to see the boss trot start,
 And watch the bolles and beaux;
 In buggies 'long the home stretch fence,
 All in their Sunday clothes:
 While farmer boys in high wheel gigs
 Were yollin' for the "go."
 Yes, I'm longing for the county fair
 Of twenty years ago!

First Winners on the Circuit.

The winners of the two $1000 stakes decided at Sacramento last Tuesday, the first day of the Breeders meeting, Sir Albert S. 2:11½, winner of the 2:25 pace, and What Is It 2:16½, winner of the 2:40 trot, are exemplifiers of the old saying "blood will tell." The breeding of Sir Albert S. is here given tabulated to the third generation:

SIR ALBERT S. 2:11½	Diablo 2:09½	Chas. Derby 2:20.....	Steinway 2:25½
		Bertha.....	Kate G. by Electioneer
	Durfee 1:25½	Alcantara 2:23	Barcena by Bayard
		Kaiser 2:00	Julie by Revenue
	Ripple.....	Prompter 2:35	Grace by Buccaneer
		Eme Logan.....

Those who saw Sir Albert S. in his first start were impressed with the conviction that his perfect manners, wonderfully level head, frictionless gait and great speed as shown in the race, will land him before the year is ended several seconds below the 2:10 mark. Sir Albert S. was bred by Mr. William G. Layng of this city, who still owns him. His sire is the unbeaten Diablo 2:09½ and his dam is Effie Logan, a mare bred by the late Dr. Hicks of Sacramento. She was sired by Durfee 1:25½, a son of Kaiser 2:00, the horse that sired the dam of Coney 2:02. Effie Logan's dam was Ripple, full sister to Creole 2:15 (sire of Javelin 2:08½) by Prompter, and Ripple's dam is Grace (dam of Daedalion 2:11 and Creole 2:15) by Buccaneer. The dam of Grace is the famous old mare Mary by Flaxtail, the only mare that has two daughters that have each produced two 2:15 performers. Just scan the tabulation above and note the speed producers in it.

What Is It, winner of the 2:40 trot and the first green trotter to take a record on the circuit this year, is a half brother to that other queerly named but very fast horse Who Is It 2:10½.

WHAT IS IT 2:10½	Director 2:17	Dictator
		Dolly by Mamb Chief
	Eehora 2:23½	Echo 462
		Young Mare by Jack Hawkins
	Brigadier 2:21½	Happy Medium 400
		Lady Turner by Frank Pierce
Lexington Belle	Lexington
	Eagless by Glencoe

What Is It is by Direct 2:05½ out of Lassie Jean (dam of Who Is It 2:10½, What Is It 2:16½ and Dolly Marchutz 2:19½) by Brigadier. The dam of Lassie Jean was the famous old thoroughbred mare Lexington Belle, whose dam was Eagless, whose blood is in the veins of many fast trotters and pacers as well as a host of thoroughbreds, including the mighty Morello and others. What Is It was bred by Mr. A. G. Gurnett, at the Sulphur Spring Stock Farm, Contra Costa county, who still owns him.

Blue Grass Notes.

[Kentucky Stock Farm.]

Seventy-five thousand tickets are being printed for the fall trots. They are in fourteen styles and average four colors each. Thirty thousand single admission tickets are being made for the day of The Abbot and Boralma match race.

Charles Marvin shipped only one of his string to Cleveland, Captor, brown gelding by Electric Bell, dam Ula Lee by Gen. George H. Thomas. This horse trotted two heats over the Lexington track one day last week, the first in 2:12½ and the second in 2:12.

C. W. Williams says that not a mare will be farmed by him, or bred on shares, to any of his stallions next season, that is not standard bred and registered. He says that the man who has mares that can be registered and are not is not wise, and the man who has mares that cannot be registered is at least foolish.

The handsome silver cup to be presented to the winner of the Walnut Hall Cup has arrived from New York, and Secretary Horace Wilson has had it deposited in a safety vault, where it will remain until he is ready to exhibit it to the public gaze next fall. The cup is added with each season's renewal of the race by the proprietor of the Walnut Hall Stock Farm.

Sellers, the green four-year-old gelding that W. W. Evans sold to Idle Hour Stock Farm, Macon, Ga., last fall for a long price, fell and broke his neck while Roy Miller was working a fast heat at Grosse Pointe track, Detroit, several days ago. Sellers was one of the fastest three year-old trotters ever trained at the Lexington track, and as a three-year-old trotted a mile in 2:12½, and in a heat prior to the accident he worked a mile in 2:13½. He was a son of Mincemeat, and was valued at $10,000.

One of the best young things at the Lexington track is a three-year-old called Talkur, the property of Major P. P. Johnston. The colt is by King Clay, out of Lady Athol, by Glen Athol 2:24½. He has been in Will Young's hands but thirty days, and has shown him a mile in 2:24, last half in 1:09. He is a clean-gaited fellow, and is looked upon as one of the best for his years at the track.

News From the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Sam Casto has driven Altacora, a full sister to Chelalis, a mile in 2:18, last half in 1:07.

"Red" Green took Boy S. to the fair grounds where he will train him for the slow class.

John Pender will move to the State fair grounds track next week with Capt. Jones and Lady Jones.

Lady Alfred 2:20 by Alfred G., dam Lady Salisbury by Mambrino Patchen 58, has been bred to Zombro.

I. C. Mosher drove his two year old filly Dix Alene a full mile in 2:42½, quarter in 38 seconds and last eighth in 17½ seconds.

The track at the fair grounds is in the best condition possible and no one certainly has a kick coming, unless it is against himself.

E. C. Payne, of Davenport, Wash., is working Klamath Maid, a green pacer owned by Mr. Ashley, and an Alexis colt out of a mare by Ham, also the stallion Sunrise 2:19½, who has just closed a successful season in the stud. The two last named are owned by A. W. Turner. Little Billy has been turned out and will not be raced this year.

R. Everding, of this city, has brought the trotting gelding Hamrock 2:17½ and will place him in John Green's hands, who will condition him for the races this fall. Mr. Green leaves this week for the fair grounds with him and Wm. Frazier's horse Roy S., where he will give them the finishing touches. They will most likely start at Spokane then return to the State Fair.

The Spokane Inter-State Fair race track at the new grounds of the association is now complete and is now pronounced by all who have seen it to be one of the finest, if not the very finest one-half mile tracks in America. It is built on exactly the proper lines, will make a fine training track and will yet be speedy. The stables are 12 x 12 with a 12-foot shelter attachment, and the city water system throughout the grounds is being put in at a cost of $2000. The fencing around the track will be of heavy wire construction of a pattern sufficiently close to keep out dogs. Ten thousand dollars in purses to cover nine days' racing is bringing the results which would naturally be expected.

The Brighton Cup, a weight-for-age race at two miles and a quarter, was run at Brighton Beach last Saturday. It was not the feature of the day's sport as had been expected, however, as Prince of Melbourne and Rochester were the only two to face the starter, and it amounted to a practical walkover for Prince of Melbourne. All the eligibles for the cup were broken down or temporarily retired, so that the race was a disappointment. Previous to the day's racing both horses were sold at auction, G. Walbaum paying $20,500 for Prince of Melbourne and R. R. Rice, owner of Wax Taper, $2600 for Rochester. Prince of Melbourne was naturally at a prohibitive price in the betting, being quoted at 1 to 20, while Rochester was 12 to 1. Shaw took Prince of Melbourne to the front at the start and led by six lengths going by the stand the first time, but rounding the first turn his mount halted and before Shaw could stop him McCue had Rochester eight lengths in front. Those who had taken a "piker's" chance on Rochester cheered as he showed the way for the first mile. Shaw made up his ground gradually, however, and, taking command in the beginning of the last mile, romped home an easy winner in the slow time of 4:03 3-5. The stake was worth $5795 to the winner.

A mare which I have been driving 14 miles a day was perfectly well on Saturday, but on Monday, after standing one day, did not exhibit her usual life. When she reached town, after a seven mile drive, her hind quarters and tail were trembling violently. We were unable to find any tenderness over the back. She had shown some signs of weakness that day in her hind legs. Upon driving home that afternoon, she showed much spirit at first but soon came down to a walk and every attempt to urge or if the buggy pushed her a little on a grade she showed a tendency to lope and hobble. She was hardly able to get into the stable. She was given a rest for a few days, placed on bran, mashes and nitre. She had been eating fresh barley hay for a few days previously. When led out the next day she was quite playful. After several days rest she started out well, but on the home trip exhibited the same symptoms again. The hostler says that the bowels and kidneys are acting normally. This morning the mare was very gay in the stable but exhibited the same trouble in the hind quarters.
 July 12, 1901. ALBERT B. MCKEE.

Answer—The symptoms you describe are those of azoturia. This usually affects a horse that is fat about the kidneys, especially if he be well fed and not worked regularly and after a day or two of rest.

The symptoms do not show until the horse is exercised, but the stiffness in hind quarters, trembling, sweating, dark colored urine, etc., are manifested. If the symptoms be severe there is danger of paraplegia and even death. You had better call in a veterinary surgeon to examine the extent of the disease and prescribe. Hot applications over the kidneys, medicine to cause absorption of the uric acid in the system and to act on the kidneys and bowels, at the same time rest and non-nitrogenous food with a plentiful supply of drinking water is the general line of treatment.

An Overstocked Farm.

An overstocked farm is an unprofitable one, nine times out of ten. The farmer who is carrying more hogs than he can properly take care of, is in a fair way to lose money. There is no stock in which an overstock results in loss quicker than sheep and swine. It does not do to crowd them. At a farm recently there were 150 pigs of all ages, sizes and sexes running in a single lot, all of them thin, hungry and squealing. This was not a profitable condition for them to be in. They were not in shape to add growth and gain from the feed they were receiving.

It is safe to say that had the farmer only fifty head of hogs, and they were divided into even sizes and ages and fed well, getting them into good condition, that the profits on the fifty would be more than on the 150.

Overstocking is the bane of many an enthusiastic farmer, who is of the opinion that profits are multiplied according to the number kept regardless of condition.

The secretary of the Wyoming sheep commission says that the lamb crop this season was the heaviest ever known. In some herds of two and three thousand the average per cent was 112 and 113. The ranges are in splendid condition and the state over the lamb crop averages ninety-five per cent.

gun the Indian with us was carrying. If he lived he's got the whole collection with him now and would be worth working as a mineral claim, and if he's dead he shares the distinction of Moses, for his grave no man knoweth unto this day.

"Jack rabbits and quail don't count much as game, but the country down there is so full of them you have to kill a few as you go along the road just in self-defence. We never thought of using anything but a six-shooter to kill rabbits with, for they would come up and investigate our outfit at twenty yards any hour in the day. The quail are the blue California sort, the males with the handsome brown crest. They were so thick that we used to kill them with sticks around camp when we wanted any of them to broil.

"Antelopes we saw from the wagon almost every day, and when I say that you can pot antelopes at 300 yards without even taking the trouble to get the wind of them, you will see that they are tamer than you ever find them in this part of the country.

"But nothing in the game held a bobtail flush alongside the bighorn. I had not thought of looking for them in that part of the country till I saw several pairs of magnificent horns knocking around on the rubbish heaps near some of the little Papago settlements we passed. Then my bristles were up, and I asked the Indians where the horns came from. They said very indifferently that they had killed the sheep around in the hills. I knew the sort of guns they had, old '73 model Winchesters, tied together with rawhide and strings, and I was puzzled to see how they got anything as shy as a bighorn with such an armament. One of the Mexican rancheros I stopped with told me that the Papagos were great hunters, but they made a specialty of never shooting at anything over seventy-five yards, for fear of wasting a cartridge, which costs 5 cents in silver in that part of the country. Bighorns at seventy-five yards sounded like a mescal vision, but I nominated myself for a pair of horns right there. About a week later I got two pairs.

"Around Hermosillo, the State capital, they said that you were liable to find bighorn in any of the mountains over to the west. But when we had traveled fifty miles down toward the coast the Papagos told us that the place where the bighorn really lived and held mass meetings was a desolate range of mountains right down on the edge of the Gulf of California. The Papagos said they never hunted over in those hills themselves, because the Seri Indians came in there off and on to hunt, and Seris were several degrees worse than large, black devils; that they ate confiding strangers, knew nothing of guns, used poisonous arrows and could run down a deer on foot. If we went over into the Big Seri mountains, we would find bighorn without hunting for them, but the Seris would kill us. However, that was our business, if we wanted to be killed.

"We elected to be killed and cut off across forty miles of desert, cactus jungle, scrub and mesquite, and stretches of open plays where the sand was hard and bare as asphalt, and old, forgotten river deltas where the sand was like powdery gray volcanic ash, and the squirrel burrows let the horses in to their knees every six steps. Talk about dead and forgotten territory! That gulf coast desert takes the unlearned biscuit. Even the coyotes keep out of there, and the only living things we saw on the way across were tarantulas and Gila monsters, that would stalk right up under your feet as if they expected you to turn out and give them the road.

"We finally hit a big barranca full of water at the foot of the coast range of hills, and the next day we went over to climb a 5000-foot peak that rose right up out of the gulf, so as to get a look at the country before beginning to hunt, likewise thinking there might be metal in a big pink and yellow outcrop that showed near the top of the peak. We had bribed a couple of Papagos to come along with us, and they steered us up to an intermittent spring at the foot of the peak, where they said there was water, sometimes. There wasn't any water, but just as we got to where the spring ought to be, one of the Indians jabbered to the other and held up three fingers.

"I looked ahead, and there was a band of three bighorns too far away for a shot, just disappearing over a saddle between the peaks. I wanted to work around about two miles and catch them on the other side, but the Indian said in Spanish that it was too much work, to just keep on where we were going and 'we'd see some more right away, pretty quick.' I figured he was lying to get out of the walk, but we followed his advice. We climbed pretty much all the rest of the forenoon till we were within about 500 feet of the top of the peak, when the Papagos came to a point again and dropped behind a rock. There, at a forty-five-degree angle above us, and about 300 yards away, there was a bunch of four sheep lined up against a straight wall of rock, dun-colored tufa, just about the same color they were. The only thing that located them for me was the head and shoulders of the older leader sticking out beyond the corner of the cliff and showing black against the blue sky. The Indians were for creeping up till you could knock the whole lot over with a rock, but I'd worked too often a whole day for a shot at 800 yards to take any chances in getting closer. So I took a rest and drew coarse on the leader's head, allowing for the refraction on the rocks. He just went up in the air as if he had dynamite under him and came down all spread out on the slide rock, and tobogganed down to within a hundred yards of us like a wild-cat train on a grade.

"Do you know the rest of those fool sheep didn't tumble to what had happened till I had taken a snap shot at the next in the line? I knew I had touched him from the way he stumbled, but they all went up the rock like cats. It was just pure waste of ammunition to shoot again, but I couldn't help pumping one more shot at them just as they were getting out of sight behind the shoulder of the mountain. Scratch me if the smallest one of the bunch didn't curl up in the midst of a jump and came down flat. It wasn't shooting. It was just Irish luck. I found afterward I had caught him in the back of the head, just between the horns.

"The other two were evidently making right for the tip of the peak and we went after them, hoping to find the one I had winged. We climbed half a hour on that last 500 feet, following a little blood on the rocks. Right at the top of the peak there were two big knuckles of basalt, the highest about thirty feet above the other tumbled mess of rock that finished off the crown of the mountain. Right at its foot was a little gravel patch, and as I came crawling over the smaller knuckle, I saw my bighorn lying down on that little clearing just below me. He was up like a shot and went at the pinnacle rock like a steeplechaser. He found a footing on it somehow, and about three jumps put him on top. I knew I had him caged for the only way out was over the mountain I was on and the mountain dropped away a clear thousand feet on the other side. I had bored him right through the body, but too far back, and he was dripping blood from the mouth. The last rush up the rock had weakened him and he was shaking at the knees, but he gathered his hoofs up in a bunch and sailed right out into the air away from me. I spent fifteen minutes and risked my neck climbing around the mountain to see if there was any landing place on the other side, but it went down, as I say, a thousand feet clear. It was the plainest case of suicide I ever saw in an animal."

The Fly-Casters.

As the class contests in fly-casting at Stow Lake are narrowing down to the finals in the medal contests, it will be noticed that the interest of the club members is unflagging and to the observer who keeps pace with the results it will be seen that the average of improvement is ever on the increase. The Saturday attendance has been regular, but not equal in numbers to the workers who turn out with their rods on Sunday mornings—this fact is a reasonable condition of affairs and not due to want of interest as much as lack of opportunity. In long distance casting a number of the fly-casters have shown a wonderful improvement; on Saturday last out of eight contestants all but one put his line out over 100 feet. Of this number we believe Dr. Brooks shows the most improvement, comparatively, for the season. Of the leaders Harry Golcher and T. W. Brotherton have struck a pace in both Saturday and Sunday work that will require the highest skill to overtake. J. B. Kenniff, however, may be reckoned with as a dangerous opponent in this particular event. In Saturday's scores every rod has a record of over 86% in the accuracy event. In this event on Sunday, out of nineteen men in, but four fell below 87%, thirteen of the fly-casters made over 90%. T. W. Brotherton and Ed Everett were high in delicacy and accuracy percentages on Saturday and up in the quartette of best scores for this event on Sunday—the results in delicacy work on Sunday being toned down by adverse weather conditions. The bait-casting event is gradually winning more students for the class and promises to develop some exceptionally skillful work. Since the sixth contest a gradual improvement in this particular style—and a good one it is to know, too—has been apparent. The scores for both days of the eighth contest follow:

Black bass fishing near Guerneville and Camp Revier is better than it has been for many years past.

C. M. Osborn hooked a six and a half pound rainbow with a No. Wilson spoon and a six and a half ounce rod recently in the Truckee. He was casting from the bridge near the Country Club Lodge at Verdi when he hooked the record trout for this season. He battled with him for nearly three-quarters of an hour, when Ed Everett came to the rescue and climbing down the bridge cross timbers secured the prize in a net.

Many anglers are now on the stream from Boca to Verdi, the fishing being first class.

Striped bass fishermen have been making good catches in San Antonio creek. Many bass have been caught at Black Point, near the railroad bridge. Chas. Precht caught four fish Sunday near Sears Point, weighing respectively 2, 5, 5 and 12 pounds.

On Saturday and Sunday, two weeks ago, Al Wilson and Manuel Cross made the high hook catch for this season. They fished in the flats below Pinole, on the east side of the bay. In about four or five feet of water in the evening and morning next day they caught twenty-three fish, the heaviest weighing 19 pounds. One fish, a 7 pounder, was caught on a trolling spoon. After giving away a number they still had 100 pounds of fish to bring home. Fred Allen landed a 14 pounder on Sunday caught in San Pablo bay.

The Autobiography of a Salmon.

My first recollections of this uncertain life are of swimming about with a swarm of other "pinkies" or tiny salmon fry above the shingly bed of a shallow stream, which I afterwards learnt was a tributary of the Shannon many miles from the sea. We found ourselves suddenly launched into existence without knowing why or wherefore; but it seems from the earliest youth the instinct of self preservation was strong within us, for we carefully avoided any fish bigger than ourselves.

Many a time do I remember darting about with my comrades or poising in a stationary position behind some small stone in the clear water, when what appeared to us to be a huge monster with great ugly mouth and rows of sharp teeth would sweep amongst our shoal, and carry off some of my unfortunate comrades. These voracious enemies were, as I afterwards discovered, only small pike and perch; but in those days they seemed veritable giants in comparison with ourselves, and whenever the dark form of one appeared, we used to scatter in all directions, sometimes even jumping out of the water in our fright.

For the above reasons we seldom ventured into the deeper portions of the stream, but kept almost entirely to the shallow shingly parts, yet even here we were far from safe. Often have I seen one of our party suddenly seized by a strong narrow weapon and taken clean out of the water never to return. This was the beak of a tall, thin grey bird with long legs and neck, which has the power of remaining so motionless that it is hard to distinguish it from a stake or a portion of the bank. Suddenly it makes a dart with its cruel beak and woe betide the unfortunate object of its intentions, for it seldom misses.

Avoiding life's dangers from the earliest times and being favored with a certain amount of good fortune, by the time I was six months old I was well able to take care of myself, and was, in my own estimation, at least, quite a grown up fish. Such is the precociousness of youth, the confidence in self which alone is capable of carrying us through the ups and downs, disappointments and vicissitudes of existence. At the present time, with the ripe experiences of years, I look back and admire the splendid impudence of my younger days which bore me successfully along where so many of my contemporaries perished.

At what then appeared to me the advanced age of six months, I was a well built little fish some four inches in length, silver in color, with a black back and dark patches on my sides. In a word, I was a well developed salmon fry and my one aim and object in life was to make my way down the river towards the sea.

Though at that time I had no idea as to what the sea was like, nor an inkling as to how complete a change life in salt water would be, yet I obeyed the overwhelming instinct which prompted me to work gradually down with the stream, not knowing whether nor how far I was going.

During this long and protracted journey dangers were many and I had numerous narrow escapes.

In the deep parts of the river, large pike, some of which weighed up to 20 pounds, with enormous cruel jaws, used to chase me, but luckily I was a fast swimmer and always managed to dart into shallow water where my huge pursuers were afraid to follow. Yet even in the shallows one was not absolutely safe, for large black birds with yellow beaks used to dive under water and chase one at a terrific speed.

However, I used to avoid them by jinking round a stone, when they either went straight ahead and lost me or continued their chase after some other fish.

In the summer evenings when the sun was setting, and a gentle breeze played over the surface of the warm water, I and my companions used to spend a busy hour catching the flies which drifted down the stream or hovered in swarms above it. Of these, there were many varieties; some with fat yellow bodies and speckled brown wings, others green and yellow, but the most delicious of all were black all over.

On one calm evening when, after a half hour's feeding, I was gorged with flies, I made a fatal mistake, and nearly paid dearly for my greediness. I rose at what appeared to me to be one of my favorite black gnats, when to my surprise and consternation, the moment I got it into my mouth it gave me acute pain. I made a few frantic dashes to and fro, but found myself being hauled along in spite of all my efforts.

Just as I was almost exhausted on the top of the water, the fly left my mouth, carrying away a part of the flesh, and I drifted away with the stream and nearly dead, but free.

After this experience I rather avoided the flies which drifted down over my nose, however tempting they might be and contented myself with eating the larvae off the stones and the sediment in the water.

All this time I was increasing in strength and size, and was by degrees making my way down the river until at last I left the rocky bottom and fresh water behind me and got my first taste of the salt tide.

Having arrived in the sea, life changed completely. I found plenty of food and grew enormously in size. There were even more enemies to be avoided than in the river, and I had many narrow escapes. However, the stronger I grew the more I was able to look after myself and avoid danger.

After living for about a year in the sea, an irresistible impulse again drove me towards fresh water, and before long I found myself with a lot of other fish of about my own weight heading towards the mouth of the river.

I met many of my old comrades the salmon fry of the year before, but so much had they grown that they were scarcely recognizable. They were now handsome, well formed "peal" varying in weight from 3 to 7 lbs. I myself weighing about 4 lbs.

It was about the beginning of May when we entered the mouth of the Shannon and left the salt, green waves of the Atlantic for the muddy brackish water of the river. The change affected both our spirits and appetites. Instead of dashing about intent on killing anything smaller than ourselves, we became more lazy and listless and mounded along the edge of the mud flats, with the one set purpose in our minds of getting up the river.

Such, however, is the precarious existence of a salmon, that although we had escaped the many perils of the ocean, yet we were to be confronted in the tidal waters of the river by new and terrible dangers.

Fortunately being one of the smaller and less important members of our "Scull of peal," I was content to follow my larger comrades.

What was my horror one day to see several of them suddenly fixed in a huge black net which seemed to extend across the whole channel and was drifting down with the tide. The wretched fish had got their heads through the meshes of the net, and in trying to force their bodies through as well, had got the sides of the mesh behind their gills and the more they struggled the more firmly fixed they became, until at last they were lifted above the surface of the water and never seen by us again.

This happened on several occasions, for the net was extremely hard to see, and the leading fish would strike it suddenly and become fixed.

Much disheartened at the sight of so many of my companions thus coming to an untimely end, I used to retreat with the remainder of the scull and wait until some of the bolder spirits among us had found a passage round the obstruction.

Being unfamiliar with the geography of the bed of the river, our natural tendency was to feel our way along the edges of the channel.

Yet here again we were continually being confronted with stake nets and other devices for our capture, in which many of our number were caught.

After a journey of some seventy miles the river narrowed from a wide expanse of mud flats and deep channels to one broad clear stream of fresh water.

It was about the middle of June when we passed the city of Limerick and made our way through a narrow passage in an obstruction which at first sight seemed to block the whole width of the river.

This I subsequently learnt from old fish who had passed it for many successive seasons was the famous "Lachs Weir," the most formidable of the many dangerous obstacles which obstruct the path of unfortunate salmon.

However on this occasion we managed to pass it more by good luck than good management, for we were still young and did not realize our danger.

Once in the clear fresh water life seemed at last to be really worth living, and apparently there was nothing more to be feared. We had the satisfactory feeling of duty accomplished, and enjoyed a well earned rest after our struggles in the tideway.

Some of the more ambitious spirits among us pressed on up the river, but most of us were content on reaching some deep eddying hole to remain there and exist through the long summer days, occasionally rising to the surface and lazily rolling on the top of the water.

Personally I found a snug corner behind a large honey combed rock which appeared to me to be absolute paradise. On each side of the rock the swift stream dashed past forming under its shelter a slight back water in which it was possible to maintain one's position with a minimum of exertion.

In the same eddy dwelt an old salmon, the veteran of many an expedition to the sea and back, who had already been in the river three months, and whose originally silver back and sides were now tinged a bright red from exposure to the sun.

He was an unsociable old fish and seemed to have lost all interest in this life, a picture of brooding contemplation as he lay almost motionless from day to day. The only advice he gave to me was about the folly of inquisitiveness, especially with reference to the occasional gaudy lures which floated over our rock and remained poised in the most offensive manner above our heads.

Many a time when one more startling than the rest would appear, my curiosity would be excited to such a pitch that it was only the restraining influence of this old salmon which prevented me from rising and seizing the tantalizing thing in my mouth.

As for my old friend, he used to simply cock one eye, regard the object attentively for a second and then relapse into oblivion again. Often I used to think that if he would wax a little more communicative and unfold the history of his life, he could have related more than one sad experience, and many a hairbreadth escape in waters both salt and fresh.

A couple of months passed in this tranquility, when towards the end of September the river became suddenly swollen and muddy after heavy rain. The freshness and increased strength of the stream seemed to put new life into us all, and roused even the old salmon out of his lethargic state. Fish which had been stationary behind the same rocks for months began to move about, shake their tails and seek pastures new. I too felt this exhilarating influence, and for some days while the flood lasted explored my way up the river.

At the end of October we could hardly have been recognized as the same bright, silver, well-formed fish which had entered the mouth of the river only a few months before. The larger salmon had completely changed in appearance, having lost condition and become long, lanky creatures with hooked noses and great ugly jaws. The females were big with roe and the instinct that ruled us all was that of finding some suitable pebbly shallow for spawning operations during the ensuing cold season.

Thus the winter passed away and the month of February found us idly drifting down towards the sea, shapeless, hideous "slats," devoid of spirits or energy, mere shadows of our former selves. So enervated were we that we avoided the strong current of the main stream and frequented the easy water and shallows near the banks. The one sensation that took possession of me was that of hunger, a craving for food in order to renew the wasted condition of my system, and yet nature provided nothing for us to eat. We were far too emaciated and slack to attempt to pursue the smaller fish which crossed our paths.

On reaching the tideway the first taste of salt water acted like a tonic. Our energies seemed to return with our renewed silver color; so that by the time we had been a few months in the sea we were quite ourselves again, strong and fit, with voracious appetites.

I attached myself to a large "scull" of salmon, most of which were considerably bigger than I, and with them enjoyed great sport chasing the shoals of sprats and herrings with which the ocean abounded.

In the course of a year my weight had trebled and I entered the river again a firm, handsome fish of twelve pounds.

Though no doubt the experiences of the year before tended to make us wiser and more cautious in our journey up the river, yet many of my companions behaved in a bold, reckless manner, treating obvious dangers with contempt, and consequently a large proportion paid the penalty of capture and death for their dash and temerity. Being of a more calculating disposition I escaped the weirs and nets of the Lower Shannon, and again I found myself in the clear, fresh water of the upper river.

This year I was not content with my old quarters but pressed on with the rest of the "sculls" until what seemed an impassable obstacle blocked our way. There was no way round it and the water dashed with such force through the few small openings that many of my comrades gave up the attempt of negotiating it as hopeless. Having seen a few succeed I made several efforts and finally got through to find myself in calm deep water on the other side. The river broadened here into a large lake, very deep in parts and in others abounding in shallows and small islands. Here at last was absolute freedom. No weirs nor nets, no otters nor predatory fish to molest us.

The lake was tenanted by thousands of trout and pike besides other varieties of coarse fish, many of which having survived the dangers of youth had grown to a great size and lived in ease and comfort from year to year.

In the months of May and June alone did the lake trout bestir themselves and feed greedily on the great green flies which rose from the bottom of the lake in the form of chrysalises, shook off their ugly outer garments and soared away with a weak clumsy flight only to fall on the surface of the water again.

In this abode of bliss the summer passed away and winter came. With it the necessity of again visiting the sandy shallows of a tributary stream in obedience to the law of nature to "increase and multiply."

Another downward journey to the sea, broken only by one untoward incident which nearly proved my ruin. Hungry as usual I snapped in cautiously at a great gaudy insect with blue and yellow wings, and having done so got a large hook firmly fixed in the side of my nose. I jerked and made every effort to rid myself of it, but though it always gave when I pulled, the hook remained fixed, and in my then feeble condition my strength soon gave out. I found myself being hauled slowly along, and finally lifted out on to the bank. My senses left me and I only have a vague remembrance of the hook having been rudely cut out and of my having been pitched back again into the river.

It was many hours afterwards before I recovered and meanwhile had been carried far down by the stream.

Again, with the change to salt water, my natural vigor returned, and my weight increased to twenty-four pounds by the time I prepared for my third journey up the river. My sojourn in fresh water on this particular trip proved an eventful one for me on more than one occasion. Hardly had I reached the rapids some twenty miles above the tidal waters of the Lower Shannon, when I made the mistake of trying to devour what appeared to me to be a small, bright fish.

I proved, however, to be nothing of the kind, and whatever it was it gave me a very unpleasant quarter of an hour. On seizing it in my mouth I felt an acute pang of pain and what appeared to be its tail stuck firmly in my lower lip.

I made a mad rush down the rapids up which I had just ascended, and for a few moments obtained comparative relief. The tension was gone but the thing still adhered to my jaw. Suddenly the strain returned. I tried the same tactics as before, namely darting off down stream, this time throwing myself out of the water in rage and agony. Still the strain continued, a passive resistance which nearly drove me mad. I now kept close to the bottom and sulked, jerking occasionally in the hopes of ridding myself of the hateful thing. Soon, however, the strain became unbearable and I was obliged to rise. After a few more frantic dashes my strength began to fail, when suddenly a small portion of my lip was torn away and I felt myself free.

After this painful episode I continued my journey up the river, carefully avoiding insects and little fish of all sort, until I came to a long deep hole 300 yards long by 200 yards broad, which seemed an ideal place to rest in.

Here for some months I whiled away the summer days in peace and idleness. It was not till the autumn floods appeared that I felt the least inclination to move. I then began to feel my way up the river, passing rapidly through the shallow portions and dawdling for a day or two in the deeper holes. In one of these holes I was lying behind a rock, when my attention was attracted to an insect which kept on dashing swiftly out of the stream and playing about in the eddy above my head.

Knowing, as I did through past experience, that "all is not gold that glitters," I contented myself with rising to have a closer look at the gaudy thing.

It had a light blue body ribbed with gold, black head and wings of many colors. Though much tempted to snap at it, I resisted and went to the bottom again. The insect, however, displayed renewed activity, darting up and down, folding and unfolding its wings in the most tantalizing way. After a short while this insect disappeared and another of still more brilliant hues took its place. The body of the second one was half black and half yellow, of dark colored plumage and with a golden tail and back. It was altogether a beautiful creature, though very tiny, and it pleased my artistic eye.

I again rose to have a look without the least intention of being on any more intimate terms with the little creature. On reaching the surface of the water, I gave a contemptuous swirl away from it, having again resisted the inclination to seize it in my mouth, but unfortunately, in turning I hit the thing and got it firmly fixed in my tail. Immediately I felt a similar strain to that which had annoyed me so much earlier in the year, and I cursed myself for my carelessness. This time, however, the pain was of no consequence and having my head free I was able to go wherever I liked. As on the former occasion, I dashed down stream with lightning speed and threw myself out of the water, but it still stuck to me. After several of these rushes, a sudden thought struck me and seeing a large rough rock I darted round it. Immediately the strain on my tail went, but the insect remained with some yards of line attached to it. To make a long story short I carried that wretched fly about with me for many months; up to the spawning ground and down again to the sea, until at last all its gay plumage had worn away and nothing but a little double hook remained to remind me of my rashness. It was only a long time after when I changed altogether in the sea that I at last got rid of it.

I will not weary you with detailed accounts of my adventures in salt water, how I was mauled by a seal, the marks of whose sharp claws I still bear on my back, or of how I nearly got caught in a herring net. The dangers of the deep were many, but fortune favored me as usual.

My weight was over 40 pounds when I again entered the river Shannon. This time I led a large scull of salmon who, with due respect to my age and experience, looked to me for guidance.

Knowing of old the dangers of the tideway I went cautiously along until we reached the great weir of which I have spoken above. Taking my way from pier to pier I found all the gaps except one closed by nets. In the middle of this one, which was in the center of the main stream, we saw what appeared to be an otter, but it proved to be only an imitation one made of metal. There were also drawnets at work both above and below this gap: so that at first it seemed almost impossible to pass through. Meanwhile many of my smaller companions were caught, but I and a few other old fish waited for a good opportunity and eventually managed to get through successfully.

Once in the upper river all was plain sailing. I passed many well known places and familiar rocks and eddies. Finally I came to the big jagged stone behind which I had lain when only a little peal in company with the old solitary salmon.

Here I took up my position in the exact spot where he had lain and proceeded to while away the summer brooding over past experiences and speculating about the future. There were many other fish in the same hole to some of which I gave friendly advice and to the others reproof, chasing them whenever they annoyed me.

Many a time I saw others in the same predicament that I had been in during the previous year, but was unable to help them. I could see the long line cutting the surface of the water as the helpless fish struggled vainly across the stream. Now and then the victim escaped as I had done, but generally after a long fight he was dragged away, exhausted into shallow water, and then disappeared forever from the river.

Sometimes when the water was low three hooks attached back to back to a strong thick line used to sweep across the more open parts of the hole close to the bottom. Then woe befell any wretched fish which happened to be in the way, for with the treble hooks firmly fixed in his back he had little chance of escaping. In this way owing to their size the older and more cautious salmon ran even a greater risk of being killed than the peal. Luckily the hooks never came near my rock, so that unless I ventured out there was no need for me to fear this terrible but unseen danger. All this had a depressing effect on my spirits and I could now sympathize with the old salmon of my young days who looked on life with such disappointed cynical eyes.

I often wondered why nature having evolved such a perfect type of fish as salmon should place so many perils in its path through life. Thus ruminating on life in general and the cruelty and inconsistency of nature, the summer slipped by and—
The Shannon, Castle Connell.—On the Summerhill Water a fine salmon of 43 lbs. was caught on the 2d of September. He took a snail "jock scott" in single gut and was landed after a magnificent bout.—The Asian.

THE FARM.

Profit in Chickens.

While there is profit in chickens and other poultry where they are properly cared for, and the land used is suitable for them, many persons waste time in trying to make poultry raising a source of profit. Here is an item which we find in an exchange which shows that 200 per cent. profit can be made from the food fed a laying hen:

The Utah experiment station shows that a profit of 200 per cent. can be made with hen's food in one year. A pen of four hens laid an average of 182 eggs each during a year. They were Leghorn pullets. It cost sixty-two cents to feed each pullet. Wheat, which was about half the cost of all the food, was charged at seventy cents a bushel. The eggs were sold at market prices. Several months they were ten cents a dozen and one month they were twenty-five cents. The 182 eggs at those prices were worth $1.88, which is a profit of $1.26 for each fowl.

The experiment was doubtless a fair one, and will give a basis to figure on a little. Let us suppose that a poultry raiser owns 200 hens and has the same success that the Utah experiment station has recorded. At a profit of $1.26 for each fowl, the total for the year would be $252 or $21 per month. Now 200 hens could not be cared for properly without one person devoting at least six hours a day to them, and when that was done, taxes paid on the land and the chickens, and all the expenses of marketing eggs, etc., counted up, there would not be over seventy-five per cent. of the $21 left each month, and an able bodied person who would be content to work for that amount would never make a success raising chickens or anything else.

Our Horses and Mules Better Known.

It is said that it is an ill wind that blows nobody good. It appears that since the beginning of our war with Spain and that of Great Britain in South Africa, the demand for horses and mules on this country has sent thousands of both into many parts of the world where they were not known. As a result the world has come to understand the value of these, and looking more and more to this country for supplies. These demands come from Cuba, Puerto Rico, Japan, the Philippines and South Africa, where nearly a quarter of the people of the earth live. Only a few years ago this country was sending to Europe for much of its breeding stock of various kinds. Speaking of a commission here from Japan to select breeding animals to export, a Chicago paper says:

"It is significant that this commission comes first to the United States and will visit the countries of Europe later. This means that the United States is not more than fifty years has become, through its great extent of territory adapted to the growing of the finest horses and cattle a center of interest to the live stock men of other countries.

"Undoubtedly the demand for our horses and mules growing out of the Boer war was of great advantage to our farmers and stock growers, and possibly the visit of the Japanese commission to look into our methods of stock growing and to purchase typical American animals is the beginning of a movement that will stimulate our ranchmen and farmers to continue in those efforts that have given us the finest horses and cattle in the world."

Now is a good time to call out the ewe flock to select the best of them for rearing lambs next year. It is not the highest ewe that always rears the best lamb, but as a rule a good ewe with a single lamb is better to keep than the ewes which are apt to bring twins and then are not able to rear them. Do not discard a ewe on account of age, bring her in to run three or four more years on alfalfa pasture. It is better to keep the best mothers as those lambs are always strong which have plenty of milk.

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

KENNEL.

Doings in Dogdom.

Mr. S. Christianson announces his high bred English Setter bitch Mary Lou is nearly due to whelp to one of Mr. Jos. Terry's well known dogs.

Wilmount Highwayman and Endcliffe Shela are located with N. J. Stewart at Aromas. Endcliffe Kitty is placed with Mrs. N. P. Rosenberg of this city.

In our kennel advertisements this week will be seen the card of Mr. L. A. Klein, whose reputation as an authority in doggy circles is international.

The litter of Bull Terriers whelped by Woodlawn Kennels' Newmarket Queen is the first Coast bred progeny of Champion Woodcote Wonder. The young ones are doing nicely and even at this early stage are a very inviting looking hunch of Bull Terrier puppies.

We announce, and with much regret, the withdrawal of Dr. C. E. Wilson's Clipper W. from the challenge race with W. W. Van Ardale's Peach Blossom at the Manitoba trials. For this race all the preliminary details, signing of articles, etc., we believe were carried out and nothing left, barring accident, to pull off the event. Now comes the news from Dr. Wilson that his dog, in charge of Geo. Gray, has gone wrong, the heat or something to that effect, will prevent Clipper W. from running. This is too bad, time and accidents have often proved a potent factor in passing into oblivion the pettyfogging work of the "mischief maker" and thus another opportunity is lost to expose misrepresentation.

Peach Blossom, in charge of Chas. Bahcock, is now East and will probably be run in the Manitoba trials any way.

A regular meeting of the Pacific Fox Terrier Club was held upon Monday evening last, at 41 Sutter street, N. H. Hickman in the Chair and Messrs Ford, Moore, D'Aquin and Martin present. John W. Mitchell, of Los Angeles, an enthusiastic fancier, who has been connected with the breed for fifteen years, was elected a member.

Entries for the 1st Division of the Produce Stakes for 1902, to be competed at the San Francisco Kennel Club Show, were received as follows: E. Courtney Ford's Eclipse Blanche, J. B. Martin enters Woodlawn Kennels' Dottie, W. F. Foster's Lillian Sage and Dr. C. E. Turner's Nuisance.

Entries for the 2d Division: C. K. Harley's Queen Dance and Carmencita, W. F. Foster's Lillian Sage and Village Belle, Robert Armstrong's Golden Spatters, Woodlawn Kennels' Legs and Feet and G. J. M. D'Aquin's Aldon Kitty.

The announcement that the 6th District Agricultural Association would hold a dog show in connection with its exhibit and under the rules of the American Kennel Club was received with satisfaction; the club decided to offer the following prizes to be competed for by dogs owned by its members: $5 for best dog over 12 months of age, $5 for best bitch over 12 months of age, $5 for best dog pup, $5 for best bitch pup. Club adjourned to call of Chair.

A hit of hard luck falling to L. A. Klein calls forth our sympathy and doubtless a kindred feeling of concern from the fancy. The loss of two dogs, one the Airedale Terrier Bowling Doris (Barkerend Jack ex Golden Lill) and the other the Bull bitch Baby Jean (Pharos-Daughter of Jack Sprat.)

Bowling Doris was probably the only genuine Airedale on the Coast, her loss being particularly regrettable as she was considered one of the best specimens in the country. She was bred in England by Mr. Lester and was afterwards owned by Mr. Geo. Raper the noted international judge and all round sportsman who sold her some two years ago to Mr. A. De Witt Cochran of New York. Mr. Klein who until recently practically handled all Airedales at the Eastern shows had Doris in his string often. Mr. Cochran, in recognition of Mr. Klein's successful management of his terriers at the various shows presented the bitch to him. Three puppies sired by Penhros Mustard, two dogs and a bitch, are now in the East, two of them will be shown at the coming Philadelphia show, this exhibition is the hotbed of Airedale fanciendom. Doris died of heart failure due to congestion of the lungs.

Baby Jean the Bull bitch, died at the kennels of Mr. J. C. Berret, in San Jose, during protracted parturition on the 28th inst. She commenced whelping on the 22d with one dead pup, a second was taken from her the same day, a third came alive and is now nursed by the Dachshund bitch Ch. Venololo at the same kennels and is reported doing well, a fourth dead pup was removed on Thursday and she succumbed to the fifth as above stated on Sunday. This was her first litter and sired by Ch. Ivel Rustic. Mr. Klein had great hopes for her as a hooded bitch. She was bred by Mr. Haggenjos, was fifteen months old and of a very sweet disposition.

The California Wing Club shoot to-morrow will be the final club shoot, for this season, of the veteran trap-shooting organization. The concluding club race to-morrow for the members will be at twenty-five pigeons. The prizes to be awarded the high guns are five pairs of elegant diamond studded cuff links.

Of the shooters who have attended every club match this season M. O. Feudner leads with four birds lost out of 75. P. J. Walsh and "Slade" follow with 65 birds each and Ed Donohoe has 60 scored. Of those who have only shot up four scores (with a back score to shoot up) C. A. Haight, W. H. Williamson, A. M. Shields and Dr. Barker of San Jose are within touching distance of the leaders as will be seen by the following table of scores (March, April, May, June and July):

C. A. Haight 14, 13, 15, 14, *—56; W. H. Williamson 14, 13, 14, 14, *—55; P. J. Walsh 14, 10, 13, 13, 15—65; "Heidelberg" 14, 13, 13, 13, *—53; L. D. Owens 14, *, *, *, "Slade" 13, 14, 11, 13, 14—65; A. Roos 13, 12, 11, 11, *—47; C. C. Nauman 13, *, *, *, M. O. Feudner 13, 14, 15, 15, 14—71; A. M. Shields 13, 13, 14, 14, *—54; H. The San Francisco Gun Club shoot at live birds last Sunday was the last of the 15 bird monthly club matches. The final club shoot, August 25th, will be at 25 pigeons. The high men for the season on Sunday last, at the opening of the shoot, were George Jackson and J. A. Karney, with 55 out of 60 each. C. A. Haight and R. C. Rosenberg, with but three and two birds lost respectively and each a back score to shoot up, were within easy reaching distance of the leaders. W. E. Murdock, E. L. Forster, with 54 out of 60 each and Otto Feudner with 53 were also close up. From the results it will be seen that the shooting on Sunday was a race for "blood." Karney and Jackson each missed a bird in the club race. Murdock killed straight and Haight lost one bird (the first one in the club race) and shot up a straight back score. This places four shooters in the lead with 69 birds out of 75. Feudner failed to put in an appearance and now has two back scores to shoot up. Forster, in missing one bird, still is one bird behind the leaders. Rosenberg, with but two pigeons lost out of 45 and a back score to shoot up, was looked upon as sure to be in the lead at the conclusion of the club race—losing five in the club race and two pigeons on his back score, seven out of 30 places him, so far, in sixth position. The birds supplied on Sunday were swift and strong. After the club shoot, eight bird pools were in order. The scores for the day follow:

The Millwood Gun Club monthly shoot at Millwood Junction brought out a full complement of members last Sunday. The club medal honors for the month were won by Arnold. The runner up, Maddock, a novice at trap shooting, this being his first season, is a very promising sportsman. M. O. Feudner has donated a handsome medal, which the club members will contest for. This prize will be known as the Feudner Trophy and will be competed for monthly under distance handicap conditions. W. H. Price will be the club's official handicapper. Mr. Thos. L. Lewis has also donated a prize, a Colt's repeating rifle, to be contested for at the monthly shoots. On Sunday a high wind prevented more than average scores.

In the club 25 bird race the scores were: Arnold 21, Maddock 19, Crandall 14, Price 14, Mersfelder 15, Nash 17, Newlands 13, James 16, Deffebach 13, Col. Draper 10, McLeod 9, Van Nordin 17, Dr. Cutter 13, Walker 17, Culbert 14, Newman 14, Lewis 13, Broade 9, Head 10, Fries 10.

Match at 10 targets—Arnold 8, Maddock 7, Crandall 7, Price 6, Mersfelder 6, Nash 7, Newlands 9, James 6, Deffebach 5, Col. Draper 4, McLeod 4, Van Nordin 7, Dr. Cutter 5, Walker 8, Culbert 7, Newman 4, Lewis 6, Broade 4, Head 4, Fries 4.

H. E. Skinner & Co., 416 Market St., have a new line of sporting rifles and small bore shotguns for deer and dove hunting. Special fixed ammunition and camping equipments for the season invite sportsmen's attention. A full line of ladies and gentlemen's hunting hoots in stock.

The Mountain Stronghold of the Bighorn.

"I have just been clear outside the world," remarked Wonnitz Dunne, an old mining engineer, to a party of congenial spirits on the porch of the San Xavier hotel, Tucson, one pleasant evening last fall. "I left civilization farther behind than the Philippines in a two weeks' trip, and I found some new placer fields; but that cuts no figure to speak of. I found what I have been looking for the past ten years, and that is the home of the lost bighorn. You may hardly realize it but the bighorn is about as nearly extinct in the United States as the buffalo, and there are more men with grizzlies to their credit in the past decade than there are who can show the head of a bighorn sheep of their own killing. You can understand I am pretty generous in giving up the cache, too, for I'm going to get some more of those sheep before they are all hunted out; but just now a hundred miles in Mexico seems a good deal farther than a thousand in almost any other direction, so I guess I won't have much opposition in my new preserve for a while.

"I crossed the line down at Sasahee, dead south of the hotel here. You can drive it in two days with a good team, and when you are once across the line you are a hundred miles from a railroad and a hundred and fifty years behind yesterday's newspaper. There were only three of us, and one was a Mexican teamster, so he didn't count. We were not out on the hunt very much, because what we were looking up were those Northern Sonora placer fields at a little place called the Cienega, over west of Alta. But we had about as fair shooting from the wagon as you could reasonably expect.

"The desert's a fascinating place for all it's so dead still and lonely. It isn't a trackless, sandy waste such as they pictured in the old geographies, by a long shot. There are forests of cactus, growing forty feet high, against ten feet high on this side of the line. There are great, big saguara cacti like factory chimneys, and that pipe-organ breed that the Mexicans call peyote, and hushy choyas big as oak trees back in the States with yellow spines that would turn tool steel, and thick as the feathers on a hen. There are a hundred and fifty-seven other sorts of desert growth, everyone of them armor-clad with spines and prickles, except the creosote weed, and that smells so that it is safe even from the burros. But the Papago Indians say it is a great medicine. They stew it and use it for hair tonic. They say it will raise a crop of hair on a saddle and hridge if you apply it often enough. Mayho it will.

"The greatest cinch for a white man in the way of deer hunting is El Humo, the big smoky mountains about forty miles south of Sasahee. I went prospecting there and didn't find anything but deer. The trouble with the place from the Indian standpoint is that it is haunted. It used to be an old volcano a few centuries before Cortez pointed into that country, but it's had its fires drawn and he on the drydock ever since. But the Indians say that's only a bluff. A few hundred years don't count for much in Mexico and they say the old witch doctor up in the hill is liable to start holling his kettle any time. Well, the deer don't believe in witch doctors, and there are stone 'tanques' around the foot of the hill that hold water after the rains and there are a few springs on the mountain itself, so the deer all pasture in there and got fat on thorn bushes and slide rock and things. We killed one big hurre deer before we had been on the mountain half an hour and we jumped three white-tail and one of the little mountain red deer and could have killed them all if we had had any way of packing them back to the wagon, but we were not out on a hunting trip, so we let them go.

"The white tail deer is about as big as the Virginia deer back in the States, but his gray hide is more shot with silver and he has bigger horns. The red deer is a beautiful little fellow about the size of an antelope and almost sorrel color. But the burro deer is the queerest of the bunch. He is the biggest of the lot, stumpy in the legs and not much horns to speak of, but heavy in the barrel as a very big burro or a pretty small mule. He's tough as his namesake at that. We started one down on the coast later on, and he cantered off into the hills with three Colt forty-fives in him and one ingot of about sixty caliber from the nondescript

FAST TIME AT SACRAMENTO.

Breeders' Meeting Closes With High Class Racing by Trotters and Pacers.

Scorching hot weather prevailed at Sacramento during the greater part of the week in which the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association's meeting was held, which without doubt kept many from attending. On Friday the thermometer registered several degrees over 100, and the horses were unable to show fast time after the first heats in the two races that were the principal attractions on the card. The weather, more than anything else, was the probable cause of the meeting not being a financial success, as on Tuesday, the opening day, when the temperature was reasonably cool, the largest attendance of the week was recorded, but as the heat increased the gate receipts fell off and every person in the Sacramento valley seemed to be devoting his or her time to an endeavor to keep cool, and trains to the coast land the mountain resorts were crowded with people trying to escape the terrible heat.

The first event of the day on Friday was the attempt of H. W. Meeks' mare Lady Fair, by Gossiper to get into the standard list which she succeeded in doing by trotting a mile in 2:30 flat against the watch.

The first race of the day was the free for all pace for a purse of $300, with three starters, Kelly Briggs, Myrtha Whips and Edna R. Although the son of Bayswater Wilkes was the favorite and won the race, he was in no shape to go a fast race of heats in such weather, as his owner, S. H. Hoy, had not intended to start him before the Woodland meeting and had given him but very little work.

The three horses went away to a good start in the first, Kelly Briggs leading Myrtha Briggs a half length at the sixteenth pole. In rounding the turn the overdraw on Edna R.'s bridle snapped and she broke and almost came to a standstill. Kelly Briggs and Myrtha Whips kept their positions to the half in 1:07, not a fast clip for either when in condition, but at this point Helman brought Myrtha Whips up in an attempt to beat the Yolo county pacer if he could, but Kelly Briggs maintained his position to the wire in 2:12. Edna R. paced very fast through the hack stretch and around the far turn but another break in the stretch prevented her from getting up in time to save her distance.

In the second heat, Helman went out with Myrtha Whips in an endeavor, as he afterwards stated, to give her a new record. She was at the quarter in 32 seconds, and at the half in 1:05. Here Hoy closed the gap of two lengths with Kelly Briggs and from there home it was a horse race all the way. As they entered the stretch the two pacers were on even terms, and no prettier race was ever seen. Myrtha Whips made an extra spurt just before reaching the wire and beat Kelly Briggs out a half length in 2:10, a half second below her former record. It was a hard mile for such a hot day and both pacers were tired as they came back to the stand.

Although Kelly Briggs was not in condition, he was game and won the next heat in 2:13, beating the mare a length, while the third he paced in 2:15, beating her two lengths. He was a sick horse all night and required the services of a veterinary, but recovered the next day and is all right again. Myrtha Whips was in good condition to race, but was all out at the end of the contest.

The 2:14 trot resulted in a sensational mile the first heat, and then the heat got in its work and the horses stopped until the last heat was in 2:23. There were six starters in the race, Anzella, Ned Thorne, Nora McKinney, Boydello, Richmond Chief and Osito.

In the pool selling before the first heat Richmond Chief, Osito and Ned Thorne each sold for 4 to 1, Boydello and Nora McKinney each 6 to 1, and Anzella 1 to 2.

The start was not a good one in the first heat. Osito was all tangled up, went to a bad break on the first turn and was distanced. Ned Thorne went out in the lead, reaching the half in 1:05, with Nora McKinney at his wheel, Richmond Chief third and Anzella, who was sent off on a break and had dropped ten or twelve lengths behind, coming fast. As they turned into the stretch, Anzella had reached Ned Thorne's wheels and challenged him for the heat. The son of Billy Thornhill had his trotting harness on, however, and beat her to the wire by a nose in 2:11 in one of the fastest and best heats ever seen on the track. Anzella must have trotted the mile as good as 2:10. The time of the heat was a reduction of four seconds in Ned Thorne's record. The fast mile had pretty well pumped out all the contestants but Anzella and she won the next three heats easily. She simply jogged in the last heat in 2:23, while the others were fighting for position in a state of exhaustion. The summary tells the story of their condition, as none of the last three heats were fast enough to test their speed when right.

In the race for members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club, which closed the day's program, the old campaigner Algregon 2:11 won very handily, as the time was slow enough to enable him to keep on his feet. Sandow was second, Durfee Mc third and Sable Le Grand fourth. Eden Vale, that was played pretty heavily to win, made a bad break in the first heat and was distanced.

LAST DAY, SATURDAY.

No better racing was ever held on the Sacramento track than was seen Saturday, the closing day of the Breeders' meeting, by the small crowd in attendance. The weather, while hot, was a few degrees cooler than the two previous days, and not so oppressive on horses and drivers. The tip was out that the drivers of the pacers in the 2:17 class had evolved a scheme to beat the Diablo horse, Sir Albert S., whose impressive win on the first day had given him the reputation of being the best green pacer that ever made his first season of racing over the California circuit, but the result showed that they had reckoned without his speed, as he beat them all handily in three straight heats, the last one in 2:08½, and showed himself a game race horse. This mile is not the fastest third heat ever paced by a local horse in the State, however, as printed in some of the daily journals, that honor being held by Clipper, another son of Diablo, who turned the Santa Rosa track the third heat last year in 2:06½ after winning the first heat of the race in 2:06. But Sir Albert S. is a high class horse and no green pacer has yet appeared in this State that has shown more race horse qualities than he, and that he can pace to a record of 2:05 is believed by every horseman who has seen him race. He started for the first time in his life last Tuesday and has now to his credit six winning heats, the time being 2:11½, 2:12½, 2:12, 2:11½, 2:13 and 2:08½, with the official time for the middle half of his last heat 1:01½, great speed for any horse. He has never made a break or a skip, nor been driven out to his full speed in any heat, and until he meets something faster than the horses he has so far raced against, it will have to be admitted by all that he is the best green pacer that ever appeared on the California tracks.

The starters in the first heat of the 2:17 pace on Saturday were: J. H. Thompson's El Diablo, E. W. Runyon's Banker's Daughter, A. H. Cohen's Advertiser, Vendome Stock Farm's Our Boy's Sister, J. L. Smith's Gaff Topsail, W. G. Layng's Sir Albert S., Thomas Clancy's Freddie C., C. Whitehead's Topsy and D. F. Oglesby's Nellie I.

The odds on the first heat were: El Diablo 2 to 1, Banker's Daughter 30, Advertiser 15, Our Boy's Sister 5, Gaff Topsail 8, Freddie C. 6, Topsy 8, Nellie I. 30 and Sir Albert S. a 1 to 2 favorite. Freddie C. was played quite heavily for the first heat, until the odds were even money on him at post time. Our Boy's Sister drew the pole, Freddie C. second position, Advertiser third, Gaff Topsail fourth, Topsy fifth, Banker's Daughter sixth, Sir Albert S. seventh, which was the outside position in the first tier. El Diablo and Nellie I. were in the second tier. After several scores, waiting for a broken check on Banker's Daughter and an exploded tire on Gaff Topsail's sulky, the word was given to a fair start. Freddie C. and Topsy rushed to the front and Sir Albert S. was taken across the track closer to the inside and was third at the first sixteenth and was in the lead soon after passing the first quarter, Trefry keeping close to him with the little pony by Direct. The two horses were lapped from the first quarter to the third, and several times were like a double team. Coming down the stretch Freddie C. tried his level best to beat the son of Diablo, and it did look as though he might do it. At the draw gate, however, Groom lifted the lines and spoke to Sir Albert and he let out a lunk and beat Freddie C. a half length at the finish, with the others strung out, but all inside the flag. The heat was in 2:11 and Topsy was third and Advertiser fourth.

It looked to the judges, and the spectators as well, as if Trefry did not drive his horse out in this heat as in the last hundred yards he was looking back and permitting the little black devil to go as he pleased. They accordingly asked S. H. Hoy to drive him the next heat. Sir Albert S. was a 1 to 4 favorite for the heat, 2 to 1 was offered on Freddie C. and El Diablo, with long prices against the others. The scoring was long and tedious. When the word was given Gaff Topsail took the lead, but Sir Albert overhauled him before the quarter was reached, and was never headed during the rest of the mile. Topsy and Freddie C. were from one to two lengths behind him, but it was useless to try and head Mr. Layng's horse. He had speed to burn and won the heat in 2:13, with Freddie C. again second, a length back, El Diablo getting third position, and Topsy fourth. Gaff Topsail and Nellie saw the flag waved in front of them, and although Our Boy's Sister managed to get inside, she was lame and Bunch withdrew her before the third heat.

On Mr. Hoy's statement that while Freddie C. was a wonderful little horse he did not think he could beat Sir Albert S., Mr. Trefry was permitted to drive in the next heat. There was evidently an intention on the part of Trefry and Farrar, who drove El Diablo to beat Sir Albert if possible and when the word was given in the third heat Freddie C. was sent after him to the half and El Diablo tried to chase him home. This was the first time during the meeting that trainer and driver Jack Groom and his horse had been thoroughly waked up. The first quarter was reached in 32 seconds with Sir Albert in the lead by a half length Freddie C. second and El Diablo third. The others were struggling to keep within the 100 yards line. At the half Sir Albert had increased his lead to a length and a half and the time was 1:03. Here El Diablo's driver turned him loose to beat the other Diablo if he could, but after carrying him to the three quarters in 1:33½ he concluded that the task was useless, and Sir Albert came home in 2:08½ alone, the others beaten off. El Diablo was second three or four lengths back and Freddie C. third. The others were outside the flag when it dropped. There was a round of applause when Groom brought his horse back to the stand. It was certainly a great heat for a green horse and stamped Sir Albert S. as one of the best horses of the year in the pacing brigade.

The timers hung out 2:10½ as the official figures for this heat, but the judges ordered them changed to 2:08½, the correct time as caught by a hundred reliable men who held watches, and the applause which followed the correction was as great as the roar which went up when the wrong record was announced.

The starters in the 2:20 trot were James Coffin's Puerto Rico, R. Freeman's Prince L., A. Joseph's Floradora, Vendome Stock Farm's Thomas R., J. H. Kelly's Roxie, D. F. Oglesby's Almonada, and A. G. Gurnett's Zambra. For the first heat the odds were: Puerto Rico 2½ to 1, Prince L. 5, Roxie 30, Almonada 15, Zambra 5, Thomas R. 2½, Floradora 4 to 5.

Floradora took the lead at the word in the first heat and was never headed. Prince L. kept close to her until the half was reached and here Puerto Rico came up and took second place. It was a hot drive and a close finish, the chestnut mare getting the verdict by a neck in 2:18½, Prince L. was third, Thomas R. fourth and Zambra fifth. Roxie and Almonada were distanced.

In the second heat as the horses were making a struggle for position after the word was given, Brown, the driver of Prince L., cut across in front of Puerto Rico, badly interfering with him and causing him to break badly as Donathan pulled him up to avoid an accident. The heat was a fight between Floradora and Thomas R. and the Iran Alto horse beat her out, Floradora stopping badly at the finish. Prince L. was third, Zambra fourth and Puerto Rico behind the flag, but the judges permitted him to start again owing to the interference of Prince L.

Thomas R. was made the favorite before the third heat. When the word was given Prince L., Floradora and the favorite went out in front. Thomas R. broke just after leaving the score and the race was between the other two until the stretch was reached, when Puerto Rico came with a rush and after a pretty fight with Prince L. to the draw gate, got to the front and won by a length in 2:21. Floradora was a good third, Zambra fourth and Thomas R. third.

Though Puerto Rico had the pole, Prince L. was well in front when the horses got the word for the fourth heat and took the inside on the turn. Thomas R. passed the Prince at the quarter and led up the stretch, and at the half had a length the best of it, Puerto Rico having taken second place. Thomas R. led around the turn, but at the seven eighths pole Puerto Rico was even up with him, and won out by a length in 2:18½, Thomas R. second, Prince L. third, Zambra fourth and Floradora last.

In the fifth heat Thomas R. took the lead and Donathan trailed him with Puerto Rico until the last eighth was reached when he came on and won with ease by four lengths in 2:19½. Prince L. was third, Zambra fourth, and Floradora, who had been stopping a little more each heat, was outside the distance. The handling of Puerto Rico by Donathan in this race was one of the best exhibitions of reinsmanship that has been seen on a California track for some time.

The Aigeltinger Stakes for roadsters owned by members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Association resulted in a victory for Steve S. in straight heats, the best time being 2:20½. The summaries follow:

Santa Rosa Harness Race Program.

There will be one harness race and three or more running races each day at the Santa Rosa meeting, which opens Monday next. As will be seen by the program of the harness races herewith there is a good prospect for a first class contest each day, and contests attract the public. The fields in all these races are very evenly balanced and there will probably not be a heat as slow as 2:20 in any of them. The harness program for the week is as follows:

MONDAY, AUG. 12—2:25 CLASS PACE.

C. Whitehead's ch g Toppy.
Albert Joseph's br g Durfee Mc.
Vendome Stock Farm's ch m Our Boy's Sister.
Santa Rosa's Stock Farm's b c B. S. Dillon.
R. P. M. Greeley's b m Winnie Wilkes.

Ringers, Perhaps.

Two weeks ago a couple of strangers appeared among the horsemen at Decorah, Ia., and after succeeding in the purchase of the pacer Shrimp 2:15½, without leaving the slightest clue to their identity, disappeared as suddenly as they came. After the deal was made and the horse turned over to them, they asked the former owner, Mr. Ed. K. Hooden, that in case anyone should ever write him concerning the horse or his whereabouts he would confer a favor upon them to give no attention to such inquiries. In fact, they might as well have said they intended ringing the horse. They shipped him to a small town not far from Decorah where there are a couple lines of railroad and then re-shipped him. These fellows act very much like the two that brought Walter K. (Perhaps) to this Coast last year.

The match race between Anaconda and Joo Patchen will come off at Brighton Beach, August 12th.

Conversation Overheard.

The following from the American Horse Breeder applies to California as well as it does to the eastern country:

"Well, how do you like him?"

"Pretty well; he can show a 2:40 gait and I guess will train on to 2:20 speed. I shall leave him at the track a few weeks, and if he doesn't improve shall put him into the shafts of my grocer's wagon."

"That is a bright, smart man. He likes a good horse and is able to own one. He won't pay more than $300 or $400 at the outside for any horse, but will spend $3000 looking for a good one and as much more in buying ten or a dozen that he hopes may be good. He will then he $6000 out and not have a good horse at that."

The writer heard the above conversation not long since. The man is a fair sample of many that can be found. If he would pay from $1500 to $3000 for a good one, put him or her in a first class trainer's hands, who would not start the animal until in condition to win, he might make money. It is true that one may sometimes be bought for a low price that proves good, and then everybody hears of it. Where a cheap one proves good, however, there are a hundred more or less that never sell for enough to pay the feed bills, to say nothing of the original cost and expense of training.

The Pan-American Parade.

The Pan-American parade of driving horses took place June 8th. President Latimer led the procession and right after him came the main feature, Cicero J. Hamlin, the most successful breeder of trotters the world has ever known. No breeder has ever succeeded in producing so much trotting and pacing speed and it is well in line with the glorious limits of the Buffalo Exposition that the old gentleman should ride in this parade. Mr. Hamlin drove the famous old marc Belle Hamlin 2:12½, the first trotter to achieve world's honors for Village Farm. Belle Hamlin is twenty-two years old and has produced several foals to Mambrino King and Chimes, but she never put in her steps with more grace or promptitude than she did when hauling her master and breeder in the great Buffalo show. Right after Belle came another harness race horse that brought renown to Village Farm and to Buffalo, though bred in Tennessee. That was 'old Hal Pointer 2:04½. He was driven by A. E. Perren, the maker of wagons, and after these two came a multitude of record-holders. The parade, which was interfered with by rain on two previous occasions, was finally a grand success.

A driving club has been organized at Bozeman, Montana, under the name of the Gallatin Valley Driving Club. Col. W. W. D. Turner was elected president; Nelson Story Jr., first vice-president; D. W. Mackenzie, second vice-president; A. E. Davidson, secretary, and George Cox, treasurer. By laws have been adopted and matinees will be given. It is also the intention of the club to give a county fair next year.

DETAILS AND CONDITIONS of the many big stakes offered by the Westchester Racing Association to close August 15th, Thursday next, will be found in our advertising columns, and entry blanks can be had at the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. The 1901 events comprise the following two year old events: The Nursery Handicap, $2500 added, over the Eclipse Course; The Champagne, $2500 added, seven furlongs, Withers Mile; The White Plains Handicap, $2000 added, the Eclipse Course—all supplementary entries; The Hurricana, $1000 added, five furlongs, Eclipse Course; The Rancho del Paso, $1000 added, Eclipse Course; The Silver Brook, $1000 added, five and a half furlongs, Eclipse Course, and the Castleton (fillies), $1000 added, five furlongs, Eclipse Course. The three year old events are The Jerome Handicap (supplementary entry), $1500 added a mile and a quarter, over the hill; The Hunter Handicap (fillies), $1200 added, Withers Mile; The Belle Meade, $1000 added, seven furlongs, Withers Mile; The Fairview, $1000 added, mile and a sixteenth over the hill; The Dixiana, $1200 added, Withers Mile; The Ramapo Handicap, $2000 added, a mile and a furlong over the Withers Course. For three year olds and upwards, are the Autumn Highweight Handicaps of $4200, as follows: The Bronz, $1200, over the last six furlongs of the Withers Mile; The Westchester, $1400, six and a half furlongs, Withers Mile; The Fordham, $1600, seven furlongs of Withers Mile; also the Manhattan Handicap, $1500 added, over Eclipse Course. The steeplechases and hurdle races are The Champion Steeplechase (supplementary entries), of $10,000, three miles and a half; The Autumn Hurdle Handicap, $750 added, two miles, eight hurdles; and the October Steeplechase Handicap, $1000 added, two miles and a half. In 1902 comes the Juvenile Stakes for two year olds, with $2000 added; The Fashion with $1500 added for two year old fillies; the Eclipse, $4000 added—all run at the spring meeting of that year—and the Nursery Handicap of $2500 added, to be run at the fall meeting. For 1903, at the spring meeting, is the Withers, $2500 added; The Ladies, $2000 added, and the Belmont, $5000; and for 1904 the Thirty-eight Belmont Stakes. Particular attention is called to the fact that in the future events of 1902, 1903 and 1904, the distance for the Belmont Stakes is reduced to a mile and a quarter, from a mile and three furlongs of this year, this being done to avoid the short turn immediately after the start.

CAPT. BEN E. HARRIS, one of the best known of California horsemen, passed away suddenly at his residence in this city, about one o'clock A. M. on Friday, August 2d. This announcement was a surprise to his hundreds of friends and acquaintances, and caused great regret among them. For the past two years the Captain's health has been failing, but on Thursday he was down in town and visited the office of this journal. The cause of his death was heart disease. He suffered but a very few moments and was not conscious of the end. Captain Harris was born at Port Royal, Kentucky, about seventy-two years ago. When a young man he ran on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers as a steamboat clerk, afterwards becoming a captain, and on his boat there traveled all the distinguished men who used the river lines of the great West before the advent of the railways. Among the passengers with whom he formed friendships that lasted through life were Abraham Lincoln and Mark Twain, and many were the interesting personal recollections of them that he could relate. Always a natural horse man, Capt. Harris, who was one of the founders of the great St. Louis Fair, was seldom beaten in the show ring with any horse exhibited by him, and when in the saddle no man presented a better appearance or had as perfect control of his mount. Coming to California soon after the close of the war, he engaged in business in this city, and was elected to the office of City Assessor some years after. He bred and owned many horses that gained fast records at the trot and was identified during his entire life here in California with the equine exhibits at the State and district fairs. He was a pupil of Farmer Miles, and no more expert or successful practitioner than he ever lived. Having always from his youth been an active man of business, a money maker and a person of the most robust health, his illness during the past two years bore very heavily upon him, and he had recently often expressed the wish that the end would come to him quickly and peacefully. His wish was gratified. Captain Harris was, before his illness, a man of splendid physique, with a genial disposition that attracted friends to him in large numbers. As an entertainer he displayed that hospitality for which the men of the South are famous, and he was at his best at his own fireside surrounded by his friends. He loved horses and knew them thoroughly—more thoroughly, perhaps, than the majority who are called experts in that line. He was brave and generous, and tried to do unto others as he would have them do unto him. He leaves a wife to mourn his death, and hundreds of friends and acquaintances who will be pained to hear of his demise. He always loved the turf. May it rest lightly over him.

THOROUGHBRED BLOOD has been very potent in the production of great trotters and pacers, but it must be of the strains that produce winners and come through individuals of merit. No trotting horse breeder need ever expect to found a family of record breakers with a lot of weedy thoroughbred mares, even though he uses the best bred and most prepotent trotting stallions to be secured. The famous mare Eleata 2:08½, winner of the M. & M., has the thoroughbred mare Sally Gardner by Vandal as her third dam. After Sally Gardner had produced Eleanor, the grand dam of Eleata, from a mating with Electioneer, she produced several race winners by the thoroughbred stallions Flood and Shannon. Her last foal was Homer, winner of the Racine Stakes at the Bay District track as a two year old in 1890, and winner of twelve races as a three year old in 1891, when he was campaigned around New York and beat such horses as Banquet, Racine, Tulla Blackburn, Balgown and others. He won at a mile and a quarter at the Bay District track as a three year old in 2:07½. Remember this when introducing thoroughbred blood into trotting families: Use the kind that has shown its ability to produce race winners of speed and stamina.

THE NEVADA STATE FAIR will be held at Reno September 16th to 21st, which is the week following the California State Fair at Sacramento. The full program of trotting, pacing and running events for the Reno meeting will be found in our advertising columns to-day. The runners are especially well provided for, two purses of $500, one of $400 and others ranging from $150 to $200 being on the card. The harness horses are given from $200 to $250 in each event. Reno is a lively city of seven thousand population and is "a betting town from away back" as a horseman who has raced there puts it. The track was reconstructed this year at a cost of $2600 and an electric car line now conveys passengers to the entrance gate. There is a big pavilion within the grounds to which no admission is charged after one has obtained admission to the track. The race meetings at Reno are always successful and especial efforts will be made this year to break all former records. Entries to harness races close Tuesday, September 10th, and those to the running races close over night.

A PURSE FOR PACERS of the 2:09 class has been substituted for the one offered the 2:10 pacers by the Golden Gate Race Meeting, which opens at the California Jockey Club track September 16th, the week following the State Fair. As the only horse now in training in California which a 2:10 class would bar from starting is the sensational pacer Sir Albert S. 2:08½, the association concluded to change the class so as to permit him to enter, and if the race fills well it should be a great drawing card. Our forms containing the advertisement announcing the purses offered went to press before the change could be made in it.

A GOOD PROGRAM of harness and running races, with purses for the harness events $500 each and those for the runners not less than $250 is offered for the week beginning September 16th by the Golden Gate Racing Meet, of which Joseph Dimond is Secretary. There will be two harness races and three or more running events each day of the meeting. Entries will close Saturday, September 7th for the harness purses and as every class is provided for there should be a good list of entries received. See the advertisement in this issue.

STOCKTON WILL GIVE A MEETING during the week immediately preceding the Los Angeles meeting. The track and grounds are now being placed in the very best possible condition and the purses will be announced next week. Stockton always gives a week of good racing, always pays its purses promptly and in full, looks out for the interests of the horsemen and its people turn out in large numbers to the races. Horsemen will make a note therefore that Stockton is on the map this year.

A NEW AND IMPORTANT FEATURE is presented in No. 8 of Goodwin's Official Turf Guide, which is out this week. In the index is inserted those horses running with names different from those under which they are registered, and also the original names claimed—the latter referring to the former. By this means an animal can always be traceable both during its turf career and while in the stud.

Grand Circuit Races.

BUFFALO, Aug. 6.—On a track pronounced by visiting horsemen to be one of the best and fastest they have found this year, the Buffalo Driving Club Grand Circuit meeting, which opened to-day, was full of interesting events. The attendance was 5000. Results: 2:30 trot, purse $1200—Captain Bracken won first, second and fifth heats. Time, 2:14½, 2:14½, 2:17½.

Captor won the third and fourth heats in 2:14½, 2:16½. Lester, Marique, Henrietta and Nut Bearer also started. 2:10 class trot, purse $1200 (unfinished)—Onward Silver won the first heat in 2:11½. Cornelia Belle, Sister Alice, Temple Wilkes, Alan, Valpa, Phrase and Dolly Dillon also started.

2:14 class, trotting, purse $2000—Whitewood won third, fourth and fifth heats in 2:13½, 2:12½, 2:13½. Grace Onward won first and second heats in 2:12½, 2:12. Lady Thisbe, Senator K. and Palm Leaf also started.

BUFFALO, August 8.—Rain prevented racing on Wednesday, but was resumed to-day on a slow track. The feature of the day was the Pan-American Stakes for 2:24 pacers, which was won by Shadow Chimes. In the second heat Shadow Chimes took a record of 2:07½. Chimes' time by quarters was 0:32, 1:03½, 1:35½, 2:07½.

The Pan-American, 2:24 class, pacing, purse $5000—Shadow Chimes won the second, third and fourth heats. Best time, 2:07½. Audubon Boy won the first heat in 2:07½. New Richmond, Star Pugb and Maiden Queen also started.

Pacing, 2:09 class, purse $2000—George won the second, third and fourth heats. Best time, 2:07½. Benice won the first heat in 2:07½. (Carminie, Sphinx, Stacker Taylor, Sidney Pointer, Rex Direct and White Rose also started.

Pacing, 2:14 class, the Empire State, purse $2000—Dan Patchen won three straight heats. Best time, 2:14½. Captain Sphinx, H. J. P. and Beauty Spot also started.

Trotting, 2:10 class, purse $1500 (first heat on Tuesday)—Onward Silver won the first, third and fifth heats. Best time, 2:11. Cornelia Belle won the second and fourth heats. Best time, 2:10½. Sister Alice, Dolly Dillon, Temple Wilkes, Alma, Valpa and Phrase also started.

Back in California.

Bert Webster, who went East in charge of Chas. Griffith's horses returned this week. He was thrown from the sulky while exercising Domino at Cleveland (owing to the pacer becoming frightened) and had two ribs fractured. He is able to be around. McHenry has the horses in charge. He also has Thornway. Gosben Jim has been turned over to John Splan. Dr. Boucher and A. W. Bruner have also returned bringing their horses with them.

A Wonderful Idea for Stock Owners.

For years observant stock owners have known that sick horses have certain ways of acting in certain diseases. If a horse has a certain disease he will stand or lie down in a peculiar way. If ten thousand horses have that disease, probably nine thousand, nine hundred and ninety-nine of them will act in the very same manner. They can't talk and it is their only way of making known to us what is the matter with them. Now, then, if we knew the particular attitude which horses take in the various ills to which horse flesh is heir, we would be able to tell almost as soon as we saw a sick horse just what is the matter with him.

A few years ago an eminent veterinary surgeon went to work to verify this theory. Everywhere he went he took his Kodak, and whenever he saw a sick horse he took a snapshot at it. Photographs of people do not always tell the truth, for photographers have learned how to please their customers; but a horse doesn't care whether he takes a pretty picture or not, and the photographs taken by this surgeon establish beyond doubt the theory on which he was working. When he realized this, he went to work to arrange the entire series of pictures in a book in such a manner that a man who has a sick horse has only to turn the leaves of the book to find the trouble. This great book, The Stock Owner's Adviser, by C. K. Rhodes, V. S., does not treat of the horse only. It is a complete stock owner's text book. It describes and offers remedies for the contagious diseases of sheep, cattle, swine and dogs. There is no question which a man can ask when his horse is sick, or when he has just bought a cow, or when his lambs begin to gambol on the lawn, or when his hogs refuse to fatten, or when he has just come into possession of the best doggy in the world, that this book will not answer.

Palo Alto Horses at Auction.

On Thursday next, at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city, William G. Layng will sell at auction by order of the Palo Alto Stock Farm, twenty-five head of standard bred horses, mostly two and three year olds. They are by such sires as Mendocino, Altivo, Azmoor, Wildout and Dexter Prince, out of mares by Electioneer, Gen. Benton, Guy Wilkes, Piedmont, Advertiser, Norval and other great stallions. There are a number of fillies in the consignment whose breeding and individuality should make them valuable as broodmares, and as has been the case with every sale of Palo Alto stock ever held there are certain to be colts and fillies disposed of on Thursday that will in the near future trot to fast records in races. Those who want good looking well bred roadsters cannot do better than attend this sale and secure a colt or filly that will make an ideal horse for this purpose as there are a number that will fill the bill. The sale will begin at 11 A. M. next Thursday and the horses will be at the Exchange on Monday, August 12th for inspection.

The Abbot and Cresceus Will Race.

Cresceus and The Abbot will race over the Brighton Beach track on August 15th, during the meeting of the New York Breeders' Association. This announcement was made at Cleveland last Saturday, after W. L. Marks, manager of The Abbot, had seen the champion trotter work a mile in 2:11, last half in 1:01, and last quarter in 29½ seconds. The Abbot has had a touch of distemper, and it was reported last week that the special match race was off. The horse has improved wonderfully, and seems to have all his former burst of speed. Mr. Marks arrived at Cleveland Friday morning, saw The Abbot work out, and held a conference with trainer Ed Geers. He then informed Secretary McCully of the Brighton Beach association that his horse would meet Cresceus on the scheduled date. The race will be best three in five heats.

Show Horse for German Emperor.

The Emperor of Germany has purchased of Rudolph Clasen, of Brookline, Mass., his handsome Kentucky bred horse, King, which for the past few years has attracted the attention of admirers of fine horseflesh in and about Boston. After King had won a blue ribbon at the Boston Horse Show three years ago, pictures of the horse came to the notice of a high German officer, who was so taken with the animal's fine points that he induced the Emperor to open negotiations for his purchase. On Wednesday next Mr. Clasen will sail to deliver the horse to his royal purchaser.

A Heavy Plunger.

Mr. E. E. Smathers, the popular New York Speedwayite, is a barrel of money out so far on the season. He lost $10,000 to N. W. Hubinger in one bet, wagered $600 to $150 and $5000 to $1000 with John McDonald, a circuit chasing plunger, all on the M. and M. race, besides playing the field against Elcata and backing Neva Simmons in the auctions in the early selling. He is as game as a pebble, however, and men like him and N. W. Hubinger win so much when they are on right that even a $20,000 day to the bad does not count so heavily against them.

"Cannot Do Without It."

Mr. H. H. Clark of Fredonia, N. Y., writes: "The bottle of Quinn's Ointment purchased from you about two years ago removed a curb and thoroughpin and did it for good. My horse's leg is as smooth as ever." For curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all bunches Quinn's Ointment has no equal. Price one dollar delivered. If you cannot obtain it from your druggist or dealer, address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y.

An Intelligent Youngster.

The following is from "Percy" in the New York Telegraph of July 22d:

"On the train yesterday Mr. Fred Dietz showed me a letter from Wm. N. Burgess, East Lynne Farm, Flemington, N. J., telling of the rare intelligence of a yearling colt by Director's Jug 2:29½ out of Bessie Bonehill 2:05½.

"The little chap is kept in a box stall, the one window of which is just above his reach. When he has finished eating his crushed oats he takes the feed box in his teeth, turns it upside down, and, planting his front feet thereon is enabled to look out of this window as he wills.

"Not once does he do this," said Mr. Burgess, "but every day of his life. You should see him do this favorite self-taught trick—picked it up all himself, too. Now, Mr. Burgess has always proven himself reliable, so, while this seems a remarkable feat of intelligence on the part of Mr. Dietz' youngsters, anyone can see him do it by taking a train for Flemington any pleasant day he may elect.

"Minola King is his name, but I do not anticipate seeing him in any show, for he is bred to be a fast horse—trotter or pacer—and may be raced when the time comes for that chapter. It is a wonderfully clever trick, surely. Horses are very intelligent, but I never yet learned of anything quite so forward at the instance of one so young."

Answers to Correspondents.

L. V. H. Concord, Cal.—Satsuma is by Maeduff (son of imported Macroon) dam Albertha by Volturino, second dam Alborak by Aramis, third dam Sangaree by Uncle Vic, fourth dam Amanda Buford by Revenue, fifth dam Sally Anderson by i.m.p. Glucoc, sixth dam Chloe Anderson by Rudolph, etc.

SULKY NOTES.

Sir Albert S. 2:08½ by Diablo 2:09½.

Santa Rosa meeting opens Monday.

Read Woodland's big list of entries.

See the free for all trot at Santa Rosa next Friday.

Sidney Pointer 2:07½ cords up banily after some of his fast races.

It is reported that E. E. Smathers, New York, paid $11,000 for Iva Dee.

The six $1000 stakes at the Breeders meeting resulted in high class racing.

California is being well represented among the "also started" crowd over East.

Janice acts badly now in her races, it is said, something she did not do in California.

Alta Vela 2:15½ will make his first start this year at Santa Rosa on the second day of the meeting.

Three new ones have already been added to the standard performing list of Arion 2:07½ this season.

Both Boralma 2:07½ and Eleata 2:08½ are owned by members of the Gentlemen's Driving Club of Boston.

Nine trotters and ten pacers entered the standard list or reduced former records at the Breeders meeting last week.

Humboldt Maid won the 2:14 trot at Logansport, Indiana. It was a five heat race and the fastest heat was 2:19½.

Queen R. 2:12½ by Redondo arrived in California from the East last week and will start next Wednesday in the 2:12 pace at Santa Rosa.

El Diablo and Freddie C. should put up a great race in the 2:12 pace at Santa Rosa, if both are as good as they were at Sacramento last Saturday.

The much touted Neva Simmons, by Simmons, won a good race at Tiffin, O., trotting the last three heats of a four-heat race in 2:12½, 2:14½ and 2:15½.

Listerine was not good at Joliet July 31st, and was outside the money in the 2:14 trot, which was a five heat race with the miles from 2:13½ to 2:15½.

The Golden Gate Race meeting will open at Oakland the week after the State Fair. There will be two harness races and three running events each day.

Woodland's entry list is published to-day. There will be records broken at the Yolo county track this year and close contests are certain in nearly every race.

Anaconda and trainer John Trout are apparently still on good terms. Joe Patchen will have to be at his best to beat the speedy son of Knight at Brighton Beach.

Fanella, by Arion, dam Directress, by Director, reduced her record to 2:22½ at Readville and the same day her two year old son Todd, by Bingen, went a half-mile in 1:06.

Howland Russell of Boston, has wagered $1000 with George Van Dyke, of the same city, that his mare Mazette 2:07½, will win a faster heat this year than Frank Bogash 2:03½.

There is a good opportunity to win money by entering and starting your horses at the Nevada State Fair, which will be held in September. See the purses advertised in this issue.

A man who was attending the Grand Circuit meetings was asked if he saw many sick horses. "I saw some," was the reply. "but I found sick owners more plenty than sick horses."

Athadon 2:27 will be a great sire. But very few, probably not over a dozen of his get have ever started, yet he has to his credit Sue 2:12½, Lesterine 2:13½, Daken D. 2:16½ and Donatrine 2:26½.

It is not every horse that goes in 2:10 his first year out that proves to be a great one, neither should a horse that has raced well during a season and shows bad form the next be always condemned as a counterfeiter.

The 2:25 pace at Santa Rosa Monday, the opening day of the meeting, should result in a hot contest. The entries are Topsy, Direct C., Our Boy's Sister, Winnie Wilkes, Al Sand, B. S. Dillon and Durfee Mac.

The once famous gray pacing stallion, Guy 2:06½, got his first standard performer recently, at Fosston, Minn., when the gray pacing gelding, Riverside, won the 2:25 class, making a record of 2:24½, in the second heat.

Mr. L. B. Spurgeon of Wheatland claims the name of Listan for his bay colt by Stam B., dam Lizzie Ely by Illustrious. Listan was foaled February 16, 1901, and is entered in the Pacific Breeders' Futurity Stake of $6000.

The sickness of Metallas in his Detroit race is said to have been caused by his filling himself up with hay and straw the night before the race, it having been neglected to muzzle him. Probably it was a very expensive feed.

Don't let a little muscular soreness prevent your horse from winning this week at Santa Rosa, when a good application of Vita Oil will remove it. If applied according to directions it never fails and it never blisters. Vita Oil has saved first money many times.

The fine of $100 inflicted on Will Durfee at Cleveland was made because he delayed the start after repeated warnings, and was so announced from the stand. Several versions of the story of the fining have been published but this is the official report.

Cricket 2:10 by Steinway went into the great broodmare list with a bound this year, having had two of her produce enter the standard circle in one week at Sacramento. Her list is now William Harold 2:13½ and Cricri 2:20, pacers, and Isobel 2:29½, trotter.

The free for all trot at Santa Rosa will come off on Friday next. Monterey 2:09½, Osito 2:13½, Iora 2:11½ and Anzella 2:13½ will meet in this race and it will be a contest from start to finish. On present form Anzella should win, but if Monterey is right look out for a fast mile.

Diablo is doing well this year. He got two new performers at the Sacramento meeting and another reduced his former record to within the 2:15 mark. He is now the sire of eight in the 2:15 list with Clipper 2:06 and Sir Albert S. 2:08½ as his representatives in the 2:10 list.

Freddie C. is the greatest little fellow of his inches that has been seen in California for a long time. He will pace to a record of 2:10 or better sure and is not much larger than a shetland pony. He is almost a counterpart of his sire Direct, but is smaller than the little black rascal.

The BREEDER told the horsemen that a trotter that could beat 2:18 three times could win money at Sacramento in the 2:30 and 2:20 trotting stakes. What is it won the 2:30 trot in 2:16½, 2:16½ and 2:18½ and Puerto Rico's three winning heats in the 2:20 class were in 2:21½, 2:18½ and 2:19½.

Tags got second money in the 2:12 class pace at Joliet, Illinois, July 30th and reduced her record to 2:10½ in the third heat. There were twelve starters. The race was won by Kasel and the slowest heat was the fifth in 2:12½. Tags should be another 2:10 performer for Diablo very soon.

The pacer George by Scarlet Wilkes that won at Cleveland in the 2:09 class sold for $40 in pools of $375, and Richard A. that won the 2:17 pace sold for $20 in pools of $470. The chances to win money on the grand circuit would not be very great if there was syndicate booking, as is the case in California at all the trotting meetings.

Twenty-five head of colts and fillies from the Palo Alto Stock Farm will be sold by auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange, 721 Howard street, in this city, next Thursday, August 15th. There are some royally bred ones in this consignment and buyers will find no better opportunity to get something choice than will be offered at this sale.

Prince L. 2:29½, whose races at Sacramento last week showed that he can beat 2:20, as he was a close second in 2:17½, is for sale. Prince L. is a good looking bay gelding, sixteen hands high and has shown miles in 2:16. As he is perfectly broken and square gaited he is a good prospect for some one and will make a very high class roadster. See advertisement.

H. W. Dykeman, the new owner of Coney 2:02, is authority for the statement that the pacer is in great demand for fall fairs. He, together with O'Connor, is engaged for a race at the Hagerstown, Md., Fair, and Coney will go on an exhibition mile at the Nazareth, Pa., Fair. His owner fully believes that with preparation Coney can trim the sails of any living pacer.

Charley Hayt has met with another accident which may permanently retire him from the turf. Last year he broke a bone in an ankle after having taken a record of 2:07½, and on Tuesday of last week at Cleveland, after taking a new record of 2:06½ he stepped in a hole and dislocated it again. He is one of the speediest young horses in the country, and it is a pity that he should be so unfortunate.

Murray Howe's "Memphis Plan" was given a trial at the meeting at Marion, Ind., last week. The class was for 2:22 class pacers, each heat a race. The first heat was one mile; the second heat one mile and one-eighth, and the third one-half mile. Miss Brennan captured the first heat in 2:19½, the second in 2:34, and Dagmar Muscovite by Muscovite the third in 1:05. The experiment was voted a success.

Another Dexter Prince entered the list at Grand Rapids, July 21st—Marquesa, a bay filly, foaled 1897. She won three straight heats in 2:22½, 2:20½ and 2:20½. Her dam is Mar Lodge by Electioneer, second dam Elite by Mohawk Chief, third dam Aeolian, thoroughbred mare by Enquirer. This filly was sold at the Cleveland sale in 1899 for $165. At the same sale Version (p) 2:19½ sold for $235, Ellalee 2:26½ for $245, and Eleata 2:08½ for $900.

The California horses that started at Cleveland were Charlie Mac, who won first money in the 2:17 class trot, purse $2000; Dr. Book, winner of first in 2:14 class trot, purse $2000; Bonnie Direct, winner of third money in 2:06 pace, purse $2000; Algonetta, winner of third money in 2:25 trot, purse $2000, and Dolly Dillon, Vic Shellar and Rey Direct, who all failed to get inside the money. The complete summaries of the Columbus meeting will be found on another page.

Dacey, a midget pacer by Direct, 2:05½, from Lulu F. 2:20½, by Christmas, took a record of 2:17½ at Aurora, Ill., last month, driven by James Ramey of John R. Gentry fame. Dacey won a four heat race, his heats being 2:17½, 2:19½, 2:18½. He is about 14½ hands and was brought up on a bottle. Lulu F. foaled him at St. Joe, Mo., in 1895, and the little chap was at once taken away and presented to his present owner by Monroe Salisbury who placed the mare in training. Dacey has been a mile in 2:15 in a race and will pace much faster.

A writer in the Horse Review says that Cresceus, The Abbot and Eleata have hind legs that are as straight as those of any thoroughbred ever foaled, and the old idea that a crooked hind leg is necessary to great speed has another nail in its coffin.

Mr. Thos. D. Conden of Portland, Oregon, has two four year old colts by Zombro 2:11 which are very fast trotters although they have had but a very limited amount of training. One that is called T. D. C. stepped the last quarter of the Salem track in 33½ seconds, and can trot a mile in 2:20 right now.

The new race track at Reno, where the races will be held this year, is one of the best on the Coast. The old track was entirely reconstructed this year at a cost of $2600 and it is now not only safe but fast. Some good purses are offered harness horses and runners this year. Reno is one of the best betting towns in the country.

Dr. Boucher has arrived at his home in San Jose with his four year old pacer Harry Logan 2:12½. The gelding went lame after the Detroit meeting and was not doing well, so rather than to take any further chances with him in the fast company he would be compelled to meet all down the line of the Grand Circuit, the Doctor brought him home and will probably rest him up the balance of the year.

In the published account of the races held at Yreka during Fourth of July week, Banker's Daughter is credited with winning a heat of the pace in 2:26½. This is an error and was caused by turning a 9 upside down. The record made by Banker's Daughter at Yreka was 2:29½. An official statement to that effect has been received at this office from R. S. Taylor Secretary of the Yreka Jockey Club.

Don't miss those races up at the little town of Concord this year when the Contra Costa County Agricultural Association holds its fair. The purses to which harness horses owned outside the district are eligible are the 2:25 pace $150, free for all pace $300, 2:30 trot $150 and free for all trot $300. Entries will close September 20th and the meeting opens September 25th. Entry blanks can be obtained at this office.

About the most delightful town in California in which to spend a week is Santa Rosa. The climate is not too warm for comfort and at this time of the year the fruit is plentiful and at its best. The fact that a race meeting will open there next Monday should make a week's sojourn there still more pleasant, as some great contests are sure to take place. The Santa Rosa track is one of the best and fastest on the Pacific Coast.

George Leavitt's string at the Readville track has an addition to it in Achille, a three year old stallion recently purchased from J. Malcolm Forbes. Achille is inbred to Electioneer and has a wonderful lot of the blood of Hambletonian 10. He is by Bingen 2:06½, out of Starlight, 2:15½, by Electioneer; grandam, Sallie Benton 2:17½, dam of four in the list, including Surpol 2:10, by General Benton, and great grandam, Sontag Mohawk, the dam of eight in the list, by Mohawk Chief son of Hambletonian 10.

The associations that have not as yet closed their entries should be able to get a race that would be the event of the year in California by hanging up $1000 or more for the 2:09 pacers. This race would probably attract the following entries: Sir Albert S. 2:08½, Kelly Briggs 2:10½, Stanton Wilkes 2:10½, Myrtha Whips 2:10½, Floradita 2:11½, Edna R. 2:11½, Delphi 2:12½, and El Diablo 2:12½ and perhaps Harry Logan 2:12½. And what a race those nine side wheelers would put up. It would be worth going a long way to see.

William G. Layng's pacer, Sir Albert S. 2:08½, traces to Hambletonian 10 seven times, through George Wilkes (twice), Electioneer, Steinway, Almont, Dictator and Western Chief, while his pacing crosses are from such sires as Smuggler, Bayard, Flaxtail, Pilot Jr., Blue Bull, and the thoroughbred crosses include Imported Herald, Imp. Australian, Imp. Trustee, American Eclipse, Imp. Margrave, Bertrand, etc. The famous broodmares in his pedigree are Grace, Old Mary, Fair Lady, May Morning, Pocahontas 2:17½, Lady Eleanor, Bay Fanny, Clara, Katy G., Abbess, Bertha, Barcelona, Blandina, Alma Mater, Burch Mare, Green Mountain Maid, Prairie Bird, Fanny Fern, Rodes mare, etc.

From the manner in which Anaconda opened his campaign he is liable to give Joe Patchen quite a horse race when they meet at Brighton Beach, August 12th. Anaconda is generally esteemed, now that Star Pointer and John R. Gentry are retired, the worthiest rival of the renowned black stallion now before the public. The two have met three times in the past. In 1899 Joe Patchen beat Anaconda very easily at Hartford in mid-season, but late in the fall, in two three-cornered specials at Los Angeles, Cal., both won by John R. Gentry, Anaconda and the black horse beat each other in turns for second place. Since then they have never met, and their race at Brighton Beach next week will be their first duel single handed.

The world-famous gelding Jay Eye See, the first 2:10 trotter ever foaled, now twenty-three and living out his old age as the tenderly-cared-for pensioner of the J. I. Case family at his old home, Racine, Wis., came near meeting a violent death on the afternoon of Monday, July 22. He was running out at Hickory Grove Farm, and having broken out of his paddock, got his right fore-leg caught in a barbed-wire fence. In his efforts to free himself Jay Eye See literally tore one of the fence-posts out of the ground. He was finally freed but with his foot so badly cut that it was at first feared he would bleed to death. The flow was finally stopped, however, by Dr. Evans and the glorious little fellow is now hobbling around, safe if not yet sound again. Jay Eye See is still active and vigorous and his old weakness for sugar stronger than ever.

AGAIN LOWERS HIS RECORD.

Cresceus Trots in 2:02 1-4 at Columbus Meeting.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 2.—If ever a meeting wound up in the stereotyped blaze of glory this, the third of the Grand Circuit did. Nearly 15,000 people journeyed out to the track, drawn thither by the announcement of an exhibition by Cresceus, the greatest piece of harness horse flesh that ever wore iron, and the great all-conquering hero did not disappoint them, for a gamer exhibition against the watch was never made, as the time, 2:02½, would at least have been one second faster only for the head-on wind he had to face coming up the home stretch.

The game horse's now equally famous owner, driver and trainer, George Ketcham, appeared on the track with Cresceus a little before 3 o'clock. The horse and driver were royally received, and met with a tremendous ovation as they passed the stand. The champion jogged three miles slower than three minutes, and one in 2:22. An hour later he came out again, and after scoring several times, stepped a mile in 2:25. At half past 4 he worked out for the last time in 2:15½. He evidently had great power in reserve, and the vast throng waited patiently for the great test.

It was evident that the wind would not decrease before dark, and consequently at 5:40 the stallion was brought out for the final test.

Tim Murnan was ready to accompany him with a runner, and Dan Laho waited at the half-mile pole to take him on from there with another galloper.

On the fifth score Ketcham nodded for the word, but Cresceus was not going to suit him, and he pulled up at the first turn to try again. Down to the wire he rushed, the runner two lengths behind, and this time it was a go. Gamely facing the breeze, the champion started on his journey. The runner caught him at the quarter, and a suppressed cheer went up from the breathless throng, as the time went up, a quarter of a second less than thirty. Now the wind was at his back, and realizing the advantage, Ketcham kept him at his great clip.

The half mile pole was passed in 59½ seconds, a record never before attained by a trotter in a public trial, and here the second runner caught him up.

The three-quarter pole was reached and passed in the wonderful time of 1:30½.

Then came the great trial, for as Cresceus turned into the stretch, the bitter wind beat him in the face, and held him back by force. For the fraction he seemed to falter, but his driver's voice was in his ears, and on he came. With that indomitable courage which makes him what he is, he plunged on toward the finish with unweakened stride, and in spite of weariness, and the buffeting of the breeze, flashed under the wire a winner against man and horse's greatest adversary—time.

In the overnight pool selling a great deal of money went into the box at odds of $25 to $17 on time against the trotter. At the track, owing to the fierce wind, the odds against the horse increased to $25 to $3, but the backers of Cresceus were game, and took the short end as long as pools were sold.

A Sermon in Cresceus' Performance.

When Cresceus trotted the Cleveland track in 2:02½, Mayor Jones of Toledo, sent a congratulatory dispatch to Mr. Ketcham and those in charge of the great stallion as follows:

TOLEDO (O.) July 27, 1901.

Mr. George H. Ketcham, care Glenville Race Track, Cleveland, O.:

On behalf of the people of Toledo I congratulate Cresceus, you, Tim and all others, known and unknown, who co-operated to bring about the splendid triumph yesterday. It will cheer the hearts of lovers of humanity and horse flesh that the whip had no part in this splendid triumph, and this fact, to my mind, proves that the fellowship between you and the noble animal is of a character that goes to show that there is in the horse a touch of human, and in the man a touch of divine. This record breaking performance demonstrates that Cresceus responds to the Golden Rule of love.

SAMUEL M. JONES, Mayor.

To this Mr. Ketcham made the following reply:

Hon. S. M. Jones, Mayor of Toledo.

My Dear Sir:—Your telegram of the 27th congratulating Tim, Cresceus and myself upon the performance at Cleveland when Cresceus placed the world's record at 2:02½ received, and it gives me great pleasure to feel that my friends at home appreciate and realize what a wonderful horse is owned in our city. In all my experience with horses, leaving alone his great flight of speed, I never saw one that possessed the intelligence that he does, and he tries in every way to respond to the wishes of his driver; but it does not need the example shown me by Cresceus to know that by the use of kindness and judgment more can be obtained from our dumb friends than by brute force. There is a whole sermon in the way we treat him to obtain the best results, and I hope that when he gives his exhibition at Toledo this fall for charity, all our people may turn out to see him and be made to realize that there are some things in the world that can make a mean man look as if he were not the whole thing. Again thanking you, I am,

Yours,
GEORGE H. KETCHAM.

Los Angeles Bench Show.

Premium lists and entry blanks can now be obtained at the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

The list embraces 279 classes, the prizes are $5, $2, medals and diplomas. The distribution of money prizes among the classes of many breeds is conducive to a large entry. The list of specials will be a larger one than anticipated and will be announced in the catalogue. The Bull Terrier, Fox Terrier and Cocker Spaniel clubs here will offer some handsome specials also. The bench show committee is composed of Martin C. Marsh, Chairman; C. E. De Camp and G. B. Barham. The judges as announced are L. A. Klein, of New York City, all breeds and classes except Fox Terriers which will be judged by Charles A. Sumner, of Los Angeles, for Setters, Pointers and Spaniels J. B. Stoddard, of Pala, San Diego county, will judge the latter. The entrance fee will be $2.50. Handler's prizes are $20 and $15 for first and second.

It is possible that local handlers and fanciers may find it expedient to charter a car to carry their dogs to the southern show.

The dog show will be a day exhibit, as all of the Fair association buildings are located at the race track which is easy of access from any part of Los Angeles. This will be a quiet and comfortable arrangement for the dogs benched and as there will be undoubtedly a large attendance at the fair, the bench show will come in for its share of interest and attention.

Entries can be made at the office of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

Woodlawn Kennels.

Mr. Courtney E. Ford, a progressive fancier of this city, who favors Fox Terriers and Irish Terriers, has had constructed at No. 2710 Sutter street, a convenient and up-to-date auxiliary kennels, a branch of the well known Woodlawn Kennels. The new quarters will be appropriated as a select breeding and show dog kennel. The structure is large and commodious, being divided by a number of wire partitioned sub-kennels properly fitted for the canine occupants, which will be very comfortably domiciled and have plenty of sunshine and fresh air, as well as necessary shelter from weather conditions. An exercising yard is also a feature of the branch kennels.

Among the first tenants of the new quarters will be Eclipse Blanche, a prize winning Fox Terrier and a cracking good brood bitch, the dam of Dictator, a winner here and in the East. She is the grand dam of Selden Styve, an Eastern winner who has the reputation of being one of the best American bred Fox Terriers now before the fancy. Lady Mask (Eclipse Tartar-Eclipse Blanche), another prize winner, will be her kennel mate. Dottie, a sweet little bitch, a winner under James Mortimer and H. L. Lacey, and well on with her championship credits and with an entry of her get in the Pacific Fox Terrier Club's Produce Stake, is another high class bitch belonging to the kennels. Legs and Feet by The Legnard (a good one he was) out of Elmwood Electa and three puppies will occupy one of its dormitories, so will Warren Tattle and one or two of her puppies by Fordham, a winner and somewhat abused dog here, but who seems to have been appreciated enough by Eastern judges to gather a few blue ribbons. Dictator (Ch. Norfolk Veracity-Eclipse Blanche), winner at Oakland and at the May show here, brother to Cigarette, winners' bitches at the recent Montreal show, will be in the stud.

The Bull Terrier bitch Newmarket Queen, with the first Coast litter of puppies sired by Woodcote Wonder, will be a steady boarder, and lastly, the Irish Terrier element will be made up by the old campaigner Barney F. and the Eastern brood bitch Virginia F.

Mr. John Bradshaw, who is associated with Mr. Ford, will have the branch kennels under his immediate supervision and management. The main kennels will be continued at the present location on Central Avenue and Geary street.

Mr. Ford has but recently taken an active interest in kennel affairs, but in this short time has been one of the most important factors in practically developing the local Fox Terrier fancy upon the most improved up-to-date lines.

A Challenge Accepted.

The publication in a weekly contemporary of some ancient history re Boston Terrier awards here in May in the nature of a challenge from Mr. Geo. S. Thomas of Hamilton, Mass. has called forth the following communication:

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6, 1901.
EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—If Mr. Thomas, in his letter to the Stock-Keeper, dated June 12th, means business. I am authorized to cover his money, from $500 to $1000. Both Boston Terrier bitches are now here and can be shown at Oakland. If this match will be arranged I am willing to have the dogs judged and the judge selected by the Oakland bench show committee. It is probable that the judge selected will be an Eastern judge, and one who has judged here before and has also passed on all breeds.

As I have been the only handler of Lady Montez since she came west I take it upon myself to look upon Mr. Thomas' statement somewhat in the nature of a personal challenge and have been authorized to make the offer as above.

JOHN BRADSHAW.

We noted in our kennel registry of sales last week the purchase of Lady Montez by the enterprising local fancier Mr. Albert Joseph. Endcliffe Lita at present is heavy in whelp. As we have already given our views upon the award made at the May show we will for the time being let the matter rest without further comment.

San Francisco Kennel Club Wins Cancelled.

The following corrections of the awards at the May show in this city have been made by the American Kennel Club. This is a significant commentary on the abilities of the clerical force employed for the late show, and also does not speak greatly in favor of the much-vaunted executive qualities of the club secretary. The cancellation of reserve for Edgewood Jean II. seems to suggest a decision in the special award muddle. This case, by the way, was formally placed before the New York committee of the A. K. C. If we have not been misinformed, the matter has been referred back to the Pacific Advisory Board. The Eastern gentlemen before whom the matter came no doubt felt very delicate about handling a bunch of affidavits filed in the case. These documents contained some allegations that were not flavored with lavender water. The records and wins of the following dogs have been cancelled for reasons stated below:

In Class 12, Mastiffs, Winners, Queen F. not eligible; in Class 130, Cockers, Powhattan Lou not listed; in Class 173, Bull Terriers, Nancy not listed; in Class 174, Winners, Bitches, Edgewood Jean II., Reserve, not eligible; in Class 188, Dachshunde, Rex M. not eligible; in Class 189 A, Dachshunde, Venlo's Rhoda not listed; Waldein Frau, no such dog registered; in Class 191 A, Venlo's Rhoda not eligible; in Class 192, Fox Terriers, Casey J. not listed; in Class 198, Fox Terriers, Norfolk Two-Step should read Norfolk Quickstep; in Class 211, Irish Terriers, Endcliffe Paddlar not listed; in Class 215, Irish Terriers, Endcliffe Kitty not listed; in Class 216, Irish Terriers, Endcliffe Shela not listed; in Class 223, Scottish Terriers, Endcliffe Rebel not listed; in Class 225, Endcliffe Rebel not eligible; in Class 242, Pugs, Endcliffe Venolia not listed; in Class 243, Winners, Bitches, Toody, Reserve, not eligible; in Class 249, Endcliffe Mayor not listed; in Class 284, Miscellaneous, Endcliffe Shoots not listed; in Class 286, Trick Dogs, Golden Lion not listed. The following dogs have been moved up in the above classes: Class 130, Minstrel Girl takes second, Lady Gaylord takes third; in Class 198, Lewancee Lace takes first, Legs and Feet takes second, Lewancee Love takes third; in Class 223, Nosegay Dandelion takes first; in Class 249, Prince Tiney takes first; in Class 250, Prince Tiney takes first.

Mon Jock! but there's a stink o' fish about!

Doings in Dogdom.

An opportunity to purchase a well-bred young Llewellyn Setter puppy, old enough to break this fall, is noted in Kennel Advertisements, page 15.

Nairod Kennels' report a Cocker litter out of Ch. Tootsie W., that is beyond ordinary a fine, strong, active lot of puppies, all rich red in color, five dogs and a bitch. Hampton Goldie, the sire, has now quite a reputation for a large majority of dogs in whelpings which he has sired. He seems to have distinguished himself in this litter, there is not a washed out or weak shade in the bunch.

We acknowledge the receipt from Secretary E. C. Plume of the Rules and Regulations of the California Cocker Club, a neat little booklet recently issued containing among other information the American Spaniel Club Cocker Standard, etc.

We are also under obligations to Norman J. Stewart for a handsomely printed pamphlet containing the latest amended Rules and Regulations of the California Collie Club. Besides parliamentary matter, the work contains the Collie standard adopted by the club and is embellished with some splendid half tones of Collies.

Mr. Marcel A. Viti, the Secretary of the Philadelphia Dog Show Association, announces that the third annual show of the association will be held under the supervision of the following bench show committee, Clement B. Newbold, Edw. Moore Robinson, Alexander Van Rensselaer, Lewis A. Biddle, Marcel A. Viti, S. Boyd Carrigan, Reginald R. Shober, D. Murray Bohlen, Francis E. Bond, Mitchell Harrison, Jay B. Lippincott, C. Leland Harrison, Sidney W. Keith, George R. Packard, Henry Jarrett, S. W. Geary, James W. Paul, Jr., and Robert Toland.

The prizes will be uniform throughout, $15, $10 and $5 in all puppy, novice, limit and open classes. Entries will close on November 11th. The entrance fee will be $5.

The impression has generally prevailed that the Greyhound, while available in running down that pest of the ranchers in this State, the coyote, was not possessed of stamina and fighting qualities sufficient to successfully combat with the marauders of the stock range. This idea has been effectually eradicated, if the performances of individual dogs in the pack owned by Mr. Clinton E. Worden and kenneled on his ranch near Bakersfield, will be taken into account. These Greyhounds have repeatedly run down and killed, singly and collectively, a grand total of hundreds of coyotes. At close quarters the coyote has time and again been proved to be no match at all for these dogs. In the case of the pack, or a portion of them, overhauling the quarry, it is literally an illustration of quick-time mincemeat. Among the dogs on Mr. Worden's domain are several Staghouls. The Greyhound and Staghound have been there bred together—ranchers have been experimenting for years in order to breed a type of dog with a combination of speed, courage and strength qualities. In this case the cross has developed a splendid animal for the purpose, swift, powerful and a game fighting dog that singly has hunted down and killed many coyotes.

Old Major Burton was in his day in Kentucky one of the greatest sportsmen in the entire section of the Blue Grass, of which he was an ornament, and to which he was an inspiration. No man could tell so quickly by the smell whose brand of liquor was in the toddy, nor was there any one who knew the fine points of a good hunting dog as did the major. It made no difference whether it was a Foxhound of the finest breed or a plain yaller coon dog—if he was a good one he was sure to have the major's highest respect. On one occasion the major was in Boston, and during a portion of his visit he met a Bostonian who did not know much of anything except Boston. With him the major, after the enthusiastic manner of his kind, entered into an argument on the respective merits of localities in our great and glorious republic.

"But major," argued the Boston man, "what if your State is famous in all these things you mention, there are portions of it where human life is held so cheap that a man would be killed for kicking another's dog down stairs."

"Are you sure of that?" inquired the major, with particular interest.

"I read of an instance in the newspapers within the week, where one man, somewhere in the mountains, killed another for just that very thing. Simply kicking a dog down stairs. Now, what can you say in defense of such a civilization?"

The major hemmed and hawed a moment. "Well," he replied finally, "it depends altogether on what kind of a dog it was."

Dogs of the Scotch Collie variety are mighty useful on a farm, says the New York Sun, but it is doubtful if a Collie or any other kind of dog was ever before in this country put to the use that Greenskeeper Ronk of the Broome County (N. Y.) Country Club puts his Collie, Jack, every night. Jack served his apprenticeship on a farm near Binghamton, and was regarded as one of the best sheep and cow dogs in the country. When Ronk took charge of the golf links at the Country Club he made it known in the district round about that he wanted a dog that was capable of learning some new tricks. It wasn't very long before the fame of Jack reached the Country Club, and after a little negotiation the Collie became the property of the greenskeeper. Members of the club wondered what Ronk wanted of such a fine animal, but to all their queries on the subject Ronk was silent.

In addition to taking care of the grounds Ronk does a little business on the side, with club members, in golf balls and clubs. Golf balls are expensive. A good one costs 35 cents. It is a stiff price, considering that one is apt to lose half a dozen balls in a day. Every week between two and six dozen balls are lost on the grounds here, and once given up as lost by its owner a ball becomes the property of the first person who runs across it. It was only a week after Ronk got his new Collie that the greenskeeper announced that he had for sale a number of second-hand balls, many of them as good as new. He asked only 10 cents apiece for them. The members gobbled them up in short order, and there has been a steady demand for Ronk's second-hand balls ever since. The greenskeeper kept the secret of the source of his supply for some time, but it finally got out that he had trained the Collie to go out on the course at dusk each night after everybody had quit playing golf for the day and search for lost balls.

"He learned the trick mighty quick," said Ronk the other day, "and now I don't even have to go out with him. He starts out as soon as I give him permission, and if I don't call him off he'd keep it up all night. He's enthusiastic over searching for balls, and I never saw anything like him for finding them. As soon as he finds a ball he brings it to me, and starts out again. Maybe that dog wasn't a good investment. Well, when I tell you that he found fifty-eight balls for me in two nights, and that after spending 10 cents' worth of paint on them I sold them for 10 cents apiece, you'll see that he wasn't such a had speculation after all. I got the notion of training a dog to this work by an article I saw in an English sporting paper about a dog owned by a greenskeeper in Scotland, that did the same work. I paid a price for Jack, but let me tell you three times what he cost me will not buy him back again to-day."

Fish Lines.

A hass sat him down with a blink to think,
And dipped his fin thoughtfully into the ink;
Then fanned this short note:
"Dear Dolliver," he wrote,
"In response to your line of the other day
I hasten to thank you without delay.
But, had not that flabby, oleaginous clam
Shown a set in his curves suspiciously flim-flam,
I might not be here
To write you, my dear
(What you may not believe, 'tis so monstrously queer),
That the clam you sent
With most kindly intent
Had swallowed a pin that was frightfully bent!

"You see—if I'd greedily taken a bite,
The pain and the shock would have finished me quite;
So, the next time you send,
My leathery friend,
Just mark if the clam has a natural bend
Ere you dangle him temptingly down here to be
The death of some innocent striped thing like me."
And he grinned as he used some dry sand for a blotter,
(Ink dries rather slowly, you know, under water),
Then signed it in haste
And sealed it with paste.

It was growing quite dark and he'd no time to waste,
So he posted it slyly, without wasting more,
On the crest of a ripple that ran toward shore;
Then, shaking his scales in a satisfied glow,
All shining and shimmering, sank down below,
Where he soon fell asleep
In an oyster bed deep,
With the green sheets of water his slumber to keep.
—With apologies to St. Nicholas.

The Truckee banks from Boca down to Verdi are daily lined with anglers who are now having royal fishing in the imperial stream.

Trolling for striped bass will be the sport and diversion of the salt water angler if the success of a new spoon is assured. This spoon was evolved by the inventive genius of Al Wilson. In shape it is about two and a half inches long and five-eighths of an inch wide for nearly its whole length—oblong, of even width for four-fifths of its length and with rounded ends. The spoon is rather heavy and concaved slightly more than ordinarily. On the convex side and a third of the length from one end is fixed a staple; in this staple is arranged a twisted ring upon which is rigged a No. 3 eyed hook, the latter projecting about two-thirds of its length beyond the spoon. At the other end of the spoon is rigged a ring and barrel swivel. The motion of the spoon in the water is of a wobbling nature, neither spinning nor skittering, is used without a bait. The appearance of the new bass lure is somewhat reminding of a small salmon squid with a pendant and movable hook. That it is deadly and effective has been well proved by some big catches of striped bass made by Al Wilson, Manuel Cross, O. W. Jackson and Ex-Fish Commissioner Gould in the waters off San Pablo on the east side of the bay. Fish weighing 16 pounds and over have been hooked.

Reports from Sears Point, Petaluma Creek and tributaries and Black Point indicate good fishing with rod and line.

Deer Hunting and Dove Shooting Notes.

Deer hunting during the opening days of the present season was not up to the usual standard of returns in fat haunches of venison and prized antlered heads. A full moon and very hot and foggy days were the conditions that placed an embargo on the hunters' sport, particularly so in the Marin hills and further north in the coast range districts. During the bright moonlit nights the deer will be abroad until near dawn, feeding here and there and helping himself to the greenwood tidbits. He is ready to go to bed by the time it is light. It is well known that a deer can clip over the ground or through bush and timber at full speed and safely when the night is dark as Erebus, but he nevertheless has a fancy for the bright light of the moon. On these nights deer will start for cover earlier and go farther into the heavy brush or other chosen covert than on the darker nights. The hunters and their dogs find extreme difficulty in jumping a buck during the full of the moon. Whether the animal sleeps sounder by reason of late hours or that the hot weather makes him lazy and slow to start or possibly that he may rely on the fog to help him in his well known ability to successfully hide and lay close, is a problem. During such a state of affairs hunting in the evening should be an inducement for the hunter to be on the qui vive, the deduction being that as the deer has taken his rest so early he will come out sooner and give a chance for a shot. The evening hunt is by far behind the sport of the morning hunt which, however, can generally be reckoned upon to fail during the bright nights at the full of the moon.

Doves have so far this season been plentiful in memory only. Some shooters have advanced an opinion that the present game law has made the opening of the season so late that sportsmen have had no opportunity to indulge in the sport, the birds having left many localities, where in past years they have been plentiful, before the opening day of the dove shooting season. This reason has been proven frivolous, as reports from many sections show that on July 15th (the beginning of the season under the old law) the birds were not in evidence and surprisingly scarce. In most localities where they were abundant in past years they had raised their young and then mysteriously disappeared. A late, cold season has been offered as the cause for the fight by some veteran sportsman who claim to be wise in woodcraft. At all events, in the lower end of San Joaquin valley and south of Tehachaipe they are reported to be plentiful and plump.

Al Cumming recounts a pleasant trip recently through Sierra Valley. The party, composed of our historian, R. J. Chapman, Dalton Harrison and a local scribe, "Mike" Geary, left Boca by stage and proceeded to Campbell's Hot Springs, a pleasant ride of about 28 miles. A stop was made in the comfortable hotel at the Springs for several days, during which time the sportsmen had a glorious snipe shoot. In three days a total bag of 209 "Englishmen" was made. The birds were in the finest condition imaginable, fully matured and in beautiful plumage. Less than a dozen of the "long bills" gave any evidence of early youth when the feathers were examined. The bag was also enhanced by 31 plump doves. Both doves and ducks were found to be scarce and few in the valley. The valley has been a noted breeding place for thousands of ducks; this season they are for some reason absent. Bull head plover, willet and avocets are, however, plentiful, having bred there in large numbers this year. Sage hens were exceedingly numerous, many flocks having been seen by the party, particularly in the vicinity of Loyalton and Vinton. Thousands of mountain quail, two-thirds grown, were also seen; they seem to have matured this year ahead of their usual time. This will not avail the hunters in the sport of shooting mountain quail. By October 1st the premonitory cold spells, forerunners of a Sierra winter, will warn the quail to seek the lower levels of the Sierra foothills and take refuge in the dense and high chemise thickets and chaparral, where man nor dog cannot get the birds on their salvation. The grouse will also seek refuge in a lower altitude, they then frequent the tall pines and the highest and bleakest rough open ridges, where it is almost impossible to get at them in the late fall and winter months. Snipe shooting in the vicinity of Campbell's will improve daily as soon as the irrigating ditches are opened to let water run on the hay fields, thus drying up an immense area of pasture land. The new railroad from Boca to Loyalton is destined to open up a mountain paradise for the sportsman. The region is comparatively unknown and abounds in fish and game.

During the trip to Sierra valley, Al Cumming and his comrades did not devote all of their time to snipe shooting but also had some rare sport with the rod and line. They fished the headwaters of the north fork of Yuba river, eighteen miles from Campbell's. The party stopped at Bassett's, on the Sierra City road, where comfortable quarters can be had by the angler. The catch was 95 rainbow trout, from 10 to 15 inches in length. The morning and afternoon fishing in the stream and nearby tributaries was delightful. Twenty mountain lakes can be found within a radius of eight miles from Bassett's. These lakes are all full of trout. The good fishing will begin about September 1st or as soon as the frosty nights set in. The fish will then stop bottom feeding and come to the surface waters again. Randolph, Hamblin and other fishing creeks near Campbell's Hot Springs are now in good condition for fly-fishing. Al Cumming, Johnny Coleman, Fred Bushnell and a party will proceed to Webber lake about the end of the month.

The enterprise of the daily newspapers in discovering an old duck-blind and converting it into a robbers' lair in connection with the Selby bullion robbery, is a startling example of careless ingenuity that will be appreciated by sportsmen to a laughable extent.

Point Reyes Hotel has been a favorite resort for the deer hunters since the season opened.

At the Traps.

The final blue rock shoot for this season of the San Francisco Gun Club will be shot at Ingleside to-morrow. The live bird traps will be used by the Olympic Gun Club.

The Empire Gun Club members will have their regular monthly blue rock shoot at Alameda Point. The principal events will be the club medal race, the Yellowstone trophy and Schumacher prize matches. On the 8th and 9th of September, the club will hold one of the largest merchandise prize shoots ever given for local trap shooters.

The California Wing Club held the final live bird club shoot for this season at Ingleside last Sunday. Each member shot at 100 birds in six club shoots—five races at 15 pigeons and the concluding shoot at 25 birds. The club trophy winners were C. A. Haight, M. O. Feudner first and second with 95 birds each; W. H. Williamson, who scored 91, third; C. H. Shaw and Dr. A. M. Barker with 89 each, fourth and fifth. Of the shooters who had shot up the five previous club matches Otto Feudner was high gun with 71 out of 75 birds. In the 25 bird race he lost his tenth bird, giving him a total of 95. This score was tied by Clarence A. Haight, who had scored 56 out of 60 birds. Shooting up his back score straight and after losing his eighth bird, a baffling one, in the 25 bird race, he tied the high gun. Haight lost but one pigeon out of 60 during the day. W. H. Williamson, with 55 out of 60, grassed 14 on a back score and dropped 22 in the final race, taking third prize on a total of 91 out of 100. The race for fourth and fifth prizes was between four shooters with 89 birds each. In shooting off the tie, a miss and out was agreed upon, instead of 10 birds as usual. Walsh went out on his second bird, a swift left quarterer, dead out. "Slade" put up his gun after losing his third. Barker grassed four birds, Shaw then closing the tie race by dropping his fourth pigeon.

The quality of the shooting is seen in the loss of but four birds out of the first seventy-five shot at by fifteen shooters. Chas. Shaw shot an uphill race, with but thirty-seven birds out of forty-five to his credit, and then losing three birds out of two back scores he buckled down to work, and shot up the final race straight. Shaw had rather hard luck on a "no bird" called by the referee. Just as the bird walked in the barring one yard toward the shooter, and as the referee called for another pigeon, the bird took flight, the next bird sprung was a swift one, and escaped both barrels. Ed. Donohoe's ill luck in one or two of the earlier monthly club shoots cut him out from the winning quintet. Out of the total number of birds shot at in the club race and back scores, 325, but two dozen escaped, seven of these dropping out of bounds. Eight bird pools prevailed after the club shoot. In a special race at eight pigeons Ed. Donohoe scored straight and beat P. J. Walsh one bird. The pigeons supplied were generally a lot of strong, swift-flying birds. The scores were as follows:

The Union Gun Club shoot at Ingleside Sunday was slimly attended. Many members of this popular club are field sportsmen and could not resist the temptations offered by deer hunting and dove shooting. For this reason it was impossible to muster two twelve men teams for the shoot off of a tie between the Union and Empire Gun Clubs. The winners in Sunday's shoot were:

Club shoot, 25 birds—Fred Feudner, first money; C. T. Mitchell and M. J. Iverson won second; G. Gordon, O. Fischer and L. Javette, Jr., divided third money;

T. L. Lewis and R. Cooper split fourth money. M. J. Iverson was the winner of the "ability" medal for the month. In the added money race C. W. Debenham and G. Gordon captured first money; F. Feudner, M. J. Iverson and M. Burnell cut up second. The club monthly handicap first medal was won by Fred Feudner, who now owns the trophy, having won it three times. R. Cooper carried off the second medal for the month. Otto Feudner, in practice, made the only straight score of 25 during the day. The results in the regular events were the following:

Club shoot, 25 targets, added money, distance handicap—Fred Feudner, 18 yards, broke 23; C. W. Debenham, 16-22; C. L. Foin (guest) 16-17; T. L. Lewis, 18-10; R. Cooper, 16-10; W. Knick, 16-20; H. Van Soosten, 16-12; G. Gordon, 16-15; O. Fischer, 16-15; L. Javette, Jr., 16-15; M. Burnell, 16-16; P. Phillips, 14-12; M. Hoyt, 16-17; M. J. Iverson, 16-19; D. Drieschman, 14-14; C. T. Mitchell, 16-19; George Thomas, 16-16.

Club handicap medal match—F. Feudner, broke 23 blue rocks out of 25; Hoyt, 20-28; Fischer, 16-28; Debenham, 20-25; Iverson, 20-26; Van Soosten, 16-30; Lewis, 12-30; Burnell, 14-28; Cooper, 17-30; Schnipper 13-25.

Ability handicap medal race, target handicap, 20 breaks possible—Iverson shot at 25, broke 12; Janssen, 25-15; Burnell, 25-21; Knicks, 25-19; Lewis, 25-19.

Added money match, target handicap, high guns—Javette, Jr., shot at 30, broke 20; Foin, 25-15; Iverson, 23-19; Gordon, 28-17; Debenham, 22-20; F. Feudner, 22-19; Burnell, 23-19; Lewis, 25-12; Janssen, 25-16.

The Empire Club's shoot, July 28th, at Alameda Point was well attended Secretary J. B. Hauer informs us. The weather conditions being perfect, some excellent scores were made. The Allen handicap gun and Sweeney record medal events were the principal attractions for the day. For the gun A. J. Webb made the best score for the day by breaking 19 clay birds out of a possible 20 shot at from the twenty-yard mark. Webb also made the highest score for the Sweeney record medal by breaking 17 birds without a miss. The summarized scores of several events follow:

Allen handicap gun, 20-bird race, shot in ten pairs of doubles, distance handicap: Cullen, 16 yards rise, broke 16; Allen 16-17; Swales, 16-16; Hauer, 18-18; Webb 20-19; Webb (B. S.—I), 20-18; Webb (B. S.—2), 20-15; Reed, 16-16; Ireland, 16-10; Debenham, 18-15; Swales (B. S.), 16-14.

Sweeney record medal, continuous break, miss-and-out match, shot in singles and doubles, distance handicap: Roman 0, Justin 5, Ireland 0, Slade 11, Webb 11, Reed 3, Swales 1, Allen 4, Ireland 3, Webb 17, Slade 0, Roman 0.

Twenty-bird race—Justin 15, Reed 17, Roman 12, Swales 17, Cullen 19, Peltier 12, Duboise 15, Debenham 18, Ireland 15, Webb 17.

Ten-bird race—Slade 10, Reed 9, Duboise 7, Roman 9, Peltier 7, Justin 4, Ross 7, Roman 6, Swales 6, Debenham 7, Ireland 6, Slade 10, Debenham 10, Reed 10, Hauer 10, Houpt 8.

The visit of the American trap shooting team to Great Britain and the Continent and their complete success in besting the crack shooters of Europe will probably bring about some radical changes in style and methods among the shotgun devotees "across the sea." An interview with Captain "Tom" Marshall in Chicago recently is interesting:

"We made a clean sweep everywhere we went and convinced the British that our methods of handling a gun, though not popular with them at the start, brought the best results, and they are now rapidly adopting them at clubs," he said, discussing the trip of the team abroad.

"The American style of holding the gun at the score was severely criticised by the gun writers when we made our first appearance. We hold the butt of the gun close to the shoulder before calling 'pull,' thus having a steady sight on the trap when it is pulled. The English, and, for that matter, all Europeans shoot another way. It seems they wanted to appear more graceful at the score and stood with the butt of the gun as low as their hips when the trap was pulled, thus compelling them to make a quick shift to the shoulder. It is impossible to get the butt of the gun in the same place on the shoulder twice in succession when done so quickly, and that accounts for our better aim. Captain J. C. Butt of the London Club told me that his club had determined to adopt our style of shooting, for it certainly brought results never dreamed of by continental shooters.

"We went to Glasgow, Scotland, after our visit to London and had a tourney there with the Scotch. The Glasgow Club was confident of beating us, but when we had finished and missed only thirty-one birds out of a thousand they changed their tune. J. Ingram Annan, captain of the Glasgow Club, came to me after the tourney and asked:

"Do you think we could beat that London club? You ought to be in a position to know, having just defeated them so easily."

"Yes, I think you've a good show," was my reply. "We'll have to challenge them, then," said the captain, and thanked me.

"We traveled through Ireland after that, shooting a little, but not as a team, and then a few of us started for France. Passing through London, Captain Butt met us and asked me the very same questions Captain Annan had pronounced regarding the Scotch club.

"I think you've a good chance to beat them," was my answer to him also, and shortly after challenges were exchanged between those two clubs. They have shot against each other for years and, being nearly evenly matched, are the keenest of rivals.

"Our trip in France was a novel one to us. We knew we were shooting under the rules, but the wild gesticulations of those Frenchmen when they saw we were beating them were really laughable."

Grass Valley Sportsmen's Camp Stew.

It was a jolly crowd of lovers of true sport that assembled at the farm of August Guillaume in the Indian Springs district on the 3rd inst. at the invitation of the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club says the Union and Herald. The occasion for the gathering was the club's annual camp stew. The festivities were held beneath the spreading oaks, where in years gone by camp meetings were held. The grounds had been previously fitted up by Mr. Guillaume, and in consequence when the guests, who were present from San Francisco, Marysville and all parts of Nevada county, arrived early in the morning everything was in proper shape. Among the prominent visitors present were T. J. Sherwood, the pioneer editor of the Marysville Democrat, who has attended every stew, except one, given by the club since 1873; H. T. Payne, president of the Fish and Game Protective Association and chief deputy in the office of the State Fish and Game Commission and E. K. Darrin, editor of a San Francisco sporting paper.

Long before the sun had risen Saturday the hunters started out in search of game. Despite the fact that a goodly portion of the country over which they generally hunt was burnt over and many of the birds and rabbits cremated, the sportsmen were very successful. The Marysville delegation, made up of Mr. Sherwood, Frank Leonard, Joseph Sloss and Amos Lane, also hunted the region between Marysville and Spenceville Friday and succeeded in bagging about seventy-five doves and a dozen or more rabbits.

The invited guests did not leave for the grounds as soon as the shooters. But they were not very far behind. As early as 5 o'clock those who were to enjoy the club's hospitality set out for Indian Springs, and from that time up to 9 o'clock buggies followed one another in close succession. But all during the day visitors continued to arrive at the grounds, the delegation from Nevada City reaching there shortly after 1 o'clock.

Every outing held by the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club has been a success, but never has one been more enjoyable than the one held yesterday. There was not a moment during the whole day when the time seemed to lag. Every one realized that he was invited to the stew with the understanding that he was to eat, drink and make merry. The morning hours were devoted principally to sports of different kinds. There was also more or less work of a light nature to be done and all who desired were permitted to amuse themselves by picking the birds and dressing the rabbits.

But there were other pleasures on the morning's program in addition to those mentioned above, the most important of which was the partaking of the splendid breakfast served. Ike Sanks was the chief cook for this meal, and he was ably assisted by Joseph Reinhart, Jr., "Hook" Johnson and John Seville. The meals and other eatables were of the choicest quality, and there was an abundance.

Foot racing was one of the features of the afternoon. One of the most exciting contests was between the mining superintendents. The race was won by Ben Opie, who bested George Starr by not more than a few inches. Several of the old pioneers stretched their legs, while professional men and newspaper representatives gave an exhibition of their racing qualities.

During the afternoon there were a number of wrestling bouts, but the most enjoyable feature of the day was the singing by several of Grass Valley's soloists. Charles Stocks, Ben Opie and John Glasson and other well known singers were at their best. They sang the "Old Oaken Bucket" and other favorites which have been sung at camp stews for many long years. Otto Woehler, who possesses a musical voice, was heard to good advantage.

While the guests were enjoying themselves to their heart's content Frank Dulmaine and Maurice O'Connell, with a corps of assistants, were busily engaged in preparing the stew. With all the good things that were placed in the kettle, under the able direction of the chefs, the stew could not help but be perfect. But it was more than that; it was par excellence. The guests seated themselves round the table about half past four.

Before the feast was partaken of a tribute of respect was paid to the late George Fletcher, who was for a long time president of the club and who for many years was the moving spirit in the camp stew gatherings. "The Vacant Chair," was sweetly sung by Charles Stocks, John Glasson, Ben Opie, Charles Brockington, A. B. Champion, M. B. Kerr and Mr. Howard. A brief eulogy of Mr. Fletcher was delivered by T. J. Sherwood. The two had been close friends for thirty years or more, and Mr. Sherwood eloquently spoke of the noble traits of the deceased.

After the banquet had been enjoyed, remarks were made by several of the sportsmen present. Dr. I. W. Hays, president of the club, presided. He made a few appropriate remarks in introducing H. T. Payne of San Francisco (the "walking delegate" of game protection). Mr. Payne made a rather lengthy talk, detailing the game conditions that existed at the time this country was first settled, the over-abundance of fish and game that existed not a great many years ago, and finally he referred to the scarcity of game at the present time, due, as he says, in a measure to criminal negligence. Mr. Payne believes (at an expense of $10 per day to the State) that if all the sportsmen will cooperate the wholesale slaughtering of game out of season will be prevented. (And when the time is ripe for the appointment of a State Game Warden the speaker also believes he is entitled to the office.)

Mr. Payne was followed by J. H. Austin of Spenceville, who called attention to the damage done by hunters (not members of the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club) in the Spenceville district. He said that the farmers in that vicinity had suffered greatly from damage to their property by the carelessness or maliciousness of the hunters referred to, and it was as a result of this abuse of privileges that the hunting on the farmers' premises was prohibited.

Dr. I. W. Hays, who has always been a zealous sportsman and who has done much to protect the game in Nevada county, also made a brief speech, in which he urged all present to join the Sportsmen's Association, a branch of which is being established in the different towns throughout the county.

In conversation with a local reporter, Editor T. J. Sherwood gave a brief account of how the holding of camp stews originated. The first one was held in 1873, the prime mover being William Watt, who was in the early days one of the most prominent of Grass Valley's citizens. The thought occurred to Mr. Watt that it would be pleasant to have a number of his friends meet together at some point in the woods and enjoy a feast. It was finally decided to hold the outing at a point near the Old Pet Hill toll house. Leading citizens of Marysville, Nevada City and Grass Valley, as well as other places, were invited to participate. In recalling those who were at this first camp stew, out of which grew those now held annually by the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club, Mr. Sherwood mentioned the following names: Dr. S. T. Brewster, Judge C. E. Filkins, C. W. Schiervel, A. C. Bingham and T. J. Sherwood, all of Marysville; Ira A. Easton, Charles Smith, Otis Perrin, Dr. McCormick, John Lancaster and Mr. Sigourney, all of whom were either residents of Grass Valley or Nevada City. The outing held in 1873 was a very successful affair. There was game in plenty and Mr. Watt, who was noted for his liberality, and other members of the party furnished the drinkables. The festivities held were similar to those now held by the Grass Valley Sportsmen's Club.

Dusted and Broken Targets.

In respect to the rules which govern competition, the shooting world is notably conservative, says Forest and Stream. In giving the following logical argument in favor of scoring dusted targets, the writer advances an opinion that we believe, among the Coast shooters, will be generally agreed with.

Whether sound or fallacious, the ideas of the first makers of the rules, as embodied in the rules of the present time, are still in use. That fallacy should be permitted to exist in the rules, is easily understood, if we consider that, in the trap-shooting world, there is no central governing body, and therefore no one in authority concerning matters of general interest.

Of the mistaken rulings, no one is more illogical as a matter of horse sense, and more unjust as a matter of equity to a contestant, than the one which governs dusted targets in Interstate rules, namely, "A dusted target shall not be scored to the shooter," and in A. S. A. rules, namely, "A dusted target is not a broken target."

Why shall not a dusted target be scored to the shooter?

Why is not a dusted target a broken target? In the first instance the contestant is arbitrarily deprived of what he scored, and in the second instance we have a statement made directly contrary to the fact, for a dusted target is a broken target.

If a contestant hits the target, and it is thereby made apparent to the referee and to the onlookers by more or less dust why should it not be scored? What is the reason for refusing to give the shooter the benefit of the hit?

"Ah, but," says the learned conservative, "there must be a conservative piece from it." Is not dust made up of perceptible pieces, meaning thereby visible pieces?

Because dust is not in its parts large enough to be distinctly distinguished as independent pieces, it does not in the least detract from the merit of the break. For, as between dusting a target or knocking a piece out of it, much depends on the part of it which is hit. Much also depends on the state of the temperature, for on an exceedingly warm day the targets become softer and tougher, and then what is a dusted target would on a cooler day be a broken one.

Frequently targets when picked up are entirely perforated, and have quite sufficient material knocked out of them to constitute a break. Sometimes a dozen or more shot will be found to have pierced a target without meeting the arbitrary and unreasoning exactions of the rules.

Unfortunately this rule militates against the interests of those who can least afford to carry a penalty—that is to say, the shooters who shoot in slow time, for the further the target is away from the shooter at the moment of firing at it, the more likely is it to be dusted.

It would indeed be a gratification if some of the rule makers would publish a common-sense reason why a dusted target is not a broken target, and why, a fact being a fact, there is any good reason for asserting that it is not a fact.

Let us for a moment consider some analogous cases. In rifle shooting, if the bullet touches the edge of the bullseye, it is called a bullseye. So with the rings without the bullseye; or within it, if there be any. A dusted target may be infinitely better hit than a grazed bullseye, yet in the one case, it is ruled as being not hit and shall not score; in the other it is a good hit and scores. In live bird shooting it is not necessary to kill the bird to score. The test is whether it can be gathered within a certain boundary.

Probably no ruling has caused more disputes and heartburnings than that governing a dusted target and a perceptible piece.

Often a piece is knocked out of the target which the referee, owing to unfavorable background, cannot see, or which some one with keener vision can see. Often a chunk is knocked out of a target, but so thoroughly pulverized that it is dust. The target is well hit and well broken, but because, forsooth, there is no perceptible piece, it is not broken, say some of the rule makers. As a matter of fact, it is broken: as a matter of far-fetched fancy, it is not broken. Why not?

Another ancient fallacy concerning a feature of live bird shooting is requiring a shooter to fire a blank cartridge in his first barrel after a misfire with it. In the second inning the contestant should have the use of both barrels the same as in the first.

THE FARM.

Feeding Lambs for Market.

Many farmers who keep sheep have not yet fallen into line as they should with this modern improvement. They are leaving the big sheep men of the West to supply the markets with the young sheep not yet a year old, and still having the sweet, tender, juicy lamb flesh on their small light bones. There is no waste any way in these young sheep. All the animal except the bones, when dressed, is eatable; and what is still more to the purpose, it is nutritious and exceedingly palatable and digestible. This kind of mutton is really the most easily digested of all foods.

To feed for market a lamb still having its first teeth, and its first flesh on its small bones, and being fed at half the cost per salable pound of meat as compared with a mature sheep, is to make of it by far the most profitable of all farm products, says a writer in the Country Gentleman. Years ago the young, tender, spring chicken came into vogue, and having never been fed over a winter in which food is wasted in supplying mere warmth, it was found the most profitable kind of poultry; now we have the spring lamb under a year old carrying the public favor all before it, but nevertheless the great rank and file of those who keep sheep have not yet fallen, or been driven, into line with the great body of large sheep farmers, especially in the West.

Everything in the growth of an animal depends on feeding. This, if proper, secures health, vigor and rapid growth. The custom of rearing lambs on the ewes only until they were old enough to eat grass is out of date. The new method of feeding in many cases will make a ten-months-old lamb weigh as much as its dam does. So we get, inside of a year, and without any wintering a market sheep in every way desirable which has cost so little that fully a half of the market value of it is profit.

The modern custom is to begin to feed lambs as soon as they are a week old. I have had them eating regular rations then, and before they were weaned they made as much live weight as the ewes which reared them. There are a few wrinkles in this business—secrets, some consider them—which go to make such lambs as these. First, let it be carefully noted that the rearing of a lamb of this kind begins before the ewe has seen the ram by which she is to be impregnated. The ram is the material with which the modern shepherd works. Physiologically, the ram is the real parent; the ewe is simply the mold in which the material of which the young animal is to be made is cast. The ewe merely gives form to the offspring; it is the ram which gives the vital force, the machinery of it which propels this, this consisting of the ability to feed and of its food to make growth rapidly. No one need try to make the best lambs without a ram bred in this line as the sire. The shepherd must understand this, as the cattle-breeder has learned and understands it. Else why should one give $5 000 for a well-bred bull, while as many hundred buys the heifer? So those farsighted shepherds of South America and Australia will readily pay $5000 for a ram to serve their one-dollar-a-head ewes, and make money out of the business by the improved lambs they breed.

The lambs then of a duly well-selected ram inherit from their sire a great ability to feed, and so at the age of four months may be sold at good profit. Indeed, the present custom of feeding lambs for market insures salable animals at any time. I have trained lambs in an easy way to eat a mixed feed of bran, fine corn meal, and cotton-seed meal, twice a day at first, and afterwards at will, as often as they wish, in this way. Lambs soon learn to creep under a low fence, which is impossible for the ewes. Pens made of burdles tied together at the ends, so that four set together will make a convenient enclosure, will be useful for this purpose, and if a few of them are set up near together and the feed is put in shallow troughs, the lambs, once being taught, will feed as they want. It is only necessary to teach a few of the lambs to eat the feed; the rest will soon follow the example of the others.

Milk in Hot Weather.

The care of milk in hot weather is one of the great things in creamery work at this time, and patrons cannot be coached too often on this point. Letters to patrons like the following sent by Prof. E. H. Farrington, of the Wisconsin University creamery, should do the work: Such a letter sent out June 27th, entitled "Care of Milk in Hot Weather," reads:

During the summer season, each year, there are a few weeks when milk needs especially good care in order that it may be delivered to the creamery in a perfectly sweet condition.

The majority of our patrons have learned how to keep the milk sweet even in the hottest weather, but some of them are not so successful. A short description of the way milk is taken care of by those who never have sour milk in summer may help a few of our patrons who sometimes fail to keep their milk sweet.

On Monday, June 24th, one of our patrons delivered to the creamery, 1057 pounds of milk from his own herd; every pound of this milk was perfectly sweet and in prime condition, although it was two days' milk, and Sunday, the 23d, was one of the hottest days of the year. This patron, as well as others who always send good milk, does not use ice but takes ordinary good care of his milk.

He is especially particular about the milk cans. These are emptied, washed and placed in the sun to air as soon as they are returned with the skim milk. This is very important, as a dirty can often contaminates milk that would otherwise keep well.

After milking, the warm milk is cooled at once by setting the cans, loosely covered in a tank of cold water. It is a good plan to stir and dip the milk so as to mix it while cooling.

Never pour warm milk into cold milk. The new milk must be thoroughly cooled before mixing it with any other milk.

Milk with dry hands. Brush off any loose dirt from the cow's udder.

Use a strainer of cotton flannel or four thicknesses of chees cloth. Scald and air the cans, milk pails and strainer cloth, and cool the milk suddenly to 50 degrees. Every dairyman ought to have a thermometer.

If the milk is kept cool, in clean cans, each patron can be as successful as the farmer who produces and delivers 1000 pounds of perfectly sweet milk on Monday morning in hot weather.

Determining Dairy Cow Value.

We believe the Babcock test to be one of the best things for the dairy farmer, when the test is properly and honestly made, in connection with the daily weighing of the milk. It gives a record of the performance of the cow at the time it is taken. But there is one thing that many have seen but few cared to mention, lest it should prevent some from availing themselves of its benefits. When two cows are tested at the same time, the conditions of health, food or management may be more favorable to one than to the other.

Some have said if they were fed alike the cow that gave the best test must be the best butter cow. This is not true. The food that is as much as one cow would eat may be but little more than half enough for another. In a test at an experiment station we think the most profitable cow was one that ate about $43 worth in a year, and the one that ate between $25 and $30 worth did not produce enough to pay for that. Had the ration been for each what the poorer cow ate, possibly the other would not have done so well.

It used to be an old saying that "what comes out of the udder is what went into the mouth," and we say do not condemn the cow that gives a poor test until she has had as much good food as she seems able to eat and digest. A gradual increase in the amount and improvement in quality of food may transform a poor cow into a profitable one, and men who have been disappointed in buying good cows have learned that they should have bought the pasture and grain bin also. Do not condemn the cow until she has been tested when well fed and well cared for.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Skim Milk an Insect Destroyer.

It may not be generally known that skim milk or buttermilk readily mixes with kerosene, forming an emulsion which destroys insects without the danger of injury to animals or plants on which they might be, that might result from the use of the pure oil, or of oil and water. We first learned of this from using this mixture for the scale insects or mite, which causes scaly legs on fowls. We found that one or two dippings or washings with it would cure the worst case of scaly legs and leave the skin as smooth as when first hatched. We never had occasion to try it for lousy animals, for we never had one, but we do not hesitate to recommend it, and we have lately seen its use advised for ticks on sheep, using a gill of kerosene to one gallon of milk. We did not make our mixture so strong of kerosene as that, but perhaps the larger tick may need a stronger application than an insect so small as to be scarcely visible to the naked eye.—American Cultivator.

It is high time the too common practice of advertising 200 and 250 pound Merino rams were stopped. Range men are beginning to find out that there are no carloads of such rams on any of the eastern stud farms. An occasional 200-pounder and very rarely one of 230 or 250 pounds may be secured but always at a fancy price. The Delaine or Merino yearling ram runs from 140 to 165 pounds. Beyond these averages weights are exceptional and to advertise boastfully of far greater weights is damaging alike to both breed and breeder. If breeders would get down to business and do less blowing about a few of their top-notchers and advertise the rank and file of their flocks at their real weights it would help some of the breeds instead of disgusting the ram buyers who go east expecting to find a carload of Merinos and Delaines of 200 pounds weight and upwards, or of Rambouilletes of 200 to 250 pounds weight as yearlings. Yearling Rambouillet rams that weigh 160 to 200 pounds are big sheep. There are much larger sheep and quite a good many of them, but they are the cream of the flocks and exceptional. It does not pay to exaggerate in the sheep business.

Since the cow has become a mere machine for the consuming of food and converting it into milk, it is essential in securing the best returns to have good cows. A good cow is a good cow the world over, whatever breed she may be. No animal should be kept for milking purposes that does not produce 200 pounds of butter fat a year or more. The expense of feeding and caring for the animal will barely be met by the production of 150 to 175 pounds of butter fat a year; the profit is therefore found in the production above expenses. A cow yielding 250 pounds a year gives a fair profit, but a 300-pound cow gives more than twice as much net profit. The ordinary yield of milk should be 5000 or 6000 pounds a year or something over 400 gallons. Some of the best cows produce as high as 8000 to 10,000 pounds of milk annually, containing 400 to 500 pounds of butter fat.

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

QUINN'S OINTMENT FOR HORSES

stands at the head of all veterinary remedies. Such troubles as Spavins, Curbs, Windpuffs, Splints, Bunches have no terrors for a horse if the master keeps and applies Quinn's Ointment. All well known horsemen speak of it in the highest terms:

Miller & Sibley of Franklin, Pa., owners of St. Bel, brother of late Bel Boy, write, "We have used Quinn's Ointment with great success and believe it fulfills all claimed for it. We cheerfully recommend it to our friends." For Curbs, Splints, Spavins or Bunches it has no equal. Price $1.00 per package. Sold by all druggists, or sent by mail.

Holstein-Friesians.

In our advertising columns to-day will be found the advertisement of the great herd of Holstein-Friesian cattle owned by Mr. R. M. Hotaling of the Sleepy Hollow Farm, San Anselmo, Marin county.

The strongly marked black and white cattle of North Holland and Friesland constitute one of the very oldest and most notable of the dairy breeds. The historians of this race claim that it can be bred back for two thousand years continuously occupying the territory named and always famous for dairy purposes. Tradition has it that two ancient tribes located upon the shores of the North Sea before the beginning of the Christian era; one possessed a race of cattle pure white and the other a kind all black. Men and cattle then became amalgamated, forming the people and herds which for centuries have occupied that region. Holland has been noted for dairy products for at least a thousand years, and the great bicolored beasts upon which this reputation has been gained have been slowly but surely developing their present form of dairy excellence.

The large frame, strong bone, abundance of flesh, silken coat, extreme docility, and enormous milk yield of the Holstein-Friesian result from the rich and luxuriant herbage of the very fertile and moist reclaimed lands upon which the breed has been perfected, the uncommonly good care received from their owners and the close association of people and cattle.

The striking features in the appearance of this breed are the color markings of black and white and the large size of the animals of both sexes. The shining jet black contrasts vividly with the pure white, the fine, silky hair being upon a soft and mellow skin of medium thickness. In some animals the black predominates, and the white in others. Black has been rather preferred among American breeders, to the almost entire exclusion of white in some cases, yet a few very noted animals have been mainly white. The average animal carries rather more black than white, and the distribution and outlines of the markings are extremely irregular. The black and white are never mixed, the lines of demarcation being usually sharply drawn.

In temperament these animals are quiet and docile, bulls as well as cows, and the bulls exceptionally so. They have great constitutional vigor. The calves are large at birth, almost always strong and thrifty, and they grow fast and fatten easily. They mature early, heifers reaching their full height at two and a half years and showing no growth after four or five years except the addition of flesh and fat. Animals of both sexes can be readily turned into very good beasts for slaughter at almost any age.

The breed is famous for enormous milk producers. Records are abundant of cows giving an average above their own live weight in milk monthly for ten or twelve consecutive months, and there are numerous authentic instances of daily yields of 100 pounds or more for several days in succession and 20,000 to 30,000 pounds of milk in one year. Cows giving 40 to 60 pounds (or 5 to 7 gallons) per day are regarded as average animals; 7500 to 8000 pounds per year is depended upon as a herd average. A known record of 11 cows from 3 to 8 years old is 11,286 pounds (or 5250 quarts per cow, the average milking period being three hundred and forty-one days. Another herd of 12 cows averaged 8805 pounds a year (or 4064 quarts) for four years.

In the herd of the Sleepy Hollow Ranch all the present leading families of the Holstein-Friesian breed are represented. The bulls now in service are Mechthilde's Careme Colanthe, the only living son of Mechthilde that produced 112½ pounds of milk in one day and 39 pounds, 10 ounces of butter in a week; Sir Josephine of Aaggie, whose dam gave 106 pounds of milk in a day and 30 pounds, fourteen ounces of butter in one week; Homestead Barnum Paul de Kol, a splendid representative of the famous De Kol family, and Ichabod Crane, a grandson of De Kol II. A number of yearling bulls from famous cows are for sale, also a large number of officially tested cows in calf to above sires.

The agricultural appropriation act for the current fiscal year authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture, in his discretion, to apply the law for the inspection of live cattle and products to dairy products intended for exportation, the purpose being to enable our exporters of dairy products to give foreign buyers the assurance of certification by the government of the United States of the purity and grade of our dairy products. Secretary Wilson has decided to exercise the authority conferred on him by establishing in the customs districts of Boston, New York, Chicago and San Francisco a system of inspection of dairy products, but first will have experts in those districts gather all possible data in order that efficient regulations may be drafted for the conduct of this new service. A beginning will be made in a tentative way with the purpose in view to bring about a practical and an honest system by which all parties may be properly protected.

In the police court at Middletown, Conn., recently, Mr. S. Russell, Jr., paid a fine of $100 and costs for docking the tails of two horses. One horse was in the habit of catching the rein with his tail and hugging it tightly, rendering himself dangerous to life and limb. The veterinarian attending Mr. Russell's horses pronounced the tail bone of the other horse diseased and the operation was necessary. Nevertheless Mr. Russell failed to fight, merely paying the fine and costs and letting it all go at that.

Many farmers who have heretofore been content with grading up their farm stock for market are now buying foundation animals for pure bred herds, studs and flocks. In doing this look well to the pedigree and individual merit, buy the kind you want to sell, better start in on a small scale with the best.

Navajo Sheep Raising.

The Navajo Indians are unique in respect to their success in the sheep industry. They do not have the best breeds and do not take the best care of the wool, says the Farm and Field. But though not of high grade it fills a considerable place in the market. An exchange says "the tribe is wealthy through its flocks. The tribesmen are believed to own little short of 1,000,000 head, the care of the flocks and the weaving of wool being almost the sole occupation of the 22,000 Indians. Singular to relate, only a small part of the Navajo wool crop is worked up at home into the wonderful blankets that have made the tribal name famous. Only the coarser and cheaper blankets are now made of the native wool.

The Navajo woman of the family owns the flock. This is an unwritten law of the tribe, and it gives to the Indian woman a certain amount of respect and independence not known in other Indian tribes.

The Navajos learned to raise sheep from a policy adopted by General W. T. Sherman in 1868. They were prisoners at Fort Stanton, and in releasing them Gen. Sherman ordered issued a few sheep to each family. Their reservation proved to be a good region for sheep raising, with water and valleys to shield from the cold winds of winter. Probably Gen. Sherman could not have done a better thing for the tribe than to set them on the road to self support and to a lucrative industry than he did.

When dairy utensils are put out in the sun after they have been washed and scalded to be dried, put them right side up. Let the full rays of the sun reach those points that will come in contact with the milk and cream. They may gather a little dust in this way, but if they do this can be easily removed by a damp, clean cloth, which will be more sure to leave them clean than to trust to their having been upside down. We remember having once put our milk cans out on a rack with pegs where they were hung upside down in the sun for a sun scalding, and when we took them down to use we found a small frog had taken refuge in one, although the rack was some two feet from the ground. If we had not found him it might have been very hard to convince customers that a part of the contents can had not been taken from the brook. So we say, put them out right side up and wipe them with a clean cloth before using. Then if frogs or bugs get there they will be detected.

The Angora goat, and in some measure the different breeds of short-haired goats, do not pile much fat on their meat. They are not beefy, their bones are small, their joints small, flavor agreeable and tasty and the appearance of the meat attractive. It is well known that thousands of goats are annually shipped to market, bought and slaughtered by the big packers, but it comes out as mutton. It eminently suits many housewives for it just meets their demands. Whether it would do so well if she knew just exactly what she was being handed across the counter is another story.

I think farmers have got to go to raising mutton sheep. When we have to sell our wool for 16 cents per pound, there is no money without mutton, says an Ohio sheep raiser in National Stockman. Dorset sheep are the best, as they will breed twice a year and have twins each time after the first lamb and are a hardy sheep and grow large. The lambs will grow faster than any breed I ever saw. I have bred them since 1866. I had an ewe drop a pair of lambs which weighed 19 pounds January last. I weighed one ten weeks old which weighed 63¼ pounds. The ewes will breed any time you want them to and have your lambs to market and not have them in the pasture for the summer pests Mules of the commoner and smaller sorts are getting lower in price right along. The most astute dealers attribute this not to lack of demand so much as to prospective lack of demand, holders being unwilling to run the risk of having to carry over such mules to feed on the high priced hay and grain this winter coming. Ordinarily the feeders would be looking around for thin mules and good frames to put on feed, but the drouth has knocked that business on the head temporarily at least. It may be that corn will cost too much before another crop is harvested to warrant the feeding of low grade mules. At any rate the dealers and feeders apparently propose to wait awhile and see.

— o —

CONDITIONS.

Entries to close Saturday, September 7th, 1901, when horses are to be named, and to be eligible to the class in which they are entered.
 Stakes not filling satisfactorily to the management may be declared off.
 Stakes will be divided into four moneys: 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.
 5 per cent. of the amount of the Stake will be deducted from each money won.
 The management reserves the right to declare two starters a walk over. When only two start they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided 66% per cent. to the first and 33% per cent. to the second horse.
 A horse distancing the field shall be entitled to first and fourth moneys only, and in no other case will a horse be entitled to more than one money.
 The management reserves the right to change the hour and day of any race, except when it becomes necessary to ante-date a race, in which instance the nominators will receive three days notice by mail to address of entry.
 The right reserved to declare off or postpone any or all races on account of weather or other sufficient cause.

The management reserves the right to start any heat after the fourth score regardless of the position of the horses.
 Entries not declared out at 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race shall be required to start and declarations must be in writing and made at the office of the Secretary at the track.
 When there is more than one entry to any Stake by any one person or in one interest, the horse to be started must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race.
 Trotting and racing colors must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race and must be worn upon the track. Colors will be registered in the order in which they are received.
 Hopples harred in trotting races, but will be permitted in pacing races.
 Conditional entries will be treated same as regular entries and nominators held under the rules.
 Any race that may be started and unfinished on last day of the meeting may be declared ended and money divided according to the rank of horses in the summary.
 Otherwise than as herein specified in these conditions, National Trotting Association Rules, except Rule 4, to govern.

THE "OLD RELIABLE" PARKER

once more proves its
the Grand American
Handicap of 1900.

1st—H. D. Bates, with 59 straight kills.
2d—J. R. Malone, with 58 straight kills.
3d—Phil Daly Jr., with 31 straight kills.
All used the "Old Reliable."

Send for Catalogue.

Mention this paper.

Also, as the official records show, 54 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers; 37.5 per cent of all the guns winning money were Parkers; and 34.6 per cent of all guns entered were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world.

STATE FAIR ENTRIES.

Splendid List Received for the Races Which Begin Monday, September 2d.

All the purses and stakes offered this year by the State Agricultural Society for harness horses and runners have been filled with good large entry lists, with the exception of the three year old events for trotters and pacers, which were filled, but with small fields. The list of entries show that all the best horses in training on this coast will start at Sacramento during the two weeks at the Fair and high class racing may be expected.

The entries for the various trotting and pacing events, as well as the stakes, are as follows:

Reidy; China Maid, Vendome Stock Farm; Chief, C. F. Thayer; Richard B., Lady K., John Donohoe; Glide Away, San Diego Stables; Billy B., Ed Barber.

With the probable exception of a free for all pace, this finally closes the harness races.

Second Race for the Challenge Trophy.

Competition for the Boston Club Challenge Trophy will be held over the Cleveland track, Wednesday, September 4, 1901. By conditions of the deed of gift, this competition is open to all amateur driving clubs of recognized standing.

As many nominators as choose may start from one club, but not more than one horse owned by one individual in each class.

Horses to be eligible for the Challenge Trophy must have started in at least one matinee this season.

The Gentlemen's Driving Club of Cleveland also offers a cup open for competition for pacers of any class. Nominators must, however, be member of the League of Amateur Driving Clubs.

There will be four other classes for trotters open to members of the league, probably about as follows: 2:12, 2:16, 2:19 and 2:23.

As soon as possible three classes will be fixed to accommodate the greatest number. Entries for all classes to close August 22d.

In classing horses, their matinee records will be first considered, but two seconds will be allowed on each record; i. e., a horse with record of 2:14½ will be considered eligible to 2:17 class; or a horse with record of 2:20½ will be eligible to 2:23.

In case a horse has no matinee record, he will be classed by his turf record, an allowance of two seconds being made, same as in case of matinee records.

A Successful California Trainer.

The American Sportsman of Cleveland, Ohio, speaks in the following terms of a well known California trainer:

John Blue, of Pleasanton, Cal., and for several years assistant trainer to the deceased Thos. E. Keating, has arrived at the Cleveland track with a string of five head, mention of which is made in another column. Among the many fast ones which have hailed from California, and for whose early education Mr. Blue is responsible, are Coney 2:02, Anaconda 2:02½, Searchlight 2:03½, Bonnie Direct 2:05½ and Klatawah 2:05½. Coney was trained at the trot when a two year old, but as it was necessary for him to carry much weight Mr. Blue shifted him to the pace and he came to his speed fast. Anaconda was also trained as a trotter and as a three year old trotted a mile in 2:40, but as he was inclined to be very mixed gaited, shifting to a single-foot or pace, Mr. Blue decided to try him at the pacing gait, and the first time he drove him on a pace he stepped a quarter in 36 seconds. Before the close of that season he paced a mile in 2:16½, last half in 1:04, and has proven one of the fastest pacers on the turf. Mr. Blue is a man of a modest and retiring disposition, but he can talk very entertainingly and has a great fund of interesting information. Confianza 2:11, in his stable, is the champion two year old of the season, and he has also several other good ones in training that will undoubtedly be heard from before the season closes.

Ketcham on Cresceus.

George H. Ketcham, the owner of Cresceus 2:02½, was interviewed by a representative of the Chicago Record-Herald recently and the following is the substance of his conversation:

"Almost everyone who knows of or cares anything for God's greatest creation in the brute world knows Cresceus and his great accomplishments on the turf. They do not, however, know his early history, nor how near he came to early elimination from the brilliant records of the trotting turf. His breeding and early history is a chapter of accidents.

"I was led to buy Mahel, his dam, through seeing Nightingale (later record 2:10½) step a mile in 2:27 as a four year old, which I then considered a very wonderful performance. Shortly afterwards James Dority, owner of Mahel, died and his horses were sold at public auction in Toledo in October, 1891. I expected to pay about $1500 for her. My competing bidder was Dr. J. V. Newton, of Toledo, O., who with his partner, Mr. Rundell, of Genoa, O., were bidding jointly for the mare. Through some confusion on their part, one thinking that the other was doing the bidding, and neither seeing my nod, the mare was knocked down to me for $250, each believing the bid was for their account, but that bid was mine and I secured the mare at that figure. I sent her to the farm and she was bred to Baronstein, a son of Baron Wilkes. Shortly after that time I purchased Robert McGregor, and the following year Mahel was bred to him. Cresceus was the resulting foal.

"As a yearling Cresceus had a severe attack of epizootic, and he was histered. In some manner he rubbed off the blister over the half door of his stall and sawed his neck so that his windpipe was exposed. He presented such a horrible appearance that I ordered him destroyed, but as luck, or I should say fate, would have it, 'Tim' Murnen, my trainer, was too hussy or too careless, and it was put off until next morning, when he was so much better that the trainer decided to give him a chance for life. He soon developed into a strong, husky, but far from attractive-looking colt.

"We worked him the winter he was coming two years old, and I drove him quite a little on the snow, heating the best horses in Toledo, among them Charlie Friel 2:15½. He was started in two races as a two year old and in the fall showed me a very fast mile over the Erie, Mich., track. I again worked him all the following winter on the snow, but he did not seem to improve very much, lacking a hush of speed, but when I entered and started him in two races at Tiffin, I found in scoring for the first race that he seemed to learn the game very quickly and came to his speed rapidly. From that time on he learned to race and develop speed fast.

"Feeling confident, after this exhibition, that he had much speed, I then started to work him with the sole idea of so conditioning him as to carry his clip for the entire mile, and during that whole year—he was then a three year old—I worked him heats of a mile and a half, but never drove him faster than a 2:30 clip, with one exception, and that was when I was preparing him for his race at Columbus. I then worked him one mile in 2:20, but it took his life to go that well. However, I would work him until he was tired in miles from 2:40 to 2:30, letting him step from the seven-eighths pole around to the next half-mile pole. In this way he learned to come home and it muscled him up for long races. Shortly after this he was started in the 2:20 class at Columbus, O., and was second in a field of aged horses, Pat Watson winning the race in 2:12½, and I guess Cresceus would have won that race had I possessed a little more confidence in him.

"From there he went to Fort Wayne, Ind., and trotted the memorable eight-heat race against The Monk, Eagle Flanagan and ten others, winning the sixth, seventh and eighth heats and obtaining the record for his age—2:11½. From the way in which he lasted in this race he convinced me that I was right in my method of training, viz., giving him his work in mile and a half heats. After that he trotted successfully at Syracuse, Boston and New York, winning at all these places against the flower of the land, but we met defeat at Portland, Me., in the last race of the year, being beaten by American Belle in slow time. He won the first heat in 2:12, and while he did not go lame, he went sideways with me after that heat, and I contented myself with second money. The trouble was caused by a small curb that had been threatening him for some time. I shipped him from Portland to the farm and jogged him all winter.

"Just before I started active training in the spring I noticed that he was still troubled with this curb. I had him cross-fired very thoroughly, and without laying him up at all started in active training again at Columbus, but I do not think his four year old performances were any credit to him, and I attribute that fact to two reasons: First, he had had a very large stud season, and, secondly, it was very hot at Columbus, O., especially at night, and I could not keep flesh upon him, so when he started the season he was not in proper order.

"I raced him at Detroit, Cleveland, Columbus and Buffalo, and as I had no further engagements for him, I sent him to Boston, on the advice of 'Jack' Curry, in the hope that the weather there would tone him up. I was rewarded for my pains by winning the 2:10 class for stallions over the Readville track, defeating Bingen, Gayton and all the crack stallions of the year. That ended his four year old season, and he was again returned to the farm.

"I learned one thing while training him as a four year old, which was that I could not continue working him heats of a mile and a half each and get all the speed out of him in races that I wished. He would always save too much reserve speed to go the extra half-mile, and he would not come from the three-quarter pole home at a winning gait. So as a five year old I stopped working him further than a mile, and when I reached the wire would say 'Whoa' to him and stop him at once. After doing this several times he would trot the mile as fast as I wished.

"Since then I have continued that way of training, but I have probably given him less fast work than has ever been given any other horse of his class. He requires quite a little slow work to get him into condition, but very little fast work.

"Up to this year the fastest workout I ever gave Cresceus before he was started on the campaign was one mile in 2:16½, and that happened last year before he was sent to Pittsburg to go his race against Tommy Britton on July 4th. The fastest workout mile he had this year before he was shipped to Detroit was in 2:08, and but one mile that fast. He had not had another faster than 2:12, and but three for four miles as good as that. When he was racing I never gave him fast work-outs.

"As to showing my methods in this respect, I will refer to the workouts which I gave him as a preparation for his performance at Cleveland last week, prior to his mile in 2:02½. On that occasion I gave him four miles. The first in 2:58, the second in 2:42, the third in 2:38 and the fourth in 2:19½. This is a fair sample of the work he will receive between his races or prior to a fast performance. I believe this is entirely different from the work usually given a trotter in his class, and it accounts to me, in a great measure, for his wonderful soundness to-day, despite the hard campaigning through which he has gone."

To the question, "When will the two-minute horse arrive?" Mr. Ketcham replied: "Now you ask a particularly hard question, which I can only answer in a comparative way. Of course it is only natural, and I hardly think it will be laid against me as a matter of personal pride, when I say that Cresceus is the most likely horse to reach the much-coveted two-minute point. I can only draw conclusions from what I know of my own horse and his possibilities. The awful task of trotting a mile in 2:00 is hardly conceivable to the lay mind.

"A horse is going a mile in 2:02 has to go 43.28 feet in a second, and Cresceus' stride is 21 feet 6 inches, so practically he has to make two complete strides in a second to accomplish this feat. Now, what he has practically got to do to reduce his record from 2:02½ to 2:02 is to make one and one-half strides more in the mile, or, in other words, go about thirty feet farther or quicker to accomplish this result. This seems a very simple matter on the face of it, but to the 'man behind the horse' it looks like an almost impossible feat. I look, however, for him to reduce his record, but how much I do not dare to say.

"I found, in working him last year, that with his immense action behind he broke away a good deal, and this spring in shoeing him I tried the experiment of curving his hind shoes, and I find that that holds him and that he is better gaited in consequence, and I attribute some of his increased speed to that fact, although I believe what has more to do with it is that the McGregors are not a family of horses to come to their speed early. I think this curving his shoes and preventing his slipping gives him more confidence in himself and he shows less tendency to make a mistake.

"There are a great many things necessary besides speed in a horse to enable him to reach the two-minute mark. Were that not so I could mention several trotters that to-day would be bidding for the honor, as it is an easy thing for them to show quarters hotter than a two-minute clip, but Cresceus seems to possess determination, will power and muscular strength to an unusual degree, and nothing that he can do from uow on will surprise me. I have never seen a trotter muscled the way he is, especially in his hind legs. In all the fast miles he has trotted I have never seen that muscular movement of his flanks indicating that he was distressed at all in his legs.

"If one will stand behind him and measure the distance between the points of the hips and then measure the distance where the breeching goes he will find that he is about six inches wider at the breeching than at the hips, caused by the muscular development of the legs. He has already accomplished what no other horse has done, and with all things favorable I expect better things of him in the future."

Betting Privilege Awarded.

[Sacramento Record-Union, Aug. 11.]

The award of the pool privileges at Agricultural Park during the coming State Fair was the center of interest at yesterday's meeting of State Board of Agricultural Directors, and was productive of more lobbying than a revival of the coyote scalp hunt at a session of the Legislature. Caesar Young of Oakland carried off the prize with a bid of $17,505, but among the wise ones it was whispered afterward that Bart Cavanaugh of this city had dipped his "fine Italian hand" into the grab bag, and that in reality it was a victory for him over the other local competitors. Mr. Cavanaugh didn't mind it a bit to have his hand called Italian, just so it was the winning hand.

When the meeting was called to order by Director Grove L. Johnson, who occupied the chair in the absence of the President, Frank Daroux arose and said: "I want to know how many bids have been received by this board before any of them are opened."

Secretary Jackson—There are six bids before the board.

Daroux—Before the bids are opened I desire to state that I will guarantee this board the sum of $13,000, allow any one to cut in that wants to, and the board can retain the hooking privileges.

He resumed his seat and the bids were opened. The first bid was that of B. W. Cavanaugh, who offered a lump sum of $17,005 for the entire betting privileges during the twelve days of the fair. The next bid was that of Caesar Young, who offered a lump sum of $17,505 for the entire privileges. E. M. Kripp's offer for the same was $16,400. Frank Daroux's offer was $14,750, the society to retain the auction privileges. G. K. Rider offered $12,000 for the hooking privileges, and offered to allow any hookmaker to cut in that desired, who would pay his pro ratio. He also offered $225 for the combination hook privileges, and S. P. Whitehead & Co. offered $600 for the auction pools.

As soon as the results of the bids were announced, George Rider, who explained that he had a kick coming, addressed the board and said: "I think these bids should be awarded as they were last year, so that everybody who desires to take a chance could take it. This is fair to the society and fair to the public. This proposition of allowing a bunch of gamblers from outside points to come here and grab off everything and run things without any competition is a huncce scheme, and the betting public will get the worst of it by long odds. The betting privileges at the State Fair are not worth any such amount of money as Young has offered for it, and in consequence the people will have to suffer. They will get skinned to death. We run things last year to the satisfaction of everybody, and the odds were more than fair."

Young—My bid is the highest and the award should go to me. If I don't get this amount of money out of the privilege it is my business, and no one else's. It remains to be seen if the public will go up against the game as we will dish it up to them, and if they don't that is my lookout. I think the privilege is worth just what I offer for it. If others do not see it in the same light, I cannot help it. My bid is the highest, and I want it recognized.

Kripp—I have always believed that to the victor belongs the spoils. Young seems to have let us all out, and I suppose he should get the award of the privileges, but as far as I am personally concerned, I would like to see the award made so that we could all cut in if we wanted to. But I have no kick coming.

The board went into executive session to consider the bids, and shortly afterward they sent for Caesar Young and notified him that his bid had been accepted.

Tozier Brings a Big Price.

Kinzea Stone, of Georgetown, Ky., owner of The Admiral 2:07½, has bought the great two year old colt Tozier from Hiram Tozier, of Boston, at a price that is believed to be $5000, since only a week ago the owner refused $3000 for the youngster and said it would take $5000 to buy him. Tozier was bred by Mrs. C. R. Noyes, of Boston, and is by Baron Wilkes 2:18, out of Marinette, dam of Queen Regent 2:29½ by Director, second dam Pantalette, dam of Escobar 2:15½ and Epaulet 2:19. Tozier has shown such great speed that but for the presence of Todd at Readville he would be the sensational two year old of the East. The colt is in the New England and Kentucky Futurities and other stakes, and will now go into John T. Payne's stable.

ANOTHER STAKE, guaranteed to be worth $6000, has been opened by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. The one opened last year for the foals of mares bred in 1900 met with such generous patronage at the hands of the breeders of this coast that the Directors of the association decided to institute another for the foals of mares bred this year. It is on the same lines as the first stake and should attract a still larger list of entries as there have been twice as many mares bred in California this year as there were in 1900. The entries for the stake closed last fall numbered 305, and it is not unlikely that the one to close this fall will receive five hundred. If it does it will be worth more than the guaranteed amount of $6000, as one of the conditions of the stake is that all entrance money paid in over and above the amount of the stake plus advertising expenses will be added to the stake. There is nothing that helps the breeding business more than these rich stakes for colts and they should receive the support of every man engaged in the business. Stallion owners especially should make an effort to secure the naming of as many mares as possible of those mated with their horses as by so doing the names of the stallions are kept before the public, the training of foals is encouraged and the earning capacity of the produce greatly increased. The conditions of the $6000 stake for the foals of mares bred this year will be found in our business columns this week. Mares must be named October 1st. Let there be an effort to make the entry list reach a thousand names.

THE STATE FAIR, which opens at Sacramento September 2d and runs two weeks, with twelve days racing, is attracting more attention this year than ever. Secretary George Jackson has succeeded in securing a large number of attractions that will draw crowds to the capital during the fair, and is proving one of the most energetic and capable of Secretaries. As will be seen by reference to our advertising columns this week a number of additional purses are offered for the harness horses. For the trotters there are purses for the 2:24, 2:22, 2:18, 2:16 and 2:12 classes, and a consolation purse for 2:30 trotters that have not won on the circuit. For the pacers the 2:20, 2:15, 2:12 and free-for-all classes are provided with races and there is also a consolation purse. In addition to these purses are given for road horses and there will be a race for horses driven by drummers that will probably excite more enthusiasm than any race of the meeting. Entries for the harness races close August 24th.

THE SYMPATHY of every person acquainted with the family of Mr. John F. Boyd, the well known capitalist and proprietor of the Oakwood Park Stock Farm, has been aroused by the sad news of the death of his son, Seth Cook Boyd, aged 17 years, which occurred at the family home in San Rafael last Wednesday. Death was caused by asphyxiation and was accidental, the youth having arisen in the night and lighted a gas burner to warm some milk which his physician had prescribed for nourishment. Seth was subject to fainting spells and it is thought was overcome with one while attempting to extinguish the flame. He was a particularly bright and manly youth, a leader among his school and playmates, and for one of his years an excellent horseman. His untimely death is a grievous loss to his parents, to whom profound sympathy is extended by all who know them.

FORTY-FIVE HEAD OF HORSES all fine individuals, well bred and well mannered, will be sold at auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange next Thursday, August 22d. They are from the estate of Moses Hopkins and were sired by some of the leading standard bred stallions of California. A large lot of buggies, surries, traps, carriages and harness will be sold at the same time. The terms are cash and there is no reserve on anything. Read the advertisement. This is a great opportunity for those wanting road or carriage horses, or animals for livery or express purposes.

MR. L. E. CLAWSON of this city returned last week from the East, where he saw some great racing on the Grand Circuit and speaks of it with enthusiasm. His handsome mare Phoebe Childers was something of a disappointment in her races, but many good ones that cross the mountains are in the same category and fail to show their true form. Mr. Clawson sold this mare before returning home, getting a very good price for the daughter of Sir Roderick.

THE OCCIDENT AND STANFORD stakes to be decided at the State Fair this year will be worth large sums of money to the winner. There will be something over $2500 in the first named and the latter will be larger than ever before. Several of the three year olds are named in both and as the races are a week apart will doubtless start in both stakes. Final payment has been made on six of the original entries in the Occident, and eleven colts and fillies are paid up on in the Stanford.

Sale of Palo Alto Horses.

A large crowd was at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city on Thursday, of this week, when twenty-four horses from the Palo Alto Stock Farm were sold. Superintendent F. W. Covey was in the box with Mr. Layng, the auctioneer, and the two made a team that was prompt and business-like and the sale was a success. Many of the horses sold were purchased for Honolulu parties and will be shipped to the islands on the next steamer. Considering the fact that the strike now on in this city has lessened the demand for horses, the prices obtained were good. They were as follows:

Bavaria, ch g, 1898, by Boodle, $210; Mendoto, br g, 1899, by Mendocino, $100; Dextio, ch g, 1898, by Dexter Prince, $165; Azolet, b f, 1898, by Azmoor, $100; Dextello, br g, 1899, by Dexter Prince, $280; Azole, b g, 1899, by Azmoor, $75; Loristo, blk g, 1899, by Wildnut, $85; Mencinta, br f, 1899, by Mendocino, $210; Allemay, br f, 1899, by Altivo, $80; El Ramo, ch g, 1898, by Wildnut, $150; Alsica, b f, 1899, by Altivo, $80; Wildeana, ch f, 1899, by Wildnut, $75; Oak Grove, br g, 1899, by Dexter Prince, $210; Monreno, b g, 1897, by Mendocino, $170; Menta, hr f, 1899, by Wildnut, $80; Wilma, ch f, 1899, by Wildnut, $90; Norica, br f, 1899, by Wildnut, $200; Altina, br f, 1897, by Altivo, $115; A Novel, b f, 1899, by Altivo, $150; Wilowena, br f, 1899, by Wildnut, $120; Azina, b g, 1808, by Azmoor, $130; Wildlinn, br g, 1899, by Wildnut, $80; Princess Emma, b m, 1896, by Dexter Prince, $200; Ideal, b m, 1884, by Piedmont, $100. Total for twenty-four head, $3255. Average per head, $135.62½.

There is a possibility that the management of Palo Alto Farm will sell a number of extra fine broodmares at the State Fair this year. If so further particulars will be published next week.

By the purchase of 562 acres of land from Roger B. Early, James B. Haggin has nearly 5000 acres in his Elmendorf estate. The Early farm adjoins Elmendorf. Haggin now owns a clear frontage of four and one-half miles between the Maysville and Russell Cave pikes. The Early property, it is reported, cost $100 per acre.

Jockey Dale, who was one of the New Orleans stars last year, but was uniformly unsuccessful on the metropolitan tracks, has been suspended indefinitely for deliberately charging that Starter Dade left him at the post on Dan Paxton, a heavily played horse at St. Louis.

SANTA ROSA MEETING.

Some Good Racing at the Famous Track in That Town.

The first meeting given by the new organization known as the Santa Rosa Racing Association began last Monday. During the first two days of the week the attendance was not large, but it has been increasing every day and the prospects yesterday were good for very large crowds to-day and to-morrow. The fact that but one harness race was announced for each day, the rest of the program being made up of running events, kept many trainers from taking their strings of trotters and pacers to the meeting, and some difficulty was had in securing starters sufficient to make up some of the races. While the fields were small in nearly all the events, the contests were very good, and the presence in the stand of President P. H. Quinn and Secretary Thomas Bonner gave every one confidence that the racing would be on the square and they were not disappointed.

Prior to the first race on the opening day the Santa Rosa Stock Farm started two trotters for standard records. The first was Fram, a bay stallion by Direct 2:05½, dam Silvereye by Abbotsford. Ed Lafferty drove him and the mile was made handily in 2:23½. George Ramage, the Santa Rosa Stock Farm's trainer, and the busiest man in Santa Rosa this week, then brought out On Stanley, a five year old by Direct out of Lily Stanley 2:17½, and gave him a record at the trot of 2:21½, a fast mile considering the work the horse has had.

The first race of the day was the 2:16 trot for a purse of $450. There were five starters. Mr. S. A. Hooper's Electioneer stallion Alta Vela had no trouble in winning three heats in succession, reducing his record to 2:16 in the last. In the first heat, J. Albertson with Dan W. and Jos. Cuicello with Puerto Rico collided when rounding the first turn and both were thrown from their sulkies, but no serious damage was done. They were permitted to start again and in the last heat Dan W. made quite a bid for the heat, but broke in the stretch. Alta Vela could have trotted the track in 2:12 had it been necessary that day.

The three running races furnished good sport, and good time was made in every event. The track was in superb condition for the runners, but was considered a little slow for the harness horses. The day's summaries are as follows:

Trotting, 2:16 class, purse $450.
Alta Vela, b s by Electioneer.....	(Hooper)	1	1
Floradora, ch m by Sable Steinyway.....	(Lafferty)	2	4
Puerta Rico, br g by Sable Wilkes.....	(Cuicello)	4	2
Dan W., rn g by Hero.....	(Albertson)	5	2
Lynell, b g by Lynmont.....	(Kingsbury)	3	3
Time—2:17½, 2:16½, 2:15.

Running, purse $150, five furlongs, seven entries—Skirmish (War Sign-Lady Lyons), (Hobart) 117, won; Lou Clereeden (Alviso) 117, second; Pidalia (Sloucum) 117, third. Time, 1:02¾.

Running, purse $150, six furlongs, five entries—Mike Rice (Felton McAllister), (Tullett), 119, won; Catherine Bravo (Logue) 110, second; Pongo (McMichaels) 119, third. Time, 1:14.

Running, purse, $100, one mile, five entries—Lumber Jim (Snuff-box-Mildred), (Hobart) 119, won; Coming Event (C. Ross) 117, second; Twinkler (McNichols) 121, third. Time, 1:42.

SECOND DAY.

No prettier day was ever seen in Sonoma county, famous for its climate, than Tuesday the second day of the meeting, and the attendance was ahead of the first day. There were nearly fifty buggies, traps and surries lined up along the track in the infield, while the grandstand was well filled. As on the first day, however, there was a dearth of bettors and the book-makers were not busy at any time.

The Santa Rosa Stock Farm took the occasion to earn a couple more records, and Trainer Ramage put two of their horses in the list, the first the trotting mare Lady Russell, by L. W. Russell, who made her mile in 2:26½ very easily. Ramage drove Inferno, a good looking chestnut stallion by Diablo a mile in 2:24½ at the pace. This fellow is out of Biscari by Director and Mr. Ramage is confident that he will pace in 2:10 if gelded, but he is a hard one to manage at present, although his mile was made without a skip or a break.

The day's racing program opened with the 2:25 class pace which was a gift for C. Whitehead's aptly named chestnut gelding Toppo by Delphi. There were but four starters in this race the others being B. S. Dillon by Sidney Dillon, Julia Skake by Delgamo, and Winnie Wilkes by Ray Wilkes. Toppo won in straight heats, the first in 2:15½. Mr. Whitehead thinks that 2:12 would not have beaten Toppo in this race as he was at his best and the track just suited him. B. S. Dillon, under the guidance of Ramage made an excellent showing in the race and was timed separately in 2:16½ the first beat. He was a good second in all three. B. S. Dillon had had but two months work this year. He will certainly pace in 2:12 or better before long.

The second race, a five furlong dash for runners, went to S. F. Capp's Gypsy Boy, a two year old, although Pegalong was the favorite and well played. There was claim of a foul on the part of Claude Burlingame, who rode Gypsy Boy, but it was not allowed by the judges. Pegalong stumbled and nearly fell as the horses passed the half mile pole, and the rider of Pegalong claimed that Burlingame had pulled across in front of him. The judges held that Gypsy Boy was too far in advance to interfere with Pegalong in any way.

The six furlong race was won by David S. in 1:14, Mike Rice, the favorite, being beaten two lengths. Swiftwater by imp. Candelmas took the last race, a five furlong dash in 1:01½. The day's summaries follow

Pacing, 2:25 class, purse $500.

Toppy, cb g by Delphi by Dexter Prince..... (Whitehead)	1	1	1
B. S. Dillon, cb g by Sidney Dillon..... (Ramage)	2	2	2
Julia Shake, blk m by Delgemo..... (Hogboom)	3	3	3
Winnie Wilkes, blk m by Ray Wilkes..... (Doran)	4	4	4

Time—2:15½, 2:16¼, 2:18¾.

Running, five furlongs—Gypsy Boy (True Briton—Gypsy Girl), 98, won; Pegalong, 107, second; Peut Etire, 107, third. Time, 1:03.

Running, six furlongs—David S. (Mithothian—Talude), 112, won; Mike Rice, 113, second; Pilot, 119, third. Time, 1:14.

Running, five furlongs—Swiftwater (imp. Candelmas—Reppletta), 107, won; Gold Baron, 109, second; Mountain Dew, 107, third. Time, 1:01½.

THIRD DAY.

The regular harness event for the third day of the meeting failed to fill and a special pace was substituted, the purse being but $150, and as is generally the case in such races there was trouble. The judges did not think Joe Smith exerted himself enough in the first heat and placed his horse Gaff Topsail in the hands of Geo. Ramage for the rest of the race, which Gaff Topsail won rather easily.

The second race, a five-eighths dash for the runners, proved an interesting event. There were four entries, and of these B. F. Hobart's chestnut mare Skirmish and E. Carey's bay gelding David S. both had winnings to their credit, the former having finished first in a similar event on Monday and the latter having taken the three-quarter dash on Tuesday. Earl's big bay mare Coming Event had also demonstrated her ability earlier in the week by finishing a close second to Hobart's Limer Jim while going a mile. The bookies posted David S. at even money, Skirmish at 5 to 3, Coming Event at 3 to 2, and John Burrough's Diamond as the short-ender. Considerable trouble was experienced in starting, but when the horses got off it was with David S. in the lead, a position which he maintained all the way, finishing in 1:13½.

As pretty a finish as was ever seen on a track marked the third race of the day, a five-furlong dash. Five runners appeared in answer to the bell. The start was a good one and the performers came around in a bunch. Down the stretch Stephenson's Blue Bell, with Hobart up, had slightly the best of it, but at the last moment J. L. Rector's chestnut mare, Lou Cleveden, came alongside and if the wire had been a few feet further away, would have won the race. As it was, Blue Bell got it by a nose.

The fourth and last race of the day was also a five-eighths' dash with five entries. The bookies quoted H. L. Haskell's chestnut gelding Bagdad at even money and asked odds of 3 to 5 on T. E. Latta's Pongo, a six year old carrying 109 pounds. J. A. Dunn's Jack McCabe sold as the outsider, with others in between. The race went to L. Tryon's bay mare Galene, with H. E. Whitman's Five Shot a good second. Time, 1:14½. Galene, the winner, sold as an outsider, with a few takers, and the bookies cleaned up good money on the race.

Special pace, purse $150, mile heats, best three in five. Gaff Topsail, cb s by Diablo..... Smith and Ramage 2 1 1 1
Mattie B., br m by Alex Button..... (Cuicello) 1 2 2 2
El Rayo and Lafayette distanced in first heat.

Time—2:18¾, 2:19, 2:20, 2:20.

Six furlongs—David S. (Mithothian—Talude), Logue, 105, won; Coming Event, Ross, 119, second; Skirmish, Hobart, 117, third. Time, 1:13¾. Diamond also ran.

Five furlongs—Blue Bell (Prince of Norfolk—Gem of the Mount), Hobart, 110, won; Lou Cleveden, Alvino, 110, second; Catherine Bravo, Logue, 103, third. Time, 1:01½. Fidelia and Doctor Hart also ran.

Five furlongs—Galene (imp. Brutus—Pleio), C. Ross, 109, won; Five Shot, Logue, 109, second; Pongo, Tullett, 109, third. Time, 1:14½. Bagdad and Jack McCabe also ran.

Woodland's Program of Harness Races.

Monday—2:12 class pacing; 2:20 class pacing.

Tuesday—2:20 class trotting; match race between Davisville horses.

Wednesday—2:12 class trotting; road race for members of Sacramento Driving Club.

Thursday—2:15 class pacing; 2:15 class trotting.

Friday—2:30 class trotting; free for all pacing.

Saturday—2:30 class pacing; district road race for Sacramento and Yolo horses.

There will be two running events each day.

A Lexington dispatch states that Ex-Secretary of the Navy W. C. Whitney, the owner of Hamburg and imp. Meddler, and an extensive owner of brood mares, wishes to buy a blue grass farm and establish a breeding plant. This is based on the visit of his private secretary, Thomas J. Regan, and his getting options on several farms in Fayette County, including the noted Kingston stud. Regan left for New York without having divulged his purpose, merely stating that he had come down to look at the Whitney horses quartered at La Belle stud. The real object of his visit leaked out, it is claimed, several days later.

BRIGHTON BEACH MEETING.

Cresceus Defeats The Abbot, and Toggles Wins a Good Race.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Five thousand spectators saw the opening to-day at Brighton Beach. The big stake of the day was the $10,000 champion free for all trot and Lord Derby, in his first start of the season, was made favorite at 100 to 90 for Charley Herr and 10 for Georgiana and The Monk.

The two outsiders made the pace in the first heat to the three-quarters pole, where Lord Derby came up and challenged The Monk, who just managed to win in a hot finish by a head, but the favorite won the next three heats, with The Monk second.

The special between Joe Patchen and Anaconda as a race proved a failure, as the former was not up to his form, and the Californian won the first heat by six lengths in slow time. It was a different story in the second heat, so far as speed was concerned, it being made in 2:03½. Anaconda sold at 100 to 60. Summary: 2:12 pace, purse $2000—Captain Sphinx won the third, fourth and fifth heats in 2:12, 2:13½, 2:21½. Harold H. won the first heat in 2:10. Dark Wilkes won the second heat in 2:09. Emma M., Prince A., Dan L., Daphne, Dallas, Reuben S., Devereaux, Cuba and Clocho also started.

Champion stakes, $10,000, free for all trotters—Lord Derby won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:09½, 2:10 and 2:16. The Monk won the first heat in 2:09. Charlie Herr and Georgiana also started.

Special purse, $1200, two in three—Anaconda beat Joe Patchen in two straight heats. Time—2:07, 2:03½.

2:14 class, trotting, purse $1500—James Shevlin won the third, fourth and fifth heats. Best time 2:13½. Nigger Jack won the first and second heats. Best time 2:15½. Dot Miller, Coxey, Listerine, Algoneta and Bird Eye also started.

2:20 class, pacing, purse $2000 (unfinished)—Captain Brino won the first and second heats. Best time 2:07½. Dick Lee won the third heat in 2:10½. Star Pugh, Darnette, Snitz, Helen D. and P. H. Flynn also started.

August 14—The principal events of the New York Trotting Association meet at Brighton Beach to-day was the $5000 Bonner Memorial Stake, which brought out a large field and was the medium of very heavy speculation. Dolly Bidwell led in the first heat nearly all the way around, but Onward Silver caught her at the wire and beat her by a neck. In the second heat Dolly Dillon won by a neck from Cornelia Belle. The third heat was between this pair and Cornelia Belle won by two lengths. As three heats had now been trotted the rest of the field was sent to the barn and Onward Silver won the next two heats with very little to spare.

Pacing, 2:20 class, purse $2000—Captain Brino won the first, second and fifth heats in 2:07½, 2:10, 2:10. Dick Lee won the third and fourth heats in 2:10½, 2:11. Star Pugh, Dark Night, Schnitz, Helen and P. H. Flynn also started.

Pacing, 2:24 class, purse $1500—Shadow Chimes won three straight heats in 2:10½, 2:13½, 2:16½. Terrace Queen, Xava, Cubanola, Thornway, St. Patrick and Reckless also started.

Trotting, 2:12 class, the Bonner Memorial, purse $5000—Onward Silver won first, fourth and fifth heats in 2:10½, 2:10½, 2:11½. Cornelia Belle won the third heat in 2:10. Dolly Dillon won the second heat in 2:09½. Dolly Bidwell, Confessor, Frank Creamery, Dr. Book, Elsie S., May Allen, Lady Geraldine, Metallas and Caprum also started.

Pacing, 2:06 class, purse $1500—Hetty G. won three straight heats in 2:06½, 2:07, 2:06½. Riley B., Bonnie Direct and Eyelet also started.

Trotting, 2:24 class, purse $1500—Captain Bracken won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:13½, 2:13½, 2:16½. Easter won the first heat in 2:13½. Henrietta, Alhorda D., El Milargo, Nutbearer, Leola and Lady Travis also started.

August 15.—There were at the least calculation fifteen thousand persons present to-day to see Cresceus and The Abbot race for a purse of $12,000, of which $7000 went to the winner and $5000 to the loser. Seats in the grand stand sold for $4 each, and four thousand were disposed of and a thousand more crowded into the aisles. The match race was started at 3:30. Pools sold for $100 on Cresceus to $30 on The Abbot. Cresceus drew the pole and the two champions were sent away to a perfect start. Ketcham took his horse to the front at once, leading a length at the quarter in 30½ seconds. At the half in 1:01½, The Abbot was not more than half a length behind and at the ¾ pole he had his head lapped on Ketcham's sulky in 1:32½. A great race ensued in the stretch and the mile was made in 2:03½, a new race record, with Cresceus the winner by a half length. In the second heat The Abbot broke after 100 yards had been trotted and Cresceus finished the mile easily in 2:06½, with The Abbot behind the flag. Ketcham was sent the third heat accompanied by runners and made it in 2:05. This was The Abbot's first race of the year and his showing was a good one, but the general opinion is that when both horses are in condition he has no chance with Cresceus.

The California horse, Toggles by Strathway, owned by Mr. Graham Babcock of Coronado, and driven by C. E. Clark, won the 2:10 trot handily, beating King Chimes and a good field of fast ones. He trotted a game race of four heats and had all his opponents pumped out. Summary of races:

2:20 trot, purse $2000—Neva Simmons won the first, second and fifth heats in 2:13½, 2:11½, 2:11½. All Right won the third and fourth heats in 2:11½, 2:11½. Helen Grace, George Smith, Quoddy Girl, General Shafter, Lenora and Room Mato also started.

2:10 class pace, purse $2000—Sphinx S. won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:08½, 2:09½, 2:09½. Corinne won the first heat in 2:07½. Little Squaw, Dan L., Sphia, Ituna and Tom Calhoun also started.

Grand special race, trotting, purse $12,000.

Cresceus, cb s by Robert McGregor—Mabel by Mambrino Howard..... (Ketcham) 1 1
The Abbot, bg by Chimes—Nellie King by Mambrino King..... (Geers) 2 4
Time—0:30½, 1:01¼, 1:32¼, 2:03¼, 2:34¼, 3:01¼, 3:32¼, 4:03¼, 4:35, 5:00¼.

2:10 class trot, purse $1500—Toggles won the second, third and fourth heats in 2:09½, 2:10, 2:14½. King Chimes won the first heat in 2:11½. Temple Wilkes, Sister Alice, Little Dick, Janice, Wistful and Tom P. also started.

Special heat with running mates—Cresceus, 0:30½, 1:01½, 1:34, 2:05.

Glens Falls Grand Circuit Meeting.

GLENS FALLS (N. Y.), August 12—The Grand Circuit trotting meeting opened here to-day under favorable conditions.

Pacing, 2:19 class, the American, purse $1500—Amoret won the first, sixth and seventh heats. Best time, 2:12½. Balmy L. won the fourth and fifth heats. Best time, 2:12½. Jack Harting won the third heat in 2:11½. Diavola won the second heat in 2:11½. Don Riley and Toneto also started.

Pacing, 2:24 class, the Suburban, purse $1500—New Richmond won three straight heats. Best time, 2:11½. Johnny H., Tommy Mc., John R. Potts, Rajah, Miss Irma, Louiso G., Stark and Tiger also started.

August 13—At to-day's grand circuit meeting the second heat of the 2:09 pace gave an exciting finish between Raymond M. and Stacker Taylor. The former, driven by Cassidy, the one-armed and one-legged driver from Colorado, won the heat in a driving finish by a close margin. Summary:

2:09 class pace, The Brooklyn, purse $1000—Raymond M. won second, third and fourth heats. Pat McEwen won the fourth and fifth heats. Stacker Taylor won the first heat. Red Seal, Oscar L. and Dan M. also started. Best time, 2:08½.

2:24 class trot, purse $1500—Country Jay won three straight heats in 2:16½, 2:13½, 2:14. Kosy, Away, Deleco, and The King also started.

2:14 trot, purse $1500—Whitewood won three straight heats in 2:12½, 2:12½, 2:11½. Gracie Onward, Palm Leaf and Axtello also started.

August 14—Pacing, 2:06 class, the Marion, purse $1000—Mazette won in straight heats in 2:06½, 2:07½, 2:06½. Maxine, Daniel, The Maid and Edith W. also started.

Trotting, 2:28 class, the Glen, purse $1500—Eleata won three straight heats in 2:13, 2:13½, 2:12½. Country Jay, Porto Rico and Lady Patchen also started.

Trotting, 2:18 class, purse $1500—Charley Mc won three straight heats in 2:13½, 2:14½, 2:11½.

August 15th—At the Grand Circuit meeting to-day the 2:18 pace, the Hudson River stake, for a purse of $1500, was won by Audubon Boy in straight heats in 2:09, 2:10½, 2:11½. Cousin Madge, Lady Bayard and Ed Bennett also started.

Free for all pace, purse $1000—Royal R. Sheldon won two straight heats in 2:04½, 2:06½. Connor and Indiana also started.

"A Subscriber" in San Jose objects to the statement that Diablo 2:09½ is an unbeaten horse, and points to the fact that Hazel H. 2:12½ beat him at Bay District track in 1892. This was at the Breeders' meeting in August. Diablo was a three year old. In the first heat Diablo and Chris Smith collided, both being more or less bruised. Hazel H. paced around them and was at the wire in 2:22, all the other starters, four in number, being behind the flag. The judges permitted all to start again owing to the accident, and in nearly every heat Diablo was frightened and broke at the place where the accident occurred in the first heat. He won the third heat, however, in 2:17, the fastest heat of the race. The file of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN contains the following in regard to the last heat of the race: "In the last heat, if Diablo had not got frightened and broke, he would have made short work of his opponents." After the break he was seven lengths behind Hazel H., but came the last quarter in 32½ seconds and was only beaten a length. The race in question had slipped our memory, and while Diablo was beaten in it he was not disgraced by any means, but his performance caused him then and there to be hailed as a coming champion, and he fulfilled the prediction.

SULKY NOTES.

Santa Rosa meeting closes to-day.

One week's intermission and then Woodland.

The slowest mile at the Cleveland Grand Circuit meeting was 2:18½.

Los Angeles has the largest list of entries of any meeting in California this year.

Albert W. got a new 2:15 performer when Russell T. won in 2:14½ at Albany recently.

Charlie Mac 2:11½ at Glens Falls this week. He will be a 2:10 or for McKinney before long.

The Roman worked a mile in 2:13½ at Cleveland last week. The last quarter was in 31 seconds.

Ben Hal, the horse that was second to Eleata at her first start this year, has been sold for $3000.

Peter the Great will not stand the preparation, and Henry Titer will soon send him back to Ponkapog.

Anaconda beat old Joe Patchen in the Brighton Beach race in straight heats, the time being 2:07, 2:03½.

Listerine and Algonetta were starters in the 2:14 class at Brighton Beach, and were outside the money.

The 2:30 pace at Woodland should be a warm contest. Advertiser and Toppy will probably be fighting for first money.

Sandy Smith has charge of Venus II. 2:11½ and Zarina 2:13½ and will race them during the remainder of the season.

John Blue has reached Cleveland with the string of trotters and pacers that he is training for Mr. Ed. Gaylord of Denver.

Great efforts are being made to attract large crowds to the State Fair this year, and a record breaking attendance is looked for.

Frank Derby, brown gelding by Charles Derby, now has a record of 2:18½, made in a winning race at Bay City, Michigan, August 9th.

Geo. H. Ketcham has entered Cresceus 2:02½ in the $2500 purse, for free for all trotters, at Readville, Mass., the latter part of this month.

"Youth will be served." Anaconda beat grand old Joe Patchen at Brighton Beach last Wednesday in straight heats. Time 2:07, 2:03½.

The Woodland Fair will open a week from next Monday. Racing will begin Tuesday. It will be the best fair Woodland has yet given.

Alta Vela is another 2:15 performer for Electioneer. He knocked a quarter of a second from his former record at Santa Rosa last Monday.

A big list of entries was received to the harness purses at the California State Fair. It looks as though the meeting will be a great success.

Cresceus trotted his mile in 2:02½ at the Glenville track, sixteen years, lacking four days, after Maud S. made her record of 2:08½ on the same track.

A number of additional purses for harness horses are advertised by the California State Agricultural Society to-day. The purses are all $500 each.

Vic Schellar, the handsome horse by Hambletonian Wilkes that B. O. Van Bokkelen took East, has earned a record of 2:16 and was a close second in 2:12½ in a race.

Dolly Dillon is the first 2:10 performer for Sidney Dillon. She won the second heat of the Bonner Memorial 2:12 class trot at Brighton Beach Wednesday in 2:09½.

James Golden paid $300 for a half-sister to Eleata at the Cleveland sale in May. The young miss is two years old and is by Mendocino 2:19½, the sire of Idolita 2:12.

Symboleer 2:09½ has made a profitable stud season at Arkansas City, Kan., having served over a hundred mares at $25 each. He cost his present owners $1500 last March.

Handspring 2:26½ by Prodigal, made his first start last month since his sale for $4300 as a two year old. He finished third in 2:20½ and was distanced in the next heat.

A New York dealer recently attended a trotting and pacing meeting in the Middle West and purchased four trotters in training with a view of making horse show animals of them.

Eleata continues to win with ease. She beat Country Jay, Porto Rico and Lady Patchen at Glens Falls Wednesday and did not have to trot faster than 2:12½, which was a jog for her.

Dr. Book and the $16,000 stallion Metallas failed to get inside the money in the 2:12 trot at New York Wednesday, in which race Dolly Dillon won a heat in 2:09½, and took third money.

Chas. Tanner worked John A. McKerron a mile in 2:12, a half in 1:04 and a quarter in 31½ seconds at Cleveland two weeks ago. The son of Nutwood Wilkes has more speed than ever it is reported.

The fastest five-heat race of the year was won by Adith W. at Columbus meeting. Bonnie Direct won the first heat in 2:05½, Hetty G., the second in 2:05½ and Edith W. the next three in 2:05½, 2:07½, 2:07½.

The fastest six-heat race of the season was won by Stackter Taylor at the Columbus meeting. The time for the six heats was 2:08½, 2:06½, 2:06½, 2:07½, 2:08½ and 2:09½, Stackter Taylor winning the first, fifth and sixth heats.

The Horse Review says: "Dolly Dillon 2:11½ is apt to win a sensational heat most any time. After breaking and falling back so far as to be practically a distance out in the third heat at Cleveland, she finished a close third in 2:10½."

S. F. Shelly, of Defiance, O., has a three year old that he thinks a lot of these days. The youngster is Crescell by Cresceus, dam Morea 2:24½ by Electioneer. Mr. Shelly is driving the youngster some, and says he shows considerable speed.

Gen. I. R. Sherwood, editor of the American Sportsman, has bought the four year old trotting mare Ida Derby, sister to Owyhee 2:11, a 16 hands, black mare, by Charles Derby, sire of Much Better 2:07½, Derby Princess 2:08½, Diablo 2:09½, Owyhee 2:11, Little Better 2:11½, etc., dam Ida Wood by Simmons.

Hambletonian Wilkes has another representative in the 2:15 list, Sunbeam 2:14½, winner of the 2:14 class trot at Peoria July 31st. There were ten starters in the race, the California mare Listerine among them. Sunbeam won the second, third and fifth heats in 2:15½, 2:14½ and 2:15.

Toppy 2:15½, at Santa Rosa this week, is the first performer for Delphi 2:11½, and the first and only one of that stallions get to be trained and raced. Toppy is inbred to Dexter Prince. The dam of Toppy and the dam of his sire are both by the son of Kentucky Prince and Lady Dexter—full sister to Dexter 2:17½ and Dictator.

McKinney's season ended this year on August 1st and it is the best ever made by this great horse. He has earned $10,000 for his owner, C. A. Durfee and was mated with the best lot of high class mares ever sent to a trotting bred stallion on the Pacific Coast. The foals resulting should and will add much to his fame when they are old enough to race.

The free for all pace at Woodland has the following record horses entered: Kelly Briggs 2:10½, Myrtha Whips 2:10½, Edna R. 2:11½, Floracita 2:11½ and Delphi 2:11½. The last named wrenched an ankle a few weeks ago and may not be able to race very soon, which is unfortunate, as he was pointed for 2:07 or better this year. If the other four go to the post in good shape 2:10 should be beaten in the race more than once, however.

Klatawah 2:05½ started for the first time since he was a three year old at Albany, August 1st, in the free for all pace. He went up against the cracks. Connor 2:03½, Indiana 2:06½ and Anaconda 2:02½. Klatawah was second—the first heat, which was in 2:07½. Connor won the race, Indiana second and Anaconda third. The fastest heat was the second in 2:06½. Klatawah was drawn after the third heat. Anaconda did not win a heat and took third money.

Country Jay 2:14½ is not very handsome, nor does he make much of an impression on the casual observer, but he is a trotter and a race horse. He is exceptionally well bred, being by Jay Hawker 2:14½, dam Paronella by Parkville, son of Electioneer; second dam Minnie Merrill by Young Jim; third dam Minnie West, sister of Jewett 2:14 pacing, 2:20 trotting, by Allie West 2:25; fourth dam Heel-and-Toe Fanny, dam of two and a grandam of four others by John Innis.

Mr. Thomas Clancey, of Seattle, who owns the pacers Direct C. and Freddie C. by Direct, slipped from the step of the train at Davis Junction, when on the way to the Breeders meeting at Sacramento and broke his thigh. It is a very serious injury for a person of Mr. Clancey's years and he will not be able to leave his bed for some time. At present he is at St. Luke's hospital in this city. His horses were shipped north this week in charge of S. K. Trefry, who is training them.

Canada has furnished two pacing stars of the Grand Circuit this season. Harold H. 2:08 by Roadmaster and Capt. Brino 2:07½ by Wildbrino are the crack performers referred to. The latter took his record at Columbus the past week. He is a black stallion, 5 years old, and was bred by Mr. A. Sinclair, of Cbatham. His first dam was Columbine, by Red Chief; second dam (dam of Zambia 2:11½) by American Boy. Capt. Brino is a royally bred fellow, and is worth a whole lot of money for breeding purposes.

Ed Eviston is the name of a three year old pacer by Seymour Wilkes 2:08½ that is owned by Mr. E. Eviston of this city and is now in the hands of the well known trainer, Jos. Cuicello. There is no three year old pacer in the State that is more promising one than this fellow and those who saw him working at Santa Rosa were much impressed with his way of going and his great speed. He came through the stretch Tuesday in 32½ seconds seemingly without effort, the mile being in 2:22. He will very likely pace a mile in 2:15 if asked before the year is ended. He is out of a mare by Nephew bred at Palo Alto.

Lily Stanley 2:17½ by Whippleton, the mare that William McGraw campaigned for Coombs Bros., of Napa, on the California circuit in 1888, is now the dam of three standard performers, with several of her produce yet to hear from, as they are too young to be raced. Her first representative was the pacer Rokeby 2:13½ by Director, the next Rect 2:16½ by Direct, and on Monday last at Santa Rosa the trotter On Stanley by Direct added the third to the old mare's list by trotting a mile in 2:21½. Lily Stanley's dam, Dolly McMahon, was of unknown breeding and although Congressman Coombs made every effort to trace her pedigree, it could never be ascertained. She was brought to California from New York and was said to be by Mambrino Patchen.

Sons of George Wilkes are rapidly dying, Wilkes Boy and Adrian Wilkes being followed closely by Mr. C. F. Emery's Brown Wilkes, who was put to death at Canton, O., last week because of infirmity. He was foaled in 1876, and died the sire of 33 trotters and 14 pacers, two being added this year. He never got extreme speed, but was a thoroughly useful sire, and his blood bred on fairly well.

A match race has been arranged as a special feature of the great Allentown Fair, Sept. 23rd to 28th, between the pacers Prince Alert, 2:02, and Little Boy, 2:06½, for $3000. This should be one of the most interesting races of the year. Little Boy's record is not so fast as that of Prince Alert, but he is a great pacer for his inches, and will put up a clip that will make his competitor go to his limit.

The "syndicate book" is the rule at all the California meetings this year. It started with the Breeders' meeting and has gone clear down the line. $1250 was the price paid by Caesar Young for the privilege at the Breeders' meeting; he gave $1200 for the privilege at Santa Rosa and $17,505 for the two weeks at the State Fair. While Woodland let the privilege for $1650 to B. W. Cavanaugh, it is understood that Caesar Young is interested with him. He can say, in the language of another Caesar, "Veni, vidi, vici."

Don Derby, full brother to Diablo 2:09½, took a record of 2:13½ at Albany, New York, July 31st. This is the colt that Tom Keating purchased in January, 1900, for James Butter of New York. Don Derby is a chestnut pacer and was entered in the 2:24 class at Albany. He won the first heat in the time stated and in the remainder of the race was 11, 5, 2, 2, in the summary, and got third money. There were nineteen starters in the race, nearly all aged horses, and Don Derby's showing was an excellent one for a green four year old.

The mile in 2:06½ trotted by Cresceus at Poughkeepsie, August 8th, was an excellent performance in spite of the fact that it was four seconds slower than the stallion's record. The track was in bad shape, being so wet next to the pole that Ketcham had to take his horse out about ten feet from the rail all the way round. It was considered by horsemen to be at least four seconds slow. The weather was very sultry and oppressive, lacking those qualities of dryness and heat essential to very fast trotting. Considering the circumstances the mile was as good as 2:03 over a good track.

"In looking over a horse whose soreneck had been dressed at the hospital of the Philadelphia Veterinary Medical and Humane Society last week, the surgeons discovered a small lump just back of the shoulder on the off-side, which felt like a good-sized button. Many conjectures were made by those present, when the owner of the horse requested that the lump be opened. This was done by the surgeon, and, to the surprise of all, he drew out a small pouch or sack, and on opening it found a genuine 10-cent piece of the coinage of 1891." It is a common practice in California for sweeney to make an incision through the hide at the shoulder, part the hide from the flesh as far down as the finger will reach and drop a small silver coin in the opening.

Many of the horses racing at Santa Rosa this week, both harness horses and runners have been treated with Vita Oil with such good results that the horsemen are all sounding the praises of this great remedy. Mr. E. Cotton Smith, the proprietor of the medicine, visits all the meetings on the circuit every year and is a most effective advertiser. He has made every man, woman and child in Santa Rosa familiar with the name of Vita Oil this week and had hundreds of sample packages of it distributed. The fact that when once used according to directions a cure is always effected, leads to sales wherever the medicine is tried. For lameness or muscular soreness in man or beast Vita Oil has no equal. Ask any horseman or athlete about it.

Secretary J. A. Steiner, of the American Trotting Association, in response to several requests with regard to the amateur record question, has formulated a rule which, if passed by the congresses of the National and American Associations, should meet the views of amateurs. Rule 116 would be altered to read as follows: "Any contest between horses for purse, premium, stake or wager, or involving admission fees, on any course, and in the presence of the judges and timers, shall constitute a public race; but any organized driving club, a member of the American Trotting Association, or of the National Trotting Association, which complies strictly with all the rules of said associations, may offer and award trophies which shall not be construed as a purse or a premium, and any horse winning a heat or making a dead heat in a contest for a trophy shall not obtain either a record or a bar."

The American trotter is at its prime when the horses of other countries are, generally speaking, closing their careers. Top Gallant at twenty-four years trotted a race of three mile heats at a pace somewhat in excess of twenty miles an hour. Flora Temple was past fifteen when she made her then unparalleled record of 2:18½. Sorrel Fanny challenged the world for a race at twenty-two. Goldsmith Maid made her best time long after she had entered the teens. Blanche literally died in harness at twenty-five. Conqueror trotted a hundred miles in eight hours, fifty-five minutes and fifty-three seconds at thirteen years of age. Ariel trotted fifty miles in three hours, fifty-five minutes and forty and a half seconds at ten years of age. John Stewart at fifteen years trotted ten miles in twenty-eight minutes and two and a half seconds. Billy Burton was still on the turf at eighteen and Brandy Boy at nineteen made Button trot the greatest race of his life. Ollie Wilkes at sixteen pulled a wagon a mile low down in the twenties. Cases of longevity, with marvelous conservation of speed and stamina, can be multiplied.

READY FOR THE SALESRING.

Grand Lot of Yearlings at Mr. A. B. Spreckels' Napa Stock Farm.

When Superintendent Geo. W. Berry places the thirty-five yearlings now at Napa Stock Farm on the cars next Thursday, billed to Fasig, Tipton & Co.'s salesring at Sheepshead Bay, New York, he will have as grand looking and uniform a bunch of colts and fillies as have ever shipped to a sale at the great metropolis. A visit to the farm last Saturday and an inspection of the youngsters was not only a pleasure but a revelation. Under Mr. Berry's management the five hundred acres owned by Mr. Spreckels, and located just south of the pretty and picturesque village of Napa, has become a model breeding farm and nursery of young thoroughbreds and one cannot but be impressed with the conviction that if size, quality and good looks are desirable qualifications in a prospective race horse, then the youngsters bred here have those qualifications in the superlative degree, and that the "environment" must be especially adapted to their production. Mr. Spreckels has spared no expense in making the farm an ideal one. The paddocks, the barns, the training track, the pastures and cornfields show the same careful management and scrupulous neatness. The entire place is as well kept as a gentleman's city residence; there is a place for everything and everything in its place. The work of the farm, which requires thirty or more persons to perform, is so systematized that there is not a particle of friction, but everything moves like clockwork. Feed and care have made the yearlings that go to the auction block look like two year olds, so well are they developed. There is one that weighs 950 pounds, and none that tip the scales at less than 850. It is the most uniform lot in size and weight that the writer has ever seen, numbers considered, and they will certainly attract attention and buyers in New York. Space will not permit a description of each and every one of these handsome yearlings, of which the following is a list:

Chestnut Colt by Ravelston--Marcell.

Among those led out for inspection there were many that filled the ideal of a high class thoroughbred, none more so to the writer's eye than the magnificent chestnut colt here pictured by Ravelston out of the great race mare Marcell by Luke Blackburn. This is one of the grandest yearlings ever raised in California and if he does not prove to be a race horse there is nothing in looks and breeding. Ravelston, his sire, is a son of the great race horse Flambeau out of Shannon Rose, a half-sister to the great race horse Racine and the great race mare Fairy. Ravelston is a young horse but a sire of winners already at seven years of age and with but the most limited opportunities in the stud. Marcell, the dam of this colt, was a great performer and won 32 races, was second 22 times and 29 times third. She won nearly $12,000. Among the races won by Marcell was the Liberty Stakes at Chicago, where she ran two miles in 3:23½, the record up to 1896. She was also second to Little Bob in the Thornton Stakes, four miles in 7:24½, carrying 109 pounds to his 100. Marcell is by the great Luke Blackburn, the best three year old of 1886. Luke Blackburn's daughters are breeding well, one of them being the dam of Kingley Mac.

Another grand looker, one that looks racy in every line of her conformation, is the black filly by Trappean out of Tragic. Trappean is by imp. Inverness, out of imp. La Trappe by Hermit. Tragic is a daughter of imp. Tradewind, out of Sister to Lottery by Monday. Sister to Lottery produced Proximate and Prize. Tragic is inbred to the great Fisherman, and is a half sister to Loto, dam of Mutiny and Joe Ripley.

Bay Filly by imp. The Judge--imp. Yarranabee.

The bay filly by imp. The Judge, out of imp. Yarranabee, is what one would expect from such a mating—a big, strong, lusty filly that looks as though no weight would stop her or no race be too long for her. This filly is a handsome yearling of great size, power and substance, with plenty of quality as well.

Three chestnut fillies by imp. Crighton are particularly fine lookers. One is out of Carnation II., another's dam is Folly, the dam of Sevens, and the other is out of Sweet Peggy, the dam of Bernado, Pompino, and other winners. The chestnut colt by St. Carlo-Piquante is another magnificent looking animal, and the filly by imp. Crighton--Nellie Bell is a very high class beauty. But if we tried to mention all the good looking ones, more space than can be devoted to this article would be required.

Superintendent Berry informed us that none but the best of the farm's produce would be shipped to the sales; that the weeding out process has been in operation this year at the farm, and a number of mares have been disposed of for whatever they would bring. There will be no weeds left, and none but mares whose breeding lines are the best will be retained. It is the aim of Mr. Spreckels to send nothing to the salesring but yearlings that give promise of bringing credit to the Napa farm as a producer of high class thoroughbreds and the stallions and mares that are added to its breeding ranks in the future will be the best that money can buy. The condition of the yearlings to be shipped next week is a credit to Superintendent Berry and cannot fail to cause favorable comment when the sale begins at Sheepshead.

A dispatch from Lexington, Ky., states that James R. Keene has bought "Castleton," one of the finest farms in the Blue Grass, for $58,000. There are 600 acres in the farm. Mr. Keene already owned 300 acres adjoining Castleton, which he bought from General Joseph C. Breckinridge. He has had Castleton under a lease for several years and has his great stud there.

Since Mr. Haggin paid $23,000 for Watercolor he has proved a good investment as a racehorse, regardless of his possible value in the stud. The handsome black colt has won the Iroquois Stakes, $3850, and the Brighton Derby, $8500, or more than one-half his purchase money. These are his only races in Mr. Haggin's colors, and he is better than ever, and will probably win out his price before the season closes.

KENNEL.

Los Angeles Bench Show.

A brisk demand for premium lists among local fanciers argues a good entry from this city. A number of our leading fanciers will probably club together and charter a baggage car.

Among the specials offered at the show will be the following by the California Cocker Club for competition at the coming Los Angeles show, for competition by members only: Black, a silver medal for best dog; a silver medal for best bitch. Other than black, a silver medal for best dog; a silver medal for best bitch. A silver medal will be given in each class, in which three or more Cockers, belonging to members of the California Cocker Club are competing.

Doings in Dogdom.

There are not less than eight bench shows clashing in dates within the next few months to come to wit: two on the first week and two on the second week of September and four on the second week of October.

Most of these are held in connection with State or Agricultural fairs and nothing can be done to prevent the clash—as much a pity as it is—as there are not anywhere near enough shows in America to satisfy breeders.

Drinking water should be carefully attended to in warm weather. The drinking pans should be well rinsed every day and where the water is stationary should be changed frequently during the day. The brown earthen crocks sold as pigeon nests make excellent summer drinking pans. The porous nature of the clay used serves to cool the water when the crock is placed in a shady spot. They must, however, be well rinsed out every day with a rough brush.

The importation of English dogs to this country is really marvelous. Besides all those bought, imported individually by American fanciers now in England, one firm engaged in the importation of high class canines, alone imported less than two weeks ago about forty dogs, representing the cream of their respective breeds in England. The consignment consisted in part of five English, two Gordon Setters, one Field Spaniel, Prince Charles, Foxhound Griffon and old English Sheepdog, respectively, two smooth St. Bernards two Collies, four Scottish Terriers, five Pomeranians and nine Bulldogs. Amongst the latter is "Portland" who did so well a year ago under Mr. Chas. Hopton at the English Bulldog Club show. Most of these new importations are expected to be seen at the coming Pan-American show.

Bench shows in India are a well patronized feature of doggy affairs in the Orient. In speaking of a recent show The Asian says: "What a success the Ladies' Kennel Association Show has been? Year by year the quality as well as the number of exhibits increases, and Mrs. Stennard-Robinson, the honorary secretary, is always thinking of some new and interesting feature. The chief interest is the judging centered around the contest for the Gold Challenge Cup given by the Maharane of Dholpore. This was gained last year by Queen Alexandra with her hitherto unbeaten and magnificent Borzoi. This year it was offered for the best Collie, and after a close contest was awarded to the Princess Montglyn; curiously enough, however, the Collie that was only awarded second place in this competition, Miss Leveson's Jones' perfect smooth haired bitch, was later on declared by the judges to be the show's "champion of champions."

American dogdom is just at present very much interested in English kennel affairs. A sub-committee of the American Kennel Club consisting of the Secretary Mr. A. P. Vredenburg and Messrs. G. W. Carnochan, Ch. W. Bodman Jr. having been in conference with the English Kennel Club with a view of forming an alliance, which, besides having several practical objects, will be symbolical of the fact, that not only in politics, but in all sports and pastimes, the two great English speaking nations are the paramount powers of the world.

It strikes us, however, that there is lots to do for the American Kennel Club in our own country and we feel that if a committee had investigated coast affairs instead of leaving the matter entirely to one man, matters would look quite different hereabouts to say the least.

A proper representation of the interests on the coast by elected delegates vs. a self-constituted board is to our mind a condition sua qua non—and the quicker such are realized the better it will be for all concerned.

Now that puppies will be growing up and "eating their living" it is well to note the condition of the breath and the teeth every day. The "stitch in time" is equally applicable to dogs. If the breath is sour or very offensive examine the teeth, sometimes the milk teeth do not shed properly and decay in the gums, causing not only considerable pain and irritation, but abscesses may form. The old teeth should be pulled or their presence will affect the growth of the new teeth. If the teeth are all right the cause of disorder may arise from the stomach. Very likely a pinch or two of bicarbonate of soda will correct this. But if due to indigestion any of the following remedies will be found beneficial: Powdered rhubarb 1 scr., powdered ginger 1 scr., extract of gentian 4 scr.; mix and make up into 12 pills, giving one twice daily. Another is extract of gentian 1 drachm, powdered rhubarb 30 grains, carb. nat. of soda 12 grains, gumacacia sufficient to make into twelve 10 grain pills. Give twice a day until symptoms disappear.—Am. Stock-Keeper.

The Boston Terrier Challenge.

The following communication from Mr. L. A. Klein puts another phase on the difference of opinion concerning the superiority of either dog over the other. The challenge of Mr. Bradshaw was prompted by the publication again of Mr. Thomas' offer to wager a sum of money to back up his opinion of his dog. At the time the letter was first published in the East, Mr. Bradshaw was not authorized to take up the matter, willing as he was to do so. Subsequent to the receipt and publication of his letter last week, Endcliffe Lita became the property of Mr. Albert Joseph. As the case now stands, in the light of the present and changed circumstances, the incident may be regarded as closed. This recent issue would not have arisen except that the needless publication of "ancient history" created the belief that there was something better behind it than an attempt to show prestige or pose as the voluntary champion of an Eastern fancier who has ably demonstrated for years past that he can care of his own interests far better than those whose superficial knowledge of kennel affairs is, if not amusing, liable to lead to entanglements that are not productive of benefit to a fancier:

SAN FRANCISCO, August 14, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Your paper of August 10th contains a letter of Mr. John Bradshaw issuing a challenge on behalf of some unknown, involving a considerable sum of money for a match between the Boston Terrier bitches Champion Endcliffe Lita and Lady Montez at the coming Oakland show under some judge whose name may be known to him, as the manager of such show, but has not been made public yet.

While I am personally utterly opposed to any such bets, failing to see any practical uses, except probably for the purpose of discrediting the soundness or sincerity of some judge or perhaps to serve as advertising purposes. I feel in duty bound to make a few statements in regard to this issue in as much as Champion Endcliffe Lita has been my ward until lately and in as much as I represent the interest of Mr. George S. Thomas of Hamilton, Mass. as far as Endcliffe Lita and some other of his dogs are concerned, brought to this city for the sake of friendly competition with dogs of fellow sportsmen and fanciers at the late San Francisco Kennel Club Show. I wish to state that:—

1. Mr. Thomas is at present in England and Mr. Bradshaw's letter cannot be submitted to him for some time to come.

2. Mr. Thomas made an offer to match these two bitches more than two months ago, guaranteeing $150 expenses to Lady Montez's handler to come East, an offer which has been brought to the due notice of all concerned, but was not replied to.

3. Mr. Thomas has since not only bred Endcliffe Lita, which will put her hors de combat for some time to come but also sold her, which removes her from his control.

4. That the buyer of Endcliffe Lita has previously bought Lady Montez, the transfer of the latter having been announced in the public press two weeks ago.

5. Lady Montez will also be bred before this goes to press.

6. Neither Mr. J. P. Norman nor the present owner of both bitches authorized or is willing to make a match.

7. It is a fact that almost three times as much has been paid for Endcliffe Lita than for Lady Montez, which, while probably no criterion throws a light on the purchaser's opinion.

I regret that I personally object to matches of this kind, the decision in the ring by any honorable man should always be acceptable to both parties for the time being until another judge, equally honorable, either confirms or, being of other opinion, reverses the first judgment. A confirmation of it by a majority of judges following would indicate its correctness, a reversal, its mistake and no bets of any kind can change anything thereon.

I personally refrain to express an opinion on the two bitches, as I may be called on to give such in the showing publicly at some time or another, but thought proper to let you know above facts, particularly as no reply from Mr. Thomas can be expected for weeks to come.

Yours truly,

L. A. KLEIN.

The international Fox Terrier match between English and American dogs was decided at the quarantine station of the Board of Agriculture at Beddington, near Croydon, on the 8th inst. The English dogs won in each contest. The challenge was made by Mr. George M. Carnochan, of New York, the well known fancier of wire-hairs and owner of Go Bang and many others almost as high priced, last year agent his visit to England for the purpose of judging Fox Terriers at the Ladies' Kennel Association show in London. The gauntlet was thrown down to all England for a match for the best wire-haired Fox Terrier bred in 1900. The challenge, accompanied with a side bet of £25, was at once accepted by Mr. Geo. Raper and consequently by the Duchess of Newcastle, Mr. Francis Redmond and others. When Mr. Carnochan took his dogs across, he experienced considerable trouble in landing them owing to the rigid quarantine regulations against dogs. Through the influence of the Duchess permission was obtained to land the dogs at the quarantine station. If the necessary license to land could not have been obtained the match would have taken place on shipboard.

In the first match Mr. Redmond's Dusky Cackley won, with the Duchess of Newcastle's Commodore of Notts second. The American dog Cairnsmuir Get There was out of coat and lacked the style of his opponent. The second match was between Mr. George Mason's Gomersal Star, Mr. Raper's Raby Holdfast and Mr. Carnochan's Just in Time. Star won first. We hope to have complete details of this interesting contest in our next issue.

Fly-Casters Dine.

The San Francisco Fly-Casting Club members and invited guests met at the California Hotel on Tuesday evening and passed several pleasant hours in the enjoyment of an elegant dinner and its following "feast of reason and flow of soul." Walter D. Mansfield presided as chairman. After the disposition of club business, during which Mr. W. W. Richards was unanimously elected to club membership, the company was entertained with song, anecdote, imitations and music by Henry D. Davis and Louis Butler. Archie J. Treat, in his inimitable style, delighted his fellow anglers with an account of experiences with rod and reel, trolling in Lake Tahoe. A choice musical program was arranged by Chas. F. Stone. Among the company present were: Walter D. Mansfield, Alex. T. Vogelsang, Herman F. Muller, Colonel C. G. Young, Horace Smyth, W. E. Brooks, Adolph Muller, John Butler, Louis Butler, Chas. Klein, George Walker, H. Battu, John F. Siebe, W. A. L. Miller, Colonel G. C. Edwards, A. J. Treat, John Lawrence, F. P. McLellan, Judge John Hunt, F. G. Sanborn, C. M. Walker, E. H. Horton, T. C. Kierrulff, J. P. Babcock, Chas. Huyck, A. A. Wells, S. Carman, F. H. Reed, Dr. F. J. Lane, C. B. Gould, Dr. Clark Sanborn, J. X. De Witt, M. J. Geary, Louis Weinman, Charles H. Kewell, T. W. Brotherton, Charles F. Stone, Sam Rosenheim, M. A. Frank, J. H. Mallett and Dr. Lane.

The fractions in lure casting are 15ths.

A few salmon have recently been caught in Monterey bay near Santa Cruz, the first in many weeks. Sea bass are being caught in large quantities and are seemingly very plentiful. They range very large in size.

Forty-five thousand young trout arrived in Napa last week from the State Hatchery at Sissons. Napa sportsmen took the fry in charge and immediately "planted" them in streams in the vicinity of Napa, as follows: Milliken creek, 10,000; Napa Redwood creek, 5000; Wooden Valley, 5000; Vallejo Water Works reservoir, 15,000; Berryessa, 10,000.

Ways of the Pickerel.

In the early summer one of the favorite sports in the Fox lake district, a resort for Chicago anglers, is trolling for pickerel. The fish seem to be especially hungry after their winter experiences, and some days they will "strike" at a "spoon" all day, as the boats go around a lake or patrol up and down along the bays and coves. It is instructive to see with what eagerness a little half-pound pickerel will rush at a "spoon hook." He has all the fierceness of a six-pounder, and sometimes manages to get away after being hooked where a bigger one would have been captured. The pickerel are of several varieties, writes Ernest McGaffey, although similar in appearance, and run from as small as half a pound to eight and ten pounds and even larger. But these big fellows are comparatively rare. Most of the pickerel caught in trolling run from two to four pounds in weight, the majority being two and three pounders. Not infrequently four and five pound fish are caught, and once in a while a seven or eight pounder will be hooked. The big ones will sometimes make a gallant fight, and a stout landing net should always be taken along when trolling.

In the smaller lakes around Fox lake many pickerel are caught every summer, and Long lake is an especially good lake for the sport. It is an ideal lake for trolling, there being many bays and coves in it and a liberal growth of bulrushes and lily pads, which form natural retreats for the fish. One of the sandy points running out into the lake at the easterly part is called Pickerel point. Some fine fish have been hooked there, and a twelve pounder was hauled out one May within a few feet of the point. Trolling is done along the shores of the lakes, as the fish lurk near the growth of reeds and bulrushes and dart at the "spoon hook" as it trails along the water. A No. 4½ or 5 "spoon hook" is large enough for trolling, and should be well feathered, and with a fluted spoon. Never use a hook after one of the barbs is broken.

A strong line should be used, and a man can troll with a rod and reel or a long cane pole. The rod and reel gives the fisherman better control over a fish after it is hooked, as he can "play" it more scientifically and follow its rushes closer. Of course, with a heavy cane pole you can yank in the two and three pound fish by main strength and awkwardness. But this is devoid of sport, and often a fish breaks away where skillful work with a rod and reel would have brought him to the embraces of the landing net. The line should trail out back of the boat for at least thirty yards and even further sometimes. The "spoon" should ripple along just at the surface of the water, and must always "run free" without any weeds or refuse of any kind to prevent its spinning in the water as the boat moves ahead. This spinning motion, which makes the "spoon" look like a minnow or some bright object whirling in the water, is what attracts the hungry pickerel, and without this motion a man might as well trail a pumpkin pie at the end of his line and expect to catch fish.

The skillful angler will sit or stand in the stern of a boat and guide the "spoon" dexterously through channels where the bulrushes rise on either side, or along the edges of the water where the lily-pads are thickly growing, and manage to keep the lure spinning. There are three books in one cluster on a "spoon-hook," pointing different ways, and when a pickerel rushes a hook, or "strikes," as it is called, he is almost certain to get one of the barbs in his mouth. Sometimes he engulfs all three, and then he is in a bad way, and almost certain to be landed, unless he can break the line. When a pickerel "strikes" the lines should be kept taut on him all the time, and his rushes must be met with coolness and no allowance of slack line.

A pickerel makes his fight below the surface of the water in nearly every instance, only at rare times floundering out of the water or showing himself above the surface. He is often lost just at the edge of the boat or among the bulrushes and lily-pads. In clear water you can manage him with comparative ease, if there is some one in the boat with you and you have a landing-net. If a man is trolling alone, as many people do, the way to get a pickerel in after he has been hooked is to slide the pole along over the boat and get the line in your hand, keeping the line taut all the time, and run your fish right in over the side of the boat. The pole can be recovered easily enough afterward. The trouble with trolling by one's self is that fish are lost as they "strike" before a man can grab up the pole from between his knees, where it usually rests. Some fishermen put the butt of the pole under the seat and catch the pole up when the pickerel "strikes." But the best way is to have some one row the boat.

A woman can be taught to do very well in the capacity of oarslady, only you cannot express yourself so forcibly at her shortcomings as you can to a hired oarsman. She can be instructed in the use of a landing-net also, so that she can slip it down under a wily pickerel and assist materially in his overthrow. One beauty of trolling is that the "spoon-hook" is sufficient bait, and an extra one will fit you out for a day's fishing. Black bass sometimes "strike" at the "spoon" while a man is trolling, but the pickerel are the most willing performers. A man ought to be satisfied with fifteen pounds of fish in a day, and he can get that in an ordinary good day. A cloudy sky with streaks of sunshine, and a light wind on the water, is the best kind of weather for trolling for pickerel. They seem occasionally to be lying in bunches at one particular spot, for several good fish are sometimes caught as the boat goes over one certain place.

It used to take too much time to reach the lake district in Lake county, Illinois, but now that the C. M. and St. P. Railroad runs right to the shores of the lakes a man can go out in the morning, reach the fishing ground, and be in his boat by 10:30 o'clock, and fish until night, coming back on the train that leaves about 7 or 8 o'clock in the evening. This gives a great opportunity to Chicagoans to run out for a day's fishing on legal holidays or Saturdays, and is going to bring many more people to the district this summer and fall.

Pickerel, when freshly taken from the water and cooked by stuffing and baking, are very fine eating. As a "pan fish" they are not equal to the perch or sunfish. But baked they are delicious. The two and three pounders are better eating than the larger ones. Sometimes a big pickerel is caught by weighting the spoon-hook and trolling deep. In rowing a boat for trolling the oars should be dipped softly into the water, and the boat moved smoothly along with as little stirring of the water as possible. The spoon should run between the wakes made by the oars, and when the pickerel "strikes" the pole or rod should be brought sharply back, although not with a jerk, and after that a taut line kept. If a big fish is hooked get out into clear water with the boat, so that the fish cannot get the line tangled up with bulrushes or lily-pads.

Trolling is good sport for women, being easily learned and not requiring the strength nor skill requisite in "casting." It is exciting when a good fish gets on the spoon. Not every pickerel is hooked that "strikes" at the lure, and even when they are hooked it is sometimes in such a slight way that they break loose. They are very oily fish, and the best way to keep them is on a chain or wire "stringer" and floating in the water. In stringing them great care should be taken not to get lacerated with their teeth. This same care should be taken in getting the spoon-hook out of their mouths. Their teeth are as thick as bristles in a brush, and are as sharp as razors.

Pickerel will "strike" at a "spoon" at almost any time of the day when there is sun and cloud mingled and the wind is right; and in the fall as well as the summer they are in great evidence in the strings caught in the Fox lake chain of lakes.

Twenty-five thousand rainbow trout fry have been received by Game Warden A. S. McDougall of Pleasanton from the hatchery at Sissons. The trout were placed in the Alameda, La Honda and Mocho creeks, and the indications are that there will be good fishing in these streams in the future, provided a strict watch is kept upon suspicious characters. The prevailing scarcity of trout is occasioned by the use of dynamite, and the vigilance of the game warden is taxed to the utmost to prevent this vandalism, which can generally be attributed to the intolerance with which game laws are received by ignorant and brutal foreigners. The recent repairing of the fish ladder in Niles Canyon will aid materially in replenishing some good trout water.

At the Traps.

The dates for the State live bird tournament have now been positively determined by the Executive Committee and the shoot will come off on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, September 7th, 8th and 9th. A large supply of the best birds obtainable will be procured for the sport.

The final blue rock shoot for this year of the San Francisco Gun Club took place at Ingleside last Sunday. Sixteen shooters faced the traps in the competition for the medal and cash prizes. At the conclusion of the club shoot Secretary Ed Wands announced the results—the sixteen shooters were divided into four classes, the two high men in each class receiving the purse. Ed L. Schultz won the high average medal; he lost but eight birds out of a total of 150 during the season. M. O. Feudner and P. McRae with a loss of but eleven each divided a purse of $30. Fred Feudner with but thirteen targets lost was unlucky enough to be the lowest man in the class and was out of the money. In the second class Jules Bruns and E. L. Forster, who missed sixteen birds each, divided $30. E. Kerrison with a record of seventeen lost was out of the money division. C. A. Haight, eighth on the list and with a loss of twenty-one, on an agreement as to ties, divided $20 with E. Klevesahl, first man in third class. W. J. Golcher, second man, having lost twenty-two targets, received a $10 purse. John Karney and N. H. Neustadter with twenty-three and twenty-seven respectively were out of the money. In the fourth class, W. E. Murdock, high gun, with a loss of thirty birds out of 150, won the $20 purse. R. C. Roseberg, second high gun, lost thirty-two targets and received the $10 purse. J. J. Sweezy and A. L. Weil lost thirty-eight and fifty-four respectively. The final shoot of the club for the year will be at live birds on the 25th inst. The scores to the club race at twenty-five targets last Sunday were as follows:

The Olympic Gun Club live bird shoot was conducted under favorable weather conditions and with a supply of very swift birds. Some creditable scores were made during the forenoon, notwithstanding the slim attendance of shooters. Out of a total of 55 pigeons Ed Donohoe's gun was pointed at during the day, but one escaped. In the club race he and Otto Feudner made the only straight scores. Feudner is high man in the club so far, having lost but one bird out of 75 shot at during five monthly club shoots. C. A. Haight caught one bird in the club race that had the strength to fall just out of bounds, thus spoiling a clear score. "Slade," drew a "screamer" for his twelfth pigeon. This bird caused a "goose egg" to decorate his club tally. After the club shoot some excellent trap shooting was done by Dr. McConnell, Ed Donohoe, John Lastreto and "Easy" Cooper. The club will hold its final shoot for this season on September 15th. The concluding race will be at 25 pigeons. The scores in the main event were as follows:

Club match, 15 pigeons, 30 yards rise—

Feudner, M. O.	11121 1111 1111 1121—15
Donohoe, Ed.	12111 22121 21222—15
"Slade"	23121 21121 30111—14

Hosmer, H. B. (back score)	11112 11101 21111—14

At Alameda point last Sunday the regular monthly flying target shoot of the Empire Gun Club was held. While many fairly good scores were recorded, writes Secretary J. B. Hauer, none was of a phenomenal nature. A. J. Webb, the club's crack shot, was shooting in fine form and broke twenty-four birds out of a possible twenty-five for the club championship diamond medal. He also made the best average for the day in the State Championship Yellowstone event, with a score of twenty-two breaks. For the Schumacher Handicap Trophy H. D. Swales was high man for the day, breaking seventeen birds out of the twenty shot at. In shooting up a back score in this event Debenham broke eighteen birds. For the several events the complete scores are as follows, Club Championship medal, 25 birds shot at—Webb 24, Cullen 20, Ireland 20, Debenham 19, Reed 19, Allen 17, Hauer 13, Howlett 12, Swales 13, Baird 11.

The above scores also classified for the money match, which is a 25 bird race shot in 15 singles and 5 pair doubles, distance handicap. The purse is $15, given monthly by the club. Scores in detail:

First class—Webb, 22 yards rise, broke 19; Cullen, 18-19; Ireland, 18-18; Webb and Cullen being tied divided first money, $4.50.

Fourth class—Hauer, 20 yards, broke 19; Baird, 16-15; Howlett, 18-14; Swales, 18-12; Hauer's score being highest in this class he won $1.50.

State Championship Yellowstone Trophy, 25 birds shot at—Webb 22, Debenham 21, Reed 20, Hauer 19, Baird 19, Javett 19, Reed (B. S.) 18.

Schumacher Handicap Trophy, 25 birds shot at, distance handicap—Swales, 18 yards, broke 17; Hauer, 20-16; Debenham, 20-15; Allee, 18-14; Ireland, 18-11; Howlett, 18-10; Allen (back score), 18-12; Swales (back score) 18-13; Debenham (back score), 20-18.

Ten bird events—Cattell 6, Swales 8, Debenham 8, Swales 6, Ireland 6, Ireland 5, Allen 5, 3; Webb 8, 10; Baird 5, Reed 8, Debenham 7, Cullen 9.

Cartridge and Shell.

The Beetville Shooting Club has been organized by a number of residents of Cordelia and the tule land of the Page tract has been leased.

Eric Mack, a guest of Mr. Payne Shafter, bowled over a buck that weighed 140 pounds last Monday in the Marin hills not very distant from picturesque Olema. This buck, we believe, is the largest shot in the county so far this season.

A new invoice of L. C. Smith and Parker Bros.' guns just received. Some 12 gauge duck guns now in stock are unsurpassed. For quail and snipe shooting and also for ladies' use, we have a special lot of 16 gauge guns. H. E. Skinner & Co., 416 Market Street.

Two weeks ago Wm. Palmer and C. F. Northrup bagged 106 doves at Stoney Point, Sonoma county.

The Pringle ponds on the Suisun marsh have been leased for the coming duck shooting season by Len D. Owens. These ponds have yielded many dozens of fine fat canvasback ducks in past seasons. It is necessary to understand the conditions prevailing and habits of the ducks, however, to get good shooting on the ponds.

The following information in regard to the tests to which gun barrel metal is subjected was given by Mr. John Rigby, and is a subject of enough importance to induce the intending purchaser of a shotgun to procure a gun made of reputable manufacturers, thus avoiding ownership of the cheap and unreliable goods often found, unfortunately, in the hands of individuals who overlook the dangerous element they are juggling with in the mistaken economy of trying to save a few dollars of expense:

Assuming that shotguns are in question, and taking welded barrels of various qualities, the limits are wide between the worst and best material, the ultimate breaking stress ranging from 30 tons per square inch for the best down to about half that amount for the worst. It is evident, therefore, that in welded barrels only the very best tubes are admissible, and where they have reached their highest limit in resistance to breaking stress steel barrels are near their lowest. Passing now to steel, there is considerable diversity in practice among gunmakers and very little attention given to engineers' tests, so that so long as the material satisfies workshop tests—does not work hard or "pinny," is free from "veins" or "greys," etc.—the actual tenacity, ductility and strength of the material is not tested in any accurate way. This is not as it should be, because in using steel as a material for gun barrels there is much greater risk of chancing on unsuitable material than when using only the best gun barrel iron. In the latter case forgings may want stiffness, but can hardly be rendered brittle, though some steels may be easily so treated in the forge that their ductility may be impaired and their ability to endure without injury the repeated shocks of firing be lost.

The largest game preserve in the world is the continent of Africa, or at least the greater portion of it—extending from the twentieth degree of north latitude down to the northern borders of Cape Colony and Natal. This great scheme was made possible by a treaty co-operation of England, Germany, France, Belgium, Portugal, Italy and Spain, by which it is provided that the hunting and destruction of vultures, secretary birds, owls, giraffes, gorillas, chimpanzees, mountain zebras, wild asses, white-tailed gnus, elands and the little Liberian hippopotami are absolutely prohibited.

Similar protection is given the young of certain animals, including the elephant, rhinoceros, hippopotamus, antelope, gazelle, ibex and chevron, and to the adults of these species when accompanied by their young. Particular stress is laid on the protection of young elephants, and elephant tusks weighing less than twenty pounds will be confiscated. The eggs of the ostrich and many other birds are protected, but those of the crocodile, python and poisonous snakes are to be destroyed. Even lions, leopards, hyenas, harmful monkeys and large birds of prey may not be slaughtered at the hunter's will. Hunters are required to take out licenses, and the number of animals each may kill is limited. The use of nets and pitfalls is forbidden, nor may explosions be used for killing fish.

The main object of this vast protective enterprise is economic, to encourage the domestication of the elephant, zebra and ostrich and to husband the trade in wild animal products, which were threatened by the rapacity of market hunters and so-called sportsmen.—Field and Stream.

Many lovers of out-door sports will doubtless be pleased to learn that the interesting and practical chapters on "A Sportsman's Taxidermy" and "A Sportsman's Photography," by Mr. L. H. Smith, originally published in serial form in this journal, have been issued in a neat and handsomely illustrated volume to meet the demand of those who desire it as a book of instruction. Few writers for the sportsman's press have the entertaining style and vast fund of information which combine to make Mr. L. H. Smith's articles on these subjects worthy of preservation in permanent form. He is a naturalist of varied experience, a keen devotee of manly sports, an amateur taxidermist, whose skill is attested by the handsome specimens of game birds and animals which he has prepared, to adorn his home, and his success in the line of photography is exemplified in the fine illustrations—from original photographs—in the attractive work referred to. Every year the army of field sportsmen is increasing, and in many localities game is decreasing in like ratio. It is fortunate, however, that at the present time perhaps a larger percentage than ever before of those who use the gun and rod find more pleasure in the scenes, incidents and companionship of their outings, than in the more capricious or killing of game and fish. A much greater proportion, too, are eager to take snapshots with the camera—proferring these, by way of variety, instead of an equal number with shot gun or rifle. A practical knowledge of taxidermy and of photography gives additional zest to the sports of field and stream.

The preparation of this book has been to Mr. L. H. Smith a labor of love, and he imparts to the reader some degree of that enthusiasm which has made the author so well versed in the various branches of sport. It is an attractive volume from every point of view, and the amateur who carefully reads it and profits by its instruction will become a more thorough sportsman and happier in the knowledge gained of the "art of preservative" in connection with sportsmanship.—The Sportsman's Review.

The perusal of a copy of this charming volume received from the publishers prompts us to fully endorse the foregoing and to supplement it with the suggestion that the work should be found in the library of every sportsman.

Hunted by an Alaskan Bear.

Alaska looked bleak and inhospitable as I reached it, March 6, 1898, writes Robert Hoffman in Success. There seemed to be nothing to greet the traveler but snow. On closer acquaintance the foothills and lower mountain sides proved to be covered with stunted spruce. There were four in my party, and we disembarked on the ice about a mile from shore. The outfits came out of the schooner on the Port Valdez side. Each man grasped a sled loaded up with the first goods that came to hand and started for the shore, until we formed a chain, extending from the schooner to the shore and back. Then we proceeded to haul our goods up to the foot of the Valdez glacier, a distance of five miles, and, as the average man could not take more than 250 pounds on his sled, it meant going over the ground at least eight times.

Our real trials began in crossing the glacier. It was very laborious work hauling a year's supply over the twenty-nine miles of ice and snow that lay between us and the valley beyond. The valley beyond! The summit of the glacier has an altitude of 5200 feet, and in several places we had to use block and tackle to haul our sleds up the precipitous faces of the "benches" or ice terraces. We could get no water on the glacier, except by melting snow or ice, and no fuel save what we brought up from the valley near the beach. It took us nearly six weeks to get over into the Copper River valley, where the traveling was comparatively easy.

We built boats in May to get to the lower Copper River country. After an exciting trip of fifteen miles, during which we were swamped twice, and anchored on snags and gravel bars times without number, we reached a sheet of water, thirty miles long by six wide, known as Lake Klutina. We rowed down this lake and camped at the foot of it, in company with nearly 500 others.

On Thursday, July 28th, with a friend, I rowed across the lake, a distance of about three miles; and after pulling our boats up on the beach, we proceeded cautiously up the salmon stream, rifles in hand, hoping to get a shot at some of the bears which had been repeatedly seen by some of the fishermen. We left the stream and wandered off through the dense spruce timber for two or three miles, until, feeling wearied we sat down on a fallen tree, ate our meager lunch, and talked over bygone days in the states. About the middle of the afternoon, we turned our steps in the direction of our boat, but had not gone far when we came on the tracks of a bear, along the edge of a piece of swampy ground. We examined the footprints closely and judged that bruin had been there only a few hours before. As a party of fishermen had shot at a large light colored bear only two evenings before, and claimed they had wounded him, we thought that we might be on his trail, so we proceeded cautiously along with eyes and ears alert, but failed to see anything of his bearship. We reached our boat an hour before sundown, and, grasping our oars with a will, were soon back in camp. I missed my clasp-knife, and concluded I had left it where we had eaten our lunch in the forest. I needed it very much, and determined I would go back for it at the first opportunity. On Saturday night I retired pretty early, and awoke next morning about 2 o'clock, just as dawn was breaking. I rolled over and tried to go to sleep again, but finding I could not, I got up quietly, strapped on my revolver, and, with rifle in hand, stepped into my little boat and pushed off. There was little or no wind that morning, so I didn't hoist sail, but sculled slowly over to the mouth of the salmon stream, where I made my boat fast to some willows. I branched off into the woods as before, feeling confident I would soon have my knife in my hand again; but, try as I would, I could not locate that fallen tree. The sun was well up in the heavens, and mosquitoes were painfully active. I pushed my way through some dense brush from six to eight feet in height, expecting at any moment to gain a clearing, when I suddenly heard a crashing sound among the bushes, thirty or forty feet to my left, accompanied by two or three short, angry growls. I realized at once that it was caused by a bear, but the thought that I would be attacked never entered my mind. As shooting in such a place was out of the question, I took a firmer grip on my rifle and made a dash for the clearing, which I could see a few yards ahead of me. I had just gained it when the bear gave a terrifying growl. It dawned upon me that he was doing the hunting rather than I, and that I was in for a fight. I glanced over my shoulder and could see, by the swaying of the brush, that he was coming straight toward me, and was not more than fifteen yards away. I sprang for the opposite of the narrow clearing, thinking I would get a shot at him as he came out on the edge. Just as I was in the act of wheeling around, with my finger on the trigger, my heel caught a root, and I fell backward. I recovered myself quickly, and had gained my knees, when on looking up, there stood the monster on his hind legs, towering over me like some great giant nine or ten feet in height. I attempted to throw my rifle for a shot, but he made a swing with one of his mighty paws, which scalped me and knocked the rifle out of my hands. I was sent sprawling on my back, dazed a little, but by no means knocked out, and I felt no pain. As I lay there, the bear stood over me and growled, his hair standing up as stiff as bristles, and a wicked look in his eye. I put my hand under me to get my revolver—a Colt's 44—thinking I still had a fair fighting chance. The tips of my fingers had just touched the butt of the revolver, when he came down on me with all fours, caught me under the armpits with his forepaws and lifted me up. Then; horrors! He took the whole under part of my face into his huge mouth, and I felt my bones crash as his powerful jaws came together.

He let me drop. I kept my senses, though I realized that I was beaten. He glared at me like a fiend as I lay there helpless. His nose was within a few inches of my face, and his hot breath almost caused me to collapse. I lay there quietly for a few seconds, wondering what his next move would be, when he backed off a step or two, as if to leave me. My left arm was in a cramped position, and I inadvertently moved it a little. Like a flash he sprang on me again and, seizing me by the breast with those awful jaws, he picked me up and shook me as a terrier would a rat, and then let me drop in a heap. How many times have I lived it all over again and felt the horrible sensations! Strange to say, I kept my wits about me through it all, and noted his every movement and look, and realized fully that, if I moved or showed any further evidence of life, he would surely kill me. So I lay there without moving a muscle for perhaps a full minute, while he stood over me. Then, seeing no further signs of life, he turned tail and marched slowly up the hill, growling as he went.

What passed through my mind for the next few minutes I shall never be able to put on paper. My past life seemed to flit before me like a panoramic scene. Finally I awoke to the necessities of the present. No one would ever come to my assistance, I knew, so I must be up and doing while my strength lasted. I knew that at least two miles of pathless woods lay between me and my boat; and even should I reach that I still had three miles of water to cross ere I should receive any assistance. So summoning all my resolution, I staggered to my feet, grasped my rifle for a last shot, if need be, and headed for the salmon stream as nearly as I could locate it. I toiled along through the brush until I was beginning to feel faint, when the welcome sound of the stream burst upon me. In a few minutes more I stood upon its nearer bank.

Then, seeing the reflection of myself in a small pool of water, I realized how badly I was injured. My nose, mouth and chin seemed completely gone, and I could see my scalp hanging down over my shoulder. I was unable to make any attempt at drinking, but I bathed my hands in the cool water and that revived me a little. There was a rough footpath leading to the mouth of the stream, where lay my boat, the stepping stone to medical assistance and friends. I made up my mind that I was going to get there, and that nothing short of another encounter with the bear could stop me. I started down stream, and was pretty well fagged out ere I reached my boat. But I could see the white canvas tents of the camp on the other side of the lake, and that put new life into me. I observed that a light and favorable wind was blowing across the lake. My sail was lying in the bow of the boat, and when I attempted to raise it it slipped and came down, striking me on the head.

The pain was intense, though this was the first I had felt since I met the bear. But I was determined I would cross the lake somehow, and, with a last effort, I got my sail up, and pushed off from the shore. I sat down in the stern of the boat and tried my best to reach camp. It seemed as if I would never get there, as the wind was slight, and not quite in the direction I needed. But all things come to an end, and I finally made the shore about 100 yards above camp. I could just get out of the boat and then sank on the bank exhausted. In a few minutes a man came up to me, and at first he thought I had met with a shotgun accident. He immediately got assistance, and one of the men whom he brought recognized me somehow or other. I was placed in the boat and rowed down to my tent. Two doctors who were in the camp were soon at work on me, and it took over sixty stitches to patch me up. They could not use any anaesthetic, so I had to endure my pain. The condition of the interior of my mouth was the worst feature, and I was almost unable to swallow anything. Suffice it to say that, after six weeks of the most careful nursing, I was able to leave the country by way of the Copper river, in company with a doctor and two others in a small boat. I reached Seattle about the middle of November, and New York about a week later. I immediately went to a hospital where I got patched up in such shape that, though I never expect to take a prize at a beauty show, I am able to earn a good living.

To the above account, the editor of Success adds: Mr. Hoffman's recovery is considered by physicians to be a wonderful case. After reaching New York his jaw had to be rebroken and reset. His teeth and the roof of his mouth have required more gold in his patching up than he brought back with him from Alaska. A photograph shows he was pretty thoroughly bandaged up on arriving in the East. The entire lower portion of his face and the glands of his neck, have been reconstructed. He is cheerful through it all, however, and just as ambitious to win his way—Alaska barred. Last summer he was one of the company engaged by George Gould to manage his yacht.

Generally a sportsman values his favorite gun according to its worth as a gun to shoot game or targets with; but one man in the Middle West places a different valuation upon his, and he has sent photographs and written to one of the sportsmen's journals to tell it and its readers all about the fine outfit he possesses. The gun cost only $650, but there are two name plates on the stock that he was glad to pay $75 for, as one of them bears the coat of arms of the makers and the statement that they built the gun "expressly to order of" the present owner; the other bears the heavy gold monogram of the latter. There is a case for the gun and shells, made of alligator skin and lined with silk plush, with name plate made from a $20 gold piece; value, $100. The covers for the barrels and the stock cost but $20, though they are made of silk velvet plush, lined with chamois and with monograms in silk. A velvet shooting suit, silk sweater and patent leather shoes complete this remarkable outfit. But lest some one should think the owner a callow dude imitating a sportsman, it is stated that he won a certain cup on scores of 46, 47 and 48 out of 50.

THE FARM.

Aim of the Breeder.

In growing hogs the object of the breeder, says the bulletin of one of the experiment stations, is to produce such as will mature early, and that by care and feeding much has been accomplished in that direction. To perpetuate this quality much care and food are necessary. Without these, acquired characters are easily lost and the animal quickly reverts to its original condition. The animal that is to be kept for breeding purposes should receive an abundance of food of the proper character until it reaches maturity at least.

There is an idea prevalent that the gilts must not be fed well, or they may become too fat for breeding purposes. The most noted breeders in America almost universally agree that if fed on the right sort of food there is absolutely no danger of any sow under a year old becoming too fat. If we desire good growth, fine size and early maturity the breeding stock must be fed liberally, not only before one year old but after. A sow when in good condition, even what many consider too fat, will bring stronger and better pigs, and suckle them much better than when thin. It is hardly possible that she may not have as many pigs at a litter, but this is extremely doubtful, and it is certain that she will have a litter of pigs worth much more money. The same may be said of the boar. He will get better pigs when kept in good condition than when poor. This is not all, for if one is breeding pigs to sell to breeders, a litter from a boar and a sow that are too "fat," as the people say, will sell for double what the same number will when thin. No kind of stock will sell when in poor flesh. No person looks more than once at a thin animal, but all will stop to admire a slick, plump, well rounded form. This is universal, it matters not whether the person be a novice or a veteran breeder. It therefore not only pays to feed well, but it is doubtful if hog raising can be made profitable without liberal feeding.—Ex.

Artificial buttermilk is the latest fake and some brilliant fellows in Denver are actually manufacturing it by the cask. They simply churn sour skimmed milk, having given it a little starter of real buttermilk so as to produce the peculiar flavor. If skimmed by hand there is enough butter fat left in it to produce the little particles of butter by which some people identify buttermilk as being genuine. Then they put salt into it, which helps the deception, and sell it at a good price. One concern has made as high as $50 a day. There is nothing injurious about this stuff and if people like it all right, but it is not buttermilk just the same and nowhere as near nutritious. It contains hardly half the butter fat of real buttermilk. This is one of the tricks of the trade that is very probably little known.

There is a rather common belief that after pigs have attained the age of five or six weeks they can be more cheaply kept off than on the sow, or that it is more economical to wean them at that age. Experienced Colorado feeders generally agree that pigs which have been allowed to remain with their dams for eight or ten weeks, with sufficient exercise in an alfalfa field, suffer far less from weaning than those taken from the sow at five or six weeks old.

The Embar Cattle Company of Wyoming has contracted to furnish an unlimited number of cavalry horses to the British Government. The company is now training the horses for service in the cavalry. The animals are to be sent to South Africa. Most of them will be gathered in central and northern Wyoming.

Live Stock Notes.

The public watering troughs in the village square are a great advantage, especially so when placed at such a height that the horse can drink, even if the driver is too lazy to get out and loosen the check rein. Many a horse gets a little water on the road which he would not if it were not so handily arranged. We know that the use of the check-rein is condemned as it should be when it obliges the horse to hold his head in an unnatural position. But those who drive pedler's wagons and delivery wagons want at least a check to keep the horse from trying to eat the grass when left alone for a few minutes, though it may be loose enough to be no restraint when driven or pulling a load. But there is a possibility always of the water in these troughs being infected with glanders by some other horse that has drank from it just previously, where there is much travel, and there are a few who make a practice of carrying a pail always from which they water their horses, and some stable keepers keep a pail at their stables from which they water strange horses, and never allow their own to drink, and even have it washed after each horse before it is used for another. This avoids much risk, but we doubt if the disease is infrequent enough in this State to warrant such excessive caution. Yet it may be well when there are horses about of which one is suspicious, and while it may be some trouble it is erring on the safe side.

In order to test the truth of the statement that pure bred swine are not as prolific as cross breeds, some genius took the trouble to search the registers of the Berkshire, Poland China and Chester White to see the number of pigs credited to the sows there. They were taken equally from the first and last litters recorded for each sow, and show the number of pigs farrowed and raised. In four hundred litters of Berkshires there was an average of over seven pigs to a litter, or 2866 pigs, of which 1498 were boars and 1368 sows. From one thousand Poland China sows there were 6542 pigs raised, or over 6½ to a litter as an average; 3228 were boars and 3314 sows. In six hundred litters of Chester White there were 4550 pigs, an average of over 7½ to a litter; there were 2236 boars and 2319 sows. This is certainly not a bad showing, if it includes the first and later litters, as the first is usually less in number than any of the subsequent ones with any breeder, and the average of two thousand litters is nearly seven to a litter. The preponderance of females is not large, as there were 6962 boars to 7501 sows.

It will be remembered by those who look back forty or fifty years that the hogs of this country grew bristles that were in good demand for making brushes and other purposes. These are now all gone in this country. The reason for this is that hog breeding has attained a plane of perfection in this country which is unequalled in any other. The bristle hog is the common kind, where on the other hand the choicest porker is exceedingly short on this commercial staple. Take our razorbacks, for instance, they are rich in bristles but poor in flesh. Thus the United States has to call on European countries for its supply with which to continue the manufacture of brushes. Imported bristles range in length from three to seven inches and are brought from Russia Poland and North Germany.

For years there has been considerable controversy among wool growers as to effect of scab remedies or sheep dips made of lime and sulphur upon the fibre. Usually one clip of wool brought just about the same price as another and as the compound seemed to be efficacious in arresting the disease, little attention was paid to its effect on wool. Now the American wool company, the name of the wool trust, has dealt the knockout blow to the use of these mixtures. This season wool growers were informed by buyers that the big corporation had issued instructions to all agents to absolutely refuse to buy any of the product which had been treated with remedies in the composition of which lime and sulphur entered. As this corporation has upward of thirty of the largest woolen mills in the country under its control, its ukase will have a more prohibitory effect than a statutory enactment. Hereafter the sheepmen will be compelled to resort to other remedial agents, which, while they may not be as cheap, will be more acceptable to the sheep than the acrid, ill-smelling lime and sulphur baths.

The average milk producers for cities depend almost entirely on buying their cows. This means that they often buy animals with more beef than milk in them. They have flattered themselves that such cows would bring a profit if fed heavily, getting what milk they could and when dry selling them to the butcher for about what they paid for them. As a rule such cows are gross feeders and low standard milkers. The first thing the dairyman knows his milk has cost him in feed considerably more than he has got for it. This half milk and half beef theory looks all right on the face of it, but it is unsound. No man can afford to feed costly food to a cow for milk when she will grow fat on the food. This shows that she is diverting her food from milk channels into meat channels.

Every feeder of cattle the country over will be deeply interested in the pamphlet just issued by Mr. T. F. B. Sotham, entitled "Feeding Cattle, or the Community of Interest between Farm and Ranch." No more powerful advocate of the making of baby beef can be found than Mr. Sotham. He is an extensive purveyor of well-bred range calves to feeders of the Central West and his customers have demonstrated that profit may be found in this method of feeding. The whole subject is exhaustively treated in this new pamphlet, which is one of the most important contributions in recent years to the literature of feeding cattle. It may be obtained on application to Mr. Sotham at Chillicothe, Mo.

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle!"

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

Dairy Jottings.

To handle roll butter successfully and have it retain some of its freshness till sold you must wrap each roll in muslin that has been washed to get out the sizing and dipped in a strong salt brine. The brine will crystallize over the muslin and help to keep the air from it, and if you pack in boxes, line the boxes in like manner with muslin and pack close, so as not to shake while in transit. Be sure not to pack poor rolls with the good. You had better put them in the grease tub or fling them out of the back door. By all means ship your butter fresh. Do not hold for a higher market as some do, and sell it for grease.

It is possible for a good farmer and excellent citizen to raise a number of generations of cows without knowing a first rate one. There was a man staying at one of our creameries, that, though not himself a member, he believed certain of its patrons had, through its influence, greatly improved their milking stock, by the circulation of the knowledge of each other's yield of cream per cow. It directly got to be understood which fell short and those herds came to be regarded with more critical eyes by their owners, and changes were made both in stock and its treatment.

A French cheesemaker has bought property in Delaware county, New York, and is building a factory in which to make cheese of a certain type. This Frenchman, Mr. DuPare, was able to pay five to seven cents a quart for ordinary milk in France, make his cheese, ship it 3000 miles to the American market, pay duty on it and still sell it at a fair profit. With a factory in this country he will save the 3000 miles of ocean freightage and the import duty on the cheese. Instead of having to pay five to seven cents a quart for milk of ordinary or inferior richness he will be able to secure at 1.72 to 3.22 cents a quart all he can use of the finest and richest milk on earth.

Nominators must designate when making payments to start whether the horse entered is a trotter or pacer. Colts that start at two years old are not barred from starting again in the Three Year Old Divisions.

CONDITIONS.

The races for two year olds will be mile heats (2 in 3) and for three year olds mile heats (3 in 5). Distance for two year olds, 150 yards; for three year olds, 100 yards.

If a mare proves barren, or slips, or has a dead foal or twins, or if either the mare or foal dies before January 2, 1903, her nominator may transfer his nomination or substitute another mare and foal regardless of ownership; but there will be no return of a payment, nor will any entry be liable for more than amount paid in or contracted for. In entries the name, color and pedigree of mare must be given, also the name of the horse to which she was bred in 1901.

Entries must be accompanied by the entrance fee.

Should the amount of entrance money received be in excess of the amount of the stakes, the excess will be added, less the cost of advertising, to the stakes for the three year old divisions in proportion to the amount offered for each division.

Address all entries and communications to

THREE OR MORE RUNNING RACES EACH DAY, NO PURSE LESS THAN $250.

CONDITIONS.

Entries to close Saturday, September 7th, 1901, when horses are to be named, and to be eligible to the class in which they are entered.

Stakes not filling satisfactorily to the management may be declared off.

Stakes will be divided into four moneys: 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.

Entrance 5%, and 5% of the amount of the Stake will be deducted from each money won.

The management reserves the right to declare two starters a walk over. When only two start they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided 66 2/3 per cent. to the first and 33 1/3 per cent. to the second horse. A horse distancing the field shall be entitled to first and fourth moneys only, and in no other case will a horse be entitled to more than one money.

The management reserves the right to change the hour and day of any race, except when it becomes necessary to ante-date a race, in which instance the nominators will receive three days notice by mail to address of entry.

The right reserved to declare off or postpone any or all races on account of weather or other sufficient cause.

For Entry Blanks and further particulars address

The management reserves the right to start any heat after the fourth score regardless of the position of the horses.

Entries not declared out at 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race shall be required to start and declarations must be in writing and made at the office of the Secretary at the track.

When there is more than one entry to any Stake by any one person or in one interest, the horse to be started must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race.

Trotting and racing colors must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race and must be worn upon the track. Colors will be registered in the order in which they are received.

Hopples barred in trotting races, but will be permitted in pacing races.

Conditional entries will be treated same as regular entries and nominators held under the rules.

Any race that may be started and unfinished on last day of the meeting may be declared ended and money divided according to the rank of horses in the summary.

Otherwise than as herein specified in these conditions, National Trotting Association Rules, except Rule 4, to govern.

JOTTINGS.

WOODLAND FAIR, the first district fair to be held in California this year, will open on Monday next, and will certainly be a success, as all the Woodland fairs have been. A drummer once remarked in my hearing "Woodland is the highest town of its size in California, and every man, woman and child in Yolo county thinks so." He added by way of explanation that while Woodland had a population of not more than three thousand, a stranger entering the town for the first time and riding up Main street in one of the husses would guess the number of inhabitants at not less than ten thousand, and that the people of the county not only think that Woodland is somewhere near the center of the universe, but are ready to turn out and patronize anything that the county seat inaugurates or endorses. This is the reason the annual fair there always has a good attendance. The exhibits are always worth seeing and the race program is generally about the best on the circuit. District No. 40 is making an attempt to beat all former records this year and there is every prospect of a fine fair and a large crowd to enjoy it. The pavilion will be especially attractive, the live stock display extensive and high class, and the racing promises to furnish more hot contests and surprises than have been seen in the state for some time. A new feature for this fair will be a display of "broucho busting" at the fair grounds. A band of thoroughly wild and entirely unbroken bronchos has been secured, and some of the best "buccaroos" in California will attempt to ride them. The horses must be caught with a lariat, saddled and ridden, and there will be lots of fun in the performance for the spectators. Director Sam Montgomery, who has charge of this part of the program guarantees that it will be a success and it need not surprise anyone, should there be any hesitancy on the part of a huccaroo to ride one of the fiery untamed, to see Sam take his place and show how the trick is done. And while age and lack of training might be against him, his habit of accomplishing everything he starts to perform is so well known that he would be a favorite in the pools against the broncho.

The Santa Rosa meeting was not the success it has been in late years for several reasons. In the first place the date was unfortunate. Had the week prior to the Breeders meeting been chosen there would have been a good program of harness racing, and consequently a better attendance. A very large proportion of the harness horsemen who raced at Sacramento considered the trip down to Sacramento and back to Woodland too expensive, and failed to enter for the purses offered at the former town. I think the oft repeated claim "it takes the runners to draw the crowd" was entirely disproved as far as Santa Rosa is concerned, as while the program was almost entirely devoted to the thoroughbreds, the attendance was much less than any of the three previous meetings, when the track was given over to the harness horses exclusively. Another cause of the light attendance and lack of interest was the fact that the management of the meeting was in the hands of a firm of hookmakers. The Santa Rosa Racing Association was organized by the citizens of the town and quite a sum of money was raised for the meeting, the citizens generally contributing to the fund. Messrs. Atkins & Young, hookmakers, offered $1200 for the exclusive privilege of booking, but a few days prior to the meeting the association offered to turn its funds over to Atkins & Young if they would assume all responsibility for the purses and expenses of the week's racing. This offer was accepted and the meeting was managed by the bookmaking firm. As this fact was not concealed, but generally known, there was naturally less local interest in the meeting than there would otherwise have been. The placing of Messrs. P. H. Quinn, Robert Bonner, C. C. Belden and other well known gentlemen in the stand as judges gave the public confidence that the racing would be clean and the decisions just and fair, a confidence that was not misplaced, and this aided materially in attracting the local people to the meeting. That the Santa Rosa Racing Association made a mistake in transferring the management of their meeting to outsiders is evident, but they acted for what they supposed was the best interests of all concerned, and that their motives were of the best there is no dispute. I cannot but believe that had the Santa Rosa association stuck to its original intention of making its meeting the first on the circuit, made up its program entirely of harness races, given two or three large purses and kept the management of the meeting in its own hands, there would have been three times the attendance and a successful week of racing, financially and otherwise. The Santa Rosa track is undoubtedly the best in the State, and there is no prettier or more substantial town in California, while the members of the Santa Rosa Racing Association are gentlemen of enterprise and standing in the community. They are perfectly competent to manage an annual meeting that will be high class in every respect and attract the patronage of the public, and they should have such a meeting in Santa Rosa every year.

Last May, when Frank Covey, Superintendent of Palo Alto Stock Farm, took his annual consignment of two and three year olds over to Cleveland to the Blue Ribbon sale, he had a three year old bay gelding by the champion yearling Adbell 2:23 out of Rowena (2:17 as a two year old) by Azmoor in the lot. Frank had a story that went with this three year old in which a quarter in 32 seconds figured, and Jimmy Golden, who knows Covey's stories are worth their face value, bought Rowellan for $1075. On Friday of last week there was a purse of $2000 raced for at Brighton Beach and Rowellan was started in it by Golden. It resulted in the fastest three year old race of the year, and took five heats to finish. Nelly Boca, a gray filly by Clay King, took the first heat in 2:18½, and Rowellan won the next heat in 2:15½, and thus "made good" for the story. But he did more. Although Carrie Bel, a bay filly by Lynne Bel (one of Electioneer's grandsons) won the next three heats in 2:20, 2:14½ and 2:17½, and was the favorite throughout, Rowellan was only beaten a head in the fastest heat and contested the fifth and last heat all the way, proving himself as game a three year old as ever trotted in a race. A break in the third heat by Rowellan made the heat a slow one and he finished third, but in every other heat of the race he was first or second, and always fighting for the lead. He is one of the great three year olds of the year and a credit to his sire, Adhell, son of Advertiser and Beautiful Bells. The summary of this race will be found among those of the Brighton Beach meeting published in this issue of the B. & S.

James Thompson returned from the East last Sunday and will again occupy his bachelor cottage at Pleasanton. He says he is still in the ring even though his horses did not win all the money on the grand circuit, and that he will develop another lot during the coming winter and spring. He gives as the principal reason why the California horses did not carry off everything they raced for over East this year that they were not fast enough, which is candid at least. Goshen Jim 2:10½ is now in John Splan's hands, who will try and get him back to the form he showed in California. Thompson says the son of Moses S. could go to the three-quarter pole over there as fast as he ever could, but would then commence to wobble and stagger around and he all out in much slower time than he showed him at Pleasanton in April. The weather affected many of the California horses and the hot wave that lasted several weeks was a regular cooker. It was very oppressive on men and horses alike, although some did not seem to be effected by it. Col. Kirkpatrick, he states, was offered $7000 for his three year old stallion Thornway at Buffalo, but declined it. While Thornway has been up against aged horses in all his starts and has not won, he is considered a great colt and is much thought of by the Eastern horsemen. Mr. Clawson's mare Phoebe Childers 2:10½ lost her temper as soon as the hot wave came, which was before her first race, and would not score down for the word. In nearly every race in which she started they sent the field away without her, which accounts for her poor showing in the summaries. Thompson says Eleata 2:08½ by Dexter Prince is one of the greatest and best mannered trotters he has ever seen in any country, and thinks she will trot to a much lower record than she now has. He relates an amusing experience with Andy Welch, the bookmaker that follows the Grand Circuit, and is proprietor of the Charter Oak and Oakley tracks. He describes Welch as a prince and says it almost removes one's prejudice against bookmaking to do business with him. At Detroit, when Goshen Jim started in the 2:00 pace, won by Sphinx S., Welch had Thompson's horse at $200 to $5 in his book. The California Cicero could not see his horse start at such odds without a bet on him, and had a sort of sneaking idea that he might beat Sphinx S. at that. Accordingly he strode up to Welch's block and holding up $10 asked for a ticket on Goshen Jim. "Certainly, Mr. Thompson," said Welch, "I am pleased to accommodate you." And then turning to his ticket writer said: "Make Mr. Thompson's ticket read $600 to $10 instead of $400." A California bookmaker at a trotting meeting generally reaches for his chamois at sight of a ten dollar piece, and wipes the odds from the slate, and this ticket caused Thompson to have a high opinion of Welch, and incidentally "a d — d high opinion of the favorite."

SATURDAY.

Pacing, 2:30 class—Al Sandy, Toppy, Banker's Daughter, Montanie, Harry J., Advertiser, Penrose, China Maid, Direct Heir, El Rayo, Richard B.

District road race, for Sacramento and Yolo county horses.

Mr. C. K. G. Billings established a unique sort of world's record recently when he visited the Cleveland track and worked out his matinee horses in "Doc" Tanner's care. During the afternoon he drove exactly 15 miles better than 2:15 to wagon—a truly remarkable performance, as the day was uncomfortable and the track far from its best.

Last Three Days at Santa Rosa.

Thursday, the fourth day of the Santa Rosa meeting, was devoted to a running program with the exception that two of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm's trotters were sent against time for a record. Almar-etta, a good looking black mare by Stamboul's son, L. W. Russell, was driven to a record of 2:25 by Geo. Ramage, who also sent a handsome three year old colt by McKinney out of Byo Bye by Nutwood, a mile in 2:29. This is one of the best bred colts in California and the record was simply given him as a precaution. He is expected to trot very fast with training.

The first regular event of the day was a five-furlong handicap with five entries. D. Dunn's Pegalong sold at even money in the betting, with Burrough's mare, Diamond, at the same figure just before the start. Alviso rode Pegalong and McNichols was astride the mare. The position taken at the start was maintained all the way in, Diamond finishing first in 1:02, with George Richardson's Grass, a hay gelding, as her opponent. Pegalong made a hard try for the show, but was beaten by Rector's Pent Etre after a hot drive down the stretch.

A decidedly interesting finish marked the second race, a three-quarter mile dash. McLaughlin's hay gelding, Mike Rice, Tullott up, with a bracket to his credit from Monday's performance, had a narrow escape from defeat by Catherine Bravo, Eddie Carey's mare, but by hard work Tullott saved the day, coming under the wire half a head in front in 1:14.

The third race, a three-furlong dash for previous non-winners, went to Eddie Carey's chestnut gelding Corn Cake, a three year old, with Logue up, carrying 105 pounds. Haskell's Bagdad, a 4 to 1 shot, which looked to have an excellent chance to win, got a bad start, and barely missed losing the place, Hobart's Pilot coming in a pace that would have closed up the gap inside of six feet had the wire been that much further off.

The fourth and last sprint of the day was a mile dash with five entries. Around the last turn it was a procession and the finish was between Whitman's Whaleback and Latta's Pongo, the former a 2 to 1 and the latter a 3 to 1 shot. Whaleback finished first in 1:43½, with Pongo a hot second. L. S. Young's hay gelding Twinkler, which sold as the favorite at odds of 3 to 2, took third money.

Following are the summaries:

To beat 2:31—Santa Rosa Stock Farm's Almoreta, blk m, by L. W. Russell (Ramage), 2:35.

To beat 2:31—Santa Rosa Stock Farm's Moringa King, brs, by McKinney-Bye Bye (Ramage), 2:39½.

First race, running, handicap, five furlongs, for three year olds and upward—Diamond, 4, by Rathbone-Jennie Lind (Burroughs), 1:00, won; Grass, 4 (Slocum), 1:15, second; Pent Etre, 3 (Tullott), 1:10, third. Time, 1:02. Pegalong and Monterey also ran.

Second race, running, three-quarter mile dash—Mike Rice (Tullott), 1:14, won; Catherine Bravo (Logue), 1:05, second; Limber Jim (Hobart), 1:16, third. Time, 1:14. Mountain Dew also ran.

Third race, running, three furlongs for those previously beaten at the meeting—Corn Cake, by The Hero-Mattie Luck (Logue), 1:05, won; Bagdad (McNichols), 1:12, second; Pilot (Hobart), 1:10, third. Time, 0:35½. Doctor Hart also ran.

Fourth race, mile dash, for four year olds and upward—Whaleback, by Imp Duncombe-Orange Leaf (Hobart), 1:15, won; Pongo (Tullott), 1:15, second; Twinkler (Logue), 1:21, third. Time, 1:43½. Gold Baron and Boardman also ran.

Friday was Santa Rosa day, and as the business houses closed their doors a large crowd was in attendance at the track. The harness races did not amount to much there being but two starters in the 2:30 class pace, while El Diablo had a walk over in the 2:12 class. The first race was easy for Toppy, the favorite, and he beat Advertiser in straight heats in good time. El Diablo was sent around the track in 2:13½ for the entrance money in his class and then the runners took possession of the track.

The Ukiah Handicap, a three-quarter dash for four year olds and upward, had five entries. B. F. Hobart's bay gelding, Pilot, and John Whalen's mare Swiftwater, were picked by the bookies as the most likely and quoted at even money. Mountain Dew, a good looking chestnut mare belonging to T. T. Rector, and who finally finished a neat second, was at 3 to 1, with Gold Baron at about the same figure and Pegalong, J. D. Dunn's four year old, a rank outsider. Young Hobart, astride his father bay, was out to win and took no chances. When the word Pilot had a good start, and it carried him into the lead, a position he maintained all the way finishing in 1:15. All kinds of money changed hands on this race.

The fourth race proved a surprise for the talent. The event was a three-quarter mile dash, and the bettors had picked Eddie Carey's David S. for a winner, finally crowding him clear off the board. The favorite was left at the post, however, and Hobart, mounted upon the little chestnut mare, Skirmish, again walked off with the honors. Skirmish had sold as a three-to-one, and the wise ones had hacked her in good shape, so the line-up at the cashier's box was a formidable one. The contest was between Skirmish and McLaughlin's Mike Rice, the latter with Tullott up, and Galeno next in line.

Whitman's Five Shot, a four year old that sold at even money, won the fifth event, Corn Cake, Caesar Young's pet, with Logue up, who was posted as the favorite, finishing second. Pidalia was left at the post, and Bagdad, a youngster of which much was expected, failed to answer to the gong.

The sixth and last heat of the day probably aroused more interest than any other on the card. It certainly resulted in the liveliest betting of the day. It was a local running race for Sonoma county saddle horses, two furlongs and repeat. John L., a hanky sorrel that nobody at first recognized, proved to be a "ringer." He was no other than Barney Schrieber in disguise, an old campaigner with many winnings to its credit. Barney was purchased recently by Dan McGovern of Petaluma, so he was allowed to start, but had to go under his right name. Six entries were shown, but none of the locals were in with Barney, who took both heats in something like 0:24½.

Following are the summaries:

Pace, 2:30 class, purse $500, mile heats, three in five.

Toppy by Delphi-dam by Dexter Prince..... (Whitehead) 1 1 1
Advertiser..... (Lafferty) 2 2 2

Time—2:15½, 2:15½, 2:15½.

Pacing, 2:12 class, purse $500.

El Diablo by Diablo-dam by Elwood..... Walkover
Time—2:13½.

Ukiah Handicap, for four year olds and upwards, six furlongs—Pilot by Morelle-Adelaide (Hobart), 1:16, won; Mountain Dew (Tullott), 1:10, second; Swiftwater (McNichols), 1:15, third. Time, 1:15. Gold Baron and Pegalong also started.

Three-quarter mile dash for Rohrer purse, all ages—Skirmish by War Sign-Lady Lyons (Hobart), 1:17, won; Mike Rice (Tullott), 1:10, second; Galeno (C. Ross), 1:17, third. Time, 1:14. David S. also ran.

Four-furlong dash for the Occidental Hotel purse, named horse and weights—Five Shot by Balkovan-Dignity 11½ (Burlingame), 1:00, won; Corn Cake (Logue), 1:03, second; Gypsy Boy (Tullott), 1:00, third. Time, 0:48. Marcello also ran; left at post, Pidalia; scratched, Bagdad.

Local for Sonoma county horses, two furlongs and repeat.

Barney Schrieber..... 1 1
Mollie Mac..... 2 2
Bessie G..... 3 3

Time—0:24½, 0:25½.

Frank D. and Jack the Bum also ran.

The week's races came to a close Saturday with a program of three running races and a mixed race for local horses. Prior to the regular program the Santa Rosa Stock Farm's stallions Fram and On Stanley were sent against their records made the first day of the meeting. Both succeeded in lowering their marks considerably. The pacing mare Winnie Wilkes, owned by R. P. M. Greeley was also sent for a record and made the mile in 2:23.

The opening event of the day was a local race and aroused much interest. It was a contest for a purse offered for the Santa Rosa Driving Club, and open to both trotters and pacers. The betting was lively, but Grace Brothers' Ole, a son of Silas Skinner and a full brother to Nick Russell, won the race in three straight heats. Cock Robin, owned by Frank D. McGregor, had many backers, and Venus N., a local "phenom" that once sold for $7.30 as a saddle horse and afterward developed a speed of something like 2:17 at the pace, came in for a great deal of comment. The mare was nervous, however, having never appeared in a race before, and did not show to the best advantage. There is no denying the fact that she has speed, but she needs work.

The second event was a three-quarter-mile dash for runners. Gold Baron failed to respond and the contest was between Catherine Bravo, Blue Bell, Coming Event and Mountain Dew showing up in the order named.

The third race was a handicap at six furlongs, and the event was open to four year olds and upward. Lou Cliveden, J. L. Rector's chestnut mare, sold as the favorite, the bookies asking odds of 4 to 5. The start was fair, and at the turn it looked as though it might prove a close thing, but Pidalia, with Slocum in the seat, finished without trouble in 1:15, Lou Cliveden, Pongo and Whaleback coming in the order named.

The fourth event on the card, which closed both the day and the meeting, was a three-quarter mile handicap for the runners, in which there were six entries. The books considered "Babe" O'Connell's chestnut gelding Boardman the most likely, with George Richardson's Gross as second choice. Their judgment proved good in the first instance, Boardman finishing first in 1:16, with Doctor Hart second.

Following are the summaries:

To beat 2:23½—Fram, b s by Direct, dam by Abbottsford, Lafferty, 2:17½.

To beat 2:21½—On Stanley, b s by Direct-Lilly Stunly, Ramage, 2:17½.

To beat 2:25—Winnie Wilkes, blk m by Ray Wilkes-Pet, Doran, 2:23.

Trotting and pacing for local horses, Santa Rosa Driving Club's purse, one-mile heats, three in five.

Time—2:22½, 2:23, 2:23.

Three-quarters mile handicap, three years old and upward—Catherine Bravo (3) by Rio Bravo-Catherine B. (Logue), 1:10, won; Coming Event, 4 (C. Ross), 1:10, second; Blue Bell (A. Hobart), 1:10, third. Time, 1:14½. Mountain Dew also ran.

Three-quarters mile handicap for runners, four years old and upward—Pidalia by Imp. Mallum-Piquante (Slocum), 1:05, won; Lou Cliveden (Alviso), 1:10, second; Pongo (Tullott), 1:10, third. Time, 1:15. Whaleback also ran.

Three-quarters-mile handicap for runners, three years old and upward—Boardman by Willful or St. Charles-Rosewood (McNichols), 1:15, won; Dr. Hart (Burlingame), second; Pegalong (Hobart), third. Time, 1:16. Gross and Monterey also ran.

California favorite hot weather drink—Jackson's Napa Soda.

Laying Up Heats Over East.

['Old Campaigner' in Kentucky Stock Farm.]

"I see by the papers that those judges over at the Columbus meeting had their eyes open and did what they could to stop the pernicious practice of laying up heats. I guess they gave that fellow Durfee enough to hold him for awhile," remarked the Amateur as he folded his morning paper and reached for his timing clock.

"You mean to say that they did one thing and overlooked all the rest of their duties," replied the Old Campaigner. "Of course they yanked Durfee out of his wagon. But I notice the proceedings of the meeting make no mention of any penalty they imposed. If he was cheating them there is something wrong with the backbones of the judges or they would have soaked him at least a hundred, for McHenry went on and won with the horse. I guess they picked Durfee out for a horrible example, not because he busted any more rules than the rest, but because he traveled the greatest distance to get to the meeting. In the light of their failure to punish him I am about ready to conclude that they found themselves in the position of the fellow who proposed to a girl on short acquaintance and found out the next day that when she got herself separated from the artificial fixings that made up her shape she was not real sure which part of her ought to be put to bed. They backed out of it as gracefully as they could by not saying anything further about it. Which was very much like the fellow did I mentioned. He sneaked out of town on the midnight freight and never came back. One of my boys has just blown in from the Grand Circuit and he tells me that if they had given the grand yank to every driver who laid up a heat at Columbus a lot of horses would have been compelled to do the guileless wonder act or go to the barn. And at that I guess they raced horses all right there, even if they did crack the rule against not trying to win every heat. I suppose, though, that you think Durfee is a robber because he was taken out at Cleveland and again at Columbus, and yet it will keep you pretty busy if you start out to prove that he was cheating at either place. I have seen him do some driving and it always struck me that if anybody in the bunch was trying, his name was Durfee. He don't lay up any more heats than Geers does, and Geers don't waste any more time getting ready to win than he has to.

But this fellow Durfee's case is just like a thousand others I might mention. In one way and another he has been unfortunate enough to create the impression that he is not on the square, and the talk about him has grown until it will be a rare occurrence for him to get through a week's racing without having some one go after him. He has some good horses; they are well trained and for what they can do are pretty good goods. He is bound to go between some other fellow and a piece of the money, every time he starts, and that will not help any, no matter how desirable it may be, to him, to have occasion to call on the treasurer and take out more than he paid in. He is a long distance from home, he has no influential friends and when he resents something that is in the manner of an inquiry as to his integrity he is sure to get into a muss. He has landed where he must win about all his races off the reel or make a load for the derrick, and that is bound to keep him between the devil and the deep sea until he gets back into winter quarters. He has not offended any more than a lot of good fellows. But he was picked out for slaughter once and that means he will be seen quicker than some one who is engaged in outright cheating and is at it every time he starts. Some of the summaries we see in the turf papers read mighty funny and the stories that go with them are enough to make a wise man go out behind the barn and laugh himself to death. Half the close finishes we read about are caused by the desperate driving of one man and the desperate failure of another one to see the wire. How much of that sort of work do the judges see? No enough to make it worth mention. And it's just the same with the laying-up heat proposition. And half the time when they pick out a fellow and set him over the fence for not trying to win they land on a drive who has his chocks down and is sweating blood because he has found something in the field that can beat him to a stand-still. That thing has happened more times than you ever dreamed of and will continue to happen until all the race judges in the world get to be mind readers."

"But you do not think it is honest to lay up heats. Men who bet on races want their drivers to win, do they not?"

"To be sure they do. And they get that kind of a drive oftener than they get any other. But the man who bets on a horse race ought to be willing to take his chances, and if he puts his money down on one that is not out to win and the judges are not smart enough to discover the nigger on the wood-pile I do not know that I am called upon to shed any tears on behalf of the loser. If he don't know any more about playing his money than that he deserves to be separated from it."

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 13TH, is the date fixed for the sale of the Palo Alto broodmares advertised on another page in this issue. Further particulars of this sale will be given next week.

STAMBOUL IS DEAD. The famous trotting stallion whose mile in 2:07½ over the Stockton kite track in 1892 made him the champion, and which led to a controversy that ended in the record being rejected by the American Trotting Register Association, and the ruling off the tracks of two men, passed away at the home of his owner, E. H. Harriman, near Goshen, New York, August 17th. Stamboul was bred by Mr. John W. Mackey, the well known millionaire president of the Mackey Cable Company, who owned the mare Fleetwing and presented her with her foal by Sultan to Mr. L. J. Rose. Mr. Rose sold the horse to the late W. S. Hobart, but not for the sum of $50,000 as has often been stated, and after the latter's death was sold at auction in New York, with the other horses belonging to his estate. At this sale Stamboul brought $41,000 and was knocked down to Mr. Harriman, who owned him until the death of the horse last Saturday. There is no need of recounting the story of Stamboul's life here. It is familiar to every horseman. He trotted many wonderful miles at Stockton during October and November, 1892. On October 22d he made a record of 2:10½; five days later he reduced this to 2:08½; November 5th he knocked the fraction from this and took a record of 2:08. November 17th he tried to lower this mark but failed, making the mile in 2:09½, and two days later again failed but trotted the mile in 2:09½. It was on November 23d that he trotted in 2:07½ and snatched the championship from Kremlin, whose record of 2:07½ was made a day or two previous, and thereafter arose the scandal and investigation which started a controversy that has not entirely ended even unto this day. That Stamboul was a great trotter none will deny. His grand appearance and beautiful action will be remembered by every person who ever cast eyes upon him, and in the stud he has founded a family of trotters that are show horses as well. He had to his credit at the close of 1900, forty standard performers, every one a trotter; he was the sire of nine producing sons whose get were all trotters, and five of his daughters had produced standard trotters. Five of his get have records better than 2:15, the fastest being Stamboullette 2:10½. As he has in all probability not more than 200 foals all told, his success in the stud has been remarkable. Stamboul's sons and daughters are noted for their handsome proportions and grand appearance, and in the New York show rings they have carried off many blue ribbons. His sire was Sultan, son of The Moor, and his dam, Fleetwing, was by Hambletonian 10 his grandam was by old Geo. M. Patchon and his great grandam by Abdallah 1.

THE STATE FAIR is bound to be a grand exposition of the State's products this year, and in the way of novelties and new exhibits will be ahead of any previous fair held at the State Capital. The exhibition of live stock will be extensive and complete. Pure blooded cattle of all the leading breeds have already been entered in larger numbers than ever. Messrs. A. P. Hotaling, F. H. Burke and the Milbrae Dairy will show their Holsteins; J. Sparks of Nevada, J. Whitaker and Douglas Cone of California will vie with one another in the exhibit of Herefords; H. Glide, I. Bird, Baden Stock Farm and others will make a fine display with Durhams; T. Waite, Henry Pierce, Peter J. Shields, C. V. Osborne and others have entered many fine Jerseys; Herbert Coil will show the first Brown Swiss cattle ever exhibited at the State Fair, and Mr. H. McNulty will exhibit a herd of Guernseys, the cattle that are leading all others in the butter test at the Pan-American exposition. The exhibits of swine, sheep and goats are very numerous this year and there are forty or fifty breeders of draft and general purpose horses that have applied for stalls. The stock show will be superb in every way and worth going a long way to see. At the pavilion great effort is being made to make the exhibits contain new and interesting features. There will be more animated exhibits than ever before, while entertainment is to be provided for every evening of the fair, that will be not only amusing but instructive. The racing program this year is high class in every way. The first race of the meeting is the famous Occident Stake and it will not be a surprise to those who are acquainted with the horses that will start, if Occident's time, 2:16½, is beaten. There will be two good harness races and three or more running races each day. The fair should attract a very large number of visitors this year.

ANACONDA has again lowered his record and added to the reputation of California as the birthplace of fast horses. At the Brighton Beach track, New York, last Saturday, he defeated Prince Alert 2:02 in straight heats, pacing the second in 2:01½, the fastest heat ever paced by a gelding in a race. The first three quarters of this heat were paced at a two-minute clip, each being in thirty seconds flat, which is a wonderful performance for a horse that was said by many horsemen last year to have reached his limit. The veteran Jack Trout is entitled to his share of this victory. He took the horse last spring with the prophecy on the part of many of his friends that he never would be able to win with him in his class. Mr. Trout has grown gray in the horse business, but he can show many of the younger men a trick or two yet handling a horse and has demonstrated it with Anaconda. On form thus shown Anaconda is the only pacer in training that has a license to pace in two minutes this year and the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN hopes he may do it and equal or beat Star Pointer's record and that Jack Trout will hold the reins when he does it.

STALLION OWNERS should make a special effort this year to have as many of the mares as possible that were bred to their horse, named in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, $6000 guaranteed, which closes October 1st. It is due every stallion that stands for service as a trotting or pacing bred horse that his get are entered in races. That is the only way in which he can acquire a list of standard performers that will do him credit as a sire. Every stallion owner should send Secretary Kelly a list of the names of parties that have patronized their stallions this year, together with their addresses, that entry blanks may be sent them, and they will also be sent to all who apply for them. The Breeders Futurity for the produce of mares bred in 1900 closed with a big list of entries and will be a great success, and the new one for the produce of mares bred this year should attract a still larger list, as there are twice as many mares bred.

CRESCEUS, THE CHAMPION, will be in California in November this year. His first appearance will probably be at Sacramento under the auspices of the new driving club recently organized there. Mr. W. O. Bowers, the well known proprietor of the Capital Hotel, and one of the leading spirits of the driving club, has been corresponding with Mr. Ketcham, owner of Cresceus, and the date of the exhibition will probably be November 9th. There should be standing room only at the Sacramento track that day.

THE TWO HANDSOME STALLIONS pictured on our title page this week are the property of Dr. J. J. Summerfield, the well known veterinary surgeon of Santa Rosa. Dr. Summerfield's practice keeps his entire time occupied, so he has concluded to sell both these fine animals and will send them to the State Fair this year for that purpose. They are both first prize winners and magnificent specimens of the French Cotech and English Shire breeds. See the advertisement.

FOURTEEN $500 PURSES offered by the Golden Gate Racing Meet, to take place at the Oakland track the week following the State Fair, will close two weeks from to-day. Seven are for trotters and seven for pacers. Remember the date of closing—September 7th.

ENTRIES CLOSE TO-DAY to fourteen additional harness races to be contested at the State Fair this year. Read the advertisement in this issue and make your entries in time.

Horses for Japan.

On the steamer City of Peking which left this port for Japan last Wednesday was a large consignment of standard bred horses consigned to the Japanese government. There were eleven young stallions and four mares from the celebrated Village Farm near Buffalo, New York, a description and pedigree of them having already appeared in the columns of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN. These were shipped to this State some time ago and have been at the Rancho del Paso, near Sacramento, for the past few weeks.

The representatives of the Japanese government, Messrs. Benji Hirosawa, Chief of the Horse Breeding Section of Agriculture and Commerce, Tokyo; J. Yasui, Director of the State Stallion Depot, Kumamoto, and B. Iebijo, Supervisor of Horses for the local government at Tokyo visited Palo Alto farm and selected from among the young stallions there, the handsome and well bred yearling Luzon by Mendocino 2:19½ (sire of Idolita (3) 2:12 and Monte Carlo 2:14½) son of Electioneer. Dam Sallie Benton (4) 2:17½ (the world's record for three year olds in 1884) by Gen. Benton 1755. She is the dam of Serpol 2:10, Starlight 2:15½, and Nordica (3) 2:19½. The grand dam of Luzon is the celebrated broodmare Sontag Mohawk, by Mohawk Chief. She is the dam of Eros 2:29½, Sallie Benton (4) 2:17½, Sport 2:22½, Sonoma 2:28, Colma 2:25½, Conductor 2:14½, Mohawk 2:15½ and Serenada. 2:25. Luzon is one of the finest individuals that ever left the famous Palo Alto Farm.

Ketcham on Maud S.'s Record.

Mr. Ketcham says he is having a wagon built for Cresceus and will surely make the attempt to lower The Abbot's 2:05½ to a wagon record as soon as engagements permit. In speaking of Maud S.'s 2:08½ mark to the high wheel sulky, Mr. Ketcham recently remarked: "Just drop that record and let no man ever try to deprive the glorious old mare of her well earned honors. She is dead, so cannot defend herself, and it is too much like kicking a man when he is down."

"Some may see added glory in my lowering that old time record, but I shall never try, as I for one do not wish to see Maud S. dethroned. She was the true queen, ever the public's idol, and let her have all due honor, even at this late day, for we all should take off our hats in reverence to her very name."

That is true sentiment, and will appeal to the general public. Few care to see the modern trotter hooked to the ancient sulky.

Death of W. C. France.

W. C. France, the well known Kentucky horse breeder, died August 10th, in New York City. He was 74 years of age and had but recently returned from a pleasure trip to Europe. Mr. France sunk a million dollars in the trotting horse business. He was the owner of Highland Stock Farm, near Lexington, where Red Wilkes, Allendorf, Sentinel Wilkes, Allie Wilkes and other noted stallions were kept, and where many fast trotters and pacers were bred. Mr. France was for many years a member of the Louisiana State Lottery Company and made enormous profits from it.

Palo Alto Stock Farm will exhibit at the State Fair, Sacramento, twenty-four standard bred mares, possibly thirty-six, all regular breeders, stunted in 1901 to popular and producing sires. These mares are by Advertiser 2:15½, Electioneer, General Benton, Altivo (4) 2:18½, The Moor, Piedmont 2:17½, Electricity 2:17½, Dexter Prince, Lottery, Wildidle, Billy Newell, Sultan and Wildnut. During the last week of the Fair these mares will be sold by Wm. G. Layng & Co.

The Monterey Agricultural Association will not give a fair this year. This association usually gives one of the best fairs and race meetings and has a fine track and grounds at Salinas. Next year, however, it will be in line.

Readville Meeting.

The Grand Circuit horses have been racing at the famous Readville track near Boston this week before very large crowds of enthusiastic spectators. The Blue Hill stake, $5000, for trotters of the 2:30 class, was the feature of the program on Monday. It was won by Country Jay in straight heats, best time 2:11½. None of the California horses started.

On Tuesday Audubon Boy won the Norfolk pacing stake, $5000, and made a sensational race of it by beating Shadow Chimes, the favorite, owned and driven by Ed Geers. Audubon Boy reduced his record to 2:06½ in this race. Mr. Goodall's pacer Rajah finished in sixth position in the field of twelve. Toggles again showed his class by winning the 2:10 trot, beating Little Dick, Temple Wilkes, Sister Alice and Janice. He won in straight heats, best time 2:11½.

The three year old trotter Admiral Dewey, son of Bingen and the former champion mare, Nancy Hanks, performed up to his reputation and pedigree by defeating all the best three year olds of the year in straight heats and making a record of 2:14½, a great performance for his first start. Carrie Bel was second and Rowellan third. The California horse Vic Shellar by Hambletonian Wilkes won a heat in 2:15½ and got third money in the 2:19 trot in a field of fifteen starters. This is a record for the horse who is owned by Geo. Y. Bollinger of San Jose.

Onward Silver, thus far an unbeaten horse, won the Massachusetts stakes, $10,000, and defeated the great mare Eleata 2:08½, winner of the M. & M. Onward Silver took the third, fourth and fifth heats in 2:08, 2:10½ and 2:11½ after Eleata had won the first and second in 2:09½ and 2:09. There were nine starters in the race, among them Dolly Dillon, who was outside the money. Eula Mae was a starter in the 2:14 trot won by Susie J. in 2:13½ and 2:13 after Miss Whitney had taken a heat in 2:12½. Eula was fifth in the summary. There were fifteen starters. The California mare Listerine was among them.

On Thursday Cresceus, Charley Herr and Lord Derby raced for $2500. Cresceus won in straight heats, distancing Charley Herr in the first. The time was 2:07½ and 2:06. The last quarter of the second heat was in 29½ seconds, the fastest last quarter ever trotted in a race.

Sue started in the 2:12 trot but was last.

Attorney General Knox, who owns the trotters Wert and Dr. Leek that he drove last year to pole in 2:10½, recently spoke as follows of the performance: "When I drove Wert and Dr. Leek in 2:10½ to pole and broke all records at that way of hitch for amateur or professional, they did it well within themselves. All I had to do was to steady them, give them an occasional word of encouragement, and they did the rest. The mile was the more wonderful from the fact that the track was not in the best of condition, as it was badly torn up from a matinee given over it the day previous. A few days later I drove the pair a half in 1:04 flat."

If during the circuit this year some of the tracks over which your horses race are hard and unyielding, owing to lack of moisture or insufficient harrowing, the horses may become sore and lame. The 'hammer, hammer, hammer, on the 'ard, 'ard road' makes many a horse so sore in the muscles and cords that he can hardly move. This is where that great California remedy, Vita Oil, can be used with excellent results. It will positively remove the soreness and will positively not blister. It will cure many other ailments and is as useful in the household as in the stable. All druggists and harness dealers have it for sale.

The three year old pacing stallion Silver Coin 2:16½ by Steinway 2:25½ is out of Jennie Mc. 2:09 by McKinney 2:11½, and is the first standard performer out of a daughter of that horse. He made his record in the second heat of a race at Donvor, and also won a heat at Minneapolis. Silver Coin was bred and is owned by Dr. W. P. Book, Los Angeles, Cal., and is in W. G. Durfee's stable.

Sacramento Driving Club.

[Sacramento Record-Union.]

The Sacramento Driving Club, a comparatively new association, is meeting with excellent success in securing membership, and its charter already contains nearly a hundred names of leading citizens and lovers of speedy animals. The club was formed with the avowed purpose of promoting the building of good roads in Sacramento county, and there is every indication that the club will become a powerful factor in fostering this object, as the members are enthusiastic and persistent.

That they are being recognized in outside localities is evinced by the fact that the directors of the Yolo County Fair, which will be held at Woodland next week, have offered a special purse for a race between members of the Sacramento Driving Club, and five members of the club will take their special pets to Woodland and compete, the race being set for the 28th inst., with the following entries: L. S. Upson names Regina F., H. A. Bell names Pansy, F. J. Ruhstaller names Monroe B., C. W. Paine names Peo and P. E. Wright names Baby Button (owners to drive).

Amongst the speedy roadsters owned by the membership of the club are some of the cleverest horses of this class in the State, some of whom have won honors in contests on the track. L. S. Upson's Regina F. won the road race at the State Fair of 1899, stepping a mile in 2:21½ drawing a buggy. She also won the road race at the Breeders meet this year, making the circuit in 2:19 flat.

Frank Ruhstaller Jr., is the proud possessor of the hay horse Monroe B., that has gone the route in 2:20 and is capable of faster work.

Harry Bell's Pansy is the clever little brown mare that captured the purse in the drummers' race of last season's State Fair, and can travel the distance in shafts any time in 2:21.

C. W. Paine has a very "peart" performer in Peo, who has a record of 2:23½, and has stepped a mile in 2:19½ without driving. Just what the animal is capable of doing will be demonstrated this year, as he will go at the Woodland and Sacramento track, during both fairs, and much is expected of him. Peo is a handsome bay.

P. E. Wright owns a handsome bay mare in Pearl Sinclair, who is a half sister to Kelly Briggs and Baby Button, and has paced a mile in 2:16½. The little beauty is only three years old, and as she is entered in a pacing stake for three year olds at the State Fair, she will probably cut her record down materially, as she is conceded to be very speedy. Mr. Wright is also the owner of Baby Button, a handsome bay horse who has done as well as 2:16½, and he also includes in his string a four year old by Bay Bird, out of a sister to Beautiful Belle. Bay Bird has been driven only three months in harness, and has done as well as 2:35½.

William Trust has a good one in the brown horse Candy Joe, that has stepped a mile in 2:20½, and is capable of a far better performance.

J. H. Batcher is the owner of Captain Hackett, that has a hard luck record that probably has never been equaled in the history of the turf. The horse is a clever performer and can go the distance in 2:15 flat; has been raced for six years, and never won a heat in his life, owing to the fact that he has always chanced to be thrown into too fast company. His owner certainly cannot be charged with looking for the best of the game.

T. J. Hanrahan is the owner of a big, rangy gray horse in Gray Ghost. The Ghost is hard to dust on the road, and can trot in road vehicle in 2:18½. Just what time the gray can make is as yet unknown.

William Sayres owns a very fast pretty brown mare. She has never been raced, and but little can be said of her until she makes her record.

Mr. Collins hanks on his bay horse Hobo, which has stepped as good as 2:14½, and is very clever on the road.

Mr. Ennis has a bay horse, the got of Stanton Wilkes 2:10½, that is a good goer, but is as yet untried, and W. E. Grant has a green pacer that he purchased from the late Dr. Pinkham, and which is also untried, but is regarded with great suspicion by the other members of the club, as he said to have speed to burn.

These are but a few of the swift animals which will be expected to uphold the honor of the club on the track, and the fastest of these flyers will be in evidence at the State Fair road race, when the Sacramento Driving Club hopes to win the trophy over all other like organizations in the State.

Shadow Chimes, of the Village Farm stable, broke the record for green pacers the past week by winning his first heat in 2:07½. It was the second heat of the 2:24 pacing class at Buffalo. He won the third heat in 2:09½, and the fourth and the race in 2:07½. The previous record for green horses was made in the same race a year ago, and was one-half of a second slower.

In hot weather there is no drink like Jackson's Napa Soda—plain or in a lemonade.

SULKY NOTES.

Anaconda 2:01½.

Woodland meeting begins Monday.

Dan Patch 2:04½ by Joe Patchen 2:01½.

Alameda 2:09½ by Altamont has been fired for a bowed tendon.

According to reports from Boston the sum of $12,000 has been refused for Anaconda.

Al Sandy was worked out a heat in 2:18 at the Sacramento track last Saturday.

Whippoorwill by Charles Derby worked a mile at the trot in 2:16 at Cleveland last week.

The Woodland track is said by horsemen to be the fastest track in the State this year.

Sphinx by Electioneer is the only sire that has put two in the 2:10 list this season so far.

Toggles won the 2:10 trot at Readville last Tuesday in straight heats. His best time was 2:11½.

Anaconda not only beat Joe Patchen in a race but he has now beaten the old favorite's record.

Shadow Chimes 2:07½ is the sixth 2:10 performer for Chimes and the fifth out of a Mambrino King mare.

Coney 2:02 will be used in the New York speedway this fall. He can pace a mile in 2:05 without hopples.

The blood of Kentucky Prince is prominent this year in Eleata 2:08½, May Allen 2:09½ and Helen Grace 2:11½.

Budd Doble drove The Roman two miles at Cleveland, August 9th, the first in 2:13½, the second in 2:12½.

Although over 80 years old, Mr. C. J. Hamlin says he expects to live to see a trotter cover a mile in two minutes.

Creseus may appear at Overland Park, Denver, October 31st, and the report is that Lottie Smart 2:08 will go against him.

The pronunciation of the name of the champion trotter Creseus is so it will rhyme with "precious." The name is that of a famous chariot driver in Caesar's time.

Searchlight 2:03½ has lost his temper and is practically of no use as a racehorse, it is said. He has not started in any of the Grand Circuit races in which he was entered.

John A. McKerron trotted 2 mile to wagon at Cleveland August 10th, in an effort to beat 2:12½. He made the mile in 2:11 flat. The quarters were 0:33½, 0:31½, 0:34 and 0:32.

Princeway by Steinway won first heat and second money in the 2:22 class pace at Olean, New York, August 9th. His winning heat was in 2:19½. There were eleven starters.

The California bred horse Rupee 2:11 is the sire of I. T. Washburn 2:15½, a pacer that has been winning over East this year after being driven in a butcher's wagon for five years.

The pacing wonder Beauseant, that trialed 2:07½ last year, started in the 2:15 pace at Brighton Beach but was among the "also" crowd at the finish. The heats were all in 2:10 and a fraction.

Antazella 2:10½, at Fort Erie two weeks ago, is now Anteeo's fastest performer. His dam is by Gny Wilkes out of Eva 2:22½, by Sultan, next dam Minuehaha, the dam of Beautiful Bells.

Eula Mac 2:17½ made a good showing at Brighton Beach. She was third in the race won by Wauban in straight heats in 2:12½, 2:11½ and 2:13½. She must have trotted some to win third money.

De Veras 2:11½, full brother to Rey Direct 2:10, was favorite for the 2:09 pace at the Poughkeepsie meeting, but had to be content with second money. He was second to Exploit, however, who won in 2:10, 2:10 and 2:11½.

Prince Alert 2:02 made his first start of the year at Poughkeepsie, August 9th, in the free for all pace, where he met Connor, Indiana and Klatawah. He won in three straight heats, and the time was 2:05, 2:04½ and 2:07½.

The pacer Frank Derby reduced his record at Port Huron, Michigan, August 14th, winning the last three heats of a four heat race and pacing in 2:14½. This is another 2:15 performer for the Oakwood Park stallion, Charles Derby.

Chas. Marvin won the 2:30 class trot at the Elks' Fair at Lexington, Ky., August 13th, with Cardimon, an inbred Electioneer, being by Electric Bell out of Rusenele by Electioneer. The time of the three heats was 2:20½, 2:21½ and 2:23½.

Lenora, a four year old filly by Mendocino, was the contesting horse in nearly every heat of the 2:30 trot at Long Branch, New Jersey, August 8th, and took third money. She was second in three heats and very close to the winner in 2:17½.

At Cleveland last week Harry Stinson drove his sensational two year old, Farrington by Gandair, a quarter in 32½ seconds and a half in 1:07. The colt trainer has also recently driven Mary Gage, a yearling by Ora Wilkes, a half in 1:18. Stinson thinks the latter as bad a yearling as there is in the country.

W. G. Durfee and C. E. Clark are the only California trainers that have done well in the East this year. Both have won well with their horses.

Sir Albert S. 2:08½ will start in the 2:15 class pace at Woodland, on Thursday of next week. Those who are at the track on that day will see some fast time.

Don Derby, full brother to Dishlo, went a still better race at Poughkeepsie than he did at Albanv. He was beaten but a half length in 2:11½ and got second money.

The four year old filly Marquesa by Dexter Prince, dam Mary Lodge by Electioneer, reduced her record to 2:19½ in a winning race of five heats over East last week.

L. H. Fisher, of Silverton, Oregon, has bred his mare Bertha S., a full sister of Winella 2:24 by Altago, to Zombro 2:11. Bertha S. has a two year old trial of 2:40 and is a handsome and fast mare.

Lauretta, bay mare foaled in 1894 and sold at the Cleveland sale in 1899 for $810, was second in 2:15½ at the Poughkeepsie meeting and took second money in the race. She is by Norris and was bred at Palo Alto.

There was some lively betting in the 2:08 pace at Brighton Beach. Before the race Dan Patch sold for $1000 in the pools against the same amount for all the others. Several pools brought a larger sum, the highest containing $2600.

Thirty-six broodmares from the Palo Alto Stock Farm will be sold at auction at Sacramento during the second week of the State Fair this year. The sale will be conducted by the well known and popular auctioneer, William G. Layng.

Edith W., winner of the 2:06 pace at Columbus, sold for $5 in the pools of $100 before the start. The winner reduced her record from 2:06½ to 2:05½, while the other heat winners, Hetty G. and Bonnie Direct tied their former records of 2:05½.

Janie T., by Bow Bells, dam Nida, by Monon, died August 14th at the Suburban Stock Farm. As a two year old she won the Kentucky Futurity and took the world's race record, 2:14, for fillies of her age. She was in foal to Directum, 2:05½.

David Cahill is quoted as stating that Charley Herr 2:07 is not a "little horse," as he is spoken of by some, but that he weighs 1200 pounds and stands fully 16 hands high. He says the man who places him as a small horse has never seen Charley Herr.

Willie Osborn, a bay gelding by Chas. Derby, was a close second in 2:21 and won second money in the 2:30 pace at Warren, Ohio, August 8th. He is one of the lot sent over to the Cleveland sale two years ago and will pace to a record below 2:20 before long.

Clausoy 2:21½, a little bay mare now driven on the road in Brooklyn, defeated Creseus 2:02½ in the now famous stallion's first race. It was trotted at Circleville, Ohio, July 21, 1895, when both were two year olds. Creseus won second money in 2:37½ and 2:36½.

Dark Wilkes, the pacer, by Dark Night, dam by Wilkes Boy, who took a record of 2:09 at Brighton Beach, Tuesday, and was distanced later, died Wednesday morning from congestion of the lungs. He was owned by the Prospect View Stables, Woonsocket, R. I.

Philbon W., brown gelding by Hambletonian Wilkes, won a five-heat race at Worcester, Mass., August 10th, and made a record of 2:18½ in the third heat. There were eight starters in the race. This makes the third new performer for Hambletonian Wilkes this year.

Georgena 2:07½ made her first start (since she won the Charter Oak Stakes at Hartford last year) at Elkwood Park last week. She led her field to the wire in straight heats in 2:12½, 2:13½ and 2:13. Ida Howe, the dam of Georgena, was bred and owned by the late Captain Ben E. Harris of this city, who sold her for $10,000.

A tabulation of the pedigree of the mare Eleata 2:08½, winner of this year's M. & M. will show in the fifth remove such blood as that of the imported thoroughbred stallions, Glencoe, Mickey Free, Albion, and Margrave and that of the native thoroughbreds Virginia Whip, American Eclipse, Blythe's Whip, Martin's Brimmer, Mambrino, and Heury.

Ollis McKinney is the name of a bay mare by McKinney 2:11½ that started August 14th at Davenport, Iowa. She was one of the eight starters in the 2:40 trot which was won in three straight heats by Summer Morn, a bay mare by Election Bell, in 2:14½, 2:15½ and 2:15½. The McKinney mare was just outside the money, her best heat being the third when she finished fourth and trotted the mile in 2:17½.

The fall race meeting of the Vancouver Jockey Club will be held on Saturday and Monday next, August 31st and September 2d. The principal events are the free for all trot or pace, which is carded for the first day, and the Labor Day Handicap for runners at a mile and a half, set down for Monday. The purse for each of these races will be $300.

It is said that Tom Marsh has another phenomenal trotter that he is saving for next year's M. & M. She can trot miles in 2:12 and repeat right now. She came from Palo Alto, as Eleata did, and her name is Juntorio. She is by Altivo 2:18½ and her dam is Jennie Beuton by General Beuton. They paid $2100 for her at the same sale at which they bought Eleata for $900.

Rio Alto, 2:16½, the ten year old son of Palo Alto 2:08½, has been shifted to the pace and started at Newburg, New York, August 14th in the 2:34 pace for a purse of $300. There were fourteen starters in the race and Rio Alto got second money, his positions in the summary being 1-3-10-10. The time of his winning heat was 2:24½. The remaining heats were won by Duke Sheldon in 2:21½, 2:21½ and 2:22.

Ei Milagro, the brown colt by McKinney out of Adelina Patti, the dam of Margaret Worth 2:15, that Rudolph Jordan bred and sold at New York as a yearling for $700, must be a pretty speedy four year old. He has not won a race or a record as yet, but has started two or three times in fast company and made a good showing. At Brighton Beach last week, he was but four or five lengths behind the winner in 2:13½ and trotted the mile separately timed in 2:15½.

Humboldt Maid 2:13½ is earning considerable money this year for her present owner. She started in the free for all trot at Kokomo, Indiana, August 15th, and won first money after a hot contest of seven heats. In the summary she was 2-4-4-3-1-1-1 and the time was 2:16½, 2:17 for the first two heats, 2:19½ for the next four and 2:19 flat in the seventh and last heat. Humboldt Maid is now ten years old and has been raced every year since her two year form. She is a credit to her sire, Waldstein.

Dolly Dillon trotted the last half of the heat she won at Brighton Beach, timed separately in 1:01½, and Percy of the New York Telegraph says "it cooked her goose." The heat was in 2:09½. Such a burst of speed is enough to "cook the goose" of any horse that is racing in a big field of fast ones, and although Dolly Dillon could not beat Geers' Onward Silver in the race, we notice by the summaries that she was 2-3-2 in the remaining three heats, which is evidence that she is as game as they make them.

The famous race horse Nelson 2:09, although forgotten on the turf, is as handsome as ever at the age of 20 years. Nelson is still owned by Charles Horace Nelson, of Waterville, Me. At one time $100,000 was refused for Nelson and a large sum could be obtained for him even now, were his owner willing to sell. It is a familiar sight to Waterville people to see Nelson, the horse, following Nelson, the man, around the streets, standing alone and unbitted in the noisiest places, and taking bits of sugar and cookies from the hands of the children. Maine horsemen regard Nelson as the grandest animal that ever wore harness and the stallion is the pet and pride of the city where he was bred and has his home.

Copper and green, the late Marcus Daly's racing colors, will be seen on race courses for the last time this year when the Kentucky Futurity is trotted. Joe Rea, the Bitter Root Farm trainer, has already gone to Kentucky with the colts entered in the big event and a few other stakes for two and three year olds. Dr. Haggard, the farm's veterinarian, will sail from New York this week for England to gather up forty odd thoroughbreds belonging to the Daly estate which are on a breeding farm which Mr. Daly leased. These horses, principally broodmares and colts, Dr. Haggard will bring over to New York and they will be sold there about the same time that the trotters from the ranch are put up at auction. That will end the horses of Bitter Root Stock Farm, as the young trotters which Mr. Rea is taking will be sold with the rest after filling their engagements.

During the Brighton Beach meeting at New York last week W. G. Durfee sold to C. K. G. Billings, the Chicago millionaire, for the sum of $4000, the handsome gelding Dr. Book 2:10, son of McKinney 2:11½ and the great broodmare Leonor, by Dashwood. It is Mr. Billings' intention to try and win the cup race at Cleveland next month with this fast trotter, and as the race is best two heats in three there is no doubt but Dr. Book will be able to give John A. McKerron 2:09 quite an argument. While he is a very fast horse Dr. Book does not seem able to fight out a long race when the heats are in 2:10, but he can go two up to that notch, and is thought equal to a single mile in 2:07 or 2:08. Leonor, his dam, is by Dashwood and the greatest broodmare of her age in California. She was foaled in 1884 and has a record of 2:24 at the trot. She has four standard performers, three of them with records better than 2:15, viz: Jenny Mac 2:09, Dr. Book, 2:10 and Miss Jessie 2:13½. Her other representative is Judd, 2:24½.

The San Jose Mercury of August 20th contained the following: The Gentlemen's Driving Club of this city contemplates holding a race meet on the 8th and 9th of September at Agricultural Park. Several members of the club own some very fast horses and there is at present quite a dispute on between several of them as to whose horse is the fastest traveler. An effort was made to get the races on the official program of the Admission Day celebration, but not being successful the races will be held independently. The chief event at the meet will be the race for horses with records of 2:15 or better. Those who contemplate entering horses in this event are G. Y. Bollinger, J. W. Rea, Thad Hobson and Tom Rea. There will be another event in which the following persons will enter horses: Charles Becker, C. M. Barker, Dr. Nash, "Footsie" Hartman, E. N. Ellworth and H. G. Angevine. Besides the open races there will be several match races, making an excellent program.

"Advocates of thoroughbred blood in the trotter," writes Gurney Gue, "have called Creseus 2:02½ an accident and a horse of poor breeding because more than two-thirds of his ancestors in the fifth remove are unknown, and only one of the thirty-two is thoroughbred. Disciples of J. H. Wallace, on the other hand, call Creseus one of the best bred horses which ever held the world's record. They say his pedigree is strong, if not long, and that he has the best sire and dam of any champion in the list. They base this statement on the fact that Robert McGregor 2:17½ got more game trotters of 2:15 speed than any other sire of his time and opportunities, and that no other mare in the stud book ever produced two such fast, game, successful trotters as Anderson's Nightingale 2:10½ and Creseus 2:02½, the produce of Dority's Mabel. Neither Robert McGregor nor Mabel was fashionably bred, yet both were standard bred, tracing to such sources of speed as Almont, Alexander's Abdallah, Ryskyk's Hambletonian, Mambrino Chief, American Star and Pilot Jr."

The Saddle Horse Situation.

Nearly every saddle horse dealer in New York who caters to high class trade has an open order, unlimited in price, for the best saddle horse that can be found.

It is not a lack of buyers. It is a shortage of horses. The especial demand is for show horses and purse strings are loosed. Each man and woman interested in the shows wants a winner and is willing to pay for it. They can win money on the track in all kinds of shapes or mishaps, it matters what not, but beauty of form is demanded in a winning saddle horse in the show ring. This market is the most exacting of all. The horse is first demanded, then education and instincts command full price nowadays. Standards are different now from those of the days when "hulls" and cart horses won in the saddle classes because they could "carry weight." Horses that really look lonesome without a plow, now ribbons in the saddle classes at Eastern shows a decade ago. They want a real saddle horse now—one with beauty, style and finish, with educated mouth and guits and with a disposition that reveals breeding in saddle horse blood.

In naming the essentials of a high-priced saddle horse—handsome form, education and disposition—we rate them in the order of their relative importance for show ring purposes. We make no doubt, however, that the time will come, if it is not already here with many good patrons of the saddle horse, when disposition will rank first instead of last in the list. An ill-shaped horse is offensive to the educated artistic eye, but for practical purposes and for safety such a horse of suitable disposition is far more valuable than an animal beautiful in form and finish but reprehensible and unreliable in disposition. With unvarying insistence the Gazette has preached the breeding of saddle horses from saddle horse blood, knowing how beyond all price is the disposition, the instincts, usually obtained from such breeding. The saddle horse is far more of a companion to his owner than the harness horse, and much of the enjoyment from such a horse is derived from this comradeship. Disposition is almost priceless in a saddle horse.

But the show ring takes scant note of it. It is there the passing show and flashness wins. It is true that generally in the saddle-bred horse disposition and beauty are found in conjunction—certainly to a greater degree than in any other equine type, but some of our prize-winning horses shown to success in skillful hands have not been altogether ideal park horses. The time allotted for judging a ring of horses is all too short to discriminate sharply in this direction, and the show horse wins—just as he should. But breeders should not lose sight of the fact that disposition is gold in a saddle horse.

Curiosity will be at a keen edge as to the new candidates for public favor which will be uncovered by the fall shows. Trainers are husily at work. Most of the buying has been done and the candidates are being asked the question in numerous schools. Let us hope that many a worthy new one will be presented, and also let us hope that all may be rationally and accurately judged.—Breeders' Gazette.

Huggins, the Horse Trainer.

John Huggins, the American trainer of race horses, who won the English Derby for William C. Whitney with Volodyovski, has been the unconscious cause of much heated argument on the part of turfmen in America who knew him before he went to England to train for Pierre Lorillard.

From somewhere the report came that Huggins, who, by the way, has been rechristened "William" by the English newspapers, had abandoned American training methods and adopted the system in vogue in England. Absolutely nothing could have been said about Huggins that would have so stirred his friends and admirers in this country, for everyone who knows Huggins knows him for the most conservative of men. That at his time of life he should give up the customs that he has practiced since he first saddled a horse, away back in his old quarter-racing days in Texas, none who has the slightest knowledge of the man will believe.

It is recalled of him that years ago he commonly departed from the custom of "warming up" horses that he believed to be delicate or unduly nervous, and he varied his training methods in many other ways to suit the individual horse, doing things in that connection that caused much comment in the old racing days on the New York race tracks, but in the end almost invariably being justified by the results achieved.

One thing introduced on the Eastern tracks by Huggins that still stands as a monument to the ex-Texan's ability is the custom of having a companion horse attend high-class racers when they are being prepared for a race. Huggins one day discovered that a pony that Lamplighter had become attached to served better to keep the horse quiet when he was being prepared for a race than all the grooms that could be got around the horse. The pony soon became a fixture, and other trainers followed the example set when they saw the effect the companionship had. Hugging introduced many other things that are less in the sight of the general public, and when he went to England, there were few of his fellows who did not agree in the verdict that he was one of the ablest trainers of horses that the turf had ever seen.

The idea that the great Huggins could learn anything from any English trainer is repudiated on all sides, and, as one of the exile's admirers put it in the course of an argument at the sheephead bay race track: "Huggins could forget more than the English trainers ever know and then beat them when it comes to sending horses out to win races."

In point of fact, Huggins has made a marvelous record in England, where he trained successfully first for Pierre Lorillard, next for Lord William Beresford, and now for Mr. Whitney. In no case did he have really first-class material, yet he won races for all of them, and actually put Mr. Lorillard's stable well up on the winning list with a rather ordinary lot of selling plate horses.

"His Ruling Passion Strong in Death."

Every Iowa running-horse man that knows enough about the business to know which end to take the feed to, will remember Edwin Butcher, "Old Butch," and its a good bet that, from the wealthy breeder who breeds runners for amusement, down to the little black crap shooter that walks them in the morning "just 'case I loves them boss, 'case the dew is so good for their feet," all were sorry when they learned that "Old Butch" had "crossed the range."

He lived and died in Camanche, Clinton county, Iowa. He saw several generations of horsemen and horses come and go. He was the king of his kind locally, and yet the horse papers hardly mentioned his passing. I remember him well. He was about five feet four inches high, and about four feet five inches wide, with a head shaped like Daniel Webster's and a face of a Roman senator. He allowed his hair to grow so long that it hung about his shoulders, and wherever "Butch" was, there was fun. He would bet on anything, from the turn of a card to the comparative length of two rye straws, or the truth of the doctrine regarding the Trinity. If there was no other way to take a chance, I think the old man would have taken a friend to a straw stack and pulled straws with him at $5 a pull until he moved the stack.

He was strong on poker, and long on faro, but doted on running horses. He was a staff to his friends and a terror to his enemies while he was mad. Withal, he was honest, the best neighbor you ever saw, kind hearted and generous, and would always stake a loser and advise him not to "go against the game any more."

The boys say that during his last sickness he was visited a number of times by itinerant ministers and exhorters, desirous of obtaining fame by converting the most wicked man in the country. "Butch" gave little heed to those who visited him first, but later one came who seemed to interest him. At this time, a number of his neighbors (all of whom loved him) and a number of horsemen and general all round sports were anxious about his condition, and were present. "Butch" cross-examined the minister on the advisability of repentance at that late day and its effects. He asked in substance whether there was grace sufficient for the pardon of a poker player. The minister assured him that there was. Then he inquired about there being enough for faro players. He was again assured that there was plenty. He then inquired about running-horse men, and was assured that the tougher the candidate, the more grace there was. He then inquired about Heaven, and the minister described it after the orthodox idea. "Butch" asked the minister finally whether he (the minister) had been pardoned and would go to Heaven. The minister answered that he was on safe ground. He then asked whether if he ("Butch") repented, he would be allowed to sit in to the same game. The minister assured him that he would. He then said, "Then you'll be an angel." The minister replied, "Yes." "Butch" then said, "I'll be an angel." The minister replied, "Certainly." "Butch" said, "You'll have wings." The minister said, "Yes." "Butch" said, "I'll have wings." The minister said, "Yes." Then "Butch" said, "I'll tell you what I'll do, I'll bet you $500 to $250 I can out-ly you, when we get there." During all this conversation, "Butch's" friends (under the impression that death must be nigh) were feeling very badly, but when "Butch" offered to make the flying match with the preacher, their fears and sorrows instantly disappeared, and the sporting portion began betting on how soon the old man would be dealing faro and attending the races again. As a matter of fact, he did get better, but had a relapse later and died. Peace to his ashes.

I am afraid that he violated all the Commandments at one time or another, but, notwithstanding this, if there is a reward after death for honesty, tender-heartedness, generosity, and for those who have contributed most to the happiness of their fellows, it is more than an even "break" that "Old Butch" is where the light falls softly, where the tracks are always good, the judges always honest, and that he has a harp to play on between beats.

The poolroom men at Maspeth, L. I., on Metropolitan avenue, were fleeced to the extent of several thousand dollars on Tuesday of last week, by a band of clever operators who maintained a special telephone service between the Brighton Beach track and a pay office near the poolroom. One of the hand mounted a telephone pole near the track, where he could command a good view of the course. If a horse had a good lead in the homestretch he would communicate the fact by a flag signal to a confederate in a telephone booth not far away. The latter telephoned to another confederate in the Maspeth booth and the latter would signal the colors to another confederate stationed at a poolroom window. The latter would at once place the bet. In this way the operators got their news three minutes ahead of the Western Union communicator to the poolroom men and won so much money off the latter that they had to close at the end of the third race.—Spirit of the Times.

The Pleasanton Times of last week contained the following: Wednesday evening Will De Lopez met with a painful accident. In the afternoon a carload of horses arrived, and about 7 o'clock De Lopez and Tony Neal started to drive them to the former's ranch. When a short distance across the bridge at the head of Main street the horse ridden by Mr. De Lopez in front of the band fell and caught him underneath. He was extricated with some difficulty by Tony Neal, and assistance arriving he was hurried to Dr. Herisher's office. An examination showed a severe dislocation of the right shoulder and numerous bruises and scratches. It will probably be some time before he will entirely recover from the effects of the fall.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonades and be refreshed.

Mike J. Kelly, who was at one time one of the best jockeys of this Coast and in late years a successful trainer, died near Carson, Nevada, last Sunday, at the home of his sister where he went some weeks ago in the hope that the climate might benefit his health. Kelly was at one time in the employ of Porter Asho and rode the famous mare Geraldine to many a victory. In 1893 Kelly entered the employ of Thos. H. Williams, Jr., and during the past few years trained one of the strings of the Burns & Waterhouse stable, meeting with considerable success, notably with the horse Ed-dio Jones. He was married to a daughter of Dan Denison, the well known horseman, who, with his father and four sisters survive him.

Doings in Dogdom.

The owner of a brindle Bull Terrier can find a purchaser by addressing the Kennel Editor.

Some high-bred Cocker Spaniel puppies, both red and black, are offered for sale in our advertising columns.

We would like to hear from any one desiring to sell a Mastiff—a dog. Must be over two and under eight years old.

Pointer puppies, ready for breaking this fall, and also broken dogs by some of the best bred Pointers on the Coast can be procured through the announcement on page 15.

Some blue-blooded English Setter puppies are offered by Stange & Henning in this issue. The young Setters are beautifully marked, and will be ready in a few months for field training.

Mr. M. G. Carnochan has purchased recently in England six Fox Terriers, one of them Hot Stuff, the big winner at Cruft's Show. It is reported that the lot cost him $1750. Evidently the defeat his dogs met with has not had a dampening effect on his ardor.

A St. Bernard dog of more than average good quality will be disposed of at a bargain by the present owner, who finds that he has not the facilities for further keeping the dog and is desirous of procuring a good home for him. See advertisement on page 15.

In the recent loss by the Vancroft Kennels of the well bred and frequent prize winning bitch Ch. Rule Britannia the Bulldog interest of this country has undoubtedly lost the influence of a valuable brood bitch. She was by Ashton Lion out of Frisky Matron, a breeding that has the liking of knowing Bulldog fanciers.

The following have been winners of various amounts at Union Coursing Park, from January 1st to June 30th: Palo Alta won $1600, Wedgewood $867.50, Sisquoc $797.50, Flying Fox $602, Harlean Gladys $565, Sir Pasha $550, Little Sister $462, Vandal $452.50, Game Boy $387.50, Dewdrop $367.50. A grand total of $6649.50 for the principal winners. This list does not include hundreds of minor wins for individual dogs that won a course at odd times.

"Dog Days" are so called from Sirius, the most brilliant of the fixed stars in the head of the constellation Canis Major, or the Greater Dog, and include the period from July 3d to August 11th. During this period this star and the sun rise within the same hour, and the ancients who worshipped the dog attributed the existence of summer to the influence of this constellation—a superstition which has been perpetuated to the present day in the use of this term.

The Colorado Kennel Club was recently organized at Denver, Col., and elected officers as follows: C. E. Cochran, President; W. Ballantyne, Vice-President; W. H. Kerr, Secretary, and C. M. Wilcox, Treasurer. The directors are Major William Cooke Daniels, Harry Leo, F. A. Burgess and C. M. Madden. Walter Cecil Cox was appointed to bring in a list of dog fanciers in the city, and, if possible, in Colorado. The committee on constitution and by-laws is Messrs. Ballantyne, Burgess and Kerr.

A splendid opportunity for a fancier of the lordly Great Dane is offered by the sale notice of two good ones. Beau Brummell II., No. 56041 A. K. C.—this dog is by Blinker Murphy—Una Que Amo and has been a winner at every show he was entered, commencing with the May show, 1899, when he won first puppies, novice and winners. St. Leonard, No. 60378 A. K. C., is a young dog of good style and quality. He is by Beau Brummell II. out of Donna Juanita, and is also a ribbon winner.

L. A. Klein dropped in our sanctum the other day. He reports several nice sales recently and has one or two good things up his sleeve which will shortly materialize. He is pleased at the prospects for Clay-ton's Dog Medicines, which he claims are coming into steady demand. On dit, he will soon have fitted up a perfectly appointed and conveniently located kennels which he will devote to the uses of the local and Coast fancy.

Since arriving on the Coast, Klein, who is a thorough cosmopolite, has temporarily laid aside his distinctive tourist costume and shook his whiskers and has now the faculty of giving an Eastern visitor a cross fire of local questions that would side track an old resident.

The list of entries for the Pan-American show at Buffalo reaches a total of 927. The entries by breeds are as follows:

St. Bernards 29, Great Danes 35, Bloodhounds 2, Deerhounds 3, Greyhounds 13, Russian Wolfhounds 12, Bassetounds 2, Foxhounds 27, Beagles 43, Pointers 31, English Setters 64, Irish Setters 27, Gordon Setters 18, Sporting Spaniels 91, Collies 48, English Sheepdogs 2, Poodles 22, Bulldogs 63, French Bulldogs 7, Boston Terriers 33, Bull Terriers 50, Fox Terriers (smooth) 74, Fox Terriers (wire) 48, Airedale Terriers 6, Irish Terriers 23, Scottish Terriers 30, Black and Tan Terriers 21, Welsh Terriers 2, Skye Terriers 12, Dachshunds 15, Yorkshire Terriers 7, Toy Terriers 2, Pomeranians 38, Pugs 5, Toy Spaniels 32, Whippets 1, Schipperkes 2, Miscellaneous 9. Total, 927.

Plumeria Fancy, owned by E. C. Plume, of this city, although entered for the Buffalo show, was not sent East. This good Cocker bitch has been so ill recently that it was thought at one time she would join the canine majority.

A quarter of a century is surely a long time for the conduct of a business in one location. A circumstance which must argue strongly in favor of the goods offered and business methods employed. Commencing with a stock of Imperial Dog Remedies and an office comprising but one room at 1293 Broadway, New York, Dr. Glover's business steadily increased from year to year until room after room was annexed to keep pace with a growing demand for Imperial remedies which has spread from the United States and now takes in Cuba, the Hawaiian Islands, New Zealand, Australia, the West Indies, England and the Continent. Where the "old stand" has been conducted for the past twenty-five years is now the center of a bustling retail business, the march of improvements has consequently decreed that the building must be pulled down to make way for a modern department store. Dr. Glover writes us now that he has moved to new and commodious offices at 1278 Broadway street, one door south of 33rd street, on the east side of Broadway. It is needless for us to say that the genial Doctor has the well wishes of his old time California friends.

Clough, Golcher & Co. are the State agents for Dr. Glover's Imperial Dog Remedies.

The Kennel Club show in London is the representative English bench show; this is the annual swell function in doggy circles over there. The roster of judges, always a good one, is an interesting one and can be regarded as a representative list, almost, of the leaders among the English amateur fanciers. The show commences on October 1st and lasts three days. The judges announced are:

Mastiffs, St. Bernards, Newfoundlands, Great Danes, Mr. J. Cummings Macdonald, M. P.; Irish Wolfhounds, Deerhounds, Borzois, Mr. W. Herbert Singer; Chow Chows, foreign dogs, Mr. J. S. Turner; Otterhounds, Greyhounds, Retrievers, Bulldogs, Mr. Harding Cox; Pointers, English Setters, Gordon Setters, Mr. F. C. Lowe; Irish Setters, Mr. Hubert M. Wilson; Irish Water Spaniels, Mr. Trench O'Rourke; Spaniels, Mr. H. E. Gray; Collies, Mr. A. H. Megson; Old English Sheepdogs, Mr. W. G. Weager; Beagles, Dr. C. C. Bullmore; Bassetounds, Mr. C. Garnett; Dalmatians, Black and Tan and Bedlington Terriers, Pomeranians, Mr. F. Gresham; Poodles, Griffin Bruxellois, Comte Henry de Bylandt; Toy Bulldogs, Mr. B. Marley; Bull Terriers, Mr. W. J. Pegg; Whippets, Mr. H. Vickers; Airedales, Mr. H. S. Mitchell; Fox Terriers (smooth), Mr. J. A. Doyle; Fox Terriers (rough), Mr. W. E. Pitt; Pitts; Welsh Terriers, Mr. F. Hayward Field; Dachshunds, Mr. Harry Jones; Irish Terriers, Mr. Mayhall; Skye Terriers, Clydesdale Terriers, Mr. James Pratt; Scottish Terriers, Mr. H. J. Ludlow; Dandy Dinmont Terriers, Dr. J. W. Smith; Schipperkes, Mr. G. J. Ross; Pugs, Mr. T. Proctor; Japanese Spaniels, Mr. E. W. Murphy; Toy Terriers, Yorkshire Terriers and Maltese Terriers, Mr. C. H. Lane.

The American Stock-Keeper pertinently directs attention to some facts about Cocker dogs that will be worthy the attention and investigation of our fanciers. When the "crocodiles" and "caterpillars" are weeded out Cocker will be bred on wholesome lines:

"There were Cocker dogs in England before this country knew the breed and although our general run is superior, so they say, to the English showing at the present day this is perhaps due more to the number of breeders here and the popularity of the Cocker as purely a show dog. It is food for thought, however, that imported dogs and bitches usually win. The change in the standard of weight limits is the outcome of a theoretical idea that the Cocker will be bred more uniform in size. But listen to what Mr. C. A. Phillips, judge of black Cocker at Shrewsbury show, (Eng.), has to say over the result of this short weight limit, and the English limit, is one pound heavier than the American limit, therefore the following applies with even greater force, and moreover it proves that there are still some judges who are sensible enough to recognize the danger of the toys and who pick out a more desirable size. Mr. Phillips says: The black Cockers were pretty numerous, but that is about all that could be said. Twelve months ago I wrote about the danger of getting them too small, and if this is the result of our 25 pound limit, let us at once raise it by five pounds, or make a minimum weight. Many of them were not only toys in size, but the goggle eye was most pronounced, and I fear my dog, Toronto, was responsible for the existence of some of the exhibits. I placed the three largest I could find at the top. It really was refreshing to find the colored ones a little different. John Bull is a beautiful little dog, very straight in front and grand color, but his undershot jaw will always penalize him. Ben Bowdler, who won, is a very nice blue roan of quality throughout, but I should like him better a shade larger. The black and white Nourseme Sportsman is another good stamp of dog; he just loses in quality and bone to the others.

The hitches were headed by Braeside Judy, a bitch of grand substance, perhaps some might say a trifle on the leg, but I never put my hand on one so fit or better across the loins. Colesbill Countess is a liver and white, a little short of the quality of the winner, but with the appearance of a true worker. Daphne Boodler is full of quality, lovely in type, but too small.

There is food for thought in the above, and a meaning that cannot be pooh-poohed."

Speed of Dogs.

The following from the London Mail is a good illustration of some things that men do not know when they talk about horses and dogs. Foxhounds are of good speed and endurance it is true, but four miles in the time given below is a stretch of imagination purely French in its inaccuracy. The record time at this distance for a thoroughbred horse was made by Lucretia Borgia at the Oakland track, May 20, 1897, four miles 7 minutes, 11 seconds. Possibly the dog beat the horse in a 20 yard sprint and the race for four miles was computed on that basis.

M. Dusolier might possibly gather some interesting statistics concerning the respective speed qualities of Greyhound and hare—or jack rabbit as the animal is popularly known here, were he to visit the Union Coursing Park and see some of the sprinting which takes place there regularly. An attendance at the Merced meeting, where four and five-mile courses have not been unusual, and at times a "jack" escaping the dogs at that, would give him further material for calculation. In fact, a number of good dogs have been done to death on the Merced plains as well as at the coursing parks here. His deduction, that the Greyhound is one of the swiftest of quadrupeds, is well warranted, but "cut out" the carrier pigeon comparison.

Comparatively few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. Some interesting statistics in regard to this have been gathered by M. Dusolier, a French scientist.

After pointing out the marvelous endurance shown by little Fox Terriers who follow their masters patiently for hours while the latter are riding on bicycles or in carriages, he says that even greater endurance is shown by certain wild animals that are akin to dogs.

Thus the wolf can run between fifty and sixty miles in one night, and an Arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better.

Nansen met one of these foxes on the ice at a point more than seventy miles northwest of the Sanikiluk territory, which is 80 miles from the Alaska coast. Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel forty-five miles on the ice in five hours, and there is one case on record in which a team of Eskimo dogs traveled six and a half miles in twenty-eight minutes.

According to M. Dusolier, the speed of the shepherd dogs and those used for hunting ranges from ten to fifteen yards a second. English Setters and Pointers hunt at the rate of eighteen to nineteen miles an hour, and they can maintain this speed for at least two hours.

Foxhounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in six minutes and a half, which was at the rate of nearly eighteen yards a second.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four-footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English Greyhounds, which are carefully selected, and which are used for coursing, are able to cover at full gallop a space between eighteen and twenty-three yards every second.

How great an achievement this may be judged from the fact that a thoroughbred horse rarely, if ever, exceeds nineteen yards. Moreover, it is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of eighteen yards.

These interesting statistics are exciting much comment among sportsmen and other lovers of dogs, and the opinion is unanimous that M. Dusolier has fully proved the right of the Greyhound to rank as the swiftest of the quadrupeds. Express engines only surpass them.

Some people eat asparagus hot, some eat it cold, and some people never eat it. The latter make the nicer people to camp with.

Otto Muser, well known to the Eel river steelhead anglers, writes John B. Lemmer from a resort in Switzerland, that he is improved in health and will probably be back in this city in a short time. We are glad to note Mr. Muser's improvement in health.

Twenty-five thousand Loch Leven trout fry will be placed in Lake Webber by the Board of Fish Commissioners. This will be most pleasant news to the angler. This trout does well in the lake and is a game fighter, an entirely different fish from the Loch Leven caught in the river, where it is claimed the fish becomes somewhat sluggish.

Last Sunday three anglers, "Teddy" Broad, "Billy" Mersfelder and "Harry" Maddox trolled the deep water just north of San Pablo point and hooked 23 striped bass weighing 130 pounds. The party were compelled to stop fishing sooner than they desired, their tackle was all carried away by, it was believed, larger fish than any they had taken in their boat. They used Wilson spoons, the largest fish weighed 16 pounds.

J. A. Pariser, J. Bliss and F. H. Allen trolled for striped bass in the water near the Two Brothers on Sunday. Ten fish were caught with the Wilson spoon; the largest weighed 8½ pounds. Al Wilson made a good catch again in San Pablo bay on Monday.

Captain Walker, of the Petaluma Gun Club, has a record for July of 228 striped bass, which he caught in the waters of Petaluma creek. He made it a rule to return to the water every fish under two pounds weight.

Fishing in the ocean surf on the southern coast, and particularly at San Pedro is becoming a very popular sport. The month of May is one of the best of the year for surf fish, as the fish then begin to bite in earnest. Surf are not a very popular fish with the amateurs, as their method of biting is decidedly discouraging. They frequently content themselves with nipping off the bait, and either escape scot free or tear loose when the fisherman attempts to lift them. They must be let alone when biting, and are surer to hook themselves by running against the weight of the sinker than by being jerked. The veterans set the click on their reels and let their prospective fish alone until the whirr of the click tells the story. Even then the fish frequently tear loose. Their mouths are tender and their strength great.

Small hooks and small baits win out with surf. Their capture is pre-eminently the patient man's game. Once hooked no fish of equal weight surpasses the California corbina in game qualities. The fish put up the most desperate kind of a fight in the early summer, and tackle of the best is needed to withstand them. Averaging a pound and a half, individuals of three and even six pounds are occasionally met with, and they must be handled with consummate skill.

If hooked in the honey roof of the mouth, only a hook of the best temper will withstand their struggles. Hooked in the lips, they frequently tear out. This difficulty in catching surf, and their delicacy when properly prepared, are the reasons for the popularity of the fish among those who know.

What must have been the king fish of the river was hooked late one evening recently at Verdi by Mr. Remy Fredericks. He had been whipping the river pools and other likely spots with fair success, so far as moderate size fish were concerned. The afternoon waned into evening but the angler was loth to quit. As the darkness grew, and it darkens rapidly in the Sierra valley through which the river runs, Fredericks proposed to stop fishing, but just one more cast and then he would leave the seductive banks of the stream. He put out his line, it was so dark that he could not see the fly light on the water near a sunken log—when he got a strike that almost paralyzed him with astonishment. Whirr! went the reel and away ran a good hit of line before he put the hutt to the fish. He immediately realized he was in for a fight with a large fish to be handled with lighth tackle. The fish fought savagely and took all the line he could get. In reeling in, the line became hooked on the spool and the reel was then useless. He lowered his rod and took it in gradually, hand over hand, when he came to the line the tension was so strong that the silk almost cut into his fingers. The fight was now carried on in the dark, he could hear the fish splashing about but could not see it. Finally it seemed as if the fish had lodged somewhere in the water and that it would be impossible to lift the skulker from a chosen refuge. Getting desperate he slowly pulled in the line, the fish, to his surprise came in inch by inch apparently, when with a last desperate flurry and splash the fish came to the surface seemingly and—the tension ceased and Fredericks pulled in his line. Upon examination afterwards the leader and flies were found intact. For several days thereafter the memory of his struggle with the big fish was so strong as to drive away thought of aught else.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

Sabbath Day Fishing in Massachusetts.

In Massachusetts it is a misdemeanor to fish on Sunday. What sort of a revolution would ensue if an attempt were made to incorporate in our statute books a similar law is not very hard to conjecture. That the law had become irksome in that state, and particularly so with the Boston anglers, is noticed by a recent concession made by the Fish and Game Commissioners in the following order to deputies appointed for the enforcement of the fish and game laws:

"By order of the board, it is not deemed incumbent upon this commission to attempt the enforcement of the Sunday fishing law, and prosecutions under this law now pending will be withdrawn. This is not to be understood as preventing the arrest of parties fishing on Sunday in ponds closed to fishing on that day under chap. 208, Acts of 1897, or in brooks wherein fishing is prohibited on Sundays under chap. 284, Acts of 1900. Until otherwise ordered, the deputies of this commission will not attempt to prevent trout fishing during August in any part of the commonwealth. Deputies are earnestly enjoined to carefully observe this order."

According to the provisions of this order, those wishing to go fishing in the harbor or along the coast line on Sunday can do so without fear of being arrested and hauled into court.

Several deputies zealously enforcing the so-called Sunday Game law in the last year have made a vigorous campaign along the south shore coast line. Not only those persons detected fishing have been arrested but any fisherman caught in the act of baiting a hook or having bait and lines aboard his boat was subjected to arrest and fine, not to speak of the inconvenience of being placed in jail in a suburban town and the attendant trouble of procuring bail. Nearly every Sunday during the summer months many respectable and usually law abiding persons were caught fishing in some quiet spot along the coast or Boston harbor front.

Numerous complaints were accordingly filed with the Commissioners, which body, looking at the matter in a broad-minded manner, issued the above order. This will, no doubt, meet with popular approval by thousands of Eastern sportsmen and possibly also, evoke fanatical protests, if nothing more formal, from some shallow puritanical sticklers for the old time sombre and sanctimonious observance of the first day of the week, which was generally followed by a day of penance known as "Blue Monday."

Heretofore fishing on Sunday in Massachusetts, whether in salt water or in ponds closed to fishing, has been considered fishing in closed season, and a double fine has been imposed on all persons caught fishing on that day.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Bushnell, John B. Coleman, Frank Ireland and the Messrs. Quinn left on Thursday for Campbell's Hot Springs, where snipe shooting and brook trout in the splendid streams of that district will enable them to enjoy a profitable outing until the advent of the frosty nights when the party will proceed to Wehoer lake. The fishing in the lake will be fine as soon as the surface water is cold enough to tempt the big fish to quit feeding in the colder depths of the mountain lake.

Reports from the Truckee state that the stream is high again and bait fishing is more successful than fly fishing.

At the Traps.

The second contest for the Phil B. Bekeart perpetual challenge trophy cup took place at Ingleside on Sunday. A. J. Webb again won the cup with the creditable score of 95 out of 100. The race was most interesting from start to finish. Otto Feudner, who scored 93, immediately challenged the winner for another race, to take place next month. The weather conditions were most uncomfortable, the day being about the most disagreeable, in fog and wind, that has been noted at the resort this season. The scores in the race were as follows:

Webb, A. J. 22 24 25 24—95
Feudner, O. 23 21 23 23—93

A cold, foggy day was possibly the reason for the slim attendance of Olympic Gun Club members at the August club shoot. The 15 hird added money races were not billed last Sunday, the ontry of shooters not filling out to the necessary twenty in order to shoot for the club purses. Gold and silver hars were however won by several shooters, A. J. Webb winning one gold and two silver hars, making straight wins of 25 and of 15. Otto Feudner also won several gold and silver hars. M. J. Iverson was high gun in a 25 hird pool and won a gold har, breaking a straight string of blue rocks. A summary of scores of the club race and several other events is the following:

Club race, 25 targets—"Slade" 21, O. Feudner 22, F.

Feudner 23, H. L. Miller 17, A. J. Webb 23, F. H. Justins 17, F. W. King 17, E. Forster 18. Back scores—F. W. King 18, O. Feudner 21, H. L. Miller 19.

Jack rabbit race—Iverson 14, Otto Feudner 13, A. J. Webb 13, Fred Feudner 13, Hart 10, Cooper 12, McVeigh 13, F. W. King 12, Edgar Forster 13, Work 5.

Pool shoot at 25 hirds—Iverson 25, F. W. King 23, O. Feudner 23, Slade 23, F. Feudner 23, Webb 24, Forster 23.

The final live bird shoot of the San Francisco Gun Club will be held at Ingleside tomorrow. This race will be at twenty-five pigeons, five previous club shoots having already taken place, each at 15 pigeons, thus making the shooters' quota of hirds 100 each. Ten men have already shot up the past five club scores, the five high men are tied with 69 hirds apiece out of 75, members who have missed two consecutive shoots are barred from the prize competition. The high gun for the season will be awarded an elegant diamond medal. The other shooters who have competed in the six monthly club shoots will be divided into four classes—the total number of members on the list will be divided into four squads, beginning with the highest down to and including the lowest score. The two high guns in each class will receive $30 and $20 cash prizes respectively. There is an element of chance and luck in this distribution that makes the probable winners a hard guess to name. The standing of the club shooters is shown in the following schedule:

(March, April, May, June, July): Jackson, 15, 11, 15, 14, 14—69; Karney, 15, 15, 13, 12, 14—69; Klevesahl, 14, 13, 13, 12, 14—64; Murdock, 13, 14, 14, 13, 15—69; Wands, 13, 13, *, *, *, F. A number of pigeon shooters kept the traps at Ingleside busy for a while last Sunday. With the local talent were several visiting sportsmen. G. W. Hinkle (Sensaboy) who has not for several years shot at the local traps. T. A. Work, Jas. Rico and Ed McVeigh, now of Tucson, Arizona, and formerly of Visalia, all thorough sportsmen and good trap shots. "Sensaboy" was in good form and grassed a string of 15 pigeons in fine shape. Dr. McConnell and Ed Donohoe kept pace with the visitors. In a special race at 15 hirds the two latter shooters tied. The scores made were the following:

Cartridge and Shell.

Ducks have been coming in to Sierra Valley recently in great numbers. Quite a number of ducks have been noted in various districts not many miles distant from this city. Flocks of grey geese have already made their appearance in the Sacramento Valley.

A deer hunting party composed of "Pat" Boland, "Dave" Harefield, "Tom" Cleary, "Boh" Nolan, "Dick" Jones, George Hoyt of this city and Otto, Carl and Fred Haehl of Cloverdale recently enjoyed an elegant outing for two weeks at a point on Rancheria creek close to the Point Arena road and 42 miles from Cloverdale. Seven hucks were bagged and the camp larder was supplied with a plenty of delicious brook trout. Few doves and tree squirrels were bagged. Plenty of valley quail were noticed in the district. The boys brought 120 pounds of venison "jerky" to the city. These sportsmen go out together every year.

A magnificent specimen of the taxidermist's art was seen a few days ago in the studio of H. F. Lorquin. A large stag elk, with perfect branching antlers, was mounted on a pedestal; the skill of the taxidermist made the animal appear as if alive and calmly contemplating the admiring visitors to his sanctum. This elk was the property of an Oakland citizen, W. J. Dingee, and was kept in an inclosure adjoining that gentleman's residence. The stag had shown such a bad temper lately as to become dangerous. Accordingly he was shot by Mr. Lorquin, then properly mounted, and is now installed as the emblematic guardian angel in the hall of a lodge of Elks in Oakland. On page 15 is announced Mr. Lorquin's claims to the attention of collectors and sportsmen.

The hunting and fishing information dispensed lately by a morning daily has the charm of being exquisitely amusing to many sportsmen, the added spice of a lamentable ignorance of matters pertaining to the game laws makes the matter exceedingly valuable as a matter of sporting news; for example, in speaking of the Point Reyes Sportsman's Club the writer seriously avers that "according to the rules of the club, does, fawns and spiked bucks must not be shot at any season of the year." Then as a most palatable sporting outcro, he states that "a happy party will leave this city to-day for a four weeks' stay in the Sierra valleys and mountains where fish and game of all kinds are plentiful." The country mentioned might be gone over in an airship in the space of time mentioned, but we doubt it. Possibly the writer knows where sturgeon and flying-fish can be yunked out of some secluded mountain lake, or where the "rhinosorassus" and the "wild whangdoodle" can be hunted and bagged in some of the dense pine forests of the Sierra slopes.

In the vicinity of Harbin Springs, Lake county, several fine bucks have been killed since the 1st inst. One of the largest bucks ever oagged in the county was recently brought down by James J. Jeffries.

Achille Roos, W. L. Gerstle and Col. H. B. Hosmer arrived in Eureka, per steamer Pomona, last week. The party were destined for a hunting and fishing trip of three weeks' duration on Pilot creek. The outfit taken along was complete in every respect for an enjoyable camp life outing. An incident occurred on the steamer trip that enabled Mr. Roos, who is quite versatile in his abilities, to show his surgical skill. A fellow passenger was suffering from a badly injured knee. Mr. Roos brought into use the resources of his medicine chest and accomplished much in alleviating his fellow passenger's suffering. His efforts at surgical practice were so successful that by common consent he was called Doctor Roos on ship board and later by many citizens of Eureka. The hunting party were looked after by Dr. Harold Gros of Eureka, who, although not accompanying them into the hunting district, placed the visitors in charge of competent guides through a splendid country for game and fish.

The Sequoia Hunting and Preserve Company, an association composed principally of Redwood City sportsmen, has recently been organized and steps have been taken to establish a hunting preserve on the marsh west of the salt works. A tract of land containing 400 acres between Westpoint slough and the bay shore has been leased from the Sweeney heirs for a period of four years with the option of purchase and a contract has been awarded to L. S. Bean to erect a club house and wharf on the slough. The dimensions of the building are to be 24-40 feet and it will contain a dining room, kitchen, bath and bedrooms. Harry Lovie has contracted to bore an artesian well from which it is expected a sufficient flow of water will be secured to flood a number of ponds which are to be located at various points throughout the preserve. The work of constructing these ponds will be done by the Japs who performed the dyke work for the salt company, and it is expected that the ground and buildings will be ready for use before the opening of the duck season in October. The promoters of the scheme are Frank M. Granger, George Genocchio and Harry Lovie. It is intended to limit the membership to fifty, applications for nearly that number having already been received. The members will be required to pay dues to a small amount and will be permitted to hunt one day each week, in which time they will not be allowed to kill more than forty birds. The preserve will be in charge of a keeper who will be clothed with authority to enforce the game laws of the State and county. Members who desire to remain over night at the club house will be furnished with accommodations and meals at a nominal rate and will be transported to and from the premises free of cost. Everything within the place will be arranged with a view to comfort, even to a degree of elegance. The improvements about to be begun will cost in the neighborhood of $1000. As the needs of the association increase additions will be made from time to time.

Marin county has been prolific in stories of adventure with the wild inhabitants of its mountains and forests and also of many curious doings of the denizens of the waters of its shores and streams. Last year we were regaled with the sensational story, one of a series, of a combat between sea lions and cougars, which animals got together and mixed up on a rock in Tomales bay. The ingenious purveyor of sensational stories has opened the campaign this season with a good one as follows:

A fierce duel between a wild cat and an eagle was witnessed on Sunday afternoon by two gentlemen of San Rafael as they were returning from Bolinas. It resulted in a victory for the bird, which killed its adversary and made an attempt to hear away its carcass.

"I was about half way up the Bolinas side of the ridge when my attention was attracted to a patch of short sagebrush on the hillside above the road," said one of the observers in describing the fight. "That there was something doing was evident from the cries and the sound of breaking brush that came from a small clearing in the center. Clouds of dust arose above the short brush as two objects tumbled (?) about on the ground. For some time I watched the spot, unable to determine what the combatants were. My friend and I both resolved to referee the fight, but from a distance.

"After we had watched for several minutes we were surprised to see a large eagle rise from the brush a distance of about ten feet and then swoop down again and continue the fight. It did this several times, until finally after one of these fierce onslaughts there was only a brief struggle and then the commotion ceased.

"Soon the great bird soared upward, carrying in its talons a large wildcat. I was not more than eighty yards distant at the time. The cat wiggled and clawed weakly. The eagle had it by the back. After the bird cleared the brush with its prey it sailed over the canyon to the west, gradually rising in its flight. After crossing Bourne Gulch the bird began to soar upward until it had attained a height of perhaps 500 yards. Then its prey fell from its talons, and, like a tiny dark speck, shot downward to the gulch below. The eagle, after losing its burden, made several downward swoops after it as the cat was falling. These seemed to be only half-hearted efforts, however, and the bird sailed away over the ridge toward the Lagunitas timber. The eagle had about a ten-foot spread to its wings."

Until a few months ago eagles were almost unknown in this county. About two months ago Thomas Sutton, a vaquero, lassoed one at Novata.

A new invoice of L. C. Smith and Parker Bros.' guns just received. Some 12 gauge duck guns now in stock are unsurpassed. For quail and snipe shooting and also for ladies' use, we have a special lot of 16 gauge guns. H. E. Skinner & Co., 416 Market Street.

Panther Hunting in India.

An English sportsman gives the following interesting account of a panther hunt, which took place in a district of India notable in the "old days" as being a grand country for big game.

One of my favorite shooting grounds is at a tiny village some twelve east of Wiranpur, along the old trunk road. The road has not been metalled or repaired in any way for very many years, but most of the bridges remain intact up to the present, though they are not likely, judging from their appearance, to do so much longer. In fair weather one can drive out conveniently in a tonga, if one does not mind undergoing a considerable amount of jolting and the chances of breaking the springs of the above conveyance en route. Several times during the past season I have driven out from my headquarters at Wiranpur, and have made some very fair bags of peafowl, hares, sandgrouse, partridge and quail in the fields and scrub jungle near this village. Close by too, are some nullahs which still contain a certain number of rather stunted trees, and some thickets and shady bushes, and in one or other of these panthers are often to be found, though not many are nowadays obtained within any reasonable distance of the old cantonment. Some few weeks ago a friend, who accompanied me, was fortunate in bagging a very fine male panther under the following circumstances:—

One afternoon last March we drove out to the village of Dewalgaon, and while walking along the top of the plateau on which the hamlet stands, we found the fresh marks of a panther leading into a deep and shady cora. The grass and cover had not been burnt off, as is usual by this time of the year, and the whole valley was full of long dry grass, thick bushes and tangled undergrowth while here and there a few stunted trees were to be seen. At the lower end of the cora, where it widens out into the open plain, can be seen the road to Wiranpur, and an old masonry bridge spanning the nullah, which runs down the middle of the cora. We sent for a few beaters and they carefully beat the cover, as far as it was possible, but no panther showed up; either he was not there, or most probably, he "sat tight," while the noisy gang of villagers passed by. We tied up a bleating goat under a clump of mhowa trees, which were now in full bloom, making the air redolent with the sickly and somewhat disagreeable smell of their flower, so loved by man and beast in jungle tracts. Next day we found the unfortunate goat had been duly slain by the spotted thief, and again we flogged the bushes without driving him out. The goat had been completely devoured, or any rate dragged off and hidden, for all that remained were patches of blood and hair, and the contents of the unfortunate creature's stomach.

The panther, we found from his tracks, had gone off to a nullah not far away, in which was a well with a pool of water close by. The nullah was of the same type as the one in which the kill had taken place, only narrower, and if anything, the cover was denser, although there were no trees, the only approach to such being some high thorn bushes, covered with creepers. It was a nasty beat, as the long grass and thick bushes made hope of anything but a snap shot unlikely, and a more unpleasant and disadvantageous position to encounter a wounded beast in, it would be hard to find. Leaving the men at the head of the nullah, N. and I went round to the lower end of it, and took up our positions, one on each side of the valley, which, at this point, widened out considerably. As I crossed the nullah to my selected position some peafowl flew heavily out of the bushes close by, and I was much tempted to seize my gun from the coolly accompanying me, to take the easy shot they offered me. Having reached my place we signalled for the beat to be in, and the usual uproar was at once commenced by the burghers of Dewalgaon. The heat was terrific, and it seemed a long time before the first signs of wild life, a few peafowl, were seen far up the nullah. Suddenly, at a place about half way between us and the head of the valley, the beaters came to a stop, and some who were high up signalled to us to come to them. We moved towards them as fast as the rough ground, clinging thorn bushes, and, worst of all, the intense heat of the midday sun, would permit; and when we reached the place were told that the panther had moved down the nullah at the beginning of the beat, but on coming to a small open space had turned back, entered a dense thicket, and now refused to budge. It was hard to know what to do, but finally we decided on trying to make him move, even a short distance, in the hopes of a shot being possible. Accordingly N. stood on the bank opposite a small clear space, and I clambered into a thorn bush overhanging the nullah, in order to have a shot if he passed underneath; the beaters then redoubled their yells, and hurled volleys of stones (and abuse) at the panther's retreat, which eventually had the desired effect, for he dashed out roaring down the nullah. N. fired and almost immediately I saw the beast tearing towards me through the long grass, he did not seem to be hit, and as he passed I fired, but apparently with no effect, the cover was so thick I hardly saw him, and he was gone in a moment. Now came the difficulty. I thought he was not touched, N. was sure he had hit him. We went down the nullah but could find no tracks, no blood, no sign of any sort, and were fairly puzzled as to what to do. Some men went right back up the nullah to fetch water from the well, and on returning one old fellow said he had heard the panther, which he declared was dying in a clump of thorn bushes close to where I had seen him last. It seemed possible, although several men had gone close by the spot indicated shortly before and the brute had given no sign of his presence; so we went to see what was to be seen. Not a sound was to be heard, and not a sign of the panther could we discover until, suddenly, one of three or four men, who were out of our sight on the far side of the cover, called out, "there is a smell of the panther," or some such words, and almost simultaneously there was a growling roar and yells and cries, the purport of which I knew only too well. We could see nothing, and all was over in a second, after which silence reigned again, which was, however, broken by the moanings of two unfortunate wretches, who staggered towards up from the far side of the nullah to which they had fled when the wounded beast, for we knew now he must be wounded, made his charge.

A hasty examination of the injured men showed that one was only bruised and slightly scratched, the other, a miserable little dher, was badly mauled in the left upper arm, and covered with scratches; we wound him up and sent him off to the village to be taken in at once in our tonga, to Wiranpur, for treatment.

The panther meanwhile was decidedly master of the situation. To go into such a place in the hopes of a shot would be useless, for one could not have seen a yard, and to put in the heaters was a thing not to be thought of for a moment. I suggested burning him out, and we were about to try this, when N. discovered that one of our men had in the scurry and confusion dropped a valuable pair of field glasses close by the panther's stronghold, so that plan was given up, and we finally decided on leaving the brute till next day, when we hoped he would be less lively. The villagers declared the panther was hit in the stomach, in which case he was, we thought, not likely to last very long. We left him reluctantly and drove back to Wiranpur, taking the unfortunate man who was badly mauled with us, and ere long he was put under skillful treatment, and has made, I am glad to say, a complete and rapid recovery, being discharged cured of his hurts in five weeks time. The other who was slightly scratched only, had his wounds cleaned and dressed, and returned to his home next day. The following morning N. went out along to Dewalgaon, as I was unable to go, and he found the panther dead close to the scene of the previous day's scuffle, and recovered the lost glasses. It was a nasty business, and might have been worse had we made a second attempt to kill the beast off at once. This panther was a very big and heavy one, and he had on a previous occasion been driven out and shot at, which perhaps made him loath to quit cover, though I think the fearful heat was what caused him to below.

A month ago I found marks of another panther at Dewalgaon, but the cover had all been burnt off, and I could not get a "kill." Perhaps next cold weather, or even earlier, there may be another of the creatures in residence there, and if so it may be my fortune to bring him to bag. With the above lame account of a somewhat exciting incident I think it is only fitting to bring my notes at Wiranpur to an end, for the present at any rate.

The California Roadrunner.

All of us are probably more or less acquainted with this bird, common as it is to every mesa and foothill region of southwestern United States. Strange as it may seem, the roadrunner belongs to the cuckoo family, but we must not confuse him with the famous cuckoo of England nor yet the rare California cuckoo, found in our lowlands, says Harry Dunn, an interesting writer on ornithological subjects, and particularly so in regard to the birds of Southern California. To see the roadrunner and the cuckoo before us, side by side, we would never dream them to be near relations, but ornithologists and students of comparative anatomy, generally, all unite in placing them in the same family. Next time you see a roadrunner close at hand—and you need not shoot him to do so—just note how much he resembles one of those long-tailed oriental pheasants, so many of which have been imported to our shores during the past year.

Contrary to the pheasant, however, the roadrunner's powers of flight are very limited, so slight in fact that almost always has to have a "running start," as the boys say, before he can rise into the air. You will notice, too, that this bird has his toes in pairs, two behind and two in front, whence he is called zagadactyl or "cross-toed." The woodpeckers all have feet formed after this fashion so that they may the better cling to the vertical trunks and branches of the trees, but why they were given to a bird of such terrestrial habits as this swift footed wanderer of ours, does not appear.

The Spanish-Americans call the roadrunner "churea" and also "piasano," while in New Mexico and along the southeastern border of our own State he is called chaparral cock about as often as roadrunner.

The female of this species begins to build her nest about the middle of March and is assisted in its construction by her mate. This is a saucer-shaped structure sometimes more than a foot in diameter and three or four inches thick. The actual "hollow" or depression in the nest is usually so shallow that the slightest jar will send the eggs over the edge. These eggs are from two to eight in number and of a dull white color. The size is about that of the domestic pigeon and they are laid at varying intervals so that often a single nest contains eggs in all stages of incubation from fresh to hatching as well as young birds. This curious habit is also peculiar to the other members of the cuckoo family found in the United States, but they are all arboreal birds and lay fewer eggs than does their pheasant-like relation.

The roadrunner, if caught when young and carefully trained, makes an exceedingly interesting pet, though his pilfering instincts are as finely developed as those of any crow. He is said to have a habit of robbing hens' nests, but, while I know nothing of this, I do know that he never robs the nests of other birds, so doubt this story. As with many other birds, the appearance of both sexes of the roadrunner are alike, save that the male is slightly larger than the female. This distinction, however, does not appear unless the birds are close at hand, as their colors and markings are exactly the same.

THE FARM.

Shows.

The show for live stock is rapidly approaching and it may not be out of place to call attention to the proper management of show barns and show rings, both for the comfort of the animals and likewise for the convenience of the exhibitor, says the Prairie Farmer. At some of the leading shows, at which particular attention is given to live stock, there is a great lack of proper management in preparing suitable quarters for the housing of live stock, especially cattle. State fair and other live stock show managers should bear in mind that live stock of all kinds which is intended for show purposes has had the very best of care and attention before leaving the home stables, and this is particularly so as to housing, bedding and quietness. We are well aware that there is a tendency for exhibitors to find fault with a great many things, but we must concede that in most cases their claims are not without some foundation, and we believe that if managers would consult the wishes of exhibitors of all classes of live stock, and abide by their wishes in the matter of stables and such conveniences as can be offered to them on fair grounds, many of the objectionable features might be eliminated. Then, when the matter of proper stabling, proper attention and feeding of live stock has been taken care of, the matter of judges should be of great importance. Breeders who have expended thousands of dollars in building up or purchasing a good herd of cattle do not care to jeopardize the reputation of their herds in the hands of incompetent or ill-mannered judge. It is often difficult to secure the right man for the right place, but the haphazard way of picking up any man just because he will serve is wrong, and nine times out of ten it will produce friction and ill feeling among exhibitors. If managers would announce in their catalogue or premium lists the names of judges for each respective class of live stock we believe it would go a long way toward reaching the source of much fault-finding. On account of the enormous expenditure entailed upon breeders in preparing their herds for show and the great risk assumed they are entitled to great consideration, and every facility should be offered them for not only the proper care of the stock while on exhibition, but also the placing of prizes.

Mutton in Warm Weather.

At no season of the year does mutton come any handier for farmers where fresh meat is wanted than during the hottest part of the year. A small sized sheep can be selected the evening before and early in the morning slaughtered and hung in the well if no ice is at hand. It is not so large but what it can be used up before it will spoil. Some parts of it can be boiled down and put in a cool place where it will keep a short time. For threshing time no meat can excel mutton, says the Live Stock Indicator.

In some localities it is very common for farmers to kill and "quarter" round. That is one will kill a good sized mutton and send three of the quarters to as many neighbors, neighbor number two killing and doing the same thing a day or two later, with neighbors three and four following in turn. By this plan the meat can be kept fresh an indefinite length of time, since not so much of it has to be used until there is more to follow.

There was a great deal of prejudice against mutton at one time but we are glad to say that it is passing away as the days go by. It is quite true that a better grade of mutton is found in most localities, and farmers understand slaughtering better than they once did. Much of the "sheepy taste" has gone from the mutton and some of the older people who once refused to eat mutton have wondered where it has gone to. The "sheepy taste" will not be found in well fed mutton which have been butchered in a proper manner. It is not the wool that gives it the "sheepy taste" so much as the intestines or the gases rising from them. Removing the intestines soon after death is the best thing to do. If the pelt can be removed quickly it may be well to disembowel the mutton after its removal, but if this cannot be done it is best to remove the intestines at once and the pelting process done subsequently. We sometimes pour a pail of cold water in the trunk of the sheep, which cools the bowels and prevents the generation of gas until the sheep has been pelted. Again we disembowel first and pelt afterward. All depends on the help we have at the time of butchering.

It will pay to keep a small flock of sheep for home consumption if no other motive were in view. By keeping a few for this purpose advantages will be discovered that will cause an increase in the size of the flock until a large one is kept if the conditions of the farm are favorable. Keep a few sheep and note the results.

Cattle Farmers and Facts.

It requires brains and lots of good common sense, to make cattle growing profitable, as well as plenty of good feed and pasture, for the business is only half done when the animal is fat. One has to see that he reaches a good weight at 18 to 22 months old, and back of that is good blood and breeding and management. In management is evolved rapid growth, and the latter is dependent on balanced rations of food. The fact is, the farmer and cattleman wants to be up to his business. The old timer who sneered at "book farming" and the "readen" farmer has outlived his day, if any such are alive now. Brains are at a premium on the farm and as profitably employed there as elsewhere, in legitimate and productive pursuits. The scientific farmer is the man who knows how. The best definition of science is "ascertained facts." No one should be afraid of that word.

At Sacramento, Sept. 2 to Sept. 14, 1901.

CALIFORNIA TOM, No. 2634, a full blood English Shire. Took first premium two years in succession at California State Fair. Weight 1665 pounds, and of unusually kind disposition and fine action. His colts will compare with any on the Coast.

DARNETAL II, No. 2481, a full blood and registered French Coach Stallion. Imported from France. Winner of 14 first prizes in France, Canada and United States. Blood bay, 17 hands high, weighs 1500 pounds. Is the best looking horse of the breed in America, and his colts are magnificent specimens.

Both these stallions will be sold, as my veterinary practice in Sonoma County occupies my entire time. They should be on some first-class stock farm. THEY WILL BE SOLD. For prices and particulars address

ASTHMA CURE FREE!

Asthmalene Brings Instant Relief and Permanent Cure in All Cases.

Sent Absolutely Free on Receipt of Postal.

There is nothing like Asthmalene. It brings instant relief, even in the worst cases. It cures when all else fails.

The Rev. C. F. WELLS, of Villa Ridge, Ill., says: "Your trial bottle of Asthmalene received in good condition. I cannot tell you how thankful I feel for the good derived from it. I was a slave, chained with putrid sore throat and asthma for ten years. I despaired of ever being cured. I saw your advertisement for the cure of this dreadful and tormenting disease, asthma, and thought you had overspoken yourselves, but resolved to give it a trial. To my astonishment the trial acted like a charm. Send me a full-size bottle."

We want to send to every sufferer a trial treatment of Asthmalene, similar to the one that cured Mr. Wells. We'll send it by mail POSTPAID, ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE, to any sufferer who will write for it, even on a postal. Never mind, though you are despairing, however bad your case, Asthmalene will relieve and cure. The worse your case, the more glad we are to send it. Do not delay. Write at once, addressing DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE CO., 79 East 130th St., N. Y. City. Sold by all Druggists.

Real Value of Beef Animals.

Every successful breeder must always be a student, for the first essential of successful breeding is a clear conception of what constitutes a good animal and of all the characteristics that go to make up real excellence in a herd. It is said that the late renowned Amos Cruickshank, the founder of the great Scotch tribe of Short-horns, was often seen by the side of the leading sale rings of Great Britain intently studying every animal that came into the ring, and his minute knowledge of all the animals shown was the marvel of those who chanced to converse with him about them afterwards. While the methods of the justly celebrated Robert Bakewell, the first great improver of live stock, were largely secret, it is known that he was not only an exceedingly close student of living forms, but that his rooms were also full of models and parts of domestic animals that he had carefully dissected and preserved for future reference. In his work of selection and improvement he imparted to the Leicester sheep such a remarkable aptitude to take on flesh that this quality remains, even to the present day, a characteristic of the breed to a greater degree than of any other long-wooled breeds of England. This aptitude to take on flesh is of vital importance to the beef producer as well as the breeder of show ring and sale stock. The showing type must necessarily keep close to and be largely governed by the practical demands imposed by the feed yard and the block, else the lessons of the show yard and sale ring are without value, if not positively misleading. No one is more concerned in what constitutes the essential qualities of a good beef animal than the man who breeds and feeds for the block and attempts to meet the conditions imposed by the market; for it must be kept in mind that this is the ultimate end of all beef stock, and the best beef animal is the one that carries to the block the highest excellence and the most profit. This, in a word, is the keynote of the whole problem.—C. F. Curtis in Farmer's Review.

A Course in Dairying.

The University of California in the department of agriculture announces a special course of nine weeks in dairying, to commence October 9th. The fee for materials used is $10 for each student, a deposit of $5 being required when the entry is made. Both men and women are eligible and it is expected a large number will attend.

How They Got Disease.

We submitted a question to ten breeders asking them to what cause they attributed their herds becoming diseased, says the Swineherd.

One stated that he was satisfied that his hogs succumbed to cholera because of neglect on his part. That the pastures becoming dry, and that other work monopolizing his attention, the hogs in a measure were overlooked. They were under the necessity of drinking from impure or stagnant pools of water because of a failure of the usual pure water supply through an accident to the pump, which was run by a windmill. They were off their feed before noticed and badly constipated, and the disease being in the neighborhood, their vigorous resisting powers were crippled.

The second party attributed the successful attack of his herd by disease to the fact that he had been feeding too heavily or pushing them, until he had passed the limit of conservatism, and was, in fact, overfeeding his herd to grow and develop them more rapidly. This crowding broke down the system, and gave disease a chance for lodgment.

Two others attributed the cause to a sudden and heavy feeding of new corn.

The violent change not agreeing with them, thus permitting disease to come in. Two others said constipation through neglect was the beginning of the trouble.

The other four charged the cause of their herds being attacked with disease to the introduction of the germs from other animals introduced into the herds.

This gives some points that it is wise to avoid by farmers and breeders.

A consignment of fifty head of Jersey cattle from the firm of Mrs. L. J. H. Hastings of Los Angeles were sold in that city last week and brought good prices.

THREE OR MORE RUNNING RACES EACH DAY, NO PURSE LESS THAN $250.

CONDITIONS.

Entries to close Saturday, September 7th, 1901, when horses are to be named, and to be eligible to the class in which they are entered.
 Stakes not filling satisfactorily to the management may be declared off.
 Stakes will be divided into four moneys: 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.
 Entrance 5%, and 5% of the amount of the Stake will be deducted from each money won.
 The management reserves the right to declare two starters a walk over. When only two start they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided 66% per cent. to the first and 33% per cent. to the second horse. A horse distancing the field shall be entitled to first and fourth moneys only, and in no other case will a horse be entitled to more than one money.
 The management reserves the right to change the hour and day of any race, except when it becomes necessary to ante-date a race, in which instance the nominators will receive three days notice by mail to address of entry.
 The right reserved to declare off or postpone any or all races on account of weather or other sufficient cause.

The management reserves the right to start any heat after the fourth score regardless of the position of the horses.
 Entries not declared out at 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race shall be required to start and declarations must be in writing and made at the office of the Secretary at the track.
 When there is more than one entry to any Stake by any one person or in one interest, the horse to be started must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race.
 Trotting and racing colors must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race and must be worn upon the track. Colors will be registered in the order in which they are received.
 Hopples barred in trotting races, but will be permitted in pacing races.
 Conditional entries will be treated same as regular entries and nominators held under the rules.
 Any race that may be started and unfinished on last day of the meeting may be declared ended and money divided according to the rank of horses in the summary.
 Otherwise than as herein specified in these conditions, National Trotting Association Rules, except Rule 4, to govern.

JOTTINGS.

THE FIRST ENTRY for the $6000 Pacific Breeders Futurity for the foals of mares bred this year was made by Byron Erkenbrecher of Los Angeles. Mr. Erkenbrecher came into Mr. Kelley's office in this city on Tuesday of this week and named his fast mare Galetta Wilkes 2:12 by Judd Wilkes, who was bred to McKinney 2:11 this year. Galetta Wilkes was not only a fast trotter, but her breeding is the best. Her dam Gale 2:27 was by Commodore Belmont, sire of the dams of Monterey 2:09½, Fellfare, 2:10½, Iago 2:11 and others, her second dam was a daughter of Dictator and her third dam by Abdallah 15. Galetta Wilkes was named in the Futurity for foals of mares bred last year, and failed to get with foal, but she is in all probability with foal this time, and it is to be hoped that the prospective youngster will arrive in due time and be able to start for the money.

The Breeders Futurity is bound to encourage the breeding of good mares on this Coast and will make their produce valuable as the earning capacity of the eligibles will be greatly increased. The Occident, the Stanford and the Breeders-Futurity of 1903 will be of such value that a colt starting in all three and winning can make quite a fortune for his owner. I would very much like to see the Breeders and the State Agricultural Society arrange trotting and pacing stakes of at least $2500 value each for the slow classes next year. By closing them early and making the payments numerous and easy, they would probably pay for themselves and there is not a particle of doubt but they would result in more of the best green horses in training here being kept in California instead of being sent across the mountains where they are compelled to meet the crackerjacks of the country on the Grand Circuit.

"Quong ha fah choy," Farmer Bunch! You deserve a lot of credit for driving Consul General Ho Yow's mare Solo by McKinney such a race at Woodland. There were none of us thought it was in her to go three heats that fast, and I'll wager a bag of peanuts that when Johnny Blue reads the report of the race and the time of the three heats, 2:15, 2:15½ and 2:14½, he will come to the conclusion that he "let a bird go" when he sold her to the Consul for $250. It was always known that Solo was fast, but her front legs were a little "dickey" and when Blue sold her to the Consul he told him that he did not think the little mare's legs would stand racing, but that she would be all right for road purposes. The Consul purchased her to mate a mare called Braw Lass and they made a handsome pair, but Braw Lass died, and as Solo showed so well under the Farmer's care Ho Yow concluded to race her. He started her first in the half mile race at Sacramento and she won in three straight heats, the best heat 1:06. But this race at Woodland was a high class one and the time shows it. Mr. Bunch, you are entitled to a great deal of credit for the way you brought Solo to the race and for the fast record you have given her. I think you ought to have the three-eyed peacock feather added to that gorgeously embroidered jacket you wore when you drove her, and if you succeed in giving her a mark of 2:10 (which you very likely think within her reach) Durfee should use all the influence he has at court to see that you get it.

Let me see: How many McKinneys have entered the 2:15 list this year? Dr. Book 2:10, Charley Mac 2:11½, Solo 2:14½. That's three, and there will be more before the year is out. They say Eula Mac will trot in 2:12 and The Roman should beat that mark. Then there is Maggie McKinney that Will Durfee thought was better than Dr. Book when he took her East, but she got the distemper and has not started up to this writing. El Milagro, the four year old out of the dam of Margaret Worth, won a hard fought race and took a mark of 2:18½ at Goshen last week, and he may drop into the 2:15 list before long, while there are two or three more here in California that are considered to have speed enough to get into the same list before the season is over. Sweet Marie took a matinee record of 2:13½ at Los Angeles last spring and Dr. Shorb, whose mark of 2:16½ was made this year in a race, is more than likely to knock enough seconds from it to place him among the elect. The McKinneys are all right this year and there is no fear but this great sire will keep his place as the champion sire of 2:15 performers of his age in the world.

That old mare Nellie Bly by Wapsie, owned by Geo. Y. Bollinger of San Jose, is now a great broodmare. She is the dam of Our Boy 2:12½ and Vic Schellar 2:15½, the first a pacer the other a trotter, and Our Boy's sister is knocking at the door of the 2:12 class mighty hard. She has no record yet but has been close up to 2:11½ and was separately timed in 2:12½ in one heat. The dam of Nellie Bly is untraced but this mare is destined to be the dam of a large family of fast ones, as every foal she has shows speed as soon as it is placed in harness.

Eleata trotted a remarkable race in the Massachusetts $10,000 stake at Readville as the summary shows and according to those who were there and saw Onward Silver beat her. According to the Boston papers Geers did not make a move for the first heat with the Onward horse and finished seventh. Eleata won the heat in 2:09½. She won the second heat in 2:09 flat and Onward Silver was third and not close up. The third heat Geers went for it in earnest with a fresh horse and he beat the Dexter Prince mare a scant half length in 2:08. In the fourth heat Eleata led into the stretch but here Onward Silver came at her and she broke when half way to the wire and finished fourth. She was second again in the fifth and last heat. It looks as if this was a race where a little judicious "laying up" won the money, and had Tom Marsh been as willing as Geers to sit still during the first of the race he might have landed the big stake and beaten the silent man from Tennessee. A Californian who recently returned from the East and who saw Geers drive in several races, said the other day: "Geers is the greatest general of all the drivers I saw. They say he lays up a heat now and then and may be he does, but if so he always lays up to win the race, and there is nothing dishonest in that."

Joe Smith, son of the well known Vallejo horseman, Thos. Smith, was made the victim of an error in the report of the races at Santa Rosa which appeared in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN and all the city dailies. In the race, won by Gaff Topsail, who is being trained and driven by Joe this year, it was stated that the judges took him from the sulky and substituted Geo. Ramage. This was an error as Smith was not taken out but drove throughout the race. In the first heat of the contest Mattie B. driven by Jos. Cuicello won in 2:18½. Now everyone knows Mattie B. can go one heat pretty fast, but there is always doubt about the succeeding ones, and when Gaff Topsail beat her back in 2:19, there was a complaint made against Cuicello more as a joke than anything else, and the judges asked Geo. Ramage to drive Mattie B. which he did, but the Diablo horse beat her handily. The reporters in making out the report of the race by mistake substituted Smith's name for Cuicello. Smith was not taken out and Cuicello did not pull his mare. The race was on its merits. Reporters who are familiar with the racing game make numerous errors in their accounts, and this one was especially annoying to Mr. Smith.

Dolly Dillon trotted the fastest race of the year (outside those won by Cresceus) when she reeled off three straight heats at Providence this week with Toggles, Chain Shot, Sister Alice, Little Dick, Willask and Cornelia Bell behind her. The heats were in 2:09½, 2:07 and 2:08 and the dispatches say that the daughter of Sidney Dillon went away so fast in every heat that she had the field tiptoeing at the quarter, opening up a big gap in each mile and winning well in hand. Her second mile was accomplished with consummate ease. Dolly Dillon is now the fastest trotter of the year with the exception of Cresceus, and this race shows how game she is. She is by Sidney Dillon, a full brother to Cupid 2:18, and her dam is Dolly by Electioneer. Those brothers, Cupid and Sidney Dillon, are speed progenitors "for sure." I believe every one of their get that has started has a record. Neither has many foals as they have been bred to very few mares. Cupid 2:18 is owned by Mr. A. B. Spreckles. But three of his get were ever trained and raced. These are Venus II. 2:11½, Psyche 2:16½ and Lottie Parks 2:16½. Sidney Dillon is the property of the Santa Rosa Stock Farm, and they are just finding his worth and have bred a lot of fine mares to him this season. But two of his get had started up to the close of 1900 and both had records. Dolly Dillon one of 2:11½ which she has now reduced to 2:07 and Captivity one of 2:28½. There is another, B. S. Dillon, a pacer that has started this year, and was second to Topsy three heats in 2:15 and a fraction. The two stallions, Cupid and Sidney Dillon are by Sidney out of the dam of Adonis 2:11½, Cupid 2:18 and Lea 2:18½. Venus is placed among the untraced in the Register, and her breeding will never be correctly known in all probability, but she was either by Venture 2:27½ or Captain Webster 2:30½ with the probability that the latter is the sire. Both were by Williamson's Belmont.

The following account of the race won at the Goshen, New York, meeting two weeks ago by El Milagro, four year old by McKinney out of the dam of Margaret Worth, will be read with interest by our California readers. El Milagro was bred by Rudolph Jordan Jr. of this city and sold at auction in New York as a yearling for $700. The account is from the Turf, Field and Farm: "Five horses scored for the word in the Marshland Farm Purse, $1000, for 2:30 trotters, and great interest was taken in the contest. Ex-Senator McCarty was represented by the four year old gelding El Milagro by McKinney; ex-Mayor Grant by the chestnut horse J. H. R. by McEwen; Mr. J. Howard Ford by the black horse Dirigo by Directum; Mr. O. A. Titlow by Bonnie Maid by Bonnie Boy, and Mr. Vance Nuckols by Joe Steiner by Nutwood. The earnest contention was between El Milagro and J. H. R., and the owners of the two horses touched elbows during the fight. J. H. R. was sent away in a break in the first heat, and El Milagro won easily in 2:24½. In the second heat J. H. R. finished a strong second and Dirigo third, and the time was 2:22½. In the third heat El Milagro went into the air under the strain imposed by his relations with J. H. R., and the latter took the heat in 2:23½, with Bonnie Maid second. The fourth was fought in a determined fashion from start to finish. El Milagro and J. H. R. were lapped the entire distance, and down the home stretch each driver used his best art to keep a tiring trotter in his stride. The two horses went under the wire head and head, and the official timers were unable to separate them in stopping their watches. The time was 2:18½. The judges hesitated and finally awarded the heat to El Milagro, which gave him the race."

Speculating on the Transylvania.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 25.—Speculation is already rife as to the make-up of the field in the $6000 Transylvania Stake for 2:12 trotters, and guesses are being ventured as to the probable starters. At this early date it is absolutely impossible to guess at the starters. The horses are not required to be named until Sept. 17th, and up to that time the nominations are transferable. The stake closed with twenty subscriptions, which should ensure a big field, and it promises to be a greater race than ever before.

The Transylvania is always the great stake for the green trotters of the year, and it finds them seasoned and at their best after the campaign on the grand circuit. A reasonable conjecture as to probable starters would not omit the names of Onward Silver, May Allen, Eleata, Lady Geraldine, Neva Simmons, Idolita, Metallas, Dolly Dillon, Lita W., Lady Thisbe, Susie J., Mabel Or., Chestnut King, Alberta I., and Dolly Bidwell, not to mention a number of others that are eligible.

To those who watch the grand circuit performances the decided class of such a field is appreciable at a glance, and although some of those named have not started, their performances of last year are still fresh in the minds of trotting horse men. Secretary Horace Wilson of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, in speaking of the race, said:

"I never will venture a guess at a Transylvania field until the date for naming the horses is passed. The grand circuit has produced enough sensations this year from the green class to ensure a grand race in fast time. Some other great green ones may be uncovered between now and Sept. 17th, and there you have another possibility for a starter. It is no guess to say, however, that the race will be as good as ever before and I personally think that they will set a new mark for the stake."

Expects a Fast Mile by The Abbot.

The Abbot will start at Charter Oak, Syracuse and Cincinnati. Geers would like to try him when just at an edge over the Terre Haute track, where he trotted in 2:03½. When asked his plans for The Abbot for the season, Mr. Geers said: "I hope to drive him the fastest mile ever trotted—as fast as 2:01½ or 2:02, and I'd like to meet Cresceus again when he is up to a race. He could have come back at Brighton Beach in 2:05, I know, but two heats like those would not have benefited him any. As it was, the mile with Cresceus did him good. He acted like a colt next morning; kicked at everybody and everything in play, and eats like a tramp. I am satisfied. At Cleveland I drove him in 2:09 one day, and knew he could trot right off in 2:03 or 2:04; then he got the regular old-fashioned distemper. I steamed him and the discharge was terrific when it broke. That left him so thin a man could shoot peas through him, and of course he was weak. One other mile, after he picked up, in 2:11 was all the work he had. Mr. Ketebam had been offered a big sum to race me at the Hartford meeting, and I have accepted my end of the engagement. Yes, three in five. I don't ask anything else. I'll go as many as he says, and he has the champion."

Dr. S. A. Tuttle. Newton, Aug. 9, 1893.
Dear Sir:—Having used Tuttle's Elixir in my back and boarding stable for the past three years, I heartily endorse it for the general purposes for which it is recommended by the proprietors.

LOS ANGELES RUNNING STAKES.

Readville Summaries.

Twelve Good Events Filled With a Big List of Entries.

Secretary Teed and all the officials of the Los Angeles District Fair Association are to be congratulated on the magnificent lists of entries received for both harness and running events. The entries to the former have already been published in these columns, and herewith are given those received for twelve running stakes. The only events advertised that did not fill were the jumping races and this is not to be regretted, as there are not enough jumping horses on this Coast or likely to reach Los Angeles to make these races respectable or interesting. The class of horses entered in the flat races, however, are the best lot ever named to start in Southern California, as will be seen by the following list:

Los Angeles Derby, one and a quarter miles—Charles G. White's Rey Dare, W. D. Week's Little Edelweiss, E. J. Baldwin & Co.'s Oscar Tolle, Forkford, W. H. Washington's Victor, Zahn Bros.' Frank Mayo, L. A. Blasingame's Graftor, P. C. Donaleche's Wardman, Cantinus, J. Coffey's Galanthus, W. L. Stanfield's Jim Hale, E. M. James' Sea Song.

Johnathan Club Stakes, five furlongs—A. C. Donohue's Tacna, John Webber's Torso Maid, Lila D., E. J. Baldwin & Co.'s Escalante, El Chihuahua, Zahn Bros.' Angelino, F. D. Weir's Flattered, J. RECREATION AND EDUCATION can be had by attending the California State Fair at Sacramento this year. It opens on Monday next and will continue for two weeks. That there will be a splendid program of racing every reader of this journal knows, but this is only the amusement feature of the great exposition. There will be a live stock display ahead of anything ever seen on this Coast and as California is destined to lead the world in the production and exportation of fine cattle, sheep and swine, every farmer and stock raiser in the State should attend this fair to study which of the breeds he likes best, if for no other purpose. The breeder who learns by close inspection of the prize winners what qualifications earn the blue ribbons, will be better able to breed the kind that wins, and it is a known fact that the kind that win are the kind that bring the big prices and pay the greatest profit. California has more natural advantages than any country on earth as a great live stock producing section. Not in the way of vast herds that are never up to standard in form or weight, but in the production of the best for beef, milk, wool, etc. The soil, the climate and all the other conditions that go to make the best individuality in animals, and cause them to reach that state of perfection which is desired by those who fix the standards, are here, and it only needs intelligence and energetic action to produce results. The State Fair will be a great school this year for those who desire to learn more of live stock, what breeds are most desirable and which will produce the greatest profit to the breeder. But the State's annual exposition is not simply a stock show. There will be shown in great profusion the products of the orchards, the vineyards, the mines and the factories that are making this State the richest portion of the world. There is a course of study open at this fair to every person who desires to learn how to live better and earn more. No person can walk through the great pavilion or the park with open eyes and observant mind without learning something that will profit him if used. It will be a place where views can be exchanged and ideas gained. It should be visited by every person who can afford the time and expense to reach Sacramento.

A GREAT SALE of broodmares from the world-renowned Palo Alto Stock Farm will be held at the State Fair grounds at Sacramento, on Friday, during the second week of the fair. This announcement should attract many buyers, as the opportunity to get mares of standard breeding with the blood in their veins that has produced The Abbot 2:03, Azote 2:04, and Fantasy 2:06, Bingen 2:06, Tommy Britton 2:06, Charley Herr 2:07, Dolly Dillon 2:07, Dione 2:07 and hundreds more with fast trotting records, is one that should not be permitted to pass. The greatest trotting sires of the day are Palo Alto bred or carry the same blood that has made the farm famous. One of the first requisites of a stallion or broodmare that was placed in the stud by Senator Stanford was individuality, and the twenty-four mares to be offered at this sale have that requirement. Any farmer or horse breeder who can secure one or more of these mares will get more than value received for his money, as there is probably not one in the lot but, if properly mated, will bring forth a foal that will sell for more than she will cost. There are six daughters of the great Electioneer in the lot, and others by Advertiser, Piedmont, Wildnut, Dexter Prince, Gen. Benton and other great producing stallions. Write to William G. Layng, at 721 Howard street, San Francisco, for a catalogue and be at the fair grounds in Sacramento, Friday, September 13th, when he sells these mares at auction.

STOCKTON WILL HOLD A FAIR and race meeting during the week following the Los Angeles meeting and twelve purses of $500 each, equally divided between trotters and pacers, have been offered to close September 18th. There will be five days racing beginning October 15th. The advertisement appears in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN this week and by referring to it horse owners will see that all classes are provided for. The Stockton Driving Club, under whose auspices this meeting is given, is composed of a number of energetic young business men of the principal city of San Joaquin valley, and has given very successful fairs in the past. The club proposes to make this one equal, and if possible better in every way than any of its predecessors, and will show horsemen every courtesy who enter in these twelve events. The purses are always paid in full at Stockton and courteous treatment is given everybody. The purses advertised will close on Wednesday, September 18th at which time horses must be eligible to the classes in which they are entered. The Stockton Fair will be the last chance to race harness horses in California before going into winter quarters.

PRINCE L. won third money in the 2:20 class trot at Woodland, the race won by Solo in 2:15, 2:15 and 2:14. He was 3-2-4 in the summary and trotted every heat better than 2:18. He is a horse of excellent disposition, fast and game, and is by Escort out of a mare by William L. Being handsome, 16 hands high and a good road horse he is a good bargain for some one. He is for sale. Address Robert Freeman, Red Bluff.

DON'T MISS SEEING those stallions California Tom, an English Shire, and Darnet II, a French Coach, that will be at the State Fair next week and are for sale. If you want a fine individual of either breed that will make you some money next spring this is your opportunity. Dr. J. J. Summerfield of Santa Rosa is the owner and only sells them because his veterinary practice occupies his entire time.

A FAIR AT UKIAH will be held from the 1st to the 5th of October inclusive. An excellent half mile track has been constructed and a good program of racing will be given. Bids for the privileges are advertised for in this issue of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN.

ONE FARE AND A THIRD to Sacramento and return during the State Fair, from all points in California on the lines of the Southern Pacific. Tickets on sale August 31st to September 14th inclusive; good for return till September 16th.

Dolly by Electioneer 125.

In September, 1893, at Sacramento, Cal., the Palo Alto Stock Farm held a sale of broodmares, colts and fillies. Among the broodmares was the now celebrated producer Dolly by Electioneer, dam Lady Dooley by McCracken's Black Hawk. Her breeding and good qualities, forcibly and ably represented by the catalogue and auctioneer, failed to find a purchaser who was willing to pay over $200 for her. This mare, like many other well bred mares at Palo Alto, failed to find the nick suitable to her until after she had been sold. Dolly is the dam of Dolly Dillon 2:07, winner at Providence Wednesday last in 2:09, 2:07, 2:08. She is also the dam of Doly 2:15. At Sacramento, September 13th, Palo Alto Stock Farm will sell twenty-four broodmares, and it is not unlikely that many of these mares will prove producers of extreme speed. Their handicap at Palo Alto being that there was not any outcross for them.

Additional Entries at State Fair.

The additional harness races advertised by the State Agricultural Society and which closed August 24th, received the following entries:

2:12 Class, Pacing—$500.

State Fair Harness Race Program.

FIRST WEEK.

Monday, Sept. 2d—Occident Stake, and 2:12 class pace.
Tuesday, Sept. 3d—2:40 class trot and 2:20 class pace.
Wednesday, Sept. 5th—Three year old pace.
Thursday, Sept. 5th—2:14 class trot and Sacramento Club Road Race.
Friday, Sept. 6th—2:20 class trot and Drummers' race.
Saturday, Sept. 7th—2:17 class pace and four year old green pace.

SECOND WEEK.

Monday, Sept. 9th—Stanford Stake, and 2:25 class pace.
Tuesday, Sept. 10th—2:12 class trot.
Wednesday, Sept. 11th—2:24 class trot.
Thursday, Sept. 12th—2:13 class pace.
Friday, Sept. 13th—Consolation 2:30 class trot.
Saturday, Sept. 14th—2:18 class trot and Consolation 2:25 class pace.

The entries in the 2:18, 2:24 and 2:12 trotting classes are subject to the approval of the Board of Directors. The following classes did not fill: 2:22 and 2:16 trotting classes, and 2:15 and free for all pacing classes.

A thoroughbred mare met her death in Kentucky a fortnight ago in a strange manner. She was owned near Greenup, that State, and one day was quietly grazing beneath a large tree when a "blue racer" snake dropped from the branches onto her back and then twined itself around her neck. She started on the run, and, becoming more and more frightened, ran till she dropped dead from exhaustion and fear.

Through this year's performance three mares have become double 2:10 producers. Leonor 2:24, the old race mare by Dashwood, son of Legal Tender, was previously the dam of Jenny Mc 2:09, and now has to her credit Dr. Book 2:10, trotting. Maggie McDowell 2:21 by Sidney is the dam of Dan M. 2:09, in addition to her late performer Helen D. 2:09, and Flaxey by Bourhon Wilkes, noted as the dam of Royal R. Sheldon 2:05, is the dam also of Audubon Boy 2:07.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfeits. Watch out!

WOODLAND'S FAIR.

One of the Best Ever Held in Northern California.

If there could be some way provided by which a carload or two of the sleepy Boards of Directors of the various agricultural districts in this State that cannot be induced to give a fair except once in two years, could have been landed in Woodland this week, they would have been given an object lesson in the management of fairs that would have opened their eyes. This fair has been a success from the day of opening, and will close to-night with a record that will be hard for any district fair to beat.

It is not simply a race meeting although the races have been of the Grand Circuit class and well attended, but it is a FAIR spelled with big capital letters.

The stock show is one of the best ever seen in California, and when one is informed that nearly every head shown is owned in Yolo county one can account for the assertion so often made that Yolo is one of the most prosperous counties on the Coast. There were over one hundred head of cattle on exhibition, and among them were noticed the magnificent Durhams of T. B. Gibson, L. G. Rhodes, Bullard Bros. and Jos. Craig, the handsome Jerseys of Thos. Waite and W. Masten, Charles Hopkin's Holsteins, and H. E. Coll's pure bred and grade Brown Swiss, a new breed to this Coast, but possessing many excellent qualities. The exhibit of draft, coach and light harness horses was excellent, and the sheep and swine of Yolo county production will not only win prizes at the Woodland fair but carry off blue ribbons when they meet the best in the State at Sacramento next week. The pavilion exhibit was up to its usual excellence, and the attendance every evening, which has been large, shows that it is appreciated.

President Stevens, Secretary Thomas, Vice-President Reith, Director Sam Montgomery and Treasurer T. B. Gibson were all in harness on the opening day, every one pulling at the proper time and in the proper direction and the "team work" they did was effective. There were few hitches and no kicking.

The races during the first three days (which is as far as our report extends) have been excellent, and the time has been noticeable. In the first race of the meeting, the 2:12 class pace five heats were paced from 2:12½ to 2:15. The only serious mistake of the meeting was made in the first heat of this race. President Stevens acted as presiding judge and started for the first time in his life. To use his own words he was "sweating blood." When Margaretta came under the wire the first heat in 2:12½, Mr. Stevens did not drop the flag with that long sweep and swish that is usual, and the distance judge failed to see it. Consequently he held the red bunting aloft and Floracita whose bad breaks had caused her to be back of the distance at the time, got in before the flag was dropped. None of the judges could say whether she was out, and the distance judge said he could not distance her as he saw no flag fall. She was permitted to start again and, as often occurs in such cases, finally won the race. Had she been declared out Margaretta would have doubtless had first money as there was nothing left that could carry her fast enough to the half to make her stop coming home. The race was a most interesting one from start to finish and the time made astonished even the rail birds.

The 2:20 pace was faster still. Topsy the handsome and free going little son of Delphi won it in three straight heats reducing his record to 2:12 in the second with seeming ease. The contesting horse in all three heats was Midnight, a big, dark brown horse by Nutford, out of a mare by Grandee. He made an excellent showing and somewhat he could have made Topsy step faster, but however this may be Topsy had a little left every time Midnight went after him.

The second day of the meeting Solo, a little bay mare by McKinney, and owned by the Chinese Consul General Ho Yow, furnished the sensation of the day by winning the 2:20 class trot in straight heats and giving her sire a new 2:15 performer. Her third heat in 2:14½ when she beat Ouboul three open lengths and looked as if she could have made it five, stamps her as a pretty high class mare, and the Consul General displayed good judgment when he purchased her and turned her over to Farmer Bunch to train. Her legs were under suspicion at the time, but she trotted this race like a horse with iron legs and will repeat it several times before the season is ended.

The match race between Davisville horses, which drew a crowd from that town to see it, was won by Trilby Maid, a grand daughter of Black Ralph, a stallion that held first place among the favorite trotting stallions of Yolo county back in the early 70's. Trilby Maid was piloted by Sam Hoy and won in straight heats and took a record of 2:19.

On Wednesday the 2:12 trot had but three starters, but it made a sensational race: The Antrim mare Anzella, owned by Geo. A. Kelley, of Dayton, Washington, was the winner, and reduced her record to 2:10½ in the second heat and won the next two in 2:11 and 2:11½, being closely pressed by Iora all the way, who won the first heat in 2:11½, thereby reducing her record a quarter of a second. Jack W. was also a starter, but threw a shoe in the second heat and was distanced. In the last heat Anzella broke at the first turn, but trotted the last half of the mile in 1:03½.

The Sacramento Driving Club race had five starters. It was won by Mr. S. Upson's mare Regina F. in straight heats, the fastest being the third in 2:18½.

The running races have all furnished good contests during the week and several nose and nose finishes have resulted. The veteran horseman William Donathan has done the starting and is getting the horses off fairly well, although some of his first attempts were not entirely satisfactory.

President A. C. Stevens has done well as a starter and presiding judge and will make a first class man in the position. He is intelligent, active and energetic and is "always trying" as the horsemen express it, and his integrity is unquestioned. Ex-President of the Association, C. R. Hopkin, and Director T. S. Spaulding render him good assistance and there has been very little complaint.

The track is in excellent shape and better than at any former meeting, although it has always been considered a fast track. The attendance has been good, the gate receipts each day exceeding those of last year.

On Wednesday the feature of the fair was a broncho-busting exhibition, which called out a big crowd. The contestants were William Starks of Montana, Orrin Morris of Yolo county, William Welch of Red Bluff and Sam Young and D. B. Gruwell, two Santa Clara county officials. The horses used were the most vicious animals to be found in the county. Each contestant was allowed one assistant. Morris, the Yolo county entry, made the best time in mounting. The mounts of Starks and Young were comparatively tame. The other horses bucked and kicked from start to finish. None of the riders were thrown. Morris' mount jumped two fences. Gruwell's jumped a fence, bolted into the crowd and knocked down and injured a spectator. A decision will be rendered after another exhibition on Friday.

Cresceus now has to his credit the open champion record, the champion stallion record, the champion race records, for one and two and five heats, the fastest three consecutive miles by a trotter, the fastest first heat and the fastest second heat, besides some champion records of minor importance.

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet!

The Trotting King.

Cresceus is seven years old and has twenty foals, one of which is already in the list. Standing in front of the grand stand at Brighton Beach, Mr. George H. Ketcham said to a group of friends: "Several years ago my father looked over some stock at Barney J. Treacy's place, at Lexington, Ky., and was pleased with the appearance of a mare called Contention by Allie West. He thought she would suit him for the saddle, and he took her home to Toledo. She had by her side a filly by Mambrino Howard, a son of Mambrino Chief, and this filly is now known as Mabel, dam of Cresceus. The first foal to attract attention to Mabel was the black mare Nightingale, who trotted to a record of 2:10½. She was by Osgood's Patchen, who to-day is unable to command a stud fee in excess of five dollars. This would show that Mabel was more responsible for the goodness in Nightingale than her sire. I have seen six of the foals of Mabel go in 2:20, and you cannot have a much better proof of greatness than this. Cresceus had a curb which I fired and blistered, and he trotted out of it. Curls are not such terrible things some people imagine. I have kept a ledger account of the doings of Cresceus and the balance has always been on the right side. Previous to starting out on this campaign I went to the bank for $10,000. I will pay you in three months out of the winnings of Cresceus, I said to the cashier. He replied 'all right. I saw your father pay $12,000 for a bull and make money out of him. A trotting horse like Cresceus is better to hank on for $10,000 than a bull.' The cashier was right. It did not take Cresceus long to lift the note." Mr. Ketcham has entered Cresceus in the free for all trot at Readville, and will give exhibitions with him in California and elsewhere. He will retire him to the stud in the spring and keep him there. Judging from what Robert McGregor has done in the stud, Cresceus will not fail. If you want great speed you must breed speed to speed, is the earnest belief of Mr. Ketcham.—Turf, Field and Farm.

J. B. Boomer, M. D. V., whose card appears in another column of this paper, is one of the most accomplished veterinary surgeons on the Pacific Coast. The doctor came to San Francisco some time ago, bringing unexceptionable references as to his ability, and he rapidly acquired an extensive practice. For three years he filled the chairs of Materia Medica and Assistant Surgeon in the McKillop Veterinary College in Chicago, Ill., and in addition to possessing a profound knowledge of his profession he has had much practical experience in the application of its principles. Those having valuable animals, in need of treatment of any kind, can consult him with the assurance that all that modern science can do will be applied by him to effect a cure. His office is at the Van Ness Stables, 510 Van Ness avenue, this city.

Here is a pointer for those who have fast horses for sale as to prices that are being obtained around Chicago. The item is from Palmer Clark's department in the Chicago Inter-Ocean and is as follows: "The most important sale of the week was that of the speedy pacer, Fred the Kid, record 2:08½, Oscar B. Ames, the Wheaton trainer, having paid E. H. Selig, Boone, Iowa, $2500 for him. His last race was at Galesburg last Tuesday, where he captured the three last heats of a five-heat race in 2:08½, 2:08½ and 2:09. This would seem to indicate that Ames has now one that should be good in the free-for-all paces, as Tremaine, who had been driving him, laid him up the first two heats, and the time made in the succeeding one is not by any means his limit."

At the rate of 2:02½ to the mile, Cresceus travels 43.20 feet in a second. Maud S., trotting in 2:08½, traveled 41.10 feet a second, and would be six and one-half seconds behind him when she finished, or a distance of 267.85 feet, and Dexter, at a rate of 2:17, went 38.50 feet per second, and being 15 seconds behind Cresceus at the finish, the distance in feet would be 387.50. The rate of the slower horse in feet must be multiplied by the number of seconds by which he is beaten to get the result in such calculations as this.

The novel plan devised by the Galesburg Trotting Association to swell the attendance, in which every one who bought a ticket for the races was given a chance to draw a $20,000 house and property, known as the C. W. Williams residence, and situated just opposite the park, was decided last Friday. Jerry Miller of East Galesburg was the lucky man. He works in a brick yard and will no doubt sell the property.

Succulent food should be provided in sufficient quantities to give the horse a ration at least once a week. Carrots are a favorite food for horses, as they tone the digestion and improve the appearance of the coat. Horse will soon learn to eat potatoes, sugar beets, cabbage and rutabagas. If roots cannot be obtained, ensilage will be found a good substitute, especially if made from clover, or soy beans, to balance the winter rations.

Thick, Swollen Glands

Decrease the value of a horse. Absorbine will cure them. $2 per bottle at dealers. Ask for pamphlet. W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., Springfield, Mass.

Strike!—If they don't give you Jackson's Napa Soda when you ask for it.

SULKY NOTES.

Dolly Dillon 2:07.

Stockton will hold a meeting.

Woodland's Fair is a great success.

Dick Benson is handling Phoebe Childers 2:10½.

State Fair opens Monday with splendid prospects.

California horses are up in the front row this year.

Cresceus 2:02½ will trot at Sacramento, November 9, 1901.

Admiral Dewey (3) 2:14½ by Bingen 2:06½, dam Nancy Hanks 2:04.

The Occident Stake will be trotted on Monday next at Sacramento.

Toggles was second to Dolly Dillon when she trotted in 2:07 at Providence.

Dr. Book 2:10, C. K. J. Billings' recent purchase, is in "Doc" Tanner's stable.

The poolsellers handled a trifle over $400,000 during the Brighton Beach meeting.

Sole 2:14½ by McKinney is the second 2:15 performer out of a mare by Stamboul 2:07½.

Tim Murnan says that Cresceus will yet step a mile in two minutes, horse, day and track right.

Don't miss the sale of those Palo Alto brood mares on Friday during the second week of the State Fair.

Enter at the Concord meeting. Entries close September 20th and the meeting opens September 25th.

Mercury 2:25½ by McKinney has been "in the money" two or three times on the half mile tracks over East.

King Cecil by Oro Wilkes made a record of 2:18½ in the 2:22 trot at Old Orchard, Maine, a week or two ago.

The average time of Dan Patch 2:04½ and his sire, Joe Patchen, is 2:03—the fastest average of any sire and his get.

William G. Layng will have a grand lot of mares to offer when he opens the sale of the Palo Alto mares at the State Fair.

Sphinx 2:20½ promises to very much increase his lead this year over other sons of Electioneer as a race horse and extreme speed sire.

McBriar 2:14 has been sent back to his owner, L. Zimmerman, of Portland, Oregon, and will be raced over the northern circuit.

A full sister to Beautiful Bells, stunted to Nazote, full brother to Azote 2:04½ will be sold at the Palo Alto sale during the State Fair.

J. D. a bay gelding by Alexander Button has started several times on the Illinois half mile tracks this year and won part of the money.

J. H. Nance and James Dwain left Salinas last Tuesday with their strings of harness horses and will make their first start at the State Fair.

It is announced that Vol. XV. of the American Trotting Register will soon be issued. It is over three years since Vol. XIV. was issued.

That heat in 2:14½ at Brighton Beach was so close between Carrie Bel and Rowellan that none but the judges could tell which was entitled to the heat.

Fred Pierce says that nine out of the twelve yearlings by Sable Wilkes which he worked this season could beat 2:40. They are all from Mariposa Stock Farm.

Onward is making a wonderful showing this year. He now has nine 2:10 performers, leading all stallions. Of his descendants there are 33 with records of 2:10 or better.

Charley Herr developed a serious lameness forward after his race at Brighton Beach last week, so that it was thought best to send him back to Kentucky for repairs.

Anzella 2:10½ is the fastest trotter that has appeared on the California circuit so far this year. She should knock the quarter off pretty soon and be in the exclusive list.

The gate receipts on the day Cresceus and The Abbot raced at Brighton Beach were $8000 in excess of the receipts for any previous day's racing ever held on the famous track.

McHenry says Dan Patch 2:04½ is the best pacer he ever rode behind, which is saying a good deal, as McHenry has driven some pretty fast ones, notably Anaconda 2:01½ and others.

Visalia 2:12½, in her day a great little race mare for what she could do, was started in a race at Bradford, Pa., on the 17th of this month, but was behind the flag in a heat trotted in 2:19½.

Dolly Bidwell by Inglewood won the Roger Williams $10,000 stake at Providence last Wednesday in three straight heats, 2:12, 2:09½, and 2:09½. A big field was behind her. Miss Whitney was second, Neva Simmons third, Consuela S. by Directum fourth, and Charlie Mac fifth. There were sixteen starters. 38 ice was one of them but was close to the last.

If you want a draft or coach stallion for next year see the two horses advertised for sale by Dr. J. J. Summerfield of Santa Rosa. They will be at the State Fair. Both are first prize winners.

Professor Brewer of Yale is credited with this statement: "In the course of time a large number of horses will be bred to trot as fast as the fastest time, and that time will be less than two minutes."

John Dickerson, trainer of Joe Patchen, offers to match him against Araconda, best four out of seven races, or best five out of nine for from $5000 to $10,000 a side, the tracks to be mutually agreed upon.

The pacer Frank by Secretary, that took a record of 2:14½ at Rockport last week, is a very fast gelding. Al Pennock worked him a mile in 2:11½, without hops, over the Glenville track.—American Sportsman.

A son of Seymour Wilkes 2:08½ was sold last week for $1000. The name of the horse is Read Wilkes and he is a three year old stallion out of Nellie R. by Oakland Boy. Read Wilkes was bred by Bert Read of Middletown, Lake county.

The Charter Oak $100,000 stake to be trotted next week at Hartford has the following entries: May Allen, Beldia, Alan, Eleata, Quoddy Girl, Consuela S., James Schevlin, Dreamer, Confession, Belle Kuser, Valo, Dolly Bidwell, Janice, Metallas.

A son of Secretary paced into the 2:15 list at Rockport, Ohio, on the 14th of August. He is called Frank and is a bay gelding out of Lady Ellen by Lee's Belmont. Frank won in straight heats in 2:15½, 2:15½ and 2:14½, excellent time for a half mile track.

One hundred and twenty-seven horses started in the nineteen events at Brighton Beach, fifty-seven pacers and seventy trotters. Thirty-one heats were paced averaging 2:09 1-10, with forty-four trotting heats averaging 2:13 13-100; grand average, 2:11 11½.

Mares by Electioneer will be worth more money every year. There are a few of them to be sold at the Palo Alto sale on Friday, September 13th, during the State Fair. Dolly Dillon 2:07, the fastest mare this year on the Grand Circuit is out of an Electioneer mare.

Iora's heat in 2:11½ at Woodland last Wednesday shows that this daughter of Ira is all right. She could not beat Anzella, but the latter is a faster mare. Iora is eleven years old and one of the handsomest, best gaited trotters ever bred in the State. She has had two or three foals.

Ed Geers says that he feels confident that Onward Silver 2:10½ can break the two-mile trotting record of 4:32, held by Greenlander. The son of Onward is a slow beginner and unsteady at times, but is a dangerous horse in any company when he strikes the homestretch anywhere near the leaders.

I. C. Mosher will offer his entire band of standard bred horses for sale at public auction during the Oregon State Fair, consisting of broodmares and young stock. Some of the mares are in foal to Zombro 2:11. This will be a genuine closing out sale of a fine lot of young and well bred horses.

Will Durfee did not sell Dr. Book 2:10 to Mr. Billings of Chicago. He sold the McKinney horse to Messrs. Smathers & Shafer of New York who traded him the following week to Mr. Billings for the mare Ida Highwood 2:12½ and considerable "boot." The sum received by Durfee is said to be $4000.

We are patiently waiting for some plug trotter that is by a broncho, out of a circus mare, and was foaled in a brickyard, to come along and paralyze the Grand Circuit. The sapient chatterers about chance breeding ought to have a real chance to turn loose—something that would make their talk go.—Horse Reeler.

Eleata won again at Providence last Wednesday. She won in straight heats in 2:15½, 2:09½ and 2:11½. The other starters in the race were Country Jay, who was second; the four year old El Milagro by McKinney was third and Algonetta by Eros was fourth. The other starters in the race were Nanita and Nutbearer.

William Shuit, superintendent of John H. Shults' Parkway Farm, put the Brighton Beach track in shape for the harness horses last week. The footing was much better than the most enthusiastic had anticipated, and astounded those who had doubts about the ability of anyone to get a running track in shape for trotters at short notice.

A good sulky with all the latest improvements can now be purchased for $85. Andrews & Schaw, whose warehouse and salesroom is on the corner of New Montgomery and Mission streets, in this city, have them for sale and are ready to show them to horsemen and prove their value. This is the first time a high class sulky could be purchased for such a price on this coast.

In the great race between Cresceus and The Abbot, each trotter pulled a twenty-nine pound sulky. The stallion wore side check, two-minute harness, without breaching or breast collar, and was protected to the knees and hocks with white felt boots. The Abbot carried the old style harness, an overdraw check, and was rigged with knee and quarter boots forward and with toe hoots behind.

During the first three days of the Woodland meeting not a heat was trotted or paced as slow as 2:16 in any of the regular harness events. Even the road horses beat 2:20, Trilby Maid by Black Ralph Jr. winning in 2:19 and Regina F. by Atte Rex taking her third heat in 2:18½. The fastest heat by a trotter during the three days was Anzella's second heat in 2:10½ and the best heat by a pacer was made by Topsy when he won a second heat in 2:12. This time will very likely be beaten during the succeeding three days.

There was a time, all will remember, when trainers were wont to half starve their horses so far as hay went and kept them so thin one could count their ribs. To-day all is different. A horse is fed more of hay, is not kept so heavily blanketed and in consequence trots his races higher in flesh, thus presenting a far more pleasing appearance to the devotee of light harness sport.

Cresceus, the champion trotter of the world, will try again to lower the world's record on Sept. 26th at Philadelphia. He will go against time for a mile, on the Belmont track. The trial was arranged by Lessee Kennard of the Belmont track, and $1500 is the price paid for the exhibition. Cresceus will be paced by two runners and will be given every possible assistance in making new figures.

Neernut 2:12½ is in training at Santa Ana and his owner expects him to lower his record this year. Mr. Ford thinks he will be ready to start at Los Angeles, although Neernut has made a very heavy season in the stud, having been bred to 88 mares. Owing to the fact that Mr. Ford desired to place Neernut in training he had to turn away twenty mares. Neernut's fee will be raised next year. His colts are all fast and it is said in Santa Ana that any Neernut that is trained can beat 2:30.

Twice before the Brighton Beach race had The Abbot and Cresceus met—at Columbus, August 5, 1898, and at Fort Erie, August 16th, the same year. In the first event Eagle Flannagan captured the big end of the purse, The Abbot taking two heats and second money, while the chestnut stallion, then only a four year old, had to be satisfied with the third slice. At Fort Erie The Abbot took off the event in straight heats, Cresceus getting fourth money. The best time was 2:12½, while in the Columbus race The Abbot took a mark of 2:08½.

M. E. McHenry, after driving Dan Patch in 2:04½ at Brighton Beach, expressed the opinion that he could have driven that horse pretty close to two minutes in that mile, had he set out to do so. When he was in Buffalo recently, McHenry asserted that he regarded Dan Patch as the best pacer he ever drew a rein over, and the brown stallion's race last week shows that his trainer did not have him overestimated. Dan Patch seems to be just such a horse as one would look to see come from the loins of Joe Patchen. He is a worthy son of a worthy sire.

George H. Ketcham, when interviewed concerning his distancing The Abbot in the race at Brighton Beach last week, said: "That's horse racing. I brought Cresceus here to beat The Abbot, and I wanted to finish up the job as quickly and effectually as possible. To have taken my horse back and allowed Geers to get inside the flag would have savored of hippodrome racing. As it was, everybody on the grounds went away knowing that he had seen a genuine horse race. Many were somewhat disappointed, perhaps, that it ended so suddenly and unexpectedly, but this was much better than a longer race in which there was a truce."

A dispatch from Lexington states that on Friday of last week Mary P. Leyburn, the three year old filly by Exposition, dam Rose Leyburn by Onward, was sold to Thomas W. Lawson of Boston for $10,000 by her owner and breeder, P. P. Parish of Midway. The filly is entered in the Stock Farm purse at Terre Haute, the Kentucky Futurity, and the Louisville prize of $10,000. She is one of the most promising candidates for the Futurity, having worked a mile in 2:15 in bandy fashion for her trainer, Clem Beachy. She won the first heat of the Lexington Futurity as a two year old in 2:21. It is thought that Mr. Lawson will not start her until the Lexington meeting.

It is seldom that a mare produces two horses that win Grand Circuit races on the same day. Flaxy, by Bourbon Wilkes, has gained that distinction. She is the dam of Royal R. Sheldon, with which Jere O'Neill won the free for all pace at Glens Falls last week, giving him a record of 2:04½, and is also the dam of Audoboy (2:07½), that won the 2:18 pace the same day and track in 2:09, 2:10½, 2:13½. Royal R. Sheldon is by Constantine (2:12½), a son of Wilkes Boy (2:24½), by George Wilkes (2:22), and Audobon Boy (2:07½), by J. J. Audobon (2:20), a son of Alcyone (2:27), by George Wilkes. Flaxy's sire, Bourbon Wilkes, was by George Wilkes, and out of Favorite (2:35½), by Alexander's Abdallah. The second dam of Bourbon Wilkes was Lizzie Peebles, a daughter of the renowned old four-mile race winner and record breaker Wagner.

Those writers who are continually harping in advocacy of using developed ancestors with a view to producing extreme speed were tendered their sweetest morsel of satisfaction when Admiral Dewey, J. Malcolm Forbes' great colt, took the three year old stake at Readville in straight heats without an effort, writes Palmer Clark. This wonderfully bred colt was sired by Bingen 2:06½ and is out of the ex-queen, Nancy Hanks 2:04, giving him the fastest speed inheritance of any trotting colt that was ever foaled. His mile in 2:14½, remarkable as it was, as there was nothing in the race to force him, is said to be but an inkling of his capabilities. As to the controversy as to the use of developed speed in the production of fast harness horses there seems to be considerable misunderstanding, or rather a desire to misinterpret the views of the various writers on the subject. Of all that I have read on the question there does not seem to be any one who argues that the use of developed stock is detrimental in the production of speed, but they believe its use wholly unnecessary toward that end. When the evidence daily demonstrates that fast horses can be produced from animals who have had no previous development for speed, or, on the contrary, where their inheritance is such as is possessed by Admiral Dewey, it would be in order to declare the controversy a draw and give the subject a much needed rest. It might afford an opportunity for the controversialists to get their bearings and cause the subject to be handled in a way that would prove of some benefit to their readers.

THE SADDLE.

STEEPLECHASING and hurdle racing will again be a feature on the tracks of the California Jockey Club. Owing to the fact that in nearly every instance the jumping races given in former years left a decidedly bad taste in the mouths of those who witnessed them here in California, President Williams made an order that no purses or stakes would be hung up for this class of horses and for several years the jumpers have been tabooed at the California Jockey Club meetings. When Mr. Williams was in the East last month, however, he was importuned by many of the better class of owners and trainers who race there and who will come to this Coast this winter, to renew the jumping races and he finally acceded to their requests. During the coming season a number of good purses will be offered for both steeplechase and hurdle races, and Mr. Williams has the assurance of a number of prominent Eastern racing men that they will bring their jumpers here to compete for them. That these races are always an interesting feature of the card on the days when run is true, and when the public is assured of an honest contest there is always a heavy play on them. The California Jockey Club will tolerate nothing that savors of crookedness in any of its races, and will make a special effort to make what jumping races it has on its program, high class contests. Hundreds of race goers who enjoy the thrill caused by a warmly contested jumping race will greet this announcement of their resumption at the California Jockey Club tracks with pleasure.

TEN STAKES ranging from $1500 to $3000 each are advertised by the California Jockey Club to close September 16th, or two weeks from Monday next. These stakes are all to be run before January 1, 1902 and are as follows: The Opening Handicap $1500, for three year olds and upwards, one mile; Produce Exchange Stakes $1500, for two year olds, six furlongs. Golden Gate Selling Stakes $1500, three year olds and upwards, seven furlongs; Crocker Handicap $1500, two and three year olds, six and a half furlongs; Thanks-giving Handicap $2500, three year olds and upwards, one mile and an eighth; Burlingame Selling Stake, $1500, three year olds and upwards, one mile and a sixteenth; Truxton Beale Handicap $1500, three year olds and upwards, one mile; Junior Stakes $1500, two year olds, seven furlongs, Christmas Handicap $3000, three year olds and upwards, one mile and a quarters New Years Handicap $2000, three year olds and upwards, one mile and an eighth. The entry blanks for these events are printed and will be sent to any one or can be had by application to Secretary Milroy of the California Jockey Club, San Francisco, or at this office; In addition to these ten stakes, fifteen more have been announced to be run after January 1st. The Burns Handicap $10,000, for three year olds at a mile and a quarter remains the largest and most important of these stakes, there are two others of $3000 each, two of $2500 each, four worth $2000 each, and six for which $1500 is the guaranteed value. Reference is made to our advertising columns for the distances at which these races are to be run, etc.

THE RETURN of many of the stables that have been campaigning over East and at Butte, Montana, will make the fields much larger in the running races at the State Fair than was anticipated a few weeks ago and it now looks as if there would be a good field of horses in every race, while in some they will be larger than ever before seen at the State Fair.

THROUGH THE GENEROSITY and enterprise of Hon. William C. Whitney of New York, the Racing Calendars have been compiled for the years 1861 to 1869 inclusive and printed in three very neat and handy volumes. The records of racing for these years have never before been compiled and the volumes will be a very valuable addition to every library of thoroughbred horse literature. With these volumes the American racing records are now complete from the year 1861 to the present time and as the printing of them must have involved quite an expense, which could not possibly be met by sale or subscription, Mr. Whitney's generosity will be greatly appreciated by those who have occasion to delve into the racing records of past years. The BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN hereby acknowledges receipt of the three volumes for its library.

THE SIXTH NATIONAL STALLION RACE, with $4000 added, to be run by two year olds during the spring meeting of 1903, will be one of the richest and greatest races of that year. Entries for stallions will close on Tuesday, September 10th, or one week from Tuesday next. As only the produce of stallions entered are eligible to this stake, which will be worth $20,000 or more in all probability, it behooves every stallion owner to name his stallions on the date above mentioned. The entry of foals sired by these stallions must be made on December 10th, three months after the date of closing of stallion entry, and only those foals are eligible that are sired by stallions that have been duly named and entered. The conditions of this great race are fully set forth in an advertisement which appears in this paper. The National Stallion Race is annually one of the great events of the splendid program of racing given by the Westchester Racing Association at Morris Park. The Sixth Matron for mares bred in 1901, another rich event offered by the Westchester Association will close December 10th. For entry blanks to these stakes address or apply to this office.

THE FALL SALES of thoroughbreds will begin today at Sheephead Bay by the Fasig-Tipton company. The Hartland Stud yearlings will open the sale. On Monday, Sept. 2d, the Fleischman yearlings will be sold, the Kingston Stud sale will be on Tuesday, the 3d, Dixiana, Fleetwood and Field's Place follow on Sept. 7th, and on Tuesday, September 10th, the yearlings from Mr. A. B. Spreckels' Napa Stock Farm will be offered.

GLENHEIM, the noted thoroughbred stallion purchased last spring of John E. Madden, by John Mackay, for J. B. Haggin, has been shipped to California where he will go into the Rancho del Paso stud. Glenheim has been quartered the past six months at Elmendorf. He was brought out by Madden, and won several stakes as a two and three year old.

DANGMAN, who rode in California last winter has gone to Austria to ride, having accepted a year's engagement with a wealthy owner in that country.

S. C. Hildreth has sold to J. B. Respass the chestnut gelding Filon d'Or, 5, by imp. Rayon d'Or—Fides. Price said to be $4,000.

VETERINARY DEPARTMENT.

CONDUCTED BY

WM. F. EGAN, M. R. C. V. C., F. E. V. M. S.

Subscribers to this paper can have advice through these columns in all cases of sick or injured horses, cattle or dogs by sending a plain description of the case. Applicants will send their name and address that they may be identified.

I would like you to tell me through your "Veterinary Column" what to do for a horse having corns. The horse in question (a good one, of course) has a corn on each front foot that have baffled the wisest of shoers at Ukiah and I am a little doubtful of there ever being cured but if you know of anything that will relieve them I would esteem it a great favor if you would answer this through your valuable paper. J. J. D.

Answer—The treatment for corns depends, to some extent, on the conformation of the foot or feet affected. In all cases you must look for the cause, and if possible remove it. If it be from the bending in of a weak wall, which is not sufficiently strong to support the weight of the horse, remove enough of the solar surface of the wall, at that part, to insure that the shoe will not again press on it, and put on a bar shoe, so that some of the weight of the horse may be borne by the frog, and the bar will also strengthen the heel of the shoe, so that it will not bend in on the affected part and again injure it. If the cause be shifting of the shoe from the wall to the sole on account of leaving the shoes on too long, or making the shoes very light and weak, or shoeing very close to prevent interfering, have the shoes reset immediately on observing the displacement, and in any case never leave the horse more than four weeks without being re-shod.

Sometimes a high contracted hoof will press on the sensitive structures of the foot sufficiently to cause lameness and give the red appearance of a corn to the heel. In this case the heels should be cut down, the feet soaked daily in a tub of water, or wet "swabs" applied to them when the horse is in the stable, in order to keep the hoofs soft that they may more easily expand at the heels. Then, if the roads be good, and the horse not worked a great deal, have him shod with "tips" so as to throw weight on the frog back towards the heel, and thereby expand the hoof and take the pressure off the sensitive parts. Where the conformation of the foot is good and the wall strong, a three-quarter shoe may be used instead of a bar.

In all cases of corns, keep the shoe from pressing on the affected heel. Have the horse shod every four weeks keep the hoofs soft by packing the feet every night with some one of the ordinary foot stuffings used for that purpose. If the wall be weak at the heels see that no bearing comes on it. If the hoof is high and contracted at the heels, keep the heels rasped down and give frog pressure.

Remember that corns are caused by pressure on the sensitive structures beneath the hoof, and that you must not only remove the pressure once, but also take precautions at each time of shoeing, that the pressure will not recur.

At the Traps.

The Union Gun Club shoot to-morrow at Ingleside will conclude the club season at the inanimate target traps. The club live bird shoot on the 29th of September will be the final regular event billed this season for the association grounds.

The final blue rock shoot of the Lincoln Gun Club is to be held to-morrow on the club grounds at Alameda Point.

The Empire Gun Club will wind up this year's trap shooting season on September 8th and 9th. Five events are scheduled for the first day, two races at 15 and one at 20 targets. The fourth event is a whopping big merchandise prize shoot, with a great number of prizes for 15 classes. A shooter who breaks 5 targets out of 20 will be winner of a prize. A special event at 15 targets for unclaimed prizes will conclude the first day's shoot. On Admission Day the preliminary races comprise a 15 and a 20 bird event. The third event will be one of the highest merchandise prize shoots ever held on the Coast; 18 classes are provided for, with four or five prizes in each class. A special event at 15 targets with 9 prizes for high guns, for an unlimited re-entry race, will close the club's shooting at the traps for 1901.

The San Francisco Gun Club live bird shoot last Sunday at Ingleside was noticeable as being one of the best exhibitions of pigeon shooting seen here this year. Out of a total of 225 birds shot at in the club race 60% of them were stopped effectively with the first barrel. From a spectator's point of view the race was one for blood.

But nine men were present on Sunday to shoot out the final club race at 25 pigeons. After the second round had been shot all other members entitled to shoot and not present were barred by the rules. An agreement was then made between the nine contestants that the high gun take the diamond medal and the club purse of $200 be divided equally among the eight other shooters. This arrangement would have prevailed anyway in dividing the shooters into four classes, with the exception that four men would have taken $30 instead of $25, and this made the match essentially a medal contest. The day, which was gloomy and cold in the morning, turned out to be quite hot before the shoot was over. The pigeons supplied for the club race were, with few exceptions, a strong and swift lot of birds. M. O. Feudner was the first man up. He lost two birds out of his string of 25, both dropping dead outside of the boundary line. His loss of four birds in shooting up a back score put him out of the race. J. A. Karney, the second shooter, lost his eleventh bird dead out, a strong, steady flying left quartering white pigeon from No. 2 trap packed a load of lead just about two yards over the boundary line. George Jackson's fifth bird in the club race also collapsed a short distance over the wire fence. W. E. Murdock lost three birds in the main race. Fred Feudner missed his seventeenth "dead out," and his last. R. C. Rosenberg, who has a quick first barrel, lost three swift birds that had a good start before he could hold them down with his gun. E. L. Forster, lost his fourteenth bird and was just one bird behind the two high guns for the medal. Hip Justins made the best straight string in the club race. His nineteenth bird fell outside the scoring circle. He also lost two more out of his 25. E. Klevesahl did not shoot up to his usual form and was low man in the race.

At the conclusion of the club race George H. T. Jackson and J. A. Karney, who killed 24 each, were found to be high men with a total of 93 out of 100 birds apiece. The tie was shot in a ten-bird race immediately after the club shot. In this race Karney lost his seventh bird, a large black and white one sprung from No. 3 trap, a swift left outgoing bird that was struck with shot pellets from both barrels, but seemed to be on the edge of the pattern. The bird lit fifteen yards from the trap line, apparently badly hurt. The dog was sent to retrieve, when the bird took flight and was strong enough to get over the boundary before falling. Karney seemed to have against him "shooter's luck," just enough to make him lose the medal. George Jackson killed his ten straight and won the medal. The bird that put him in the tie shoot was his twenty-first in the club race. Two barrels did not stop an ash-colored "cooler" that lit dangerously near the barrier. Jackson retrieved the bird himself, taking his time, within the three-minute limit. He carefully approached the bird, which was slowly collapsing, but had, it was feared, enough strength to flurry across the dead line; it was too far gone, however, and put him in the medal race by a close shave. During the day Jackson's shooting was particularly good. Out of a total of 65 pigeons shot at he lost but three. After the club shoot eleven men shot an eight-bird pool race, $2.50 entrance, high guns, three moneys. The winners were Jackson, Murdock, Karney, Klevesahl and "Kid" Feudner on straight scores. Jackson, with 15 straight, won first money in a fifteen-bird race following. "Nod" Fay and Mr. Donohoe, with 14 each, divided second and third money. Fay won the second fifteen-bird pool with a score of 14. J. V. Coleman and Fay concluded the day's shooting with a practice shoot at a dozen olds.

Out of a total of 100 birds shot at in the club shoots this year G. H. T. Jackson and J. A. Karney missed seven. E. L. Forster eight. W. E. Murdock nine, Fred Feudner eleven, R. C. Rosenberg twelve, M. O. Feudner thirteen, E. Klevesahl fifteen and H. Justins sixteen.

The Millwood Gun Club members, all but three of the twenty-five comprising the club, held a trap shoot and outing at Dick McDonald's, Mill Valley Junction, on the 25th inst. The club medal for August was won by H. Maddock who secured 21 breaks. The Feudner trophy was won by Mr. Van Nordan with 20 targets broken. A number of events were shot after which the club members enjoyed quite a dinner prepared by mine host McDonald. A summary of the scores in the Feudner trophy match and club race were respectively as follows:

	Yards.	25 Targets.	25 Targets.
Price	18	19	16
Maddock	18	19	21

The Newman Gun Club will hold a live bird and blue rock shooting tournament at Newman, Stanislaus county, on Sunday, September 1st. The program embraces nine events, all class shooting, as follows:

Blue rocks—First event, 15 targets. Entrance $1, three moneys, $4 added. Second event, 20 targets. Entrance $1.50, three moneys, $6 added. Third event, 20 targets. Entrance $2, three moneys, $10 added. Fourth event, 25 targets. Entrance $2. First prize, single barrel shotgun; second, 500 loaded shells; third, gun case; fourth, 10% of entrance money. Fifth event, 20 targets. Entrance $1.50, three moneys, $6 added. Live birds—First event, 6 pigeons. Entrance $2.50, three moneys, $8 added. Second event, 6 pigeons. Entrance $3, three moneys, $10 added. Third event, 10 pigeons. Entrance $5, three moneys, $20 added. Fourth event, 8 pigeons. Entrance $4, three moneys, $12 added.

The bi-monthly shoot of the Empire Gun Club held at Alameda Point Sunday, was the final shoot for the Allen handicap gun and the Sweeney record medal. The weather conditions were perfect and many good scores were made.

A. J. Webb, the club's crack shot, was declared the winner of the Allen handicap gun for making the best average for the season in this event. He scored a total of 108 birds out of 120 shot at in pairs from the twenty-yard mark, having been distance handicapped to that station. This is an average of more than 90 per cent., and is certainly a very creditable performance considering the disadvantages the contestants were under in this match.

W. O. Cullen won the Sweeney record medal, as his score of twenty-five straight was never equaled. He made this score on June 23rd last. Although more than twenty attempts were made by different shooters to lower the mark the record stood, and Cullen was given the much prized medal. Both events carried side pool money. In the Allen handicap gun C. W. Debenham won first money and J. B. Hauer second. In the Sweeney record medal event Webb took first money, while Hauer again carried off second money.

The results in both of the main events and the following shoots were as follows:

Allen handicap gun event, twenty-bird race, shot in ten pairs doubles, distance handicap—Webb, 20 yards rise, 17; Webb (back score) 15, Swales 15. Reed 16, Reed (back score) 15, Debenham 15, Allen 16. "Chestnut" 18, Hauer 19, Hauer (back score) 18.

Sweeney record medal. This was a continuous break re-entry race, open to all, and for each five birds broken the shooter was distance handicapped two yards until the twenty-yard mark was reached, when the contestants shot doubles under original conditions; scores:

Allen 1, Allen (second) 11, Swales 12, Hauer 11, Hauer (second) 7, "Chestnut" 9, Swales (second) 4.

Ten-bird races—Swales, 8, 7, 8, 9, 9, 9, 6; "Chestnut," 10, 10, 10, 10, 8; L. Baird, 3, 5, 7, 8; R. Baird, 6, 3, 3, 3; Ross, 3, 7, 7, 10, 9; Reed, 10, 9, 9, 7, 8; Webb, 9, 7, 10, 9, 9; Javette, 6, 9, 6; Debenham, 8, 10, 9, 7, 10, 10; Duck, 5; J. Webb, 8, 7, 8; Hauer, 10.

There were fourteen entries in the shoot at Victoria recently in the contest for an ammunition company's trophy at the trap grounds of the Capital Gun Club. The shoot was at 40 birds, 20 at unknown angles and 20 at reverse traps, unknown angles and use of ooth barrels. The shoot was won by J. C. Maclure, with a score of 32 breaks. W. N. Lenfesty, who has won the trophy twice and had only to win it another time to hold it permanently, was second, with a score of 28. In the first 20 birds, Borde, Maclure, Minor and Lenfesty tied with 14 each, and in the second 20, Maclure only had to break 18 to win. The scores, which follow, were not up to the usual standard of those who took part: J. C. Maclure 32, W. N. Lenfesty 28, G. Ross 26, C. W. Minor 24, J. H. Mansell 22, H. Borde 21, W. Williams 21, G. Penketh 20, J. Phillips 19, H. Cathcart 18.

After the trophy shoot there were three events for merchandise prizes open to the members of the Capital Gun Club only. In the first of these 15 singles, W. N. Lenfesty was first, G. Ross second, N. B. Gresley third and W. A. Smith fourth. The first prize in the next event, 10 singles and five reverse, was won by G. Ross, H. Cathcart second and N. B. Gresley third. In the third event, 15 singles, the first prize was won by W. N. Lenfesty, G. Ross second, W. A. Smith third and H. Cathcart fourth.

Deer Hunting Notes.

In some portions of this State, notably in Santa Clara county, hunting deer with dogs seems to be unacceptable to the residents of the hunting sections. In the Pine Ridge and Mount Hamilton range districts the country is posted with prohibitory notices and patrolled by ranchers, who threaten to shoot any dogs found running deer.

The San Jose Herald says recently that "One of the truest sportsmen of California states 'when you see a hound in a deer country, shoot him.' Hounding is unsportsmanlike, cruel and likely to do more to exterminate deer than the killing out of season by foothill and mountain ranchmen, who occasionally shoot a buck on their own land for meat. It would be a good idea to incorporate a clause against hounding in our game laws. It would be much more easily enforced than the laws against still hunting."

The Mercury of the 21st inst. devotes half a column to the exploits of a score or more of San Jose hunters who were successful in bagging bucks. The writer of the paragraph quoted does not know much about deer hunting evidently. At all events San Jose sportsmen can be congratulated upon having a splendid deer preserve at their exclusive disposal.

Most hunters would rather stalk deer than run them with hounds. The hunters are posted at chosen points where the deer are driven to them by the dogs. Many hunters, it is to be regretted, cannot discriminate between a doe or fawn at more than an ordinary shooting distance. The principal reason for the use of dogs by out hunters is that most of the country frequented is of such a rough and chapparral grown character that hunting afoot is absolutely impossible and never a shot could be had were it not for the faithful work of the well trained and intelligent canine hunting companions. Were it not for these dogs many a wounded deer would never be found.

California sportsmen can boast of the possession of some of the best performing deer hounds in the United States. These dogs are not the white and lemon-colored tuncful variety that look so charmingly picturesque when following in close order and full cry a trail over the gentle grass-land slopes of undulating and open country, but they are the resonant lunged progeny of old Kentucky and Missouri stock, black, white and tan demons, that will follow a fresh trail or pick up a twenty-four-hour cold track and pursue deer, bear, coyote, cougar or lynx until every impact of their untiring pads leaves its sanguine imprint on the unswerving path, the end of which is only found when the quarry is brought to bay and held up until the approach of the hunter to administer the coup de grace.

Deer hunting in Humboldt, Trinity and Mendocino counties has been excellent, bucks being numerous in the northern portion of the State.

W. J. Golcher, Clarence A. Haight and Joseph J. Sweeney had a two-weeks' outing on the south fork of Eel river at its confluence with Rattlesnake creek. Deer were plentiful, but the country was exceedingly rough. The party killed seven bucks on the trip. A splendid pair of antlers, taken from the head of Joe Sweeney's first buck and prepared for mounting by Will Golcher, and two sacks of jerky were brought to town. More deer could have been killed, but it was impracticable to get them out of the district. Fishing in Rattlesnake creek was excellent.

A Berkeley party of hunters composed of A. H. Broad, B. E. Underwood, F. E. Armstrong, P. Wickman, W. H. Mara, and J. Mortimer bagged eleven fine bucks in three weeks in a section of Round Valley, twenty-five miles northwest of Covello. The weather was hot continuously and the country a hard one to hunt in. The hunters saw one bear on the trip, and the dogs chased Bruin for several hours fruitlessly.

V. Sartori, T. Watson and Ben Baum bagged five bucks near Duncan's Mills. Quail were seen in plenty in the district also. Howard Nauman, A. F. Lawton, H. Whitley and W. Smith killed six deer in the mountains near Willits. Quail were also numerous in that country.

The regular weekly hunts at the Country Club in Marin county on Saturday and Sunday records a bagging of six prime bucks as follows: E. F. Preston, a forked horn which weighed 130 pounds. W. S. Kittle, a 115 pound forked horn. F. W. Van Sicken, a Pacific buck which weighed dressed 154 pounds, the lustiest venison killed on the preserve in two years. President Geo. Boyd downed a 117 pound forked horn. J. LeRoy Nickel's forked horn turned the scales at 82 pounds and Shafter Howard's rifle lowered the proud antlers of a forked horn buck weighing about 135 pounds.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

Cartridge and Shell.

Dick Itgen killed a fine fat buck in Marin county on Tuesday. Lee Clark and W. Kennedy got five bucks in the northern part of Sonoma county. Does and fawns were very numerous. Valley and mountain quail were plentiful and the camp larder was never without fresh brook trout.

M. Hollings and three hunting companions were after deer near Mount Sanhedrin for two weeks. They got two bucks only. Many camping parties were in the district and deer were scarce. Quail and doves are reported to be plentiful in Mendocino and Humboldt counties by hunters who have recently returned from that country.

A wad to be used over the powder in a shotgun shell has been shown, by Thomas Parkes, the inventor, to the English trade. The editor of the Sporting Goods Review says the wads "are compact of some dark colored gelatinous substance, which has been made to absorb a good deal of grease, apparently tallow. The wad is used between powder and shot, and is stated to check entirely any escape of gas. Remarkably regular patterns have been secured by its use, but, as one would expect, it sends up the pressures. With an ounce of shot and a reduced charge of powder good results are obtained and the inventor claims that a considerable saving of material will result in the adoption of the wad."

Reports of Southern California hunters afield are that dove shooting sport has been and still is excellent, but the shooters have tired a little of it and are anxious to try their hand at some other game for a change. This is impossible until October 1st, so a great many guns will have a change to get cold.

This season the doves have been in rather inferior condition compared to that of some previous years, but it is probably due to the predominance of young birds. There have been a great many more young ones this year than for several seasons previous, it looks as if the birds had reared additional broods. All kinds of game breed more freely after favorable winters.

There is an excellent prospect for good sport with the quail this season, they have been reported numerous in a great many sections that have held but few for the last three or four years. Over in the San Fernando valley a great many coveys have been located, but most of them are in the willows, and it is almost impossible to start the little blue birds in such excellent cover. When they do rise a choke-bored gun usually tears them to pieces, and when killed, a hunter is not at all sure of bagging his bird. Quail seem to harmonize perfectly with their surroundings, be they what they may. When they fall breast downward a hunter often looks at them and yet fails to see them unless the wind turns a feather. Many flocks of quail are on the Los Angeles side of the range as well, and those who know where they are to be found can easily get the limit of birds. Several of the wise ones are preparing an invasion of the quail ranks the Tuesday on which the season opens.

A wet winter for California this year will mean ducks and all other kinds of water fowl in abundance. While most of the good country has been taken up by the gun clubs, there is yet plenty of places where an outsider not a member of any club can obtain good sport shooting water fowl.

Some of the San Pedro hunters killed a number of ducks in the back bay to the west of Wilmington last year. It is a good place if one knows enough about the habits of ducks and other water birds to take advantage of their weaknesses. A number of islands are in the bay; low sedge-covered stretches of mud that are covered with water at high tide. The wise ones dig pits in these flats, sink barrels therein and set out a stand of decoys in front of their "sink box." If the job is neatly done ducks will fly right over without seeing anything out of the way. A sailboat, strange to say, can usually approach within a long shot of ducks before they will rise. Why, it is hard to say. They do not seem to fear it as they do smaller craft.

John Hauerwas, Gen. C. F. A. Last and a party of Los Angeles hunters were deer hunting in Ventura county this week. Jim Matfield was at Lou Ralph's just above Gorman's station. Chris Krempel, Harry Pfirman and Joe Singer were also out after deer.

John H. Schumacher will take a long trip, and may go as far north as Oregon.

A new invoice of L. C. Smith and Parker Bros.' guns just received. Some 12 gauge duck guns now in stock are unsurpassed. For quail and snipe shooting and also for ladies' use, we have a special lot of 16 gauge guns. H. E. Skinner & Co., 416 Market Street.

Uncle Eph's Advice.

W'en yo' mental atmospherical condition ain't de bes'—

W'en hit's sorter dull an' gloomy in de sky;

W'en dey's headaches on yo' features an' yo' karn't git any res',

An' yo' got dat achin' feelin' in yo' eye,

Drop yo' trubbles an' yo' cares

An' jest wander ennywhers

An' imagine yo's de king of all creatioa—

Kase dey ain't no chance t' smile

W'en yo' worry all de while,

An' yo' might as well indulge in jubilation.

W'en yo' study up yo' trubbles an' exaggerate yo' palu,

Jes' reflec' dat dere's no pleasure in a groan.

Yo' no mattah how you're achin', yo' c'n make hit right again

An' widout a single supplement of moan.

Take yo' tackle an' yo' pole

An' explore some sunny hole

Where de speckled trout is leaping up an' swishin'—

Set down on de bank an' dream

Ob de comfort in de stream

An' shake off yo' trials an' worries while yo' fishin'.

Fishermen frequently throw a good bait away when engaged in catching red surf perch. The bait is the young fish. These perch are viviparous; in other words, produce their young alive. In cleaning a female perch a dozen or two of the young fish are found, and their tenacity of life is surprising. Placed under a damp seaweed they will live half a day, and no better bait swims. J. J. Jenkins took a big sea bass on one of these at Ballona two weeks ago. The little things should be hooked just beneath the dorsal fin. They will not stand the jar of a hard cast, however, and must be lowered into the water with care.

Striped bass are not only plentiful in the bay but also in splendid condition. The San Pablo flats were fished by a large number on Sunday and many fish caught. G. Luttrell and F. Carroll hooked over 100 pounds; the smallest weighed 8 pounds. On Thursday a number of fishermen were on the bay near the San Pablo preserve but with one or two exceptions not a fish was caught. On Tuesday two rock-od fishermen caught with hard lines in Raccoon strait, nine bass weighing from 14 to 22 pounds each. The fight to pull them in the boat cut the anglers' hands with the line rather badly.

Doings in Dogdom.

Mr. G. A. Cranfield who judged Greyhounds at the last show of the S. F. Kennel Club paid us a visit this week. Mr. Cranfield has been in Dawson City for several months.

Any one desiring to sell a field-broken and well bred English Setter can find a purchaser for a satisfactory dog not over three years old, by addressing the Kennel Editor of this journal.

Albert Joseph's Boston Terrier Lady Montez was bred to Mrs. H. H. Carlton's Oaksie Tremout this week. This pair of Bostons are the parents of the winning dog at the May show here this year.

P. D. Linville recently purchased from C. A. Thompson the English Setter bitch Lucinda T. by Lee R. ex Hesper. She is a handsome white, black and tan bitch of more than ordinary intelligence. She was whelped September 5, 1900, and is entered in the Pacific Coast Derby. She will be called hereafter Lou Merriman.

W. J. Foster has a number of very promising young Fox Terriers. A dog and bitch out of Lillian Sage by Norfolk Trucinan are two excellent ones that look as if they would improve very much. A six month's old dog puppy by Scorchier out of Lillian Sage will make some of this year's breeding cut a hot pace to beat him.

Dave Sinclair will leave for Los Angeles next week, there to superintend affairs for the show in the southern city. Prospects are particularly bright for the largest bench show ever held in the lower portion of the State. Among the local fanciers who are counted in the list of prospective exhibitors are Phil C. Meyers with St. Bernards and Cocker from the Glenwood Kennels, Colonial Great Dane Kennels, J. L. Cunningham and Chas. Dresser with Great Danes, W. J. Forster, W. W. Moore, Chas. K. Harley, N. H. Hickman, J. B. Martin and others with Fox Terriers. Albert Joseph, Boston Terriers. Mrs. Roi, Maltese Terriers. Woodlawn Kennels, Fox Terriers, Bull Terriers and Irish Terriers. Miss Hatje, Mastiffs, Japanese and Cocker Spaniels. E. C. Plume, Cocker. A. D. Fately, St. Bernards. O. J. Albee and N. J. Stewart, Collies and Blenheim Spaniels. This list will be enhanced by L. A. Klein's string and John Bradshaw's entries and charges.

We note with pleasure the winning by Senator P. of the All-Age Stake at the South Dakota Field Trials commenced at Sioux Falls on the 20th inst. The Pointer is owned by J. W. Flynn of this city. In the Iowa trials at Emmetsburg, Ia., run on the 13th inst. and following days, Senator P. was unplaced. He is being handled by Thomas Richards. The other winners at the Dakota trials were: Sport's Solomon, owned by G. Thomas, Jr., of Philadelphia, second; Robert Count Gladstone, owned by Attorney-General C. W. Mullen of Iowa, third; Josie Brighton, owned by Gus Clay of Sioux Falls, and King Cyrano, owned by United States Marshall Morton of Omaha, divided fourth prize.

The Pointer King Cyrano and Setter Count Robert Gladstone were first and second in the Iowa All-Age. Buckeye Flash, a Setter bitch owned by I. H. Noble was third, and fourth was divided by Lewis Stuehmer's Setter Count Whitestone and J. W. Canaday's Setter Missouri Gale. The Derby winners were: First, W. S. Loudon's Setter Prairie Belle; second, B. G. Boyle's Setter Lady Maude Manning; third, W. H. Scott's Setter Prince Rodney; fourth, C. Ed. Coffman's Setter Lottie Rodfield.

"Burgomaster" Klein and "Colonel" Jack Bradshaw paid us a pleasant visit this week; both fanciers spoke encouragingly of the favorable prospects for the Los Angeles show. The Colonel reports that much preliminary work for the Oakland show has already been done and that the December show will have a splendid support. It is probable that either George Bell, of Toronto, Canada, or James Cole, of Kansas City, will judge at the show across the bay.

Both fanciers reported on hand a number of promising high bred puppies as follows:

Woodlawn Kennels' Newmarket Queen has a litter of seven Bull Terriers by Ch. Woodcote Wonder.

O. O. Heydenfeldt's Bayview Belle has six puppies (3 dogs) by Bayview Brigadier.

O. O. Heydenfeldt's Bull Terrier bitch Do! has seven nice youngsters (4 dogs) by Bayview Brigadier.

Legs and Feet is looking after three coming champions, one a dog puppy.

Three dog puppies out of Eclipse Blancbe by Norfolk Tyke are now pretty well grown and in splendid condition.

In Klein's string bis Bull Terrier bitch Nancy has a half dozen good ones by Bayview Brigadier. Four of the pups are dogs.

The Bulldog puppy saved out of the litter by Baby Jean is being nursed by the Dachshund Cb. Venololo and is coming along finely. The foster mother also has four puppies (3 dogs) by Col. Martin's Rex M. to absorb her matronly cares. The dam and puppies are located at present in Mr. J. C. Berrett's kennels at San Jose and are all coming on finely. Venololo will be back in the city next week.

Warren Corinna is looking after four Fox Terrier puppies (2 dogs) by Limefield Roderick at Mr. Klein's kennels.

Encliffe Shela, the Irish Terrier bitch, is reported in whelp to Wilmont Highwayman and is at present located at Mr. Norman J. Stewart's Rancho Bonita. Aromas, Monterey county.

Notes on Starting a Bulldog Kennel.

The hints about making a beginning with a Bulldog kennel in Mr. Farman's monograph on "The Bulldog" are apt enough in their general sense for guidance in taking up any breed with which the novice is unfamiliar. The Bulldog, however, is a very difficult, and disappointing breed, more so perhaps than any other, and the novice may very easily miss his way unless put on the right road by those who have paid dearly for taking the wrong turning. The lottery of breeding is, in Bulldogs, one of the most elusive will-o'-the-wisps that ever lured one on to expense and disappointment, unless one is very careful. Mr. Farman's hints are valuable if they are followed, but there is the trouble.

"Everybody has to purchase his experience, and this truth applies as fully to the dog world as to any other. Some people go in for dog-showing simply as the outcome of a love of dog-breeding, to test their dogs' merits as against their fellow fanciers' exhibits, whilst others take up dog-breeding and dog-showing from a more or less commercial standpoint, and we find that the comparatively enormous prices that are often paid for dogs of various breeds are frequently secured by breeders and exhibitors of good social standing. In the Bulldog world the average novice is attracted first by the popular glamor which surrounds the animal which has been so long adopted as representing the British Constitution; secondly, it is the most hideous of all breeds, but the dog's appearance at the same time is by no means revolting—on the contrary there is a "manliness" in his ugliness, which makes his owner quite proud to be seen with him; thirdly, there is always a good "market" for Bulldogs; and lastly, they are well catered for in the way of classes and prizes at the various shows, and by the Bulldog clubs.

The novice must not expect to pick up an embryo champion for a few dollars, nor even a prize winner at anything like that sum; at the same time pieces of good fortune do fall to the lot of some, as was the case with a fancier (a novice at the time), who for a sovereign or two picked up one of the best bitches of her day, and won numerous prizes with her. Even the most experienced make mistakes sometimes, and sell what turn out to be the best in the litter, and keep the inferior; but that is the exception rather than the rule. The average novice knows nothing of the subject, others have a smattering only. To these I would tender the advice to seek the aid of more experienced people than themselves before paying a long price for a dog, or, in fact, any price at all. There are clever vendors in the Bulldog world as in most other vocations, and to use the words of the late Mr. Arthur Cosby Jackson, of Bulldog fame, "You can't be too careful, you know."

Having made up his mind to breed Bulldogs for show purposes, the novice will set to work to purchase a bitch or two. Do not buy a stud dog unless it is intended to invest several hundred dollars in establishing a kennel and going in for the breed on a large scale, because a medium quality stud dog is generally of no use except for very scientific breeding, and naturally then only in the hands of an expert. The most valuable stud dogs are always available at reasonable fees. What the novice who wishes to keep a small kennel should aim at, is to acquire a bitch or two, which will be serviceable as good brood bitches, and if they possess show points good enough to win on the show bench, so much the better.

Do not accept the description of an animal contained in an advertisement, and never purchase one without seeing it and, if necessary, getting an expert's advice as to its qualities. The many disappointments which occur are through neglecting these two very simple precautions. It really is wonderful how sublimely innocent many an ordinary good business man is over a matter of this sort. The glowing description of the puppy, which the vendor "unfortunately has not room enough to keep," and the alleged rush of other fanciers "who want it, and are going to call to-morrow night to see the coming champion," are taken for gospel truth and the buyer is carried away with the idea that he, or she, is getting a marvel for a mere song. The novice parts with his gold to find that he has got—well, a bull pup, and that's about all. This is, of course, the worst side of looking at the subject. Really, hullo dog sellers are as honest as any other folk. At the same time, there is no reason why the novice should relax ordinary safeguards. Embryo champions are not sold at the price of the weakling of a litter, and never will be, and the seller of a dog is not a philanthropist in disguise who exists for the purpose of benefitting novices.

It is best to start a kennel with adult members rather than with puppies. Bull puppies have their full share of the troubles that all dog flesh is heir to, and besides, when starting with puppies, a year is lost in making a commencement in breeding, and should they happen to catch distemper or any other disease and die, the time is wholly lost, and all must be commenced de novo.

Supposing the novice, however, from choice or limitation of means, decides to purchase a puppy to make a start with, he must look upon the matter somewhat in the way of a lottery. It requires the most experienced expert to foretell what a pup in the nest is going to turn out like. It is really wonderful how a Bulldog will change between birth and maturity. A marvelous puppy at one age will develop into a miserable weed at another, and the medium puppy of the litter will make up to and outpace all his bigger brothers and sisters without any warning. Of course, to a certain extent, puppies may be judged at an early age, and often correctly, and the crack of a litter at a month old will frequently maintain his position at the head of the youthful family.

Bearing the above in mind, the novice should, if possible, endeavor to get advice from an expert, but should he be unable to do this, he should first of all insist upon having the pedigree of the puppy he proposes to purchase. In most cases this will be supplied about asking, but should there be any difficulty in getting it, then the best thing to be done is to have no more to do with the deal, but to shut it down instantly. It is absolutely essential to know the pedigree of your stock, if you want to ensure success in a Bulldog kennel.

Assuming, however, that the pedigree is forthcoming, it should be compared with the pedigrees of dogs belonging to the strains containing the great prize winners of the day. Experience alone can make such a comparison of any certain service in breeding, but still, such a reference will at any rate enable the novice to know within a little what he is buying. As a rule, the sire of a puppy is a far better animal than its dam. There are two reasons for this. First of all, the Bulldog is generally a grander animal than the bull bitch, and secondly the owner of a brood bitch naturally endeavors to mate her with something better than herself, and thus go on improving his stock. Now, as it is difficult for anybody to choose a puppy in the nest, much more so the novice, the next best thing for him to do, after having seen the puppy, is to give attention to its parents before deciding to purchase it. "Like begets like" is a good old saying and a true one, and it behoves a purchaser, whether he be a novice or not, to inspect those by whom the puppy has been begotten. As to the sire, this will generally be unnecessary if he is a well known dog; to a novice the prizes he has won will be a good guide, provided the wins are at shows held under kennel club rules, but with regard to the dam this will generally be quite another matter. Hundreds of bull puppies are advertised every year, and it is generally one of these that the novice purchases. A highfalutin' advertisement with a marvelous description, and a sire a well known crack, is all right in its way, but the purchaser should pause and think whether the dam is all that is to be desired, and unless she is a well-known winner he should give her his particular attention. Not to be a prize winner does not make a bitch any the less a show one, for she may never have been shown, or only exhibited in the keenest of competition. If the dam is a well-known prize winner, well and good. The majority of dams of advertised puppies, however, are not well-known prize winners, and many are not winners at all, and have no earthly chance of ever becoming so.

In such cases the purchaser should make it his business to see the dam, whatever may be the pedigree, and he should judge the puppy by comparison with it, making allowance for the superior qualities of the sire. As a guide to what a puppy is likely to turn out, I have found this plan very useful, and certainly for gauging the worst that is likely to happen, I have found it successful. I am, of course, not now speaking of the case of the dam being a crack as well as the dog, but of a moderate or plain bitch mated with a first quality stud dog.

It is unreasonable to expect that one who knows nothing of the breed should be able to judge a good from a bad specimen; still, a little study of the subject by anyone who has an "eye" for a dog, will go a long way in enabling him to detect a dog's good and bad points.

In selecting a puppy, after being thoroughly satisfied as to its pedigree and its parents, the intending purchaser should seek out the strongest of the litter and choose from them only. It's a great mistake to be pound foolish, and to purchase a weakly puppy because it may be cheaper. Weakly Bull puppies involve an immense amount of anxiety, trouble and expense to their owner, and, unlike a Bloodhound puppy, which, if it is going to die, does it quickly, and the weakly Bulldog will linger on with the true tenacity of its race, and dies only after incurring, may be, great expense and raising its owner's hopes and causing sore disappointment in the end.

The purchaser in making a selection from a litter in the nest, in which case the puppies would not be older than six weeks, should look for the largest puppy with the largest skull and possessing the heaviest bone. Glaring defects should always be carefully sought for by a thorough examination of the puppy all over. Observe whether it has got a Dudley nose or split nostrils, or any other deformities, and if so, have nothing further to do with it, and search for another puppy without such defects. If, however, the puppy has no such undesirable properties, and after being satisfied that it is healthy and strong, next observe the amount of wrinkle it possesses and loose skin all over, and then proceed to an examination of the head. The head piece of a Bulldog is its principal property, from a show point of view, and the purchaser should first of all satisfy himself that the puppy has a promising layback and then examine the mouth and jaws. The puppy should be examined carefully to discover if there is any sign of it being overshot or level mouthed. The pup should be undershot, and if it is not, it should be rejected. It is true a level mouthed puppy will sometimes improve, but it's a lottery, and not advisable to risk money upon. Look to the ears and see that they are not too big. If they are small and yet badly carried at this age, they may come all right. The size of the skull is an important item, and the distance between the eyes and the distance from the eye to the ear should be carefully observed. The eyes should be as far apart as possible. Width between the eyes is most desirable in a puppy. The face is much more likely to break up all right if there is plenty of room between the optics. See to the stern, and that the tail does not go over the back, a bad defect, that it is carried low, and is not coarse, or of great length; also observe whether the puppy exhibits an inclination to stand wide in front, as he should do. If the purchaser will observe all these points he will have done about all that he can at this early age, except taking a general impression. In doing this, watch how the youngster gets about, see that his limbs are free and that he is in every respect a healthy looking puppy and has no skin disease. By carefully following the foregoing lines in choosing a puppy, a very fair idea of his merits can be arrived at."

The Anglo-American Fox Terrier Matches.

These interesting events were brought off yesterday, August 8th, at the Government Quarantine Kennels, Mitcham. The time and place had not been published, and in consequence the attendance of spectators was not very great. We noticed among them Messrs. Carnochan, Redmond, Purdey, McNeil, Raper, Mason, Baxendale, Hill, Shout (of Bobtail fame) and Mr. and Miss Hatfield.

The matches were decided in two sections. Mr. W. E. Pitt-Pitts adjudicated the one, and the selection of the judge for the other was made on the spot. Mr. Francis Raymond, although reluctant to do so, kindly consented to undertake the task. The dogs were all shown by their owners, with the exception of the one belonging to her Grace the Duchess of Newcastle, whose representative was handled by Mr. A. Mutter. The matches were each for £25 a side.

Through the kindness of the judges we are able to put before our readers their reports.

First Section—Judge, Mr. Pitt-Pitts. The matches in this consisted of Mr. Carnochan against the Duchess of Newcastle. Mr. Carnochan against Mr. Redmond.

The following are the dogs who competed, and the order in which they were placed:

Mr. Redmond's Dusky Cackler by Champion Cackler of Notts ex Don't Go. Born April, 1900. 1.

The Duchess of Newcastle's Commodore by Champion Cackler of Notts ex Caddie of Notts. Born July 6, 1900. 2.

Mr. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Get There by Go Bang ex Molly Pitcher. Born April, 1900. 3.

We heard that this decision wins Mr. Redmond a side match which he had made, in which he backed his dog against Her Grace's terrier.

Judge's Report—I made it a close thing between the Duchess' and Mr. Redmond's exhibits. Both are grand terriers and the right size. Mr. Redmond's dog is better in head and ears, but was slightly tucked up in loin, and was lifeless and refused to make the most of himself. Commodore was looking his best, and a bit more skull and better ears would greatly improve him. The American dog was admittedly out of form; he fails in body properties and is not good behind, while his head and ears are lacking in terrier character.

Second Section—Judge, Mr. Redmond. The matches in this section were Mr. Carnochan against Mr. Raper. Mr. Carnochan against Messrs. Mason and Wood.

The following are the dogs who competed and the order in which they were placed:

Messrs. Mason and Wood's Gomersall Star by Soapy Sam ex Willesden White Rose. Born July, 1900. 1.

Mr. Raper's Raby Holdfast by Champion Matchmaker ex Bristles. Born May, 1900. 2.

Mr. Carnochan's Cairnsmuir Get There by Champion Go Bang ex Mollie Pitcher. Born April, 1900. 3.

Judge's Report—Gomersall Star was only beaten one point, and that is size. He has perfect legs, feet and front, very good head and ears, and is a rare coated dog, but undoubtedly too big. Raby Holdfast is better in size, and nearly as good in head and ears, but his legs are not good, being loose at the shoulders, and he might be straighter and also stronger in bone. Cairnsmuir Get There was out of condition, but under any circumstances he was beaten by the others in feet and body properties.

The match between Mr. Carnochan and Mr. Philipson was not held. Mr. Philipson had no dog to show and Mr. Carnochan consented to consider the match off.

After the matches had been decided, the company assembled in an old fashioned farm house close by, where the resident veterinary surgeon lives, and partook of refreshments at the invitation of Mr. Carnochan. Mr. E. B. Joachim, who was present on behalf of the Stock-Keeper, acting as stake holder, proposed the health of the competitors and congratulated them on the sportsmanlike manner in which the matches had been arranged. Mr. Redmond, in a graceful little speech, eulogized the pluck of Mr. Carnochan to come all that long distance to fight the battle in a good fancier like style, and he particularly mentioned the readiness with which he fell in with the views of the other competitors.

The friendly rivalry engendered by these contests became quite catching and the air got positively hot with matches for larger and smaller stakes. Amongst others Mr. Carnochan renewed his challenge for similar matches to those just decided, for 1902 with all his opponents except the Duchess of Newcastle, who was, we hear, much to her regret, unavoidably absent. In addition he arranged matches, on the same lines as this year's, with Miss Hatfield and Mr. Hill. There was also a match arranged between Mr. F. Redmond and Mr. G. Raper to show the best wire haired puppy born in 1901, to be decided at the London Fox Terrier Club's show in 1902. Mr. Redmond's puppy, wonderful, is one of a litter by Champion Cackler of Notts out of Dusky Ruth, and Mr. Raper's selection is Raby Topknot by Trinidad Fidalgo out of Vanda.—The English Stock-Keeper.

These matches were made about a year ago when Mr. Carnochan was in England. His proposal was that he would show this fall a Fox Terrier of his own breeding, born in 1900, against one bred during the same year by anyone accepting the challenge. The Duchess of Newcastle, George Raper, Frank Redmond, Mr. Mason and Mr. J. Phillipson accepted the challenge.

Cairnsmuir Get There won in the puppy class at Pittsburg last March, Commodore of Notts won at Crystal Palace recently and Raby Holdfast has competed successfully at several English shows.

Distemper made severe inroads upon Mr. Carnochan's kennel last spring carrying off several likely puppies, leaving only Got There for the matches, and his chances of winning were never favorably considered. Mr. Carnochan instead of paying forfeit came to the front like a true sportsman and fancier.

THE FARM.

Value of Dairy Cows.

Mr. Guy H. Miller read an essay on "The Advantage of the Thoroughbred or High Grade Cows for the Dairy" before the Dairymen's Association of California, which contains certain records, some of which have been published before, but they are worthy of being published again and placed together for future reference.

The Utah Experiment Station, wishing to buy cows, inspected more than 250 cows, and selected seventy-five of them to have milk weighed and tested, the other 175 being rejected without a test. Of those tested eleven were bought, and they were probably the best in the 250, but all were what would be called common cows, not pure bred or high grades. They had before one pure bred Jersey and two common cows, making fourteen in the herd. The milk of each cow was weighed at every milking and was tested regularly. The report for the year showed an average of 5655 pounds of milk and 268 pounds of butter per cow, but the best common cow produced 7156 pounds of milk, having been milked the full 365 days. The Jersey produced 6801 pounds of milk and nearly 365 pounds of butter, making the most butter at lowest cost per pound.

The Kansas Station tested a scrub herd of twelve cows bought for the purpose. They yielded an average of 5707 pounds of milk and 277.7 pounds of butter each in a year, but the best cow gave 9116 pounds of milk and 447.6 pounds of butter, exceeding any other in the herd by more than eighty pounds. She gave a net profit of $40, while the average was but $16.25 per cow, and one cow did not pay for her food by 43 cents.

The Wisconsin Station reported the results from four herds owned by farmers, who had charge of milking and weighing, while testing was done at the station. Herd A had twelve cows, that averaged 4820 pounds of milk and 229 pounds of butter. Herd B had five cows that averaged 6383 pounds of milk, 319 pounds of butter. Herd C, twelve cows, averaged 6056 pounds of milk, 315 pounds of butter. Herd D only four cows averaging 5788 pounds of milk, 292 pounds of butter.

The thirty-three cows average 5623 pounds of milk and 281 pounds of butter. In these cases, as in the others, the cows that made the most butter made it at least cost per pound. The fifty-nine cows in all these tests averaged 5647 pounds of milk and 277 pounds of butter in a year.

We will contrast this with a herd of ten pure bred Guernseys, four of which were ten years old and one fifteen years, giving milk only from two teats and kept only for her value as a breeder, yet they averaged 6347 pounds of milk and 350.77 pounds of butter, or 700 pounds of milk and 73 pounds of butter more than the average of the scrubs.

Sixteen grade Jerseys in Tennessee produced 5136 pounds of milk and 350 pounds of butter each in a year, less milk but 73 pounds more of butter than the scrubs, but a western Kansas herd of grade Holsteins, half bloods of higher grades from a pure-bred sire, which included several heifers, averaged 8263 pounds of milk, 360¾ pounds of butter each, or 2616 pounds of milk, 90¾ pounds of butter each more than the scrubs averaged for year.

A herd of two Jerseys in West Glover, Vt., made 404½ pounds of butter each in a year, and no account kept of milk or cream used in the family. This is all descended from one cow, the oldest being now eight years old.

The essayist has a herd of eight cows, that for the year ending Sept. 1, 1899 averaged 6428 pounds of milk, 413¾ pounds of butter. The oldest was six years old, and others four years or less. The highest milk yield was from a four year old, 7977¾ pounds of milk, making 497¾ pounds of butter each. Another four year old gave 7593¾ pounds of milk, but 511.86 pounds of butter, the largest butter yield. Another made over 500 pounds of butter a year. These are registered Jerseys.

Another herd of twenty-two registered Jerseys at Rosedale, Wis., averaged for 1900, 6991 pounds of milk and 449 pounds of butter per cow, the best one producing 13,474 pounds of milk and 740 pound of butter. Compare that with one of the Kansas scrubs that only produced 158 pounds.

He quotes some one as saying that if the cow producing 350 pounds a year is worth $40, one which produces 750 pounds is worth $825. We should place it much higher, for a good heifer calf from such a cow would be worth a carload of scrub calves.

California at the Buffalo Exposition.

Recently the Buffalo Times contained a long article relating to California's exhibit at the Exposition, from which we take the following:

"It is claimed for the California exhibit that the variety shown is superior, the size larger, the color richer and the quality better than any other fruits exhibited at the exposition. There is a quantity of fruit preserved in liquid for display purposes and comprising every variety of citrus and deciduous fruits.

"The Eastern farmers have looked with surprise and wonderment upon the combined harvester, which cuts, threshes, cleans and sacks the grain with one operation and covers from 40 to 100 acres a day, according to the size of the machine.

"Here are a few figures about California's output last year that makes astonishing reading:

"9 per cent of the country's wheat.

"22 per cent of the country's barley.

"24 per cent of the country's beans.

"17 per cent of the country's hops.

"7 per cent of the country's honey.

"38 per cent of the country's gold.

"60 per cent of the country's wine.

"70 per cent of country's beet sugar.

"99 per cent of the country's raisins.

"There were exported last year 54,000 carloads of fresh deciduous and 22,000 carloads of citrus fruits. There were cured last year 160,000,000 pounds of dried fruit, 170,000,000 pounds of canned and 72,000,000 pounds of raisins.

"And all this with but 2 per cent of the population of the country. Surely California's showing is most wonderful."

Dairy Cows.

The great majority of dairy cows throughout the country are of the short horn or mixed breeds, according to C. L. Smith of Minnesota, who has been lecturing on farms in the Pacific Northwest recently. But the dairymen who make the highest net profits invariably select the special purpose dairy breeds. Unless a farmer has the special purpose dairy performers, and both knows how and will give the necessary attention they require, it might be better for him to keep the dual purpose animals. When the Jersey or other special purpose breed begins to deteriorate, it very soon becomes unprofitable. Mr. Smith stated that usually the cross from a Jersey bull on a short-horn cow would produce great butter-makers, provided the ancestors of both parents had good milk records, but cross which way you will after that the calves dropped by these cross-bred animals would become very uncertain, either at the milk pail or as choice beef cattle. Therefore it becomes necessary to keep pure bred stock, unless the farmer has come to the limit of his herd and cares to breed only one generation of milkers.

The practical thing for the average dairyman of to-day is to use his eye—select for the dairy shape, then make use of the scale and the Babcock test. Have a constant aim for the 300 and 400-pound capacity cow.—Northwestern Horticulturist.

Jackson's Napa Soda does not tangle the feet!

Breeding for Mutton and Lambs.

For several years the Wisconsin experiment station has been working in the direction of establishing a flock of mutton sheep, in which the lambs for an early spring market should be of the best, as well as the older sheep valuable for mutton. As a result of their investigations so far they say that one chief consideration is to secure good rams. This does not mean high priced prize winners, as they invariably prove infertile or incapable of service. When rams are vigorous, without having been pampered or starved, and show that they have the qualities desired, they will give good value received, even at high prices. The ewes should be selected from those that are the deepest milkers, that suckle their lambs the best, and that have dense fleeces for their own protection. The best mothers are invariably among the leans when the lambs are weaned, and they should be chosen by the record they have made as mothers, and not on points of style or smoothness.

They are apt to vary in quality of lambs raised from year to year, and it is not always wise to reject a ewe because of poor lambs one year, if she has good records for previous years, or a ewe the first year if she is known to be of a good milking family and appears all right. The ewe lambs to be kept for breeding should be fed liberally from the first with oats and the best pasturage. This course insures weight of body and fleece and after the first year it is hardly possible to check their growth, as they will have the necessary vigor to provide for themselves. In a grade flock where lambs are to be sold to the butcher uniformity is important, and a ram that has proven a good breeder should be bred to the same ewes year after year as long as possible, but when necessary to change get one that has not the same faults of fleece or form as the ewes, or has good qualities which they lack. If the ewes are uniform, this is easier than when they are a flock of mixed character.

LEG AND BODY WASH

Race horses often become sore and stiff from continued strain on the hard tracks. Nothing takes out this stiffness and soreness like a wash compounded of diluted

Tuttle's Elixir.

Apply to the legs and put on light bandages. Sponge the body and put on light blanket. Guaranteed to produce desired results or money back.

Reading Trotting Park, Mass., March 23, 1900.
Dr. S. A. Tuttle, V.S.
Dear Sir: I have used your Elixir for the past ten years, in the diluted form for a leg and body wash. I consider it the best wash for keeping horses from sore up. Horses done up with this wash are much less liable to take cold than when done up with witch hazel or any other wash I ever used.

Of the subscriptions for stallions the nominators of the sires of the first, second and third horses shall receive 25%, 15% and 10% respectively. The remaining 50% to the winner.

Conditions for the Entry of Foals of 1901, to close and name at midnight, Tuesday, December 10, 1901.

Foals of 1901, the progeny of stallions duly nominated to be entered and named by midnight of Tuesday, December 10, 1901. Colts and geldings at $10 each, fillies at $5 each, the only forfeit if declared by December 1, 1902.

If left in after December 1, 1902, and declared by April 30, 1903, colts and geldings to pay $30 each, fillies $15 each.

If left in after April 30, 1903, colts and geldings to pay $60 each, fillies $30 each. Starters—colts, geldings and fillies to pay $100 each additional.

The Westchester Racing Association to add $4000 and the remaining 50% of the stallion entrances, of which $1000 to the second, and $500 to the third. The nominator of the winner to receive $1000 out of the subscriptions and starting money. Of the subscriptions for stallions, the nominators of the sires of the first, second and third horses shall receive 25%, 15%, and 10% respectively. Colts to carry 123 pounds, geldings and fillies 119 pounds.

The produce of stallions which have not produced a winner prior to December 1, 1901, allowed 5 pounds if claimed at time of entry. In case of a stallion nominated by other persons, as well as his owner, the owner shall have prior right. Should a stallion be nominated by two or more persons not his owners, priority of entry shall determine claim to the engagement.

By filing with the Westchester Racing Association, prior to December 1, 1902, an accepted transfer of the foal's entry, the original subscriber shall be released from liability as to the engagement of the horse, except for the original forfeit of $10 or $5.

Entries shall not be void by death of the nominator or transferee, if the engagement is assumed by the then owner of the horse, and notice in writing to that effect is given the Westchester Racing Association within ninety days after such demise, together with the payment of all accrued liabilities. Last five furlongs of the Eclipse Course.

VITA OIL

Barnhart and Swadlow

THE GREAT CALIFORNIA LINIMENT

Dr. Smith's Vita Oil is a healing, penetrating, non-blistering oil of wonderful pain-curing properties. It goes to the bone and the blood, and permeates every tissue of pain afflicted and stiffened muscles. It diffuses the blood, starts circulation and allows the bruised tissue to be absorbed and carried away by the rapid circulation it promotes. A cure for Bruises, Stiffness, Swollen Joints, Rheumatism, Aches, Sprains, Pain, Soreness.

A wonderful oil for man or beast—for horse or trainer—for jockeys or athletes—a remedy for the home or stable—a maker of muscle; a creator of speed, a preventative of disease, and an indispensable medical rubdown for every horseman and athlete in America.

Prominent people who use it:

John Parott, Geo A Pope,
AB Spreckels, Jos D Grant,
H J Crocker, W S Hobart,
J Naglee Burk, John Mackay,

200.....For Nominator of Dam of Winner of Two Year Old Trot

100.....{ To Owner of Stallion Sire of Winner of Three Year Old Trot, when mare was bred

ENTRANCE and PAYMENTS—$3 to nominate mare on October 1, 1901, when name, color, description of mare and stallion bred to must be given. $5 January 2, 1902. $5 July 1, 1903. $10 on yearlings January 2, 1903. $10 on two year olds January 2, 1904. $10 on three year olds January 2, 1905.

STARTING PAYMENTS—$25 to start in the two year old pace. $35 to start in the two year old trot. $35 to start in the three year old pace. $50 to start in the three year old trot. All starting payments to be made in ten days before the first day of the meeting at which the race is to be taken place.

Nominators must designate when making payments to start whether the horse entered is a trotter or pacer.

Foals that start at two years old are not barred from starting again in the Three Year Old Divisions.

CONDITIONS.

The races for two year olds will be mile heats (2 in 3) and for three year olds mile heats (3 in 5). Distance for two year olds, 150 yards; for three year olds, 100 yards.

If a mare proves barren, or slips, or has a dead foal or twins, or if either the mare or foal dies before January 2, 1903, her nominator may transfer his nomination or substitute another mare and foal regardless of ownership; but there will be no return of a payment, nor will any entry be liable for more than amount paid in or contracted for. In entries the name, color and pedigree of mare must be given, also the name of the horse to which she was bred in 1901.

Entries must be accompanied by the entrance fee.

Should the amount of entrance money received be in excess of the amount of the stakes, the excess will be added, less the cost of advertising, to the stakes for the three year old divisions in proportion to the amount offered for each division.

Nominators liable only for amounts paid in. Failure to make any payment forfeits all previous payments. Hoppies will not be barred to pacing races.

Right reserved to declare off or reopen these stakes in case the number of entries received is not satisfactory to the Board of Directors.

Money divided in each division of the stake 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.

There will be no more moneys in any division than there are starters.

ENTRIES OPEN TO THE WORLD; MEMBERSHIP IN THE ASSOCIATION NOT REQUIRED TO ENTER, but no horse owned in the State of California will be allowed to start until the owner has become a member. Horses owned outside of the State of California are eligible to start regardless of membership.

THREE OR MORE RUNNING RACES EACH DAY, NO PURSE LESS THAN $250.

CONDITIONS.

Entries to close Saturday, September 7th, 1901, when horses are to be named, and to be eligible to the class in which they are entered.

Stakes not filled satisfactorily to the management may be declared off.

Stakes will be divided into four moneys: 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.

Entrance 5%, and 5% of the amount of the Stake will be deducted from each money won.

The management reserves the right to declare two starters a walk over. When only two start they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided 66% per cent. to the first and 33% per cent. to the second horse. A horse distanced the field shall be entitled to first and fourth moneys only, and in no other case will a horse be entitled to more than one money.

The management reserves the right to change the hour and day of any race, except when it becomes necessary to ante-date a race, in which instance the nominators will receive three days notice by mail to address of entry.

The right reserved to declare off or postpone any or all races on account of weather or other sufficient cause.

For Entry Blanks and further particulars address

The management reserves the right to start any heat after the fourth score regardless of the position of the horses.

Entries not declared out at 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race shall be required to start and declarations must be in writing and made at the office of the Secretary at the track.

When there is more than one entry to any Stake by any one person or in one interest, the horse to be started must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race.

Trotting and racing colors must be named by 5 o'clock P. M. on the day preceding the race and must be worn upon the track. Colors will be registered in the order in which they are received.

Horses barred in trotting races, but will be permitted in pacing races.

Conditional entries will be treated same as regular entries and nominators held under the rules.

Any race that may be started and unfinished on last day of the meeting may be declared ended and money divided according to the rank of horses in the summary.

Otherwise than as herein specified in these conditions, National Trotting Association Rules, except Rule 4, to govern.

SUBSCRIPTION
THREE DOLLARS A YEAR

AT CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR, 1901
1. EL DIABLO 2:12½ by Diablo, winner of 2:12 class pace. 2. Scoring for start in Occident Stake. 3. ITALIA 2:23½, b. f. by Zombro 2:11, winner of Occident Stake.
4. GAFF TOPSAIL 2:16 by Diablo, winner of 2:18 class pace. 5. DUKE, head of Shorthorn herd of Joseph Marzen, Lovolocks, Nevada.

JOTTINGS.

ITALIA, as handsome a bay three year old filly as I have seen in a long time, got out of a sick bed as it were and won the Occident Stake last Monday at the California State Fair, distancing two of the four starters and showing ability to do the same thing to the other. She is by Zomhro 2:11, the greatest three year old of his year, and is a chip off the old block. Italia is owned by Mr. D. J. Desmond of Los Angeles who saw Walter Mahen drive her to victory and who confidently believes she will trot into the 2:10 list in another year. Three weeks prior to the race Italia was taken sick with the distemper, the disease which has been prostrating horses from Maine to California this year. A week prior to her illness she had shown a mile in 2:15½ and so clean were her limbs, and so perfect her wind that Walter was sure it would take three heats below 2:15 to keep her out of first money. The sickness came very near knocking her out completely and her throat was so badly swelled that the idea of starting her in the stake was almost given up. A blister was put on her throat, however, and Walter worked with the filly day and night. He got the swelling entirely out of her legs, reduced her temperature to normal and brought her to the race, but the hair was all off where the blister was put on and she did not look fit, but won all the same, and could have trotted four or five seconds faster than the record she made—2:23¼. Italia was not taken up this year until April, so it is very evident her speed is natural and Mahen says she is the most promising thing of her age he ever held a line over. Now Mr. Mahen is not a booster, but on the contrary one of the most quiet, conservative trainers in America and this is the fifth Occident Stake he has won since it was inaugurated. His statement therefore about Italia means much and can be taken without any sprinkling of salt. Italia's breeding shows that she did not come by chance. Her sire, Zomhro 2:11, is not only a great race horse but he is the best son of McKinney 2:11½, another great race horse, and the leading 2:15 sire of his age in the world. Italia is the first of the get of Zomhro to start in a race and to be the winner of the richest stake on the coast at her first appearance is an honor to her sire as well as to herself. Her dam is Concha by A. W. Richmond and her dam is by Crichton, a thoroughbred son of imp. Glencoe. Concha is a sister in blood to Arrow 2:13½, if Walter's information is correct, as her dam was a full sister to Arrow's dam, Crichton's First, who was also the dam of Elwood 2:17½ and the granddam of El Diablo 2:12½, Casco 2:24½, Elance 2:24½ and El Trebizond 2:26½. Italia is as level headed as an old campaigner and has no faults, needs neither weights nor boots and is a square trotter. The running foolishness is not in her head even though the hot blood of the desert is in her veins in rather large proportion.

Sam H. Hoy, the well known Winters horseman is to be congratulated on his action in scratching his pacer Kelly Briggs 2:10½ from the free for all pace at the Woodland meeting. There were those at the fair that day who hinted that Mr. Hoy was afraid to meet Myrtha Whips with his gelding for fear of being beaten, but Mr. Hoy's explanation of why the scratch was made should satisfy any fair-minded person who knows anything at all of the circumstances. Kelly Briggs has no further engagements this year. Had he started and won this race his share of the purse would have been $270 net. Mr. Hoy did not think he could afford to lower the pacer's mark for this amount and declined the issue. Kelly Briggs is a hopped pacer and Mr. Hoy desires to sell him as he needs the money. Were the horse fast without the straps a very low mark would increase his value greatly, but as money can only be made with him by racing, his eligibility to a greater number of classes will aid much in his sale at a good figure. Had Kelly Briggs been started in the race the Yolo county contingent would have backed him, as they know he was in good shape and a mile below 2:08 not beyond his reach. Hoy had three courses open—to start him and lower his mark, pull him and save it, but throw down his friends, or scratch him from the race. The first he considered would be money out of his pocket, the second he never did and never will, and the third was in his opinion the only honest and sensible plan. That his horse was on edge was shown the next morning when he worked him a mile in 2:09 so handily that 2:07 seemed within his reach. He was willing to match him for any sum that was worth pacing such a horse for. Any one who knows Mr. Hoy never accused him of being afraid to race his horses or of not trying to win. He did nothing wrong in taking Kelly Briggs from the race. It was the only proper course under the circumstances. He tells me that he proposes to keep him in training all winter and will give him road work enough to keep him in shape to show his speed. The horse is for sale and is capable of three heats below 2:10. His game-ness is unquestioned, no race being too long for him, and he is as sound as a new coin. If he does not sell him by the time the entries close next spring he will enter him through the California circuit if purses for his classes are given. If not he will either take him or send him East to race on the Grand Circuit and that he will return a good money winner is as certain as he keeps his condition and meets with no accidents.

Palmer Clark mentions a new method of handicapping harness horses by penalizing money winners. This is an old custom with the runners, but has never been applied to harness horses so far as I know. The plan is to classify horses according to the money they have won. Here is a sample of proposed races:

- For trotters that have never won money in a race.
- For pacers that have never won money in a race.
- For trotters that have not won more than $250.
- For pacers that have not won more than $250.
- For trotters that have not won more than $500.
- For pacers that have not won more than $500.
- For trotters that have not won more than $1000.
- For pacers that have not won more than $1000.
- For trotters that have not won more than $2500.
- For pacers that have not won more than $2500.

"The Year Book to be considered as authority for amount of money won by horses competing. If the meeting is for a mile track and the purses large, then the classes should be arranged with the idea of securing horses that have won larger sums of money. Like all innovations suggested for the betterment of harness horse racing, it will be met with the ultra-conservative element whose motto is always 'Let well enough alone,' but it must be admitted the plan has many meritorious points in its favor. Many a horse has shown a burst of speed that has won for him a heat in fast time that probably gave him second or third money, and then forever outclasses him, and all are aware, many of these have eventually found their way to the matinee tracks or speedways, being practically valueless for racing purposes."

An objection will be raised against bookmaking at the district fairs next year that unless all the signs fail will amount to something. The bookmakers have not had a very heavy play this year and will be very chary about making high bids for the exclusive hooking privilege, although should there be a good circuit in this State and a big entry list there will be plenty of bids from the fraternity of gamblers that have been in the habit of making the circuit of fairs every year. It would be a good thing for owners, trainers and the public if the Legislature would refuse to appropriate money for fairs where syndicate bookmaking is permitted, and it would be still better if the betting on all races at district fairs were confined to the auction and mutual systems. An owner and trainer who has a level head and who has been on the California circuit for years made some excellent suggestions in this connection to a director of District No. 40 during the Woodland fair last week. He said that while it is evident that the hookmaker can pay more for the exclusive betting privilege than can possibly be obtained from auctions and mutuals, he would favor cutting down the purses to meet the difference if it could be met in no other way. "I would rather trot my horses for $400 purses where the betting is by auctions than to trot him for $500 with syndicate bookmaking in vogue. In a program of twelve harness races a cut of this sort would save twelve hundred dollars, and taking this district as an example that sum would more than make the difference which the bid for hooks would bring over the sum to be derived from the percentage of the auction money. The reason I say this is that I enjoy wagering a little money on my horses, when I and those who back the others have the privilege of making the odds by bids. I hate to be compelled to give a bookmaker all the best of it and have him refuse my money when he finds I desire to play my horse. Then when the hooks win they take the money out of the crowd, while with auctions it comes back and is played over again. The hooks have nearly ruined the harness game here and I wonder at the associations permitting them at all."

There is no doubt but the morale of the district fairs could be greatly improved by the gambling element being crowded to the rear instead of permitting it to occupy the front seats, as is the case at present in nearly every town that holds a fair. Mr. C. F. Thomas, who, in addition to his duties as cashier of the Bank of Woodland, one of the substantial institutions of the State, finds time to act as secretary of the Woodland Fair Association, told me last Saturday that he had become convinced from the large crowds that paid to see the cattle show and stock parades at their fair, and the receipts at the pavilion, that the races were a secondary consideration as far as the cash receipts of their fair was concerned this year. This is in keeping with the contentions I have made from time to time in these columns, and I repeat the assertion that the district fairs should be divorced as far as possible from the gambling element that for the past few years has put itself into such prominence whenever the fairs are held. The races are the amusement part of the program, and do much to encourage the breeding of high class horses, thus adding much to the wealth of the State. Wagering money on the results of contests is a custom that is as old as time, and when people bet no more than they can afford to lose is harmless. The old plan of auction and mutual pools is entirely sufficient to provide for this class of betting and all that should be permitted by law on race tracks. Betting on races cannot be followed as a livelihood when this is the only system in vogue, therefore it is not so demoralizing as the hooking system which now holds sway here in California. But bookmaking in itself is not so bad when legitimately conducted. Unfortunately there always follows in its train, however, a gang of gamblers of the "tin horn" variety whose presence and whose openly conducted games bring fairs into disrepute. I have had men who make live stock and other exhibits at district fairs that represent an outlay of thousands of dollars, say to me: "I enjoy the races and like to make exhibits of my stock, but I do not like to be classed with the crap players and fakirs who follow the circuit. They seem to fill the hotels and I notice that nearly everyone has a badge for himself and the 'ladies' who generally accompany him." This remark was not made by one man; its substance was repeated by several. I heard while at Woodland that Editor Leake, proprietor of the leading journal of that town, had proposed that next year instead of appealing to the hotels, saloons and other places whose rooms are devoted to faro, etc., during the fair, for funds to aid the meeting, the fair directors and the citizens appeal to the Board of Supervisors and the City Council for financial aid sufficient to make up the required bonus, and that it be appropriated with the proviso that the laws of the town and county be enforced during fair week as well as at other times, and that an effort be made to give a fair and race meeting that will draw as many or more visitors to the town, but offer fewer attractions to the "scum" that causes so many to doubt the propriety of granting the appropriations made by the State.

There is not a particle of doubt but any district agricultural association that has a board of directors energetic and enterprising enough to secure a good exhibit of live stock, make its pavilion attractive and arrange a fair lot of races, can make it pay without having bookmaking or gambling of any sort in the town beyond the selling of auction pools and mutuals. By proper effort and inducements the best people in the district can be induced to patronize the fairs and endorse them by their presence, and all the objections now heard about the gamblers and fakirs that are so prominent at them can be silenced.

The Sacramento race track is a very poor one for harness horses again this year, as it always is during the fair. The custom of cutting it up for the runners makes it very unsafe for the trotters and pacers, and last Monday morning when I walked around the turn and part way down the back stretch with a visitor, it was in very bad shape. The track was not only rough and deep eight or ten feet from the pole, but there were muddy places in it where the water from the tanks had been allowed to run to waste. For several years past the California State Fair Directors have acted on the idea that the running races bring them more revenue than the harness events do, and consequently the track is made to suit the former. It is admitted that the sum of $17,505 could not possibly be received for a syndicate hook were there no running races, but there are hundreds of people in California who are very firm in the belief that the devotion of so much time and space to runners and the selling of the betting privilege each year to a syndicate of bookmakers have diverted the Fair in a measure from the place it was intended it should fill in the economy of the State. I believe a great amount of benefit could be accomplished by making the duration of the exhibition one week instead of two, and if hookmaking were done away with entirely, auction pools substituted and the premiums on cattle and other live stock doubled or even quadrupled, it would result in a net cash balance on the right side of the ledger each year.

In Heavy Harness.

C. F. Nagle, of Kentucky, has sold a pair of heavy harness horses to C. B. McCormick, Salt Lake, Utah, for $3600. One of the pair is by Danville Wilkes and the other by West Wilkes.

Little Wonder, the Hackney stallion owned by Mr. A. J. Cassatt and imported by him in 1882, is dead. This was the first high class Hackney imported to this country and did much to start the breed on the road to popularity along which in the East it has traveled so easily ever since.

Jose Ballina, City of Mexico, is in Chicago just now getting together a load of high class carriage and driving horses. He has paid so far from $250 to $1000 for the horses he has bought and says that among the wealthy Mexicans there is at present a large demand for American carriage horses with size, substance and beauty.

Advices from the United Kingdom are to the effect that Mr. N. P. Clarke, St. Cloud, Minn., has shipped twenty Clydesdale stallions from Scotland to this country. The lot is very highly spoken of both privately and in the press. The horses were purchased from the Messrs. Montgomery and are the get of such famous sires as Baron's Pride, Primate, McGregor and others of like class.

What are known as "hard horses"—that is, horses accustomed to the travel on the stones in Chicago and the eating of hard oats and dry hay—are just now commanding higher prices than old dealers can recall as having formerly been paid. A sale of livery horses was recently held at auction on the North Side of that city and some forty head of drivers were sold. Not one of them would have passed a strict examination by a veterinarian, but all but one sold for $100 or over, the best price being $260 and the lowest $60. The mare that sold for the $60 had a bad hind ankle, that joint giving way every time she stepped so that the pastern was almost parallel with the ground. The man who bought her stated that he thought he could get two years of slow, light work out of her and it would pay him better to take her with her weak leg than to buy a green one for twice the money and then surely have him sick for six or eight weeks, taking chances the while of his coming right or not as the case might be.—Breeders Gazette.

Onward Silver's victory in the Massachusetts $10,000 purse last week makes him one of the largest money-winning trotters of the year. His winnings for the season are: Cleveland, $1250; Columbus, $1000; Buffalo, $750; Brighton Beach, $2500; Readville, $5000. Total, $10,500. The chestnut stallion is engaged in several other good purses and, with his third heat in 2:08 at Readville to go by, he looks to be as sure of winning the Transylvania Stake in October as any trotter in sight.

Ralston, the bay gelding by White, owned by F. D. Weir, met with a horrible death at the Sacramento race track last Saturday by running full tilt against a 24-foot 2x4 scantling while warming up. The scantling passed through the entire length of the animal. Twelve feet of the piece of timber broke off after it had passed through the horse and the other twelve feet remained in the animal. The stable boy who was up on Ralston came a bad cropper, but was not dangerously hurt.

VENDOME STOCK FARM, San Jose, Cal.

BOYCE TABLET Co., Terre Haute, Ind.: Gentlemen—Your sample box of Tablets came duly to hand, and will kindly state that they have so far proved the best we have used yet both as a body and leg wash. We have a pretty bad case of patted-up legs in our string and it was for him especially we wanted something superior, and while before the fever in his legs caused by the work could never be controlled from working day to working day, we are so far, with your superior wash, able to do this now. No better proof need be necessary. We herewith order one dozen boxes at present, and will continue to order them during the season. Expecting them at an early date, we remain, respectfully, Driving Club Will Race at Vallejo.

Admission Day, September 9th, will be celebrated by members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club by racing their horses at Vallejo. There will be three events for members of the association and one for roadsters owned in Solano county. The horses have all been named and classified for the club races, which will be as follows:

Palace Hotel Stakes—Dan Leiginger's Lady Rowena, A. Schwartz' Trifle, H. B. Slocum's Tempest, M. M. Donnolly's Pious, J. G. Cuicello's A. B. P., H. F. Patrick's Lenna Holly.

Aigeltinger Stakes—James O'Kane's Sandow, A. Jacobs' Eden Vale, D. R. Misner's Sahle Le Grand, A. Joseph's Durfee Mc., William Van Kuren's Mattie B.

Spreckels Stakes—Dan Leiginger's Mack, C. E. Parks' Imp, B. Crenin's Butcher Boy, James Curley's Prince C., F. Gomett's Lafayette.

The road race is for horses of the 2:30 class. Many of the San Francisco horses have already been taken to the Vallejo track to train and as the day set for the races is a general holiday there should be a good attendance. The purses will be $100 each.

Zephyr Trots in 2:14 3-4.

C. A. Winship of Los Angeles, who sold the fill Zephyr by Zombro 2:11 to Mr. J. C. McKinney, proprietor of the Terrace Farm, Titusville, Pa., for $9000 recently received a letter from L. D. Shafer, trainer of the Farm horses, in which he says:

Zephyr is doing finely. Have been going easy with her. She has developed and filled out wonderfully. She had her first stiff work yesterday (August 27th). She got to feeling pretty gay, so I concluded to give her something to do. Worked her to cart first mile in 2:50, second in 2:27½, third in 2:19½; then hooked to sulky and worked fourth mile in 2:16½; fifth in 2:14½, last quarter of last mile without apparent effort in 31½ seconds. She is the same nice filly, likes company. Think if there had been a horse with her she would have stepped the last mile in 2:12. Her legs are clean as a hound's tooth."

SIX THOUSAND DOLLARS is the amount guaranteed by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association for the Pacific Breeders Futurity Stake for foals of mares bred in 1901, to trot or pace a two and three year olds. This stake will furnish the features of colt racing in California in the years the races are held. It should be the aim of every person who owns a mare that has been bred to a trotting or pacing stallion this year with the idea of getting a colt with speed, to name the mares in this stake. Every stallion owner should see that the mares mated with his horse are represented in the entry list when it is announced. A filly by Zomhro won nearly two thousand dollars in the Occident Stake last Monday at Sacramento. She has paid for herself several times over, and placed a value on herself larger than the stake she won. Had she not been entered in the stake the story would be different and her value much less. The sum of money required to bring a colt to the post in the Breeders Futurity is not large, and will neither make nor break an owner if the colt goes wrong and never starts, while it will give him a license to win if he has the speed. Did it ever occur to you that the fame acquired by such sires as McKinney, Diahlo, and other leading sires of California was gained by the racing of their get? They might be capable of siring a Coney or a Sir Albert S. every year but it would never be known if their get were not entered and raced. It is the people who take a chance and invest a few dollars in entrance money that have the prizes in the big stakes paid over to them, and it is the stallion owners who encourage the training and racing of the get of their horses that get large service fees and liberal patronage for them. It will only cost $3 to name a mare for this rich stake and no owner should permit the 1st of October to go by without making at least one entry in the $6000 stake.

EROMONT, the stallion whose picture appears on the opposite page, is one of the handsomest as well as one of the best bred young horses in America. He is by Electioneer's son Eros, the sire of Dione 2:07½, Wanda 2:14½ (dam of The Roman 2:19) and fifteen more in 2:30. The dam of Erosmont is that great broodmare Francisca by Almont 33. She is the dam of I Direct 2:12½, Sahle Frances 2:15½, Guycesca 2:26 and Earl Medium, the sire of several 2:15 trotters. Francisca's dam is Frances Breckenridge by Sentinel, the next dam is by Bayard 53, and the next dam is a thoroughbred daughter of old Eagless by imp. Glencoe, whose blood flows in the veins of such great racing thoroughbreds as Morello and many other high class winners, as well as in those of numerous fast trotters and pacers. The pedigree of Erosmont is as complete and full of performing and winning race blood as any horse in America. He is a splendid individual, 15½ hands high, and weighs 1050 pounds. He has speed enough for a very low mark if trained. He is a blood bay without marks. Erosmont is for sale and being perfectly sound, should soon find a buyer. All particulars in regard to the horse, and reasons for selling can be obtained by addressing this office.

THE STATE FAIR, which opened last Monday at Sacramento and will continue all next week, is being fairly well attended and promises to draw large crowds during the coming week. There is a good display of cattle and other live stock, and some good racing is being given. The pavilion display has many new and novel features, among others a complete oil well boring outfit in actual operation. It is barely possible that oil may be struck before the close of the fair. There is every prospect of the fair proving a financial success this year which will be very gratifying to the Board of Directors as well as to the public. For some reason the betting on the races is very light, but this only worries the syndicate that gave a big price for the betting privilege.

THREE HORSES BRED AT BAYWOOD STUD, the property of Mr. John Parrott of San Mateo, won prizes at the Bar Harbor Horse Show on the 21st of last month. This horse show, held annually at one of the principal summer resorts on the Atlantic coast, is one of the leading show events of the East and to win there is no small honor. The winning horses are Paquita and Attempt, that won first in Lady's Class and second in victoria, and Aigrette that won third in saddle class. Attempt and Aigrette are by the stallion Green's Rufus, and Paquita by the Arab Accionista. They were all bred and trained at Baywood Stud and sold to their present owner, Mrs. Barton Harrison, when she was Miss Crocker. Paquita and Attempt are a beautifully matched pair of bay mares, and their manners are very near perfection. Mrs. Harrison showed them in the ring.

A DISPERSAL SALE of horses belonging to Mr. H. P. Livermore of Oakland will be sold by auction at the Oakland race track on Saturday, September 21st, the sale beginning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Louis Schaffer will be the auctioneer. Among the horses to be sold there are two matched teams, one a handsome pair of blacks by Memo, son of Sidney, the other a pair of bay fillies by Winwood out of Mollie by Capt. Wehster. These fillies are four and five years old and an elegant pair on the road. There are several other well mannered road animals and two fillies by McKinney, one a yearling, the other two years old. Both are out of Lady Bird by Winwood, a son of Antevolo. Winwood's dam was a mare by Nutwood and his second dam by Ahdallah 15. There are ten head of thoroughly broken road animals in the consignment and several vehicles in good condition, including a rockaway, a phaeton, several huggies, a closed carriage and numerous sets of harness all in good repair. This sale will be without reserve and no by-bidding permitted, so that every person who attends and bids the high dollar can be assured that his bid will get the horse or vehicle on which it is made.

ENTRIES CLOSE TO-DAY for the harness races at the Oakland meeting which begins immediately after the State Fair. By turning to our advertising pages the classes of fourteen harness races will be found, seven for trotters and the same number for pacers. $500 is the purse in each instance and there should be an opportunity for all the horses now in training and on the circuit to be named in these events. The Oakland meeting will last eight days and will close in ample time for the horses to be shipped to the great meeting at Los Angeles which opens September 28th and continues two weeks. The Oakland track will be in better shape for the harness horses it is said than any time since it came into possession of the California Jockey Club. Joseph I. Dimond is the Secretary of the Association and entries should be sent to him at his office 120 Front street. Entries close to-night. Get them mailed in time.

PALO ALTO BROOD MARES can be obtained at your own price on Friday next at the State Fair at Sacramento. William G. Layng, the live stock auctioneer, will sell twenty-four of these mares, and they are as good looking and well bred as any on this great farm. These mares have all been stunted to the farm's stallions this year, and while Palo Alto does not make any more entries in California stakes, the purchasers of these mares can name them in the Breeders $6000 Futurity, which closes October 1st, and the foals can be entered in the Occident and Stanford Stakes for foals of 1902. This is an excellent opportunity to get royally bred mares and perhaps stake winning colts at a small price. The sale will be at the State Fair Grounds, Friday, September 13th.

NAME YOUR STALLIONS in the sixth National Stallion Race which is to be run at Morris Park by two year olds during the spring meeting of the Westchester Racing Association in 1903. Only the get of stallions named in this stake can start. Entries for stallions close next Tuesday. See that your horse is named. Read the advertisement.

TWELVE $500 PURSES for trotters and pacers are offered by the Stockton Driving Club for its big fair and race meeting to open October 15th. Entries for these races will close September 18th, which is one week from Wednesday next. The Stockton track will be in record-breaking condition for this meeting which will be the last held in California this year. There will be no date to conflict with it, and it will give all a chance to win a purse or two before going into winter quarters. The Stockton Driving Club is one of the most popular organizations in the State and is made up of energetic citizens of that thriving town. Wind up your campaign at Stockton this year and you will enjoy the meeting and the racing.

NEVADA'S STATE FAIR opens at Reno, September 16th, and lasts one week. Entries to the trotting and pacing races close on Tuesday next, September 10th, and the full program of racing with amount of purses will be found in our business columns to-day. The Reno race are always well attended and there is plenty of opportunity to make money if one desires to back his horse. The harness races are held under National Rules, the track is first class and the meetings always successful. Special rates can be had on the railroads and no more enjoyable trip can be had than the one to Reno.

OPENING OF STATE FAIR.

California's Annual Exposition at Sacramento
Attracts Large Crowds.

There was a larger attendance at the opening of the State Fair at Sacramento last Monday than has been seen on the first day of the fair for many years. It was Labor Day and the Directors had taken the federated trades of the capital city into partnership in the gate receipts with the result as above stated. An immense dancing platform was erected in the infield at the park, a big barbecue was arranged and when the laboring men had held their annual parade in the morning through Sacramento's streets, they all went to the park and took their wives and children with them. It is but fair to admit that the barbecue and the dance had more devotees in the crowd than did the races, and the eating and dancing were kept up until midnight. The gate receipts for the day were consequently very large showing that Secretary Jackson's idea of sharing them with the labor organizations was a wise one.

The races were not of a very high order, even though the Occident Stake, the richest stake of the year for three year olds was down for decision and opened the program. The judges for the day were Directors F. W. Covey, C. W. Paine and B. F. Rush, the first named acting as starter. But four of numerous original entries came up for the word in the stake—Italia, a bay filly by Zomhro, owned by D. J. Desmond of Los Angeles, Charles H., a bay gelding by Lynmont bred by William Hogoboom of Marysville and sold to Mr. George Kingsbury of San Francisco a few days prior to the race. Commander Muckle, a bay colt by McKinney, owned by Thos. R. Manning of Los Angeles, and Delia McCarthy, a bay filly also by McKinney and the property of Jerry Doran of Oakland. It was conceded by all who had seen these three year olds work that the Zomhro filly outclassed the others, but three weeks before the race she was taken with distemper and went into the contest in poor condition, which however did not prevent her winning. She won the event in straight heats, being extended at no time. Her fastest heat was the second in 2:23½. Delia McCarthy was behind the flag in the first heat and Charles H. saw it fall in the second. Commander Muckle got second money on sufferance as Mahen could have driven Italia fast enough to have shut him out had he been so disposed. A very unfortunate thing happened in the second heat. At the first score down Italia and Commander Muckle were even and trotting nicely as they came to the wire, while Charles H. was ambling and pacing at least fifty feet back but the word was given and all chances that Mr. Hogoboom's gelding had for any part of the money were lost. As Charles H. had a very lame foot, having badly cut his quarter a day or so previous, his chances for making much of a showing in the race were poor, but certainly the start given him removed what chances he had entirely. The sum won by Italia in this event was $1536.50 while Commander Muckle, the second horse, got $658.50 as his share.

The 2:12 pace was won by El Diahlo, a son of Diahlo 2:09½ and closely related on his dam's side to Italia, the winner of the stake. The first heat in this race resulted in a ding dong finish between Margaretta and Wild Nutting, the former winning by a nose in 2:13. El Diahlo got off last in this heat and was not driven hard, but he won the next two handsly enough, and as Margaretta was distanced in the third heat and no other horse had won a heat, the race was awarded to El Diahlo under the condition that all horses not winning a heat in three should be ruled out. To save any complications, however, El Diahlo walked over a fourth heat alone.

Three running races concluded the program for the day and proved very good contests. J. W. Brooks, the well known handicapper for the California Jockey Club, manipulated the gate and made excellent starts. Mr. Brooks has good control of the jockeys, enjoys their confidence and has given satisfaction to owners and the public through the entire week.

The second day's races resulted in closer contests as far as the harness races were concerned. In the 2:20 pace seven horses took the word in the first heat, and while three were distanced during the race the others put up a contest that was very interesting. Midnight, the big black gelding by Nutford that made such a good showing at Woodland in his first race, won the race rather handily, taking the first, second and fourth heats. In the third heat Banker's Daughter pressed him so closely in the stretch that he broke and she took the heat and a record of 2:15½.

The 2:40 trot was won by John Quinn's Black Bart after Nora McKinney had taken the first two heats. Black Bart is a great grandson of Director and like many members of his family is an all day trotter, although a slow beginner. Mr. Quinn handled him splendidly in this race, and landed the money for his friends who had hacked the horse to win.

The third day of the fair had a rather poor program of harness racing. The pacing stake for three year olds would have been an easy thing for Joe Eviston a handsome and promising son of Seymour Wilkes 2:08½, but the track was in miserable shape and after winning two heats the colt broke down in the third and the race went to Osmont a colt by Altamont that is owned by Under Sheriff James Daly of Napa. His best time was 2:29½, but he will probably pace in 2:20 if nothing happens him before the close of the year as he is improving all the time.

The 2:18 class pace went to Gaff Topsail by Diabolo. This is the second race won by this horse this year and Joe Smith is handling him well. He has shown a great deal of speed in his work and should pace in 2:12 or better when just right. His record is now 2:16 made in the second heat of this race. The exhibits of livestock at the park are very good this year and well worth a trip to Sacramento to see. The first week is always a little confusing and everything is not in place on the opening days, but at this writing all the exhibits are arranged and the show is an excellent one. The coming week will see large crowds in attendance at both park and pavilion, and the outlook is for the Close of Woodland Fair.

The word success was written all over the fair given by Agricultural District, No. 40, at Woodland last week. Thursday was Woodland Day and the business houses closed during the afternoon and the streets of the town were deserted for the fair grounds. It looked as though every farm, orchard and vineyard in the county had "shut up shop" also, as there was standing room only in the grand stand and every available space from whence a view of the track could be obtained was occupied. Over four hundred vehicles were lined up in the infield along the stretch and around the first turn when the races were called. Sir Albert S. was the attraction in the first race and although it was known to be easy for him everybody wanted to see the son of Diabolo, as that stallion is now a Yolo county horse, having stood this season at Woodland, and captured every premium for which he was entered at this fair. Sir Albert won in straight heats, the fastest 2:10½. Margaretta and Banker's Daughter divided second and third money, and the fourth went to Our Boy's Sister.

The 2:15 trot was about as easy for Ned Thorne as the pace was for Sir Albert S.

On Friday there was another good attendance. The "broncho busting" exhibition in the morning attracted many to see the skillful riders and while the horses were not so "wild and woolly" as those of Wednesday, there was plenty of excitement. The first prize went to Morris of Yolo county, whose quickness and agility were much ahead of the other riders.

The 2:30 trot furnished a splendid contest and it took six heats to finally decide it. Thomas R., son of Iran Alto, took the first two heats in 2:15 and 2:16 and then John Quinn of Santa Rosa brought his horse Black Bart to the front and won the next three and the race. Thomas R. made a new record in the first heat and Black Bart took one of 2:18 in the fourth.

The free for all purse of $600 for pacers was robbed of a great deal of interest by the scratching of the Yolo favorite Kelly Briggs from the race. The Yoloists were anxious to see him go and would have backed him to a man but his owner, Sam Hoy, had the best of reasons for scratching him and that was his desire to keep him in the 2:11 class. Mr. Hoy was very confident that Kelly Briggs could pace the track in 2:07, and worked him out the next morning in 2:09 very handily. He reasoned that Myrtha Whips could make him step in 2:10 or better, and the only way he could keep him in his present class would be to pull him in the race or scratch him. He chose the latter as he is an honorable man. Kelly Briggs has no other engagements this year. With the son of Bayswater Wilkes out of the race Myrtha Whips won in straight heats, although Floracita made her step in 2:10½ twice in the race.

The last day of the fair brought a large crowd to the track. The 2:30 pace was won by Chas. Whitehead's handsome little gelding Toppy in straight heats. He did not have to pace as fast as he did the first day to get first money, Banker's Daughter, who is improving in her actions was second.

The district road race for a $300 purse aroused more interest than any race of the week and there was quite a sum played on it in the auctions, but there was little effort made by the poolseller as the bookmakers wanted the money played in the books. Tilby Maid, driven by Sam Hoy was the favorite and won after Abidine had taken the first heat in 2:17. Her heats were 2:18½, 2:19½ and 2:19.

The running events during the meeting were very good, but called for no special comment.

The fair was a success and the directors found to their satisfaction that it was the stock and pavilion exhibit and the harness races that made it so. Next year still more attention will be paid to these features and the directors are certain they can exceed all previous results. The summaries of the last three days' racing follow:

SULKY NOTES.

John A. McKerron 2:07½ to wagon.

Direct Hal is now in Ed Geers' stable getting preparatory work for next season.

The first foal by Zombro 2:11 to start in a race is Italia, winner of the Occident Stake.

Lochinvar 2:20 has been taken to Reno by his owner, John Blaney, to race at the fair there.

McHenry now has the horses of N. W. Hubinger, including Metallas 2:11, Alberta D. 2:14½ and others.

Royal R. Sheldon 2:04½ and Audubon Boy 2:06½ are half brothers, both being out of Flaxy by Bourhon Wilkes.

Roy Day, a new performer for old Altamont, won the 2:20 pace at Davenport, Iowa, taking a record of 2:17½.

It is reported that the British War Office has under consideration a scheme for subsidizing the horse-breeding interest.

The British government has placed further orders for both mules and horses in this country within the past two weeks.

Entries for the Oakland meeting will close to-day. There are fourteen $500 purses, evenly divided between trotters and pacers.

Scott McCoy has concluded his engagement with James Butler, although when it was made last fall it was reported as being for a term of years.

Antezella 2:10, after his sensational victory at Buffalo, has gone back to the half-mile tracks. He is owned and driven by A. Miller, Glardville, Pa.

Directum Kelly 2:08½ is one of the season's disappointments. He has been retired to East View Farm and will probably never again be prepared for a race.

It is reported that Secretary Wilson of Lexington is trying to arrange for Lord Derby 2:07 to take Charley Herr's place in the $7500 match race with Cresceus.

The wonderful speed and stamina of Cresceus are accounted for. Mr. Ketcham feeds him on the best California hay, which he carries with him on the circuit.

Symboleer, 2:09½ has made a profitable stud season at Arkansas City, Kan., having served over 100 mares at $25 each. He cost his present owners $1500 last March.

A man refused to buy Dan Patch last winter on account of his curbs and a suspicious looking hind leg. His present owner was offered $10,000 for him a few days ago.

News from the Hubinger stable indicates that Elastic Pointer, brother to Star Pointer, will be reserved for the stakes of 1902. They expect him to prove a second Dan Patch.

Onward Silver 2:08, Carrie Bel 2:14½, May Allen 2:09½, Eleata 2:08½ and Onoto once sold at ridiculously low prices. It would require a small fortune to buy either of them now.

Tags started at Woodstock, Illinois, on Wednesday of last week in the 2:13 pace and won fourth money. The race went to Theresa Wilkes in straight heats. Best time 2:11½.

It is reported that over $10,000 was spent in advertising the recent New York meeting, and the track rental, salaries and other minor expense items was no small figure.

The pool selling at Readville on August 21st, the day of the Massachusetts Stake, aggregated $133,000, which beats Cleveland's world's record as made at the recent meeting by $29,000.

Pebbles is the name of a pacer owned over at Reno, Nevada, that is said to be a 2:05 prospect. He is a pacer and five years old. He will probably start at the Nevada State Fair.

The $6000 Transylvania Stako closed with twenty subscriptions. The horses are not required to be named until September 17th, and up to that time the nominations are transferable.

The once sensational pacing mare Miss Jennings 2:08½ by McEwen 2:18½, owned by D. Phillips, Bradford, Pa., died recently, at the age of nine years. She left a promising colt by the $10,000 Direct Hal.

C. L. Crellin, of Pleasanton, sold two very promising colts to John Conway, of Danville, Contra Costa county, last week, getting $800 for two. Mr. Conway will race them at the Concord meeting this month in all probability.

Wanda 2:14½, owned by F. H. Burke, has been named in the Breeders $6000 for the foals of mares bred this year. She was bred to McKinney 2:11½ and the produce will be a full brother or sister to The Roman 2:19.

F. G. Jones, the new owner of the pacer Little Boy, drove that horse to a record of 2:03½ to wagon at the matinee of the Chicago Driving Club August 29th. The last three-quarters of the mile were remarkably fast, the time of the four quarters being 31½, 30, 30 and 29½. Little Boy stands a chance of getting into the 2:02 class before long. Mr. Jones paid $5000 for him.

Jimmy Gatecomb recently drove Boralma to the half of a workout mile at Hartford in 1:10, and finished the mile in 2:09½. Jimmy says the gelding stepped the third quarter in thirty seconds, the final quarter in 29½ seconds.

As will be seen by the Providence summaries printed elsewhere, Toggles was second to Dolly Dillon in the two last heats of her great race last week when she trotted them in 2:07 and 2:08. Toggles is evidently faster than ever this year.

John S. Phippen is working seventeen head of young Electrites at the Dallas, Tex., track, and all are going well for him. August 16th Blondie 2:13½ by Electrite stepped a mile in 2:12½ with Geo. R. King up, and they look for him to show well at Lexington and Memphis.

A big horse which has been exhibited in Kansas and Missouri towns during the past year, owned by Sutter Brothers of Effingham, Kansas, died recently, his death being attributed to the hot spell. This horse weighed 3400 pounds and was thought to be the largest equine in the world.

John T. Woodford, of Mount Sterling, Ky., has received an order from Edward Murphy, of Gisborne, New Zealand, for a saddle horse to be sent by express. This will be a very expensive horse, for besides the handsome price paid for the animal the express will amount to about $1000.

A press dispatch from Syracuse says that W. L. Marks, the manager of The Abbot, telegraphed Theodore E. Coleman, manager of the racing department of the State Fair races that the horse will go on Monday, September 9th, against the world's trotting record held by Cresceus at the State Fair mile track.

Nepbew, sire of the dam of Eleata 2:08½, is the grand-sire of another Grand Circuit winner, the pacing mare Terrace Queen, who graduated from the maiden class with a record of 2:11½ at Readville. She is by Velpeau 2:29½, a Palo Alto bred son of Nepbew and Odette (dam of The Seal 2:15½) by Electioneer, formerly owned by Miller & Sibley.

Henry Helman left Woodland for Everett, Washington, the day after the meeting closed at the former place. He took Myrtha Whips 2:10½ and Ned Thorne 2:11½ with him and will race them through Washington and Oregon. Hi Hogboom went along in the same car with two green trotters which he will enter in the slow classes.

Ollis McKinney, a bay mare by McKinney, has been winning on the half mile tracks in Iowa and Illinois during the past week. She won at Anamosa twice in one week, taking both her races in straight heats. Her record, 2:21, was made in the third heat of her second race. A report of the race states that she "played with her field."

F. N. Frary, the well known liveryman of Red Bluff, has three fine mares, two of them full sisters by Steinyway, which he has bred this year and will probably name them in the Breeders $6000 Futurity. Two of these mares were bred to Escort 2:23 by Guide 2:16, and the other to Kinney Mac, a four year old son of McKinney that has worked a mile in 2:21 without company.

Iora 2:11 by Ira, one of the fastest and handsomest mares in the State, was purchased at Woodland last week from her owner, R. Noble, of Eureka, by "Vet" Tryon, who was acting for John Mackay, superintendent of Rancho del Paso. The price paid was $1300. Iora is eleven years old, a beautiful bay and trots without boots or weights. She is very stylish and at the price is a bargain.

It turns out that the horse which paced to a record of 2:14½ at Port Huron under the name and pedigree of Frank Derby by Charles Derby is a ringer and has been identified as Fred Wilton 2:09½. We have been trying to trace this horse ever since he started under the name of Frank Derby so as to find which of the Oakland Park mares he is from, but it turns out that he was not bred on that farm at all.

Winnie Wilkes, owned by Mr. R. P. M. Greeley of Oakland, was started against time at the Woodland Fair and paced the mile in 2:17½. Winnie Wilkes is a daughter of Mambrino Wilkes and is very fast, but has acted badly in her races this year. She has paced a quarter in 31½ seconds, is a large mare over sixteen hands high and weighs 1200 pounds in racing condition. She was bred to McKinney last spring and will be entered in the Breeders Futurity.

D. F. Tillman, mine host of the Rose Hotel at Pleasanton, won a bet with his bus horse at the track in that town last week. Some of Tillman's patrons were disposed to make light of the speed which he claimed his horse to be afflicted with, and wagered him a wine dinner for a half dozen that the alleged trotter could not make a quarter of a mile in less than 55 seconds. Hitched to a bike, the old hussler stepped around the turn with Tillman handling the ribbons in 54½ seconds and the dinner was on the others.

Thos. D. Condon of Portland, Oregon, went over to Salem, one day last week to see his Zombro colt worked. The youngster trotted a mile in 2:23½, last half in 1:09, and last quarter in 33½ seconds. Mr. Condon has recently purchased the great brood mare, Hollywood, the dam of Altawood 2:20, McMinville Maid 2:22, Lady Beach 2:26½, also Zuleika, a six year old mare by Vinmont 2:21, one of old Altamont's best bred sons, and Park Place, a yearling by a son of Chelalis 2:04, both out of Hollywood. Mr. Condon intends breeding Hollywood and her daughter Zuleika to Zombro 2:11, and bought them expressly for this purpose, as he thinks Zombro the greatest young sire in America. This makes four mares he has bred to him this season.

T. C. Cabney, who was thrown from his sulky at Woodland the opening day of the fair, had the elbow joint of his right arm dislocated and will not be able to use it for some time. Mr. Cabney will return to Eureka after the Oakland meeting. He has two good horses in Jack W. 2:12½ and the pacer Al Sandy.

Sam Casto has sold his two year old filly Holly Dell to T. J. Potter, Cleveland, Ohio, who bought the filly for Homer Davenport. Holly Dell is a high bred filly being sired by Del Norte 2:08, a full brother to Chelalis 2:04½, out of Hollywood, the dam of Altawood 2:20, McMinville Maid 2:22, Lady Beach 2:26½, by Hambletonian Mambrino, the sire of Caryle Carne 2:11½ and others. Holly Dell was bred to Zombro 2:11 this season and will be shipped to New York the first opportunity.—Rural Spirit.

The death of Stamboul was peculiar. A few moments before he had covered the fast mare Edna B. and looked the picture of health. Suddenly he seemed to stagger, and in a short time fell dead. He was the sire of forty-five in 2:30. All trotters; no pacers. He had been as well as usual. The autopsy showed that a blood vessel had burst, and his heart lay in a pool of blood. His heart and lungs as well as everything else were in a normal, healthy condition. His body was placed in a large wooden box, and he was laid at rest in the centre field of Goshen Driving Park.

Secretary H. W. Wilson, of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association, recently stated, that the match race for $7500 between Cresceus and Charley Herr at Lexington in October had not been officially declared off. He acknowledged, however, that it would probably result that way, as Charley Herr was lame, and it was the judgment of all horsemen that he would have to be thrown out of training for the balance of the season. From another source it was learned that Mr. Wilson is trying to arrange for Lord Derby 2:07 to take Herr's place against the champion.

James A. Murphy, the well known Chicago turfman who owned Star Pointer 1:59½, when he placed the world's record below two minutes, is going to lease a private stable in the vicinity of the speedway and take his string of road horses there for the fall and winter sport on the drive. Nathan Straus, A. B. Gwathmey and other road riders, are now building handsome private stables for their speedway flyers not far from the entrance to the popular drive. Mr. Straus and Mr. Gwathmey are building on adjoining lots in West One Hundred and Forty-first street, near Ninth avenue, and it is said that Mr. Gwathmey's stable is to cost $75,000.

Dave Herspring, who formerly trained Toots and Arthur L. 2:15 for Louis Schaffer of Oakland and went East with them about four years ago, is back in California on a short visit. Mr. Herspring is now in the employ of A. H. Brewster, of Norwood, New Jersey and has several trotters and pacers which will be raced this year. Dave says that Arthur L. was one of the greatest ice trotters in New York state last winter and won several good races. Alta McDonald who drove him says he is the fastest horse he ever drove on the ice and when it is remembered that he trains Connor 2:03½ and other fast ones he is saying a great deal for the son of Direct.

C. A. Durfee objects to the spelling of the name of Consul Ho Yow's little mare as the papers all have it. He says it is Sola instead of Solo. Sola is Spanish and the feminine of Solo which means the same in English—alone. Sola 2:14½ is by McKinney, first dam Ala by Stamboul, second dam Molly by Sacramento, son of Rifleman, the thoroughbred horse by imported Glencoe. Rifleman was the sire of that good gray horse Col. Lewis 2:18½ that won so many races in California in the late '70's, defeating such horses as Occident, Judge Fullerton, Graves, Beautiful Bells and others. Molly, second dam of Sola, is the dam of Geronimo 2:24½ and Jim Leach 2:28½.

General Sherwood, of Toledo, O., editor of the American Sportsman, has a highly bred four year old mare in Derby Simmons, a full sister to Owyhee 2:11 and a half-sister to Derby Princess 2:08½. She is a coal black mare, 16½ hands high. The General advertised the mare for sale, and among the inquiries was one from an undertaker in an interior New York town, asking if the owner thought she'd make him a good hearse horse. This was too much for the General, who thought some of his friends were joking him. Investigation, however, proved that the would-be buyer was innocent, so General Sherwood wrote him, telling him that in his opinion the mare would make an admirable hearse mare, and that he would sell her under a guarantee that no funeral procession would be too fast for her.

A month or so ago Thos. W. Lawson, the Boston millionaire, purchased a tract of 260 acres at Scituate, a few miles away from his summer home at Cohasset, Mass. He is having this cleared of buildings, leveled, and put in shape for a stock farm, which will be the largest and most elaborate in the State. Contracts for the preparation of the land and the new buildings for the stock have been let, and the work is being pushed as rapidly as money can make it move. Mr. Lawson tells his friends that he has figured out the total cost of his new stock farm, including the land, buildings and the stock necessary to start it at $1,100,000. He has a clearly defined plan of what he means to do, and he believes that the farm will be self-supporting, if not even profitable. He has been studying trotters and show horses, and experimenting with both, and he hopes to breed stock which will combine the best qualities of both. His aim is to raise horses which will be as handsome and showy as any seen in the ring, and at the same time as fast as anything on the track. He argues that this never has been done yet, but there is no reason why it cannot be, and he thinks that there is fame and profit also for any stock breeder who can succeed where other men have failed. Mr. Lawson believes that he will be that breeder.

THE SADDLE.

No Champions This Year.

The season is half over, good horses have performed as good horses should, some have performed disappointingly and many bad ones have perplexed both their owners and the public in general.

Before the Sheepshead Fall meeting begins it might be as well to look over the lot calmly and endeavor to see what there is of value in the several divisions, says a writer in the New York Telegraph.

To begin with, the candid turfman must acknowledge that the three year old division is the only one which calls for any great degree of admiration and enthusiasm. No star yet has shown in the two year old lot, and as for the aged, in handicap division, nearly all the best have gone wrong through this or that cause.

This is all the more to be deplored from the fact that the outlook at the beginning of the season promised unusually brilliant contests from this class. With Ethelbert, Kinley Mack, Imp, McMeekin, Prince of Melbourne, Banastar, Raffaello, Box and others to meet there was ample reason to look for good races. The meeting of Kinley Mack and Ethelbert in the Brooklyn and Suburban was looked forward to by every turfman, and the fact that Imp was again to race in the East was hailed with delight by every lover of the thoroughbred.

Yet all these have failed. Ethelbert and Kinley Mack declined both the Brooklyn and the Suburban; Imp did not appear until the Saratoga meeting, only to be beaten; McMeekin broke down, as did Raffaello and Box; Banastar flashed brilliantly again with a Metropolitan and Toboggan victory, only to be retired a cripple; Prince of Melbourne came out at a late hour to be beaten by an ordinary field, though he afterwards was able to walk over for a purse and defeat Rochester for the Brighton Cup.

Truly a disastrous record for the season in the high class handicap division. Ethelbert and Kinley Mack may bloom forth again at the fall meetings; Imp gives some promise of being the phenomenal mare of turf history by coming back to the grand form she had shown in the past after a long letup and despite her age, and Prince of Melbourne will doubtless have a chance to again show his splendid three year old form, but the hero worshipper of the turf might well be pardoned for looking beyond these for that which he would enshrine.

But of this division it would not be fair to overlook Voter, who, though asked but little, has done that little in his old sensational manner, proving himself to be in a class of his own when it comes to sprinting.

Horses in the handicap division which stand out by reason of good performances (though marred by strange inconsistencies) are Wax Taper, Star Bright, Alcedo, First Whip, Herbert, Kamara, Watercure and Sidney Lucas. Both Wax Taper and Alcedo, in fact, show such remarkable changes in form as to cause grave doubts of their thoroughly high class.

Wax Taper, after defeating all comers in the overnight handicaps, where he must of necessity get the limit in the matter of impost, came to be beaten by any and everything that came along. Alcedo's defeats by ordinary horses in races immediately before and after the brilliant performance in the Suburban must of necessity dim the lustre of his victory in that great event. This leaves us Star Bright, First Whip, Herbert, Toddy, Watercure, Rockton, Kamara, All Gold, Ogden and Carbuncle as about the best to be had.

"Consistency's a jewel" that the turf student looks for in vain among the performers of these latter days. Horses like Luke Blackburn, Hanover, Tremont, Domino, Henry of Navarre and Hamburg appear not to be for this era of racing.

Perhaps the general public would be inclined to give the palm to Mr. Whitney's Star Bright, both on account of his mile and a quarter victory at Gravesend and his subsequent victory in the Advance Stakes, in which he defeated Ethelbert.

Herbert ran second in the Brooklyn Handicap, and all his races indicate that he is a much improved horse. Yet he falls short of the highest class, and is generally regarded as a mudlark.

James McFaughlin's First Whip when seriously considered must be regarded as one of the best handicap horses in training. From the beginning of his three year old form he has run consistent races, has beaten some of the best horses, and, besides, with the exception of a few instances, has been asked to give weight to everything he met.

Watercure was able to get out of the maiden class late in his three year old form, and although his performance in the Suburban Handicap as well as in the Saratoga Handicap would cause him to be regarded as of good handicap material, still, many of his races have been far below this mark.

As far as Alcedo is concerned, as already indicated, his defeats are so far above his Suburban form as to puzzle the ordinary turfman. Certainly his victory in the Suburban was a remarkable performance, the condition of weather and track on the day of the race being taken into account. Perhaps Alcedo may still prove to be the best handicap horse of the year.

Wax Taper comes East with a long list of Western victories to his credit, which, however, did not count for much with the Eastern racing man who remembered that the rather ordinary looking son of Candlemas-Utility was practically given away when offered for sale as a two year old.

Wax Taper became a turf ideal in possibly the shortest time on record. It is true the handicappers piled the weight on him in race after race, but it is also true that he won. Wax Taper met few really high class horses. He was raced day in and day out until he became stale, and the final result of this short-sighted policy on the part of his owner was the refusal of his entry a few days ago at Saratoga.

Rockton, who was a fast and very promising three year old, has started twice this season. He won the Saratoga Handicap from a good field and was beaten badly subsequently when giving away weight to some good three year olds.

Kamara is a true running mare, and her races of this season in Mr. Mackay's colors have shown no falling off from her three year old form. She won the Bridge Handicap and the Bay Ridge Handicap and has performed creditably in every event in which she has faced the flag.

Decanter is one of the comparatively old timers who with light weight up can still show a good performance.

Carbuncle, who truthfully might have been called an ordinary selling plater in his two and three year old forms, is this year much an improved horse.

Sidney Lucas, who on looks was a twenty pound better horse this spring than when he was dragged out to race for the Brighton Cup last season, unfit and raced to death, was undoubtedly unfortunate in some of his early efforts. That he got several bad rides is certain. He won the Parkway Handicap, and his recent races in the West would seem to indicate that he might have been a worthy contender in some of the best of the Eastern events under better handling.

In the three year old division half a dozen or more who have shown exceptional quality, Commodore Watercolor, The Parader, Blues, Conroy, All Green, Gold Heels, Bonnivert and Roehampton are the stars of the lot.

Commando's victories in the Belmont and the Carlton Stakes made him the popular favorite in this division. His victory in the Belmont, of course, made him a strong choice for the Realization, despite the fact that there has been some previous doubt as to whether he would stay. He beat The Parader so easily in the Belmont that few, indeed, considered the latter had a chance with him in the Realization. Yet The Parader won, and won easily.

The Parader also has the Preakness and Broadway Stakes to his credit. Still, when the two meet again over a distance of ground, Commando will doubtless be favorite. Excuses were made for Commando, but The Parader was certainly the better horse in the Realization.

Watercolor, the handsome son of Watercress, has the distinction of winning the first race of the season at Morris Park. His subsequent victories in the Swift, Tidal and Ironquils Stakes and the Brighton Derby made him a strong favorite with the public, yet the horses which met Watercolor can hardly be said to have been of the very best class.

Blues, on the contrary, has met the majority of the best ones and must be regarded as a thoroughly good three year old. His victories in the Pocantico Handicap, the Islip Handicap, the Travers Stakes and the Delaware Handicap stamp him as a game and true horse.

Bonnibert has the Brooklyn Derby to his credit, in which race he defeated The Parader and Blues. The fact, however, that his subsequent races have not been up to this high mark makes his victory in that event somewhat questionable.

Commando's stable mate, Conroy, flashed into prominence as the winner of the Jockey Club Stakes, and afterward galloped home in the Brooklyn Handicap. It must be said, however, that the field for the Brooklyn was far from being a good one. Since that race he has gone wrong and the fall events must determine whether he is able to hold his own with others of his class.

Gold Heels, who was a very fair two year old, shows improvement this season by winning thoroughly game races, and has the Spindrift and Seagate Stakes and the Long Island Handicap to his credit.

All Green, unfortunate in the Metropolitan Handicap, has continued to disappoint his followers, who know him to be a horse of class, although hardly in the first flight. With a little luck he certainly should have had the Kenner Stakes at Saratoga to his credit.

Roehampton has been a remarkably consistent breadwinner for J. G. Follansbee. This, however, may be attributed to the good judgment shown in placing him during the season. Up to date he has won eight out of nine starts.

The other three year olds which deserve mention may be summed up as follows: King Lief, winner of the Crotona Handicap; Col. Padden, winner of the Van Nest; King Pepper, winner of the Claremont; Janice, winner of the Ladies' Stakes; Black Fox, winner of the Van Cortlandt Handicap; The Musketeer, winner of the Test Handicap and Seneca Stakes; Trigger, winner of the Gazelle Stakes, and Morningside, winner of the Alabama Stakes.

The two year old division presents some attractive material, although there is no Hamburg, no Domino, so far as can be seen at present, this being written two weeks before the Futurity is run.

Nasturtium, the $50,000 purchase of W. C. Whitney, who won the first part of the Double Event, must take first rank, both in breeding, looks and performance. His defeat by Blue Girl was unfortunate, and there can be little doubt that he should have beaten the filly.

Blue Girl, however, has shown sterling racing quality. She has met the best of the colts with her weight up and defeated them in the majority of the big stakes, beginning with the Juvenile and going on to the Eclipse Stakes, the Great American, Great Trial—all of which she won. She finished second in the Tremont Stakes, giving weight to the winner, and was beaten a head in the Saratoga Special by Goldsmith. This is a remarkable record for a filly, though it may be that she has not met the best of the colts as yet. As it stands, she has certainly done all that has been asked of her.

Goldsmith has the Saratoga Special and the Flash Stakes to his credit, and in the majority of the important stakes of the year has only been beaten by a narrow margin.

Alan-a-Dale, the fast Western colt, by Halma-Sudie McNairy, won the Brighton Junior after a hard fight with Goldsmith, but was subsequently badly beaten for the Foxhall Stakes. His running in the Foxhall can scarcely be considered as anywhere near his true form, as it is well known he was off badly and shut out the greater part of the journey. On the wide, straight courses at Sheepshead Bay and Morris Park this colt should be contending with the best.

One of the late aspirants for notice is August Belmont's Masterman, who finished third in the Saratoga Special and since captured the United States Hotel Stakes in a most impressive way. That he must be reckoned with in the rich Futurity seems certain.

The fast Hatasoo won the Vernal Stakes, but her other races have been disappointing.

Hyphen has far failed to reward the faith of his backers, as also has Saturday.

Flywheel's victory in the second part of the Double Event surprised turfmen, and he does not appear to class with many of those before mentioned.

Whiskey King, Francesco, Amicitia, Oom Paul, Cunard, Luciline, Goldfinder, Disadvantage, Compute, Lady Holyrood, Hanover Queen, Chilton, Grail, Smart Set, Peninsula, Rossignol, Gunfire, Alibert, Highlander and Five Nations have all won stake races.

The Hanover-Correction colt Yankee started twice at Saratoga in ordinary events, and won both of them. He may be expected to show up well with the stake winners of the season during the fall meetings.

Endurance by Right is a Western filly of great promise, and it is unfortunate that she is ineligible for the Futurity and other important Eastern stake events.

Altogether the season has been productive of fairly interesting contests, though it cannot be said that there is any pronounced champion in any one of the three divisions.

Yankee Won Futurity.

John Madden won the Futurity at Sheepshead Bay, last Saturday, with Yankee, the Hanover-Correction colt, with O'Connor in the saddle. Nasturtium was the favorite, but was behind the money. The stake was worth $36,910 to the winner, while the second horse earned $4166.66 and the third $2083.33. Two thousand dollars went to the breeder of the winner, $1250 to the breeder of the second horse and $500 to the breeder of the third horse. The total stake was $46,910. A. Featherstone, whose jockey rode the winner, got 25 per cent. of the winner's share for allowing O'Connor to ride. William C. Whitney also had some balm in the fact that he owns a half interest in Yankee, although it was a keen disappointment not to see his colors in front. Those at the start say Nasturtium was off well, but shied at a dark spot in the track, losing time and being shut out. The summary is as follows: The Futurity, about six furlongs—Yankee, 119 (O'Connor), 4 to 1 and 6 to 5 won; Lux Casta, 109 (Odom), 15 to 1 and 5 to 1, second; Barron, 112 (Woods), 12 to 1 and 4 to 1, third. Time, 1:09 1-5. De Rezkze, Pentecost, King Hanover, Gun Fire, Coganawaga, Fly Wheel, Nasturtium, Hyphen, Saturday, The Talisman, Sun Shower, Port Royal, Homestead, Utopian, Broad Street and Heno also ran and finished as named. Yankee and Gun Fire coupled as Madden's entry; Nasturtium and King Hanover coupled as Whitney's entry.

Charles T. Patterson, who owned and trained the great Ornament, arrived in Sacramento this week. Mr. Patterson is the owner of All Green and other horses and will probably lease and train a portion of the Burns & Waterhouse string. His horses will get here the latter part of the week along with the Burns & Waterhouse stable that has been racing on the Chicago tracks in charge of George Tuthill.

Canmore, Walter Jennings' crack three year old, died at Sacramento last Monday. Canmore won some creditable races at Tanforan and Oakland and was regarded at one time as having a great chance for the American Derby.

On a hot day drink Jackson's Napa Soda lemonades and be refreshed.

GUN.

What Shall He Have Who Killed the Deer?

Alfred Watkins, saviour of does and fawns—
Grand Protector of woodland woe-begones.
A fellow feeling for blood-hunted stags
Bids Watly play bis windy bags.

The analogy is clearly shown,
When the cause for his paw is known.

Alfred and bis deer have sockets
In their thick skulls—deep pockets—
For cervus, they anchor antlers bold;
For Alfred, two long ears lie hold
To fan the slapsod slapdash
Of a sensational Jackash!

At the Traps.

The attraction at Ingleside tomorrow will be the Olympic Gun Club wind-up shoot for this year, at live pigeons. The final race will be at 25 birds. Five elegant gold medals will be awarded as follows: Champion class, two; Class A, two and Class B, one medal. The high gun for the club season is M. O. Feudner who has missed but one bird out of 75 in the five club shoots already held. "Slade" is next up with six lost birds. H. B. Hosmer has thirteen "lost" on his five scores. C. H. Shaw with fifty-seven out of sixty has a back score to fill in yet. Ed Donohoe, G. H. T. Jackson and C. A. Haight missed four birds each out of sixty with also a back score apiece to shoot up. W. J. Golcher is six birds short in four shoots with a back score to shoot up. J. J. Sweeney lost five pigeons out of 45 and has two back scores to make good. A. M. Shields and Dr. Derby have each eight lost out of 45 pigeons and two back scores to shoot up. Milton Unger lost six out of 45 birds. A. L. Weil is credited with 35 out of 45 birds in three shoots. A number of other members did not participate in more than one or two club shoots. Captain Len D. Owens will announce the classes of the shooters competing tomorrow and present the medals to the high guns.

The merchandise shoot of the Empire Gun Club tomorrow and Monday at Alameda Point will be the greatest event of the kind yet arranged for local shooters. The attendance of trap shooters promises to be a large one.

The Lincoln Gun Club trap shooting program for 1901 closed at the club grounds, Alameda Junction, last Sunday. In the distribution of the club purse the four best scores made by each member in the six monthly shoots counted. A. J. Webb was high gun with 93 breaks out of a possible 100. He received 27% of $52—$14. D. Daniels with 89 won 20%—$10. E. L. Forster, 89 breaks, 20%—$10. B. Baum, 72 breaks, 13%—$6.75. W. H. Price, 71 breaks, 11%—$5.75. D. Ostrander, 56 scored, 9%—$5.65.

The Neustadter trophy was won by A. J. Webb, be being the only contestant who finished the six scores in the race.

Clarence C. Nauman, the local shotgun expert, was at Namur, France, at last advice. He has been shooting against some of the continental cracks, and has generally held up his shooting gait. In one race early last month he was tied up with two other shooters for a $600 purse. He was shooting under a rather heavy handicap, and would not divide in this event, as so doing would put him farther back from the traps in further shooting. In shooting of the tie "miss-and-out" he killed several birds, and then missed a hard one which dropped just over the boundary, which is twenty yards there. Aside from this hard luck, he won a number of sweepstakes, and at the date of his last letter he was one of twenty-one shooters who had straight scores in a contest, the purse of which amounted to $5000. Nauman will probably be back in this city in October, and, accompanied by another well known sportsman, Jack Fanning, who has a host of friends among the shotgun devotees of this State. It is possible that while these two crack shooters are here a 100-bird race will be shot. The contest is the result of a little friendly rivalry which came to the surface during the recent visit of the American team to England.

At the fifteenth annual tournament of the Lafayette Gun Club, Lafayette, Ind., the high average, 94%, 376 targets out of a possible 400 was made by E. E. Neal. The second high average was made by J. L. Head, 90% or 360 out of 400. The meeting was largely attended by Northern Indiana sportsmen, but, however, weather conditions back there on August 8th and 9th were not any too favorable for high scores.

Both these shooters used U. M. C. shells. Ever since the American team had the memorable contests with the British shooters, the superiority in style and efficiency of our ammunition, shells, primers, wadding and method of loading has been patent to observant lovers of sport with the shotgun. No manufacturer in the United States, according to the most recent and authentic statistics, has been up with the times and kept pace with sportsmen's requirements as has the U. M. C. Metallic Cartridge Company. A combination of skill, observation and a strong desire to respond to the growing demand for reliable shells has placed the product of the company in leading demand, not only in the United States but all over the world.

A new trap shooting club, it is rumored, will soon be organized in Oakland. The management of the club will be assumed by Dr. W. L. Dunn, assisted by Thomas Hughes, it is reported, and C. Alexander is booked for secretary and treasurer. These three sportsmen feel that if their efforts for the promotion of recreation at trap shooting are appreciated they can induce a number of other gentlemen to join the club and "take hold of it, they will be able to work something out of it."

The Bison or the Tiger.

The trip I will now attempt to give an account of, ended in my being a witness to a scene that perhaps no other sportsman has ever witnessed, writes a sportsman correspondent of The Asian, but to begin. To get to my first camping ground I had to cross a river where the only ferry was a bamboo raft; the track I had to go along was not a well used one and there being very little traffic there was no regular man in charge of the ferry, it was generally a case of help yourself across or go to the nearest horse (about two miles off) and get some one to pole you over. My luck was out for I found the raft moored to the opposite bank, and no one in sight, nor did our calls elicit any reply, so rather than wait for an hour or two I determined to swim across and bring the raft over and ferry my people across myself; stripping, I started off and had got about one-third way across (the river was about forty yards wide here) when I saw something black rise in the water a few yards ahead of me and then move towards me, and I saw almost with the same glance that it was the square muzzle of a crocodile that was facing me—to turn back was as far to go as to go forward, so I yelled to my shikari to fire off a shot (he was holding my gun which was loaded, as I had been on the lookout for a shot as we came along) and started splashing and yelling—the report and the noise I made was evidently too much for Mr. Croc, for he dived and we didn't see him again. I struck out for the raft as hard as I could go and I think I did a record for those twenty yards or so; expecting every minute to have a leg seized, induces you to make a special effort. I got on to the raft feeling rather queer and very blown—crocodiles are heard of, but seldom seen, so high up this river, and it is an unheard of thing for a human being to be seized by one. I fancy the brute was searching for food and hearing something in the water came to see what it was. At any rate I am not going to try swimming across that river again. After a rest I took the raft across, got into my clothes, had a nip and took my people (two at a time) and baggage across and got up two camps about 4 P. M. pretty well done up—what with a long walk, a hard swim and then poling the raft across half a dozen times. After a cup of tea I did a short prowling round, but saw nothing but a few jungle fowl.

Next day I had to go out on spec for my men had not had time to go out and look for tracks. I sent two men to look round in a southerly direction while I went north. Up till 8 A. M. I saw neither tracks nor animals; but about that time one of my men spotted three bison lying on a ridge (quite in the open) some half mile below us. New I had made up mind to have nothing to do with a herd of bison, for it is very seldom that any of the bulls carry a fine head. I wanted to interview solitary gentils only. However my men persuaded me to go and have a closer look, and getting within about 300 yards the glasses revealed that one animal carried a real good head: so, retiring behind a parallel ridge we worked down so as to be level with our game. We got down all right, and on getting to the top of the ridge found ourselves about fifty yards from the bull (which was lying facing you) with a small dip between us. I paused for a short time to examine his head and regain my wind; then fired to hit in front of the shoulder and rake him. The bullet knocked him onto his feet and he rushed down into the dip straight toward us, but the uphill slope just below us brought him to a walk as he was very sick and letting him come close I dropped him with a bullet through the base of the neck, when he reeled backed into the hollow. I found the head was a very much finer one than I had imagined, it measuring widest span 42 inches from tip to tip, across the forehead 80 inches, and girth at base 19½ inches; the tips were not worn in the slightest, although he was a very old animal, having lost all of his front teeth; getting the head and mask off took us a long time and we did not get back to camp till noon. The afternoon was spent in cleaning the mask as I wished to have the head mounted; my other men brought in word that there were no tracks in the direction they had been, so I decided to move camp next morning. For the next three days it was a case of looking for tracks, only camping at each place for one night.

On the last day but one before I had to make tracks for home, we were camped near the foot of the ghats and leaving camp early I started to have a good look at the surrounding country as this was the last place that there would be any likelihood of seeing bison. I was up early and for a long time saw and heard nothing; we had turned to work round towards camp, when we suddenly heard a most peculiar noise some way ahead of us, but what it was neither I nor my men could say, so we determined to investigate. The sound appeared to come from a hollow, to get to which we had to cross a narrow wooded ravine and then over a spur. We got to the top of the spur and then what a sight met our eyes! Truly it was a sight for the gods! Below us was a dip that was fairly level except for a few big boulders that had rolled down sometime, ages ago, from the hill above. In this dip a fine bull bison stood confronting a tiger. We were just in time to see a round—the tiger advanced toward the bull in a crouching attitude—the bull allowed him to get within about ten yards then down went his head and giving a tremendous snort he rushed at his foe. Mr. Tiger seemed to roll on one side, making a pot at the bull with his right fore paw, and evidently hitting something harder than he liked, for as he stood up after the bull had passed him he held his paw up off the ground—the pace of the bull carried him some yards, but turning in a half circle and while still going he was soon facing his enemy again. Another advance was made by the tiger in a slow and stealthy manner and this time he appeared to be taking more or less cover from one of the boulders. This time the bull allowed him to come a little nearer, and then with a shake of his head he made his rush, the tiger bounding on the top of a boulder. Several more rounds of this sort took place, always with a slight interval. How long the combats had been at it I haven't the slightest idea, but evidently some time from the trampled state of the ground and from the claw marks the bull had on his face and shoulders. The last round I was to see ended in favor of the bull—the tiger made his usual advance and the bull his usual rush; but a slip of some sort prevented the tiger getting quite out of the way of the bull, and the right horn caught the tiger a slanting blow on flank and sent him spinning (the horn being curved in a half circle the point did not penetrate). The jar for Mr. Stripes evidently put him off a bit, and as he hesitated to attack I thought he was going to chuck the game, so I made up my mind to step in and take a hand, especially as the tiger offered a grand broadside shot distant about seventy-five yards. Taking careful aim I loosed off, but made rather a mull of it, hitting him too far back in the ribs; smoke prevented me getting my second barrel in (the wind was blowing in my face) and when next I saw the tiger he was just entering the jungle about 200 yards from us. At the shot the bull did not move, he may have thought it was thunder, but kept his eye on the tiger till it had disappeared, then shook his head and walked off in the opposite direction to which his foe had gone, passing within sixty yards of us and offering a splendid shot; but I had not the heart to slay such a grand beast after he had made such a gallant defense.

I next turned my attention to tracking up the wounded tiger. We soon found the blood tracks, which led us along the side of the hill in a downward direction, and seemed to be going in the direction of a huge boulder which jutted out from the hill; but the top of which was accessible from the upper side. Telling my men to remain where they were I made a detour and got to the top of the rock just in time to see the tiger walking away from under it. A badly aimed shot hit him in the right flank, and again I was smothered in smoke (being misty the smoke hung very much). Coming down from my perch I called up my men and we again took up the trail. We had not gone far before we found the tiger had gone into a patch of high grass (lemon grass) amongst which were a few small trees. A circle round this showed that our friend had not gone through it, so not relishing the job of walking up stripes in such a place, I sent one man off to camp to bring my dog, while I put one of my men up a tree one side of the patch while I guarded the other side. While we waited I partook of a little food and liquid refreshment. Nearly two hours elapsed before the dog arrived and then it either couldn't or wouldn't make anything of the scent so there was nothing for it but to go in myself. Taking advantage of every tree and sending a man up to look around we cautiously entered the grass, the man always remaining in his tree until I got to the next one. We had got some fifteen yards into the grass, when I suddenly got a whiff of a very strong perfume, and looking carefully about I saw the tiger lying watching us not more than seven or eight yards distant. I thought it best to back out a bit, as the distance was rather too short for stopping a charge. As I stepped back the tiger rose and made a short rush in our direction, getting a bullet which hit him in front of the shoulder, instead of the centre of the chest, but it was enough to turn him, and, as he swung round, he got one in the centre of the back, which broke his spine. At the shot my dog rushed in and promptly went for Stripes, but he evidently knew which was the safe end, for he went for the tail and dragged violently at it, the tiger only looking over his shoulder and snarling. Another shot in the centre of the neck did for him. We then measured the fallen one, which taped 8 feet 7 inches, a short, but very heavy animal, and then got the skin off as soon as possible and made for camp. After such a day as this I did not care for any more "tame" shikar, and left for home a day earlier than I intended.

A new invoice of L. C. Smith and Parker Bros.' guns just received. Some 12 gauge duck guns now in stock are unsurpassed. For quail and snipe shooting and also for ladies' use, we have a special lot of 16 gauge guns. H. E. Skinner & Co., 416 Market Street.

The present State game law has been attacked through the medium of a test case in the Police Court. One John F. Corriea, a commission merchant, was arrested for having more than fifty doves in his possession during one calendar day. He was convicted upon trial and fined $25. The case will be taken from one court to another. Each resource on appeal will be invoked until the case finally reaches the Supreme Court. The intention of the defendant is to test the constitutionality of the statutory provisions now in force concerning wild game.

Fred Nordholz, John Stanke and two brothers, who are at present hunting on King's ranch, Cazadero, were out hunting last Sunday and Nordholz was the lucky one, bringing down the largest buck killed for many moons. The deer dressed at 160 pounds. The head and antlers will be mounted. T. F. Bannan, who has just returned from that section, reports the game very plentiful.

W. C. Brown of Sausalito, representing the Tamalpais Sportsmen's Club, appeared this week before the Board of Supervisors to request that the quail season in Marin county be for the same period as that prescribed by the State law, namely, from October 1st to February 1st. The season has been made in Marin county from October 15th to January 15th. Brown was supported in his plea by County Treasurer Thomas Fallon, while Supervisor Barr and Attorney E. B. Martinelli, representing the Marin County Game Association, strongly opposed the requested change. Barr claimed that it would be wise to shut down the entire quail season for several years in order to repair the havoc which he urged has been created by the wholesale slaughter of birds in the last few years. The board took Brown's request under advisement.

Many Rods in the River Seine.

For many years the fishing along the banks of the Seine has been a pet joke. It was the best synonym known for something that did not exist. "Ten thousand anglers, fishing each with two rods, making 20,000 rods, fishing 365 days in the year, succeed annually in catching one fish." That was a stock bit of statistics which was produced solemnly time and again. And now there comes a correspondent who has the audacity to write that it is an error to suppose that there is no fish in the Seine. "The river," he says, "is simply teeming with fish, both perch and barbel, large and small, and fry of low degree. Even the lordly salmon traverses Paris twice a year, on his way to and from the sea. The reader probably asks, 'Then why don't we hear of some fish pulled out of it if there are so many in the Seine?' The reason is not far to seek. Go outside Paris toward Athis or Ablon, or down stream toward Suresnes, and you will see plenty of fishing done. There is certainly not so much fishermen to the square inch, nor is the tackle so diabolically ingenious as in Paris, but more fish are taken home, and I should say there was more enjoyment for the fisher. And it is just this crowding of the banks, this multiplicity of rods and lines, winders and spools, landing nets, harpoons, weights and scales, and baskets ample enough to carry off porpoise, that strike terror into the heart of the finny Parisian. Sunday was the opening day of the last fishing season, and before 5 o'clock in the morning every available spot, from Auteuil to the Pont National, was occupied. The Pont des Arts was being fished from by at least a dozen anglers trying their luck.

"And what marvelous tackle! Ten-jointed rods—I counted twelve joints to one rod—floats of quill and of cork, painted with the national colors, and lines of silk and of hemp. And every man possessed, besides, a landing net, a live box, and a sack, bag, or basket. "The disciples on the Sea of Galilee were not so well provided for the miraculous draught as were these fishers of the Seine for what the opening day might alлотh u. No wonder that not even a stickleback showed disposition to bite; not even the youngest and least experienced minnow but what passed on his way, probably quoting the vulgar boy of Margate. For fish are a man in many of their ways. Born and bred within the walls of a great city, the fish of Paris cannot fail to become more wide-awake than their country cousins. The way some good-sized barbel turned somersaults on Sunday morning almost within reach of their would-be captors savored of an impertinence which is very unbecoming in an individual generally considered so unsophisticated as a fish. So I hung with all these sportsmen on the bridge, determined not to come away—within a reasonable time, of course—until something had been caught. I was glad I stayed. Just as the clock of the institute was striking 7, a shout of triumph went up and the echoes of it were repeated from shore to shore—a baby barbel had been betrayed into accepting a piece of shrimp from a man of the Pont des Arts. Need I say how the fortunate angler was surrounded in an instant by dozens of his envious confreres, all eager to have a look at the first catch of the season? Fancy, he turned the scale at three ounces. With vastly increased enthusiasm the rest of the day's sport was continued."

Louis Rondeau, who is familiar with the finny inhabitants of many waters, salt and fresh, within easy reach of this city, fished Sonoma creek last Sunday and Monday. The stream from Glen Ellen, down to and below Sonoma, was quite low. Eight fish on Sunday, two with bait and the rest with a La Forge spoon was the catch. The trout were in excellent condition and averaged a pound in weight. On Monday he caught only two trout. This is the time of year to get nice fish in Sonoma creek. Two Sundays ago Rondeau caught several fine trout in the Paper Mill near Tocaloma, fishing up stream from Point Reyes.

The season on Eel river seems to be somewhat early this year, which state of affairs is not by any means unsatisfactory to a large number of anglers. A letter received last week by John Butler from the veteran sportsman, Mr. Frank Maskey, is replete with potent information for the local contingent. The communication was dated, August 25th and is as follows: "The fish are now here and I am having grand sport. I hooked two steelheads this morning, nine and one-half and fourteen pounds respectively. I also caught a number of salmon trout, running about a pound apiece. The fish like a No. 3 or 4 Wilson spoon and also take the fly."

This letter was received in time to have the glad tidings sent the rounds, but a delay in the sailing of the Pomona on Sunday for Eureka was a damper for quite a number of anglers. Chas. H. Kewell and John Butler, propose trying the stream this week. Fred Lees, Dave Sachs and C. Ashlin will also be putting their lines out on the river in a few days.

Doings in Dogdom.

Plumoria Cocker Kennels Champion Viscount served A. D. Robinson's black bitch Mignon on the 4th inst.

L. L. Campbell writes us that his Irish Sotter bitch Glenmore Sultana is in fine fettle and was bred to his well known Barrymore on August 25th.

A list of the recent importations of Fox Terriers to Mr. G. M. Carnochan's New York Kennels includes the bitches Hot Stuff, Cairnsmuir Modesty, Cairnsmuir Laurel Leaf, Matrimonial News, spoken of as a particularly good bitch, and Preserve, who has been bred to the Duchess of Newcastle's Cackler of Notts.

J. H. Dibbern's Fox Terrier bitch Pytchley Vanity is giving her matronly attention to a recent litter of four likely youngsters sired by Pytchley Viking.

Princess Nairo, Mr. J. H. Dorian's handsome St. Bernard brood bitch was bred to Glenwood Kennels' Le King on September 1st. Something good is expected from this mating.

The Pan American show at Buffalo had a total of 568 entries, a fairly good showing for an exhibit in the East during the hot days of August. The number of exhibitors totaled about two hundred.

Woodlawn Kennels is in receipt of a commission from a prominent Eastern breeder for the "pick" of the recent litter of Newmarket Queen to Ch. Woodcote Wonder. The puppy dog or bitch, as selected by Superintendent Bradshaw, will be sent East when the young Bull Terrier is grown enough to stand the journey.

The notice of the whelping published in the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN caught the eye of the Eastern fancier and the above purchase was the result.

L. A. Klein is in receipt of the pleasing news from Buffalo, that his new Dachshund bitch, Venlo's Compliments, won in all her classes and also captured the winners' tricolor—in which latter class both sexes competed against each other, this gives her the hall mark of best Dach at the Pan American show.

Venlo's Compliments is now about nine months old and is by Champion Tek (Ch. Young Phenomenon-Gepperl) out of Champion Venlo's German Girl, a bitch imported last year by Klein. Both Tek and German Girl were sold by Klein to Mr. James L. Little of Brookline, Mass., for a round figure at the last Boston bench show.

D. J. Sinclair, Superintendent of the Los Angeles dog show, left for the south on Thursday evening. He will personally attend to all of the preliminary details for the bench show and look after the entry of dogs owned in the southern portion of the State. Indications are that a large entry by Los Angeles exhibitors will be made. Public interest there is strongly in favor of this show, which will be the first one held in Los Angeles in several years. Assurances of entries from this city and vicinity are daily made by different fanciers and if the list is anywhere near what has been approximated there will be a big string of dogs taken down owned by local enthusiasts, quite a number of whom have also signified their intention of attending the show. In addition to the names of probable exhibitors we have already published, we may mention, Mrs. W. C. Ralston, who will bench a kennel of Cocker, Mrs. E. D. Connelley will show the smooth coat St. Bernard General B. and a Collie.

In the event of Mr. J. B. Stoddard finding it inexpedient to judge Setters and Pointers, this office may be filled by no less an authority than John Schumacher, the well known Los Angeles sportsman.

The English Setter, Oakley Hill, was beaten out by Vancroft Kennels' Barton Tory at Buffalo. Oakley Hill was also beaten in the Field Trials class by the Pointer Tioga Sam, winner in the Pointer classes, owned by W. P. Austin.

Champion Marvelcroft took winners in the Holy breed.

In Cockers, the winner in blacks was Champion Ono, with George Bell's Standard (first in limit) reserve. Other than black, Champion Romany Rye first, with Chief II. (second in limit and reserve winners here) reserve. In bitches, blacks, first was Bayview Josie Brooks, Banner Nancy reserve. Other colors, first Braeside Betty, reserve Lilith.

Vancroft Kennels' Portland and King Solomon were one, two in winners Bulldogs and their Yorkshire Relish and Lady Dockleaf were in the same order for winning bitches.

The winning quartette of Bostons were Boyleston Kennels' Surprise and W. E. Stone's Bobs first and reserve dogs and Messrs. Thomas' Homewood Beauty and Boyleston Kennels' Snowflake ditto bitches.

In Fox Terriers, W. Rutherford's Dusky Don and Norfolk Mainstay were the smooth winner dogs and Handicraft and Lewane Blue Bell one, two in bitches. Wires went to D. W. Ogilvie's Bank Note first and Bellefield Rascalion reserve. G. M. Carnochan's Hot Stuff and Cairnsmuir Make Believe was the order in winning bitches.

Sagacious Dog Fills a Stomach by Strategy.

The smartest dog in Denver is said to be a cute Cocker Spaniel. This sagacious animal is the property of Mrs. Annie Moore, but as she is away on a visit, the canine has to shift for himself to some extent.

It has been Mrs. Moore's custom to send the dog to the meat market with an envelope containing an order for meat and the money to pay for it, and the dog came to know that an envelope from his mistress would always bring a good meal at the butcher's.

When he was left alone he thought he would try the game himself. Nobody was there to write him an order. His idea, however, was that any piece of paper would do, and he appeared before the astonished butcher with an old piece of blank paper. By his strange actions the butcher finally came to know that he wanted the meat, and gave the little animal his usual meal. The next day doggie tried it again. He brought this time a piece of an old newspaper, and gravely tendered that to the butcher. He was accompanied, also, by a little yellow dog, whom had met on the street and evidently invited to share his good luck.

The butcher accepted the piece of paper and fed both dogs, but he is apprehensive lest the hospitable animal may enlarge the number of his guests and tender a banquet to all the canine colony on Capitol hill.

Terriers and Their Development.

On this interesting subject the Field (Eng.) says: "There is no doubt that our terriers, in their many and diverse varieties, are the most popular dogs of the day. They are the best known, too, and, such being the case, it seems almost odd that so many persons should be continually asking, 'Which is the best terrier to keep—the smartest, cleanliest and most intelligent; the most suitable for a house dog and as an outdoor companion?' Such qualifications depend in a great measure upon the training which has been given the animal. To take a young dog out of a kennel where it has lived with perhaps a score of others, without being subjected to more rigid discipline than it could receive under the circumstances, and expect that it will conform to the usages of the household, is ridiculous. Yet there are scores of people doing this every day, with the result that they become disgusted with what in nine cases out of ten is a well-bred dog, whose parents have been prize winners, and thus the strain or family is condemned as useless. The same thing applies when a similar dog is put down to kill a rat or hunt a rabbit. He has not had any training, does not comprehend or understand the scent or taint of either, and because he does not go in at once and finish off the rat or trace the rabbit to his burrow, he is dubbed a coward and a fool, and treated accordingly."

Although it is as much the nature of a terrier to hunt and to kill vermin and other things as it is for a child to read and write, yet both require preliminary training. The ordinary individual thoroughly misunderstands the dog, and on this account we hear so much of the deterioration of the modern terrier since he was exhibited, as compared with what he was before shows became the fashion, and when he was kept more for use and as a companion than for ornament. If those who complain of the degradation of the show dog were to obtain even the highest pedigreed puppy when a couple of months old, and rear and bring it up under conditions similar to those their grandfathers would have used with an ordinary terrier of their day, they would soon be satisfied that there is little wrong with our present race of terriers. Then it must not be forgotten that a dog worth several hundred pounds is too valuable a commodity to be placed at the mercies, not very tender, of fox, badger or otter. Either of the two latter can kill a dog, while in going to a fox the danger of a fatal result or maiming for life is almost equally great. The otter hunter and the fox hunter keep dogs which are trained and entered for their special vocation, and the gamekeeper has his terriers to assist in rabbit killing and in the destruction of vermin, which are likewise specially trained. So, on the same reasoning, the ordinary individual who keeps his one or two dogs for companionship must have them properly educated, and he will find even those from the choicest strains all that can be desired for ordinary purposes. As a rule they will take water well, and do all that can reasonably be expected of such gay little dogs. The more you make your dog a companion and the more he is with you the better he will be; his sagacity and intelligence will be developed, and he will by many little acts display a much greater amount of intelligence than if he had been reared in a kennel. And it must not be forgotten that the dog loves the companionship of man, and though now and then one shows an inclination to return to a primeval state of wildness by roaming abroad and perhaps bringing forth her puppies in a burrow, this is but one exception which has an interest of its own.

The development of the terrier during the past century has been somewhat extraordinary; his evolution has reached its zenith. From the ordinary rough-and-ready creature, which often obtained more kicks than bones, and was available for almost any purpose, various families have arisen and varieties been produced with an ease that is little short of marvelous. The commonest of all is undoubtedly the Fox Terrier, white in color, or slightly marked with brown and black. Originally he was an entirely black and tan dog; he is also now produced in two varieties—one smooth in coat, the other rough or broken-haired. Then there is the black and tan, or Manchester Terrier, the markings of which are so important and peculiar and the size so variable. The Bull Terrier, all white, was once either brindled, or fawn with a black muzzle; the English Terrier, always white, and quite a fancy article, as is the Yorkshire Terrier—so profuse in coat, so lovely in color, so troublesome to keep in order. The Airedale Terrier is another variety, quite distinct from those already mentioned—a big dog, often 50 lbs. weight or more, black or brown grizzle in color, hard in coat, determined in appearance. Smaller than he, but built much on similar lines, is the Irish Terrier, so popular, now always red in color, once upon a time black and tan, and quite recently often seen pale wheaten in hue. Still another race is the Bedlington, invariably blue in color, though a quarter of a century ago many of them were red, while others had liver or chocolate colored jackets. This is a family in its decadence, owing to the odd way its so-called admirers have of manipulating the coats, in which the ordinary dog lover is unskilled. Scotland can lay claim to several families of the terrier race, first and foremost, of which comes the Scottish Terrier known also as the Aberdeen Terrier, the Dio Hard, the Cain Terrier, and by a number of local names which continually crop up to the confusion of the southerner. Here, too, has been an evolution: the modern show dog is larger in size and darker in color than was his prototype, and his ears are now always erect, while once upon a time they were as often as not carried lowly or thrown back. Maybe, a further change is in store, for in some quarters Scottish Terriers white in color are being produced. The Skye Terrier has also seen many changes; once he was used to kill foxes, now he is entirely a pet dog, with such a superabundance of coat as to make it an impossibility for him to follow his original part as a useful attendant to the old Highlander hunter. The Dandie Dinmont Terrier was not known at all at the commencement of the present century, and even he as represented today, is very much unlike the Dandies Landseer painted and which were found about Abbotsford and just over the Border. Still, of late years, they have not changed as much as some other breeds, but, being seldom used for work now, they are losing in a degree their character. The Paisley or Clydesdale Terriers seem to us to be neither one thing nor another—a purely fancy family, which may have been produced by judicious, or injudicious crossing between a Skye Terrier and the Yorkshire Terrier. He is mostly found in the town from which he obtains his name, but as a popular favorite is almost entirely confined to his own locality. And as he does not combine the beauties of the families from which he is said to have been made, he is not likely to extend his range of admirers. Wales has her terrier, or, at any rate, has had one claimed for her, black and tan in color, hard-coated and broken-haired handy and useful in size, and, excepting in color, not unlike our modern and commoner Fox Terrier. However, some of our best Welsh Terriers were originally produced outside the Principality, and Yorkshire and the northern counties had strains of the kind, some of which did very well on the show bench when classes were first provided for Welsh Terriers.

Such, then, are the varieties of the terrier for which classes are provided at our leading shows. Still, there are other families or strains which have more than local interest. One known as the Border Terrier, indigenous to Northumberland, where he assists the Foxhounds, is not unlike the Welsh Terrier, or perhaps he may better be recognized as a small edition of the Airedale Terrier. The latter ranges from 40 lbs. to 50 lbs. weight; the former ought not to exceed 18 lbs. weight at the utmost. The Border Terrier is even an older family than some which are given greater distinction to-day. Westmoreland and the lake country had an excellent race of the terrier, small, hard bitten and game, yellow or pepper and salt in color, and utilized to assist the Otter Hounds or other hounds, when hunting the sweet-mart and the foul-mart were the pastimes of the hardy dalesmen. But almost every county and district had its own special and favorite strains of the terrier, which, unhappily, have been ousted by the modern varieties which appear in the Stud Book of the Kennel Club. When these family strains appear now in public, they are found in a class for Old English Terriers, alas! seldom well filled, and of little attraction to the public of to-day. The Sealyham Terrier, the family dog of the Edwardes, of Haverford-west, is short-legged and long-bodied, with considerable character. In some parts of Wales classes at the shows have been provided for him, and, it is said, the pedigree has been kept at Sealyham for 100 years. Perhaps this little dog, with a novelist like Sir Walter Scott to immortalize him and his owners, might at the present time be as well known as is the Dandie Dinmont, and have proved as great a favorite. Nor must the capital race of terriers founded by Mr. J. H. B. Cowley, in Hertfordshire, be forgotten, which as assistants in badger drawing and in rat destroying cannot be surpassed. These dogs are short-legged, long-bodied, sturdy little fellows, which are said to combine all the good attributes to be found in the modern wire-haired Fox Terrier, in the Sealyham Terrier, and in the Scottish Terrier. We are not aware that classes at shows have ever been provided for this strain, though aware that their exceeding gameness has been fully recognized by those who require a terrier to perform his work underground satisfactorily.

With all these excellent varieties and families, as well as others, to which allusion has not been made, the seeker after a good terrier ought not to have any difficulty in making a selection; but whatever he chooses to adopt, he must not forget that early training is as essential to make a companionable dog as education is to make a clever child.

Feeding of Dogs For Health and Condition.

There has been some difference of opinion as to the origin of the dog. Whilst some stoutly affirm the present race have all sprung from some common stock, others are eager to combat such an idea, and to propound various theories of their own. Whether he was in the Ark with Noah, whether he has in more recent times descended from some wild variety of animal which has attached itself to the home of some ancient family, or whether the canine race is distinct in itself, all are prepared to admit that the dog belongs to the family of carnivora, and that when he existed in his primitive state he was a flesh eating animal. On this common platform we pause to enquire what changes have been brought about by domestication. What influences have been used to make the dog capable of existence on a mixed diet of vegetable and animal food, instead of one entirely animal? We who have the care of our own pets, and those who have charge of packs of hounds, or large kennels, know that under certain conditions a dog will thrive upon a mixed diet, and others in peculiar circumstances are able to prove equally well that dogs do well upon meat only.

There can be no doubt that the dog is physically constituted to obtain all that is necessary to keep him in good health by means of flesh only; but for various reasons a mixed diet has been adopted, and has been found to act quite as well, and in many cases better, than meat alone. The oldest traces of the dog, going back to the far distant ages of which we can glean any information, the dog has been the friend and companion of man. He has shared in the sports, the pleasures and the work of his master; in such cases has shared his food, and has always been ready "To eat the crumbs which fell from his master's table."

Thus the dog must in some measure have acquired a liking for vegetable foods, and in course of generations his bodily structure may have undergone certain changes to adapt him to the altered circumstances of life. These changes in course of time have become hereditary, and we know in some animals the results have been a modification of some parts of the anatomy. The dog of the day does not live in the primitive condition that probably many of his ancestors did. He has not to find his own food by hunting before he enjoys it. He has not to go, perhaps days, without. When he looked out for himself he often had to go long journeys to find what he needed, and thus gave him power to digest the large quantity of raw flesh he often gorged himself with. This exercise would gradually work off any excess of food and thus naturally prevent disease. The dogs which prowled about Eastern cities in a semi-wild state, are quite as eager to eat forms of vegetable food they pick up, and to fight for it as frequently as for a bone. But that this food is not altogether suitable in such circumstances is evidenced by the great number of such animals which are diseased in some form or other. They gorge when they can get it, lie down in some quiet spot, and have not the energy or desire for much exercise to balance their extra supply of food. The modern dog exists under entirely different circumstances. Generally he is well cared for, and supplied with plenty of food; oftentimes he is pampered and kept in the most unnatural conditions, and given very limited exercise. This state of things must gradually undermine the constitution of any breed, and make it susceptible to many ills his ancestors knew nothing about. The way many dogs are housed, fed and nursed must affect their vigor; they can never be capable of the same amount of exertions as their ancestors. Their digestion becomes impaired and their excretory organs suffer in a corresponding degree. Those who have large kennels know that if by accident any of the inmates accidentally seizes an opportunity to gorge himself beyond repitition with raw meat once or twice, there are soon signs of it in the breaking out of some form of skin disease. The digestive organs are quite unable to bear the extra strain put upon them, and the evil is sure to show itself in some form. The human glutton is frequently so constituted that he does not care for much exercise and the results of his excess are soon apparent in some form. The same thing holds good in the dog. High feeding must in all cases be accompanied by abundant exercise to work off the excess.

--We know by experience that our dogs do better upon a mixed diet. Makers of dogs' food have so kindly come to our aid, and after various experiments combined beetroot with their meat biscuits. Other manufacturers have done the same with onions, and we are all pretty well agreed that whatever may have been the conditions of existence in the ancestors, the modern dog does better with a mixed diet.

In most country places there is, except at certain seasons of the year, e. g., lambing time, a great difficulty in obtaining offal meat for dogs. Farmers' dogs very frequently get nothing beyond scalded meat and a little skimmed milk to cool it, yet these dogs always look healthy, and in fairly good form.

Very few of those who keep dogs know that certain diseases are promoted by the use of improper food. In large towns, for instance, offal meat is fairly plentiful, and a butcher is glad to get rid of it for little money. The dog-owner permits his dogs to partake of it sometimes cooked, sometimes raw. He does not allow any extra exercise to balance this, and his dogs very soon develop eczema, mange, etc. The owner then frequently resorts to external remedies to stop the disease and though able to effect an improvement, it is not a lasting one unless the animal is given a very large increase in exercise.

There is no doubt that a proportion of animal food is necessary to keep a dog in sound health. The farmer and country person practically obtains it through the supply of milk, but he seldom, perhaps, never, knows that the dog's constitution requires it. Very much the same condition obtains with many—probably the majority—of dog-owners.

The great difference in the requirements of dogs worked hard in the field or elsewhere is not considered against those which have limited exercise, which are petted, fed and pampered. The watch-dog on the chain beats a regular path round his kennel in his efforts to obtain sufficient exercise, but the pampered pet is taken for an airing in a carriage, or is led on a chain by his owner. Individual peculiarities are seldom noted. Some human beings have larger appetites, require more food than others to maintain the equilibrium. Young animals growing require more food than mature ones. Some owners prefer to give the food uncooked, others prepare it in such a rough and ready fashion that it would have been better to have given it uncooked. Others just think—if they think at all—that if plenty be given, it is the be-all and end-all of the dog's requirements. The idea of quality or suitability does not enter their minds.—Fox Terrier Chronicle.

A development of the old turnspit is shown in the case of a young Mastiff dog who makes his living by driving a printing press. He helps print an edition of 1000 papers in one hour. The dog is the property of Messrs. Carroll & Bowen, proprietors of the Plymouth (Wis.) Review. He weighs 100 pounds, and does the work by running a wooden wheel eight feet in diameter. A belt connects with the presses in the next room, and when the dog has worked off the paper for one press he sets to work on another.

THE FARM.

Value of Clover.

With our present knowledge of the benefits derived from the pasture it is difficult to see how an ordinary farmer can successfully carry on farming for a long series of years without growing clover. He needs clover to enable him to maintain the fertility of the soil, and he needs it also for all kinds of stock, for there are certain elements in it that are absolutely necessary to the growth of the young animal; also for the maintenance of the mature animal and the production of milk, butter and cheese, says a Wisconsin correspondent of the Prairie Farmer. It has been proved that clover hay, well saved, is the best feed and the most valuable crop that can be grown on the farm. There is not an animal raised on the farm but that will eat good clover hay in preference to any other rough feed. Even the swine and poultry relish a feed of it occasionally. Another large item to the credit of the clover crop is the manure made while feeding it, which, if returned to the soil in a proper manner, will still further increase the fertility of the ground, for that which makes the best and richest feed will also make the best and richest manure. The clover crop also adds to the fertility of the field by appropriating nitrogen from the air and sending down its long tap roots into the soil and bringing up the elements of fertility to the surface, where they can be used by the ordinary farm crops which do not send their roots as deeply. Clover roots also pulverize and made porous the soil to a great depth, increasing its capacity to take up and hold water in times of abundant rainfall and enabling it to give back this water in times of drouth by capillary action for the use of plants.

A High Milk Test.

W. E. Humphrey, who has a fine farm near Sutter City, believes in dairying as a profitable business and last Tuesday commenced delivering milk to the Marysville creamery. On Monday he took samples of his milk fresh from the cows to the creamery to be tested and one cow's milk made the remarkable test of 7.60. This cow is five years old and is almost a full blooded Jersey. She has a young calf and the amount of milk she is now giving will make 3½ pounds of butter per day on dry feed. The manager of the creamery told Mr. Humphrey that the milk was the highest he had ever tested here or in the East. From the nine cows the test was 5.25. Mr. Humphrey has a fine lot of heifers coming on and will keep breeding up his herd. He is delivering about 200 pounds of milk daily to the creamery and is thinking of sowing several acres to alfalfa and putting in a gasoline pumping plant. Several of his neighbors are also delivering milk to the creamery and making a good profit thereby — Sutter Co. Farmer.

Poultry Notes.

Ground corn and wheat bran, half and half makes a good feed for the young ducks.

They are fond of grass, and only rye or wheat makes good pasture for them.

Plenty of water to drink, but none to swim in, will give the best results. Minks, turtles, etc., are very fond of young ducks, do not let them go to the slough or creeks.

Skim milk is better than water to mix their feed with. They will also dispose of some meat to good advantage, if feed in small quantities.

If they are disposed of while young, ten weeks is about the right age to sell them at, as they dress more easily than later on.

Rain and heavy dew is as disastrous to the young ducks as they are to young chicks. Even a slight shower will drown them.

Over-fat hens are better out of the flock than in it, so sell any that are too fat for business.

It is easy to tell the hen that is profitable. She has a red, highly colored comb, is full of activity and life. Those in first class market shape should be sold at once; they are a detriment to the others, as they take up valuable room.

Leg trouble is often caused in brooder chicks by either too much or too little heat in brooder, or it may result from over feeding.

A gander is past his best days at 3 or 4 years of age. We have one 12 or 14 years of age, but he is only kept for show purposes. Use young stock.

Goslings take less food than either chicks or young turkeys, and grow so fast that they soon reach an age where they require only to be allowed to run on a pasture and take care of themselves.

A low, open shed is all the shelter geese will need in the coldest weather. — Farmer's Advocate.

The lowest price reported for wool this year, or since the West became settled for that matter, was only six cents a pound, and this was accepted by a grower near Billings, Montana.

Baby Beef Profitable.

The farmer who raises and fattens mature steers bas to furnish pasture for his cows, the yearlings, the two year olds and often for the three year old steers, says H. M. Cottrell of the Kansas experiment station. He waits three years from the time a calf is born until he realizes on the investment, and only one-fourth of his herd are cows producing calves. If the farmer will produce "baby beef," he can fill his pasture to the full limit with cows producing calves, and he will realize on the calves 12 months from the date of their birth. The farmer's gain will produce from 50 to 100 per cent. more pounds of "baby beef" than it will of beef from a mature steer, and for the past three years the "baby beef" animal has sold for as high prices per hundred as bas the average steer.

In producing "baby beef" the farmer can market his heifer calves at the same price as his steers and will usually get more for the 12 month old heifer than he would for the same animal if kept until maturity.

Experiments made at the Kansas experiment station show that the scrub cows may be bought at ordinary prices and if selected with dairy forms will produce from $50 to $75 worth of milk per year per cow at creamery prices. Our calves fed creamery skim milk until weaning made the greatest gains in the feeding lots and sold at $40 to $45 per head. This shows that a gross income of from $90 to $120 per cow can be made by the dairyman who will push both cow and calf.

The farmer who produces "baby beef" should raise alfalfa and feed alfalfa hay to both cow and calf every day in the year. Cowpea, soy bean, field pea and red clover hays may be used to give variety, and this means that the farmer will grow leguminous crops largely, and these will continually improve his fields.

The calves used in this experiment were "common" bred ones, and they made good gains. The farmer whose business is producing "baby beef" should use the best type of bull that he can secure—short legged, thick meated, blocky and quick maturing. A few farmers who are doing this a e producing year old calves that average 1000 pounds each. This means $50 and upward per head for every steer and heifer.

A cow in New York State is creating quite a sensation among the yeomanry who attend the county fairs. Although full grown she is only twenty-eight inches tall and thirty-six inches long. She is perfect in form and is milked each day on the grounds. The cow at present gives eight quarts of milk twice a day. She weighs 117 pounds.

There are a great many advocates of cross-bred fowls, but the practice is not in favor with us. It is very essential to introduce new blood every year, but instead of crossing breeds get fowls from some pure flock of your own kind and keep your flock pure and bred up to the highest possible point.

ENTRANCE and PAYMENTS—$3 to nominate mare on October 1, 1901, when name, color, description of mare and stallion bred to must be given. $5 January 2, 1902. $5 July 1, 1902. $10 on yearlings January 2, 1903. $10 on two year olds January 2, 1904. $10 on three year olds January 2, 1905.

STARTING PAYMENTS—$25 to start in the two year old pace. $35 to start in the two year old trot. $35 to start in the three year old pace. $50 to start in the three year old trot. All starting payments to be made in ten days before the first day of the meeting at which the race is to take place.

Nominators must designate when making payments to start whether the horse entered is a trotter or pacer.
Colts that start at two years old are not barred from starting again in the Three Year Old Divisions.

CONDITIONS.

The races for two year olds will be mile heats (2 in 3) and for three year olds mile heats (3 in 5).
Distance for two year olds, 150 yards; for three year olds, 100 yards.

If a mare proves barren, or slips, or has a dead foal or twins, or if either the mare or foal dies before January 2, 1903, her nominator may transfer his nomination or substitute another mare and foal regardless of ownership; but there will be no return of a payment, nor will any entry be liable for more than amount paid in or contracted for. In entries the name, color and pedigree of mare must be given, also the name of the horse to which she was bred in 1901.

Entries must be accompanied by the entrance fee.

Should the amount of entrance money received be in excess of the amount of the stakes, the excess will be added, less the cost of advertising, to the stakes for the three year old divisions in proportion to the amount offered for each division.

THE SIXTH NATIONAL STALLION RACE, WITH $4000 ADDED.

To Be Run for then Two Year Olds, during the Spring Meeting of 1903.

Entries for Stallions to Close and Name Tuesday, September 10, 1901.

Nomination of stallions to close and name by midnight of Tuesday, September 10, 1901, by subscription of $50 each, or only $25 each for stallions which have not sired a winner prior to December 1, 1901. Of the subscriptions for stallions the nominators of the sires of the first, second and third horses shall receive 25%, 15% and 10% respectively. The remaining 50% to the winner.

Conditions for the Entry of Foals of 1901, to close and name at midnight, Tuesday, December 10, 1901.

Foals of 1901, the progeny of stallions duly nominated to be entered and named by midnight of Tuesday, December 10, 1901. Colts and geldings at $10 each, fillies at $5 each, the only forfeit if declared by December 1, 1902.

If left in after December 1, 1902, and declared by April 20, 1903, colts and geldings to pay $30 each, fillies $15 each.

If left in after April 20, 1903, colts and geldings to pay $60 each, fillies $30 each. Starters—colts, geldings and fillies to pay $100 each additional.

The Westchester Racing Association to add $4000 and the remaining 50% of the stallion entrances, of which $1000 to the second, and $500 to the third. The nominator of the winner to receive $1000 out of the subscriptions and starting money. Of the subscriptions for stallions, the nominators of the sires of the first, second and third horses shall receive 25%, 15%, and 10% respectively. Colts to carry 122 pounds, geldings and fillies 119 pounds.

The produce of stallions which have not produced a winner prior to December 1, 1901, allowed 5 pounds if claimed at time of entry. In case of a stallion nominated by other persons, as well as his owner, the owner shall have prior right. Should a stallion be nominated by two or more persons not his owners, priority of entry shall determine claim to the engagement.

By filing with the Westchester Racing Association, prior to December 1, 1902, an accepted transfer of the foal's entry, the original subscriber shall be released from liability as to the engagement of the horse, except for the original forfeit of $10 or $5.

Entries shall not be void by death of the nominator or transferee, if the engagement is assumed by the then owner of the horse, and notice in writing to that effect is given the Westchester Racing Association within ninety days after such demise, together with the payment of all accrued liabilities. Last five furlongs of the Eclipse Course.

THREE OR MORE RUNNING RACES EACH DAY, NO PURSE LESS THAN $250.

CONDITIONS.

Entries to close Saturday, September 7th, 1901, when horses are to be named, and to be eligible to the class in which they are entered.

Stakes not filling satisfactorily to the management may be declared off.

Stakes will be divided into four moneys: 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.

Entrance 5%, and 5% of the amount of the Stake will be deducted from each money won.

The management reserves the right to declare two starters a walk over. When only two start they may contest for the entrance money paid in, to be divided 60% per cent. to the first and 33% per cent. to the second horse. A horse distancing the field shall be entitled to first and fourth moneys only, and in no other case will a horse be entitled to more than one money.

The management reserves the right to change the hour and day of any race, except when it becomes necessary to ante-date a race, in which instance the nominators will receive three days notice by mail to address of entry.

The right reserved to declare off or postpone any or all races on account of weather or other sufficient cause.

For Entry Blanks and further particulars address

The management reserves the right to start any heat after the fourth score regardless of the position of the horses.

Entries not declared out at 5 o'clock p. m. on the day preceding the race shall be required to start and declarations must be in writing and made at the office of the Secretary at the track.

When there is more than one entry to any Stake by any one person or in one interest, the horse to be started must be named by 5 o'clock p. m. on the day preceding the race.

Trotting and racing colors must be named by 5 o'clock p. m. on the day preceding the race and must be worn upon the track. Colors will be registered in the order in which they are received.

Hopples barred in trotting races, but will be permitted in pacing races.

Conditional entries will be treated same as regular entries and nominators held under the rules. Any race that may be started and unfinished on last day of the meeting may be declared ended and money divided according to the rank of horses in the summary.

Otherwise than as herein specified in these conditions, National Trotting Association Rules, except Rule 4, to govern.

Mention this paper.

Also, as the official records show, 54 per cent of the entire purse won with Parkers: 37.5 per cent of all the guns winning money were Parkers; and 34.6 per cent of all guns entered were Parkers, which proves that the Parker is unquestionably the most popular and "reliable" gun in the world.

STATE FAIR RACES.

Attendance Much Improved During the Second Week at Sacramento.

It will dawn on the Directors of the State Fair after a while that one week is long enough for a race program and that a six day program will raise the quality of the racing and give greater satisfaction to both horsemen and the public. There have been several days during the two weeks' meeting which closed at Sacramento to-day when the crowd was fairly large, but on many the gate receipts were entirely too small to be profitable.

The racing program, strung out to twelve days, does not contain sufficient high class features to make each day's racing a drawing card, although the expenses are just as heavy on the off days as on the others.

Our report last week closed with Wednesday's racing. On Thursday there were two harness events. The first was for horses owned and driven by members of the Sacramento Driving Club and had six starters. Regina F., on her previous form was favorite, but after finishing second in the first heat and winning the second, a bad break unfortunately put her behind the flag in the third, and the race was left to Mr. Ruhstaller's Monroe B. and Mr. Wright's Baby Button. Mr. Ruhstaller won and drove a splendid race. Baby Button took the first heat in 2:20, the fastest heat in the race, and then the time got slower until the last was in 2:30.

The 2:14 class trot went to Anzella, the favorite, in straight heats, best time 2:15½ which was made in the last heat, the roan gelding Dan W. being driven hard in an effort to beat Anzella, but it was easy for the Antrim mare who is capable of a mile in 2:10 any time she is feeling well.

The Sacramento Selling Stake went to George Miller's brown colt Sir Hampton the handsome son of Watercress. Scotch Plaid was the favorite at 3 to 5 and Sir Hampton was held at even money. Logue gave the winner a good ride and equalled the track record of 1:40 for the mile.

The winners of the other running events Thursday were Torsida and Almoner, thus giving the Rancho del Paso sires the winners of the entire racing program.

On Friday, which was called Drummers Day, and a race for horses driven by commercial travelers made the feature of the program, there was a pretty fair attendance. The race of the day was the 2:20 class trot, in which D. F. Oglesby's bay stallion Almonada by Eros was returned the winner after a well contested race of four heats. There were seven started in this event. Almonada won the first heat in 2:18½ with Thomas R. a close second. The son of Iran Alto got to the wire first in the second heat in 2:19½, but Almonada won the next two and the race.

H. A. Bell was fortunate enough to get the mount behind Ahline in the drummers race and the son of Wilkesdale and Abbie Woodnut outlasted all the others. Little Maid, driven by W. F. Peterson won the first two heats in slow time, Ahline taking the next three very easily.

The running events were fairly good contests and the favorites landed in three out of four races.

But one harness race was on the program for Saturday, the sixth day of the meeting. This was the 2:17 class pace for a purse of $800. Sir Albert S. was a starter and a 1 to 8 favorite. He won of course as he has always done ever since he scored down for the word the first time, in straight heats and with the utmost ease. There was no hetting on the race except for place and show, but there were more eyes on Sir Albert S. as he paced around the track than have been turned on any horse during the meeting. To come out a green horse and win four races in twelve heats, with the time from 2:12½ to 2:08½, without a skip or a break is a great record, and Sir Albert S. looks and acts as if he enjoyed it and seems to say: "Just name the clip you want me to go and I'll do it, even if it is 2:04 or better." The only horse that could keep near enough to him in this race to make him pace fast was El Diablo, 2:12½ and he was but a length behind in the second heat, paced in 2:10½. There were four of the get of Diablo in the race. All the horsemen on the circuit are hoping that Tuppy, or some of the other numerous entries in the 2:17 pace at Los Angeles will have speed enough to make Sir Albert S. stretch his neck, as he has not had to do it so far, and they want to see how fast he can go. He has been a middle half in 1:01½ and it seemed to be easy for him.

SECOND WEEK.

The first race of the second week of the State Fair saw the Stanford Stake decided. There were six starters and although the time was very slow, two of them were distanced. Almonada, a black filly by L. W. Russell, son of Stamboul 2:07½ and the $10,000 By Fly by Nutwood, was the winner in straight heats, Perry Doran's Delia McKinney by McKinney being second, Commander Muckle, another McKinney, was third and Charles H. by Lynmont was fourth. The time was 2:28½, 2:27 and 2:26. The stake had a value of $1260, divided into four moneys according to the usual manner, and consequently the winner's share was $630, a pretty neat sum to earn with a filly that does not have to trot better than 2:26 to win it. The moral is enter in the colt stakes and keep paid up.

A special trot for a purse of $400 was won by the Nutwood Wilkes gelding Claudius in straight heats. He did not have to go faster than 2:16½, which is nearly three seconds slower than his record, to beat Osito, who was second in every heat. The time, however, was equal to 2:15 on any good track.

Tuesday, September 10th, will not be remembered for high class racing by the harness brigade. There was a special trot and a race for the Sacramento Driving Club on the program. The first went to Thos. R. by Iran Alto after Lynall had taken the first heat, and the other was won by Monroe B. in the same manner, Regina F. being winner of the first mile. There was very little speculation on either race, the books being afraid to put up liberal odds, and the public not desiring to accept those offered.

The attendance was much better on Wednesday than it had been on previous days, harring the holidays, and it looks as if the last three days of the meeting will draw something like the old time crowds, proving that the public cannot afford two weeks of money spending.

Tuppy, the dapper little chestnut son of Delphi, had but little trouble in getting first money in the 2:25 class pace, although Banker's Daughter got off in front in the first heat and paced the heat of her life, winning in 2:13½. This effort took some of the speed out of the Red Bluff mare and she could not keep up with the Stockton horse afterwards, and he took the next three heats in straight order.

A couple of McKinneys had a duel for the second race, the 2:24 class trot, and it finally went to C. F. Bunch's mare Nora McKinney, who reduced her record to 2:17½, but lost the third heat, which gave McKenna another son of Mr. Durfee's horse a chance to get into the 2:20 list in his first winning heat, the time being 2:18½. It was thought that McKenna would capture the fourth heat also, and if so, the race, but he went to a break and the mare won, giving her first money. Nora McKinney has not fully recovered from an attack of distemper she had in July this year or she would have had a much lower mark ere this.

Four running races finished the card for Wednesday, George Clark, a gelding by Torso, winning the maiden two year old race at five furlongs at the odds of 20 to 1.

It is stated that Caesar Young, who gave $17,505 for the exclusive hetting privilege, has won enough to get all his money back and will quit a good winner on the meeting.

The summaries of the racing from September 5th to 11th inclusive are here given:

Five furlongs, two year olds, purse $225—W. B. Sink's h g Royalty by imp. Cavalier, 118 (Ruiz), 7 to 10, won; Regan, 108 (McNichols), 6 to 1, second; Luleite, 115 (Logue), 5 to 2, third. No time given. Good start. Won easily at the end. Senator Bruce 108, Fred Atterbury 108 and Sol 118 also ran.

Entries for the Oakland Meeting.

Golden Gate Racing Association is the name of the organization of Oakland gentlemen who will give the race meeting at the California Jockey Club's Oakland track beginning on Monday next and continuing eight days. There will be one or more harness races and three or more running races each day. The purses for the harness horses are $500 each with five per cent. entrance. Those for the runners are $250 each, entrance free. Eight harness races are already dated as follows:

Monday—2:14 class trot: Claudius, Dan W., Alta Vela, Osito, Lynall, Boydello.

Tuesday—2:12 pace: Gaff Topsail, Queen R., John A., Doc Wilkes, Midnight, Edna R., Our Boy's Sister, Dictatress and Margaretta.

Wednesday—2:30 trot: Lucy G., Peter Jackson, McKenna, The Tout, Lady Gramard, Joe Selby and Alevis.

Thursday—2:16 trot: Puerto Rico, Nora McKinney, Almonada, Lynall, Quiboul, Floradora.

Friday—2:14 trot: Claudius, Dan W., Alta Vela, Osito, Lynall, Boydello.

Saturday—2:12 pace: Gaff Topsail, Queen R., John A., Doc Wilkes, Midnight, Edna R., Our Boy's Sister, Dictatress and Margaretta.

Monday—2:20 trot: Lucy G., Peter Jackson, McKenna, The Tout, Lady Gramard, Joe Selby and Alevis.

Tuesday—Ingleside Stake for Golden Gate Driving Club.

The Oakland track has been placed in better shape than ever before for the harness horses, and some good racing should be given as the entries show that the horses named are well classified for close contests. There will be many runners at the meeting, and it is very likely that the attendance will be very much like that of the regular racing season at the Emeryville track. A special train will bring the horses down from the State Fair on Sunday.

Entries in Slow Classes at Los Angeles.

The nominations to the 2:25 class pace and the 2:30 class trot which are to be decided at the Los Angeles meeting this year closed September 1st. The first named received fifteen nominations and the other twelve. Both these races should furnish excellent contests this year. The horses named are as follows:

Pace, 2:25 class—O. T. Bush's Bendina, H. G. Butterfield's Nickademus, C. C. Hickey's Alfred C., J. M. Reidy's Celmair, Julius B. Loving's Charter Oak Wilkes, W. S. Maben's Red Line, S. J. Dunlop's Lucy G., F. A. Ramsey's Lady Nutford, H. P. Stevens' Richwood, J. B. Smith's Glide Away, C. T. Thayer's Chief, Vendome Stock Farm's China Maid, W. H. Williams' Julia Shake, John Donohue's Midnight, R. E. Toll's Bob Mason Jr.

Trot, 2:30 class—I. H. Mulholland's Peter Jackson, C. H. Austin's Edison, Edward DuPuy's Rozell, J. T. Hamner's Dr. Dan, F. Keller's Briney K., W. S. Maben's Dr. Mac, J. M. Nelson's Jo Selby, J. W. Proctor's Mary P. and Rochab, Vendome Stock Farm's Almonada and Nora McKinney, C. Donnison's McKenna.

Kendall's Spavin Cure Saved This Company $500.

WAMPUM, PA., August 12, 1901.
These parties have just ordered two dozen of Kendall's Spavin Cure from W. J. Gilmore & Co., wholesale druggists of Pittsburg, Pa., and write as follows:
"I would just say that two months ago we had three mules that I would have given away if I could have found anyone to take them. After using 15 bottles of Kendall's Spavin Cure, on the three mules, we put them to work. They are now working and pulling as much as they were before injured, and I figure that the 15 bottles just saved us buying three new mules, or rather a saving of from $450 to $500. I never saw anything that worked like it, and I will certainly recommend it to all my friends. Very truly yours,
BRAVER COAL AND COKE CO.,
Per H. K. Hastings Jr. Sec'y."

"Do You Want More Proof?"

James G. Trainor, prominent blacksmith at St. John, N. B., writes August 16th: "Enclosed find one dollar. Please send me another bottle of Quinn's Ointment. It is a wonderful remedy and will do all you claim for it. The last bottle I used on a Ring Bone and it did its work to perfection." This is the general verdict of the leading horsemen from Maine to California. For cures, sprains, spavins, windpuffs, and all such troubles, use Quinn's Ointment. Regular size only 25c. If you cannot obtain it from druggist or dealer, address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y.

Jackson's Napa Soda is sold in every city, town and hamlet in the State.

Mambrino Patchen.

The following article on this great sire is from the pen of "Iconoclast," in the Horse Breeder, and is so well written, besides throwing several new historic sidelights, that we take pleasure in reproducing it:

There were three Mambrino Patchens. One was a son of George M. Patchen, another was bred in Fayette county, without much pedigree, probably not enough to get in the books, and died young, without achieving any great reputation, and the third was Herr's Mambrino Patchen, that became one of the most distinguished of progenitors. The last named horse was a unique animal. His breeding was not such as would now make him sought after. True, he was by Mambrino Chief, a great foundation sire, and of kindred blood to Hambletonian. His dam, however, was by a son of American Eclipse, while his second and third dams were pacing mares. Mambrino Patchen was a remarkably smooth, well formed horse, and in this respect did not greatly resemble his sire, who was anything but a beauty. Mambrino Patchen would have been a show horse in almost any company. In 1877, I remember having seen him led into the show ring with some seventeen or eighteen of his sons, and they made a grand display. I am not certain of the fact, but my recollection is that Mambrino King was one of the horses shown.

Mambrino Patchen had a fair but not great capacity as a trotter. His owner, Dr. Herr, was a trainer as well as a veterinary and breeder. As a three year old Mambrino Patchen could show a 2:40 gait. His services in the stud were afterward so much in demand that I doubt whether he ever had much training after that age, but certainly as a trotter he was never phenomenal. Neither was he at all remarkable as a sire of speed. He never got a 2:20 performer, and though largely pacing bred never sired an animal that made a pacing record as good as 2:30, but I am of the opinion that some of his get did pace, though the contrary assertion has been made. When Mambrino Patchen was in his prime pacers were at a discount. Certainly pacers were rare among his immediate progeny, and it is said that Dr. Herr once advertised that he would charge no fee for his services if the result was a pacer. Nevertheless he was bred to many pacing mares, the doctor having a strong fancy for that sort of mixed breeding. This fact, together with Mambrino Patchen's own breeding, accounts for the number of pacers that have since cropped out among his later descendants.

One of the notable facts about Mambrino Patchen was that he was a remarkably healthy horse, and one of great soundness and constitutional strength. To this it was doubtless largely due that he became so great a progenitor. He was, it is said, never sick till the day of his death, and then there was a suspicion of poisoning, though what ground there was for the suspicion I do not know. The Mambrino Patchen family is still a remarkably sound one. Among his immediate descendants I never knew but of one case of ophthalmia (though there may have been more), and this was probably a maternal inheritance. I think that the family, as a rule, also have excellent hocks and good legs and feet. In these respects I have heard complaint of some of the other sons of Mambrino Chief, some of which were doubtless well founded, but I never heard of it of the Mambrino Patchens. Mambrino Patchen transmitted his great constitutional strength and soundness to his progeny with much uniformity, and they, of course, transmitted these qualities in a considerable measure to their descendants. Necessarily, the blood did not control always. I know one great stallion out of a Mambrino Patchen mare that was blind. I saw his dam at about 20 years of age, and she had then an eye like a hawk. It was exceptionally clear and bright.

Most of the speed that has been exhibited by descendants of Mambrino Patchen has doubtless been due to the Hambletonian blood with which the blood of that horse has been so largely intermixed. This is proven by the facts that Mambrino Patchen did not have great speed himself, and that he did not produce it in his sons and daughters. Owing probably in part to the consanguinity between the two families, and in part also to the pacing cross in Mambrino Patchen, no strain has proven so great as an ally to the Hambletonians. I have seen an old tabulation of the pedigree of Mambrino Patchen, showing, I believe, some fifty odd crosses to Messenger. Most of them are too remote however, to have any special effect. I do not believe much in the theory that crosses eight or ten generations back buried under hundreds of others have very much potency. Messenger blood is doubtless a good thing when it comes through efficient lines, but like any other fluid it loses its strength when very much diluted. We have in this horse the Mambrino Chief blood, a little Messenger in Gano, the sire of his dam, and a few pacing crosses not very far away. I am a little skeptical about those very remote Messenger crosses at any rate. I know they have been used a good deal to "point morals" and to "adorn tales" of horse pedigrees. Too many of them possibly have had their origin in stud horse advertisement on the doors of blacksmith shops at country cross roads to justify one in attaching implicit confidence in them. Many of them are mythical in their origin, and a little uncertain as to the channels through which they have come down to us. I prefer taking only what is known to be authentic. Then, taken in connection with the fact that Dr. Herr never failed to breed his horse to a first-rate mare when he had an opportunity, and that he industriously and persistently sought such mares for many years, is sufficient to account for Mambrino Patchen's great success as a progenitor of trotters.

The only horse that was superior to Mambrino Patchen, counting merely by the number of mares produced by his daughters, was Blue Bull. It will be observed, however, that the list of performers credited to Blue Bull's daughters abound much more largely in pacers, and are not nearly equal in celebrity as race horses. Blue Bull had, however, much more speed than Mambrino Patchen, although it was pacing and not trotting speed. Blue Bull must also have been a horse of great vitality and constitutional strength.

The same thing may be said of nearly, or possibly quite, every horse that has ever become a distinguished sire of dams. Individually, he must have been a horse of great vigor, because he must habitually have produced strong, vigorous mares, and a horse of weak constitution cannot do that. Hambletonian, that ranks next to Mambrino Patchen as a broodmare sire, was that kind of horse and Pilot Jr., George Wilkes, Electioneer and Almont were all in this respect remarkable. To make the highest class of a broodmare sire great vigor of constitution is not the only essential; the instinct to trot must also be present, and no horse ever yet had too much of it. No thoroughbred horse ever yet made a great sire of trotting broodmares, and reasoning by analogy it is safe to say none ever will.

It was extremely fortunate for the fame of Mambrino Patchen as a broodmare sire that he was immediately followed by a number of horses, sons of a much greater trotting sire, that, while they in most instances lacked his splendid physique, were much more strongly endowed with trotting instinct. They supplied exactly the element in which he was lacking, and the progeny resulting from the mating of sons of Hambletonian with daughters of Mambrino Patchen was an improvement upon both ancestral lines, the produce having more intense trotting instinct than their dam's family, and a better physical make up than their sires'. Many of them possessed the high finish and handsome conformation of their maternal grandsire. One of their most distinguished characteristics is their straight hips, the tail bone coming out almost on a level with their couplings.

Dr. Herr was a stickler for fine tails and good tail carriage, and bred with a view to producing this conformation. I heard it said many years ago that he was the only trotting horse breeder in Kentucky that "bred for tails." Much of his education was received during the era of fine saddle and show horses, and Mambrino Patchen was his ideal of a horse. It is questionable, however, whether the good doctor fully appreciated his value. He very distinctly was not the great sire of speed which he considered him. In this respect, while fair, he was very much inferior to many Hambletonian horses, and to Woodford Mambrino, at least, among the sons of Mambrino Chief, but as a sire of fine mares of stout conformation and immense vitality, such as would cross well with the Hambletonian horses (many of which were greatly lacking in good looks), he was supreme. It is doubtful whether any other stallion ever lived that could exactly have filled the place of Mambrino Patchen. A good deal of his success was owing to Dr. Herr's selection of mares with which to mate him. Dr. Herr was a thorough horseman, but not of the modern school. He looked for quality very much more than for high trotting breeding as we now understand the term. In fact, till near the close of his career, there was not much very high trotting breeding, and the Hambletonian type was not much to his fancy.

Dr. Herr's greatest mistake was in ignoring the merits of George Wilkes. This error was one that was committed by many horsemen of the day, including the Woodburn Farm, and singularly enough Woodburn did not believe much in Mambrino Patchen, probably from a feeling that Woodburn blood was good enough. The Woodburn horse that most nearly filled the place of Dr. Herr's stallion was Pilot Jr., but even he was in some respects inferior to Mambrino Patchen as a cross for the Hambletonians, although the Pilot Jr. cross did produce a number of world renowned trotters. It is remarkable that both these great broodmare stallions had the pacing cross "close up."

Strike!—if they don't give you Jackson's Napa Soda when you ask for it.

BOOKMAKING MUST BE BARRED from the grounds of the district agricultural societies, and tin horn gamblers prevented from plying their nefarious games in the towns where meetings are given, if the district fairs of California are to assume the dignity and accomplish the results which were intended when the laws were framed which brought them into existence, and for which a large sum of State money is appropriated. The California of to-day is not the California of '49. The State is now dotted with homes and school houses, and the men who once looked upon the faro and roulette tables as a sort of harmless diversion, now see in them and other forms of gambling a menace to the morals of their sons and to society in general. The farmers, merchants, mechanics and laborers who make up the communities and who by their attendance and patronage make the district fairs possible, recognize that there is a vast difference between trials of speeds for premiums and professional horse racing solely for gambling purposes. They read and reason and know that men like the late Robert Bonner and Leland Stanford, and such active and progressive men as Gen. B. F. Tracy of New York, Senator Jones of New Hampshire, Thos. M. Lawson of Boston, C. J. Hamlin of Buffalo and hundreds of others that might be named do more to add to the value of horses and expend more on their breeding and development in one year than all the professional horse racers would in a decade. They point to the excellence obtained by the draft breeds of horses, as well as all the various breeds of cattle, sheep and swine and say: "Why do these prosper without the aid of the bookmaker and the professional gambler?" As the State of California progresses, as it gets further and further from the "wild and woolly" character of its youth, its citizens look with greater apprehension on the gambling adjuncts of its district fairs, and the time is surely coming when the suppression of the "books" and the gambling games will be demanded by them. For several years past many of the leading district associations have looked to the betting privilege as one of their chief sources of revenue, and on securing a large sum for the same have lessened their efforts to obtain a high class stock or pavilion exhibit or a large attendance. But the public has had its eyes opened. It refuses to act as a lamb to be skinned by the gamblers, stays away from the tracks or refuses to wager its money and as a consequence the bids of the bookmakers are getting smaller. It is to be hoped that they will be withdrawn entirely. Few of the districts in California have given meetings this year, and those that have testify to the fact that future success depends upon greater effort in the way of high class stock and pavilion displays and less privileges to the gamblers. It has been demonstrated beyond a doubt that more people will pay to see the harness races, on which the bookmakers complain there is but little betting, than to witness the running events, which almost invariably cause a crowd around the booking stands. A majority of the men who breed trotters and pacers, pay for their training and put up large sums for entrance during the year, but seldom wager much on the result of the races. They have a greater regard for their horses than to make them the medium of mere gambling and are content with winning the purses or stakes. These are the persons that good clean racing draws into the business of breeding and they are the only ones that keep it alive. Electioneer was never placed in the stud with the idea that his produce would win money for their owner in the pool box. It was not the money handled by a bookmaker that caused Mr. Geers to drive The Abbot in 2:03½ or Mr. Ketchum to give Cresceus the world's record of 2:02½, and the person who argues that gambling is the chief end of horse breeding speaks from a very narrow view of the situation. That there is any harm in an occasional wager on a horse race is not held by any person of broad and liberal mind, and a bet often adds zest to the pleasure of witnessing a speed contest. But an auction or a mutual box will furnish every opportunity for this diversion and will not make the gambling feature the most prominent part of a district fair program. The outlook at present is for many fairs in California next year. Nearly every district will have its entire two years appropriation to expend on a display of its products and will of course give a race program as the amusement feature. The aim should be to make it as clean and high class as possible and to this end it should eliminate bookmaking entirely and endeavor to make the fair a place of recreation and education where every citizen will be welcome and see nothing to offend or condemn. It can be done by the proper expenditure of time, money and good common sense.

CALIFORNIA'S SHOWING on the tracks where harness racing has been held this year is one that is worth mentioning. The heaviest money winner of the year is Eleata, bred at the Palo Alto Stock Farm. The fastest mile made by a trotting mare is 2:07 to the credit of Dolly Dillon, bred at the Santa Rosa Stock Farm. The championship of Europe was won by Athanio, bred by Mr. Geo. L. Warlow of Fresno county. The champion matinee trotter of the year, winner for the second time of the Boston Challenge cup, John A. McKerron 2:07½ to wagon, was bred at Martin Carter's Nutwood Stock Farm, at Irvington, Alameda county. The following fastest trotting records of the year, taken from the last issue of the Horse Review, is interesting to Californians particularly, as of the eight records given, all but one, that of Cresceus 2:02½, were made by horses that were either bred in California or descended from California bred horses.

As the fastest pacer of the year is Anaconda 2:01¼, bred at Rancho del Paso, and the second fastest is Coney 2:02, bred by J. W. Gardner of Los Angeles, we may be pardoned for a little tooting of California's horn at this time. That this State possesses more qualifications as a horse breeding locality than any other part of the world we feel certain. Horses can be bred and reared here for less money than in any other locality and we only need to keep breeding the best to the best, not forgetting to secure from time to time the best strains of the best Eastern blood to be found to lead the world of harness horse breeding in size, style and speed.

NEXT WEDNESDAY is the day when entries for twelve $500 purses offered by the Stockton Driving Club for its big meeting in October will close. The classes range from from free for all to the 2:30 in the trotting events, and the pacers are provided with purses in six classes ranging from the free for all to the 2:25. This is the last big meeting on the California circuit this year and will follow the Los Angeles meeting. Every horseman that failed to enter at Los Angeles will get a chance to race at Stockton and all those going to the southern city should take in the meeting at Stockton before they go into winter quarters. As is well known the Stockton track is one of the best in the State, and the Stockton Driving Club has a reputation among horsemen for fair treatment and prompt payment of its purses that is one of its strong drawing cards. As the races at the State Fair will be all finished before these entries close there will be a new classification all round and this in itself should lead to a large entry list. Make your entries before next Wednesday.

ENTRIES FOR THE FIRST TEN STAKES of the California Jockey Club's fall meeting will close Monday next, September 16th. Among these stakes are the Christmas Handicap, $3000, the Thanksgiving Handicap, $2500, and the New Years Handicap, $2500. There are seven other stakes worth $1500 each. See the advertisement in this issue and make your entries in time.

THE ENGLISH BREEDING ESTABLISHMENT of the late Marcus Daly is to be closed out at auction by the Fasig-Tipton Company in New York, on Tuesday, October 1st. The mares and colts have been shipped to this country and when led into the salesring will represent the highest class lot of thoroughbreds ever put up at auction here. There are eleven of Mr. Daly's selected mares from his Bitter Root stud, deemed good enough to send abroad to mate with the best English sires, and nine mares purchased in England without regard to cost, the whole forming the nucleus of a great breeding establishment which he intended to maintain as an auxiliary to his stud in America. Among the American mares are Lady Reel, dam of the great Hamburg and bred to St. Simon this year; Workmate, dam of Ben Eder and bred to Ladas; Puritan Lass, dam of Tillo and bred to Kendal; Anna Gray, dam of Holstein and bred to Trenton, and others that have produced great winners, have most royal blood lines and are in foal to some of England's leading sires. The English mares are a choice lot. They are by St. Simon, St. Serf, Orme, Hermit, Hampton, Bend d'Or and such mighty stallions. Then there are nine yearlings and eleven weanlings all of the richest breeding, and a two year old colt by Isinglass out of Lucy Cross by St. Simon. Without doubt this is the grandest consignment of broodmares and colts ever offered in America. The full list will be found in our advertising pages to-day and should be read by everyone interested in thoroughbred breeding. On November 25th, the entire Bitter Root trotting stud will be sold at Madison Square Garden. It includes the great stallions Prodigal, Bow Bells, Ponce de Leon and Nilroi and eighty of the greatest broodmares in the world, among them Rosie Morn, Etta Baron, Lady Wilton 2:11½, Rachel 2:05½, Elloree 2:08½, Extasy (2) 2:10½ and others of equal merit. Catalogues for this sale are now in preparation and can be had by addressing Fasig-Tipton Company, Madison Square Garden, New York.

STALLION OWNERS should make an effort to have their horses as largely represented in the Pacific Breeders Futurity Stake as possible. It will be the biggest feature of California racing in the year of its decision, and the prestige of having sired the winner will be worth much to the stallion gaiting it. See that those who bred mares to your horse name them in this $6000 stake.

IF YOU BRED A MARE this year, name her in the Pacific Breeders $6000 Futurity. It will add to her value and to that of the prospective foal. It may win the first money in addition and that will pay a mighty big interest on the original investment. It only costs $3 to name the mare. Read all about this stake in our advertising columns.

ENTRIES FOR THE CONCORD RACES will close on Friday next, September 20th. The meeting opens September 25th. Read the advertisement in this issue and make up your mind to go to Concord to race.

SIR ALBERT S. 2:08½ by Diablo has won his fifth race in straight heats. He has never lost a heat or paced one slower than 2:12½. The last heat of the fifteen he has paced was in 2:09½. He is a great son of a great sire.

C. K. G. Billings has bought the place known as Fort Tryon, on Fort Washington avenue, better known as the Ridge Road, on Washington Heights, New York, and will build there a fine private stable for his speedway flyers. Mr. Billings' string of road horses now includes Lucille 2:07, Dr. Book 2:10, Ellert 2:11, Mabel Onward 2:11½, Aggie Medium 2:12½, Jimmie Hague 2:13½, Major Greer 2:14, Franker 2:14½ and Rightwood 2:16½, and the pacers Free Bond 2:04½, Sunland Belle 2:07½, Dan Westland 2:08½ and Hontas Crook 2:09. Nearly all of these horses are to be taken to New York in September for the fall driving season on the speedway.

Colic.

Horses subject to colic require immediate and effective treatment, and I wish to make public my experience in curing colic after many years' treatment of colicky horses with all kinds of remedies. I now use Manhattan Food, Red Bull Brand, entirely. One dose cures colic in a horse every time within twenty minutes. I take a quart champagne bottle, place a handful of Manhattan Food in it and fill it with lukewarm water, shake it up well and make the horse swallow it. I have always had such gratifying results from this remedy that I would like to see others use it.

ALBERT MANNING, Trainer.

Nancy Hanks, 2:04 is now in the great brood mare list, having produced Admiral Dewey 2:14½, by Bingen, and Ralph Hanks 2:27½, by Ralph Wilkes.

Anaconda was not right, and Prince Alert was just right, at Providence last week. When both are right what a race they'll put up!

Jackson's Napa Soda untangles the feet!

JOTTINGS.

THE RICHEST STAKES of the year offered for trotting colts in California, and about the only ones with the exception of the Pacific Breeders Futurity, which will not be contested until 1903, are the Occident and Stanford, both given by the State Agricultural Society, and they were both won this year in ridiculously slow time. There have been at least a dozen owners who have been metaphorically kicking themselves for not keeping up their payments in these stakes, and there are others whose colts were thrown out of training because a mile in 2:25 was the best they could show in June this year. They had heard of other colts beating 2:20 and got frightened. If their colts had shown as much fright at anything they would have plied the whip on them in all probability in the hope of teaching them that shying from an object was not the proper thing to do, yet they themselves shied at reports instead of at the real thing and turned their colts out. If there is a lesson to be learned from the results of the Occident and Stanford stakes it is that when a colt is entered in a stake the payments should be kept up and the horse started if he has strength enough to get to the race. It was Walter Maben's perseverance and energy that brought the filly Italia to the post in the Occident this year, as ten days before the race she was so sick that it was not expected she could start, let alone win. It is true that she had shown 2:15 speed for a mile previous to her illness, but a filly sick with the distemper cannot go that clip. Maben brought her to the post with her throat blistered so that there was no hair on it, and luckily she did not have to trot better than 2:23½ to win. Commander Muckle was lame but he got second money, which amounted to about $600. So you see it pays to enter in stakes if you go to the post and are reasonably lucky. The Stanford stake was easier than the Occident and slower, but then it was of less value. The Santa Rosa Stock Farm filly Almareta won it, and it is said that this farm had an entry in the Occident that they now think could have beaten Italia, but they failed to keep paid up on it. The Pacific Breeders Futurity, which is guaranteed to be worth $6000, and is the richest stake given in California, will close October 1st, for mares bred this year. It costs but three dollars to name a mare. Don't fail to make an entry and don't fail to keep up your payments thereafter.

There is an effort being made by the people of the "horse centre," Pleasanton, to hold a harness meeting at the celebrated track in that town about the last week in October or the first week in November this year. The proposition is to give two days of racing and hang up $500 purses. If the weather remains at all propitious, the meeting will be a big success if properly managed. The citizens of Pleasanton intend raising about $1500 to aid the project, and this, with the entrance fees, gate receipts and money obtained for the privileges, will be ample to make the meeting a great success. A temporary grand stand will have to be erected, but this can be done at small expense. The track is one of the best in the world, and a heavy rain will not prevent racing over it the following day. The people of Pleasanton and the surrounding country are great admirers of the harness horses and will turn out en masse to a harness meeting, while the residents of San Francisco and Oakland will attend a Pleasanton meeting in large numbers just so sure as one is given there. If the meeting can be held immediately following the one at Stockton there should be a good big list of entries for four or five races, and these with two or three local races should make an excellent two days' program.

Looking at the Charter Oak $10,000 stake from this distance through the reports in the Eastern papers, it looks as though Tom Marsh, driver of the mare Eleata, the winner of the race, actually laid up the first heat. One of the reports reads as follows:

"There were twelve starters in the race, and Marsh, profiting by his experience of the week before, did not go after the first heat very hard, with the result that Dolly Bidwell set sail for it, winning in 2:11, with four of them outside the long distance. After that it was easy for the black filly from New Hampshire."

Tom Marsh is the driver who lost the famous Merchants and Manufacturers' stake at Detroit in 1899, by driving for every heat with Kingmond. In heats where he got off badly and it looked to every spectator that the horse could not win, Marsh drove Kingmond out to the last inch, and it was this terrible driving that caused him to lose the race. Those who had pools on the horse to win the race did some kicking, but the owners of the horse were satisfied, and there were many pleasant things said of honest Tom Marsh for his effort to win every heat and his refusal to "lay up" at any stage of the game. When Marsh won the M. & M. this year with Eleata in three straight heats, congratulations were showered on him and the papers stated that his victory was the more welcome when the M. & M. of 1899 was remembered. Eleata continued to win until she struck Readville, where Onward Silver finished 7 and 3 in the first two heats and then beat her the next three. It was this race probably that gave Marsh the cue that enabled him to win the Charter Oak, and according to the above report he "did not go after the first heat very hard," but after that "it was easy for the black filly from New Hampshire." I sincerely hope that the anti-laying-up-cranks will not jump on Tom Marsh and call him everything which he is not just because he dropped the first heat of the Charter Oak, or condemn the judges who permitted him to do so. If he laid up the first heat he did it that he might win the race, and doubtless firmly believed that a hard drive to win the first time round would jeopardize his chances for first money. If a few touts and gamblers lost their money on the result of the first heat of the Charter Oak Stake it was not Tom Marsh's fault. He was trying his level best to win the race honestly and he did it. He used better judgment than he did in the M. & M. of 1899.

Sunbeam, a six year old gelding by Hambletonian Wilkes trotted to a record of 2:12½ in the fourth heat of a winning race at Galesburg, Illinois, August 23d. The Eastern turf writers say that Sunbeam is a trotter that looks and acts like a great race horse. By reference to the Year Book I find that he started last year for the first time and was in seven races getting a record of 2:16½ at St. Louis. He won four of these, was second twice and outside the money but once when he was drawn after trotting two heats. His heats at Galesburg were in 2:14½, 2:13½ and 2:12½, the second heat of the race being won by Dorothy Redmond, a daughter of Director in 2:12½. The time is enough to show that Sunbeam is fast and game as well. He is now I believe the seventh 2:15 performer for Mr. Morehead's stallion Hambletonian Wilkes, the only son of George Wilkes in California, and a horse that the leading breeders of this Coast persist in overlooking. The get of Hambletonian Wilkes are uniformly good lookers, they have good heavy bone and great substance, and are nearly all square trotters. Sunbeam's dam is by Judge Walker, a son of Robert McGregor.

A California mare has made the fastest record of the year in a regular race, and another California mare is the greatest money winner of the year. Both these mares, Dolly Dillon 2:07 and Eleata 2:08½, are trotters and have the blood of Electioneer close up on their dam's side. Dolly Dillon's dam is a daughter of the dead hero of Palo Alto, and Eleata's second dam is by that horse. Probably a majority of those who have given any thought or study to the breeding of trotters have expressed the opinion that Electioneer blood should be in the top crosses of a prospective fast one, and look for all the great record breakers that carry Electioneer blood to come from his sons and grandsons, but it may be that time will demonstrate that Electioneer will be greatest through his daughters. It is great blood whichever way it is used.

The stallion Redondo 2:23, son of Stamboul, and sire of the pacing mare Queen R. 2:12½, was recently burned to death in Southern California. Redondo was foaled in 1888, and had two representatives in the list, the other being the trotter Potrero 2:21. Redondo has the distinction of being the first and only one of the Stamboul family to sire a pacer thus far. He was a very handsome horse, looking much like his sire. He stood sixteen hands high, weighed nearly twelve hundred pounds, and was a beautiful rich bay in color with a star and near hind heel white.

Mr. A. B. Spreckels, who is now in New York, has booked his two fast mares Venus II. 2:11½, by Cupid 2:18 and Czarina 2:13½, by Dexter Prince, to the champion stallion Cresceus 2:02½. Both these mares possess wonderful speed and with good level heads could trot in 2:06 or better. If Cresceus will transmit his level brain to the foals which result from these matings Mr. Spreckels should have a couple of trotting youngsters that should understand how and have the speed to race in the free for all classes and win.

Almareta, winner of the Stanford Stake this year, was bred and trained at the Santa Rosa Stock Farm and is owned by its proprietors, Henry and Ira Pierce. She is by the farm's stallion, L. W. Russell, a son of Stamboul 2:07½ and By By, by Nutwood. The dam of Almareta is Flora Allen (dam of Topsy Allen 2:25 and Floraline 2:21½) by Mambino Wilkes, second dam Lady Allen (dam of Molly Allen 2:20½) by Ethan Allen Jr. Almareta is a square trotter and should get a low mark, as the time made in the Stanford Stake is no measure of her speed. She was well handled by Geo Ramage in the stake race.

Like all good things, Jackson's Napa Soda has a dozen counterfoits. Watch out!

Golden Gate Park Driving Club Races.

Members of the Golden Gate Park Driving Club enjoyed a good day's sport at the Vallejo race track on Monday last, Admission Day. Nearly every member of the club was in attendance and there was a very large attendance of Vallejo people who highly enjoyed the afternoon's program.

Of the five events, three were won in straight heats. The Cuicello Stakes had five starters, and Mr. C. E. Parks' chestnut gelding Imp by Diablo was the winner, reducing his record to 2:19½ in the third heat.

The match race went to Algreor after the judges had replaced his driver Roberts with Joe Cuicello. The racing was good throughout the day and the Golden Gate Driving Club scored another success.

Following are the summaries:

John A. McKerron Again Wins the Cup Race

The second race for the Boston Challenge Cup came off at the Cleveland Inter-City matinee, September 4th. The following account of the race is from the American Sportsman of Cleveland.

"In the draw for position, W. M. Cumper with Temper had the pole, John A. McKerron being in second position, A. E. Perrin's Tudor Chimes third and Mr. Billings' Dr. Book on the outside. Owing to Temper's going into a pace repeatedly it required several scores before they got the word. Mr. Devereux had the pole when the turn was reached, Tudor Chimes being up second. As they struck the back stretch the Chimes gelding let out a link or two and drew ahead of the Cleveland stallion half a length, the clip being a terrific one. Mr. Devereux gradually assumed the lead again, his great stallion trotting the second quarter in 31½ seconds, the fastest of the race. The Syracuse entry was making a game fight but was forced to a break on the upper turn. At this point Dr. Book moved up but although it was expected that the recent Grand Circuit trotter would give McKerron a hard drive to the wire he could not reach him and Mr. Devereux's horse won the heat by several lengths in 2:12½.

Dr. Book made a bad break just as the word was given in the second heat, McKerron and Tudor Chimes again setting the pace, Temper being third. Mr. Cumper commenced making a drive on the upper turn and rapidly closed with Tudor Chimes the pair racing head and head, the little chestnut mare outfooting the Syracuse gelding in the stretch and getting the place, Dr. Book being fourth, John A. McKerron again winning in a jog in 2:11, thus keeping the Boston Cup in Cleveland for another year.

As Mr. Devereux jogged back to the judges' stand and the blue ribbon was fastened on the wagon champion's bridle he was tendered a tremendous ovation, cheer after cheer being given the popular Cleveland reinsman necessitating his repeated acknowledgment of the applause of the enthusiastic crowd.

Again the buckskin gelding, Linsign by Ensign, has demonstrated his superior trotting qualities over the horses of France and Switzerland. At the August meeting held at Morges, August 11th, Mons. Lizon, owner and driver of Linsign, won the first prize of 500 francs, an object of art and diploma, by defeating Picotin and Jacular over a 3500 metre course, with a 150 metre handicap, for the American trotter. He not only won the race, but led at the post by 100 metres. He covered the distance in 4:05, which is reported as the best time ever made in France or England.

Speed Cracks.

Scratches cured with a few applications of Taroleum. 55 cents a quart at dealers. Send for pamphlet. W. F. YOUNG, P. D. F., Springfield, Mass.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.
 Boyce Tablet Co.: I have used your Tablets as a Body and Leg Wash for the past two seasons on Bessmer 2:13½, Erwin 2:24½, Harrison 2:36, Laurabel 2:27½, and all the horses trained at Edgewood Farm, and find them the best made. Yours truly,
 RUDY PATTERSON.

SULKY NOTES.

Eleata won the Charter Oak.

Enter in the Breeders Futurity.

Oakland meeting opens Monday.

Concord meeting will be a great success.

Entries to Stockton races close next Wednesday.

Dan Patch has twice paced a mile in 2:04½ in his races.

A granddaughter of Stamboul won the Stanford Stake.

Sir Alcantara 2:05½ is now the fastest performer for Alcantara.

It looks like Dolly Dillon 2:07 should be a good one in the Transylvania.

Slow time wins many a stake. The Occident and Stanford this year are examples.

Who Is It 2:10½ is again in training and may be started again before the season is ended.

Directum Kelly 2:05½ will probably never race again. He will be in the stud at East View Farm.

Alix 2:03½ is hooked to Cresceus 2:02½ for the season of 1902. This is breeding champion to champion.

Pleasanton is talking of giving a two days' meeting this fall. It will draw a big crowd if properly handled.

Don't let October 1st go by without naming your mares, bred this year, in the Pacific Breeders $6000 Futurity.

Raw Silk 2:29½ by Ashburton is the fifth performer to the credit of Soprano, the full sister to Steinway, by Strathmore.

Only four mares have ever trotted faster than Dolly Dillon, 2:07. These are Alix 2:03½, Nancy Hanks 2:04, Fantasy 2:06 and Beuzetta 2:06½.

Frank Herdic and Colonel Bill Riley sold $440,000 in the auction pools at Redville. This is the record for a five-day light harness meeting.

Charley Herr's lameness is in the front ankle and pastern, and is thought to be serious. He has made a bad showing of his ability in the races on account of it.

James Hanley, the owner of Audubon Boy, presented Scott Hudson with $1000 for winning the ten thousand dollar stake with that horse at Providence.

John Shaner, who was well known in Oakland, where he has trained horses for P. W. Reardon, R. P. M. Greeley and others, died a few weeks ago after a short illness.

Donald D. Donnan, formerly well known as a turf writer in the West, has been ordained as an Episcopal minister. Perhaps he is making a prep. for the last and final heat.

Cresceus and The Abbot will meet at Redville next Thursday in a match for $20,000. The purse is offered by Thos. W. Lawson, of Boston, and the winner will take the entire amount.

George Ketcham would now be the owner of Directum had William Spier lived a few days longer. Ketcham had all but completed the deal for the former champion when death called his owner.

The Horse Review $5000 stake for three year old trotters was won by the Palo Alto bred colt Rowellan by Adbell at the Hartford meeting last week. He won in straight heats, 2:16½, 2:16½ and 2:17.

Mary Cage, a yearling filly by Oro Wilkes 2:11, trotted a half in 1:14½, the last quarter in 35½ seconds for Trainer Harry Stinson at Cleveland recently. Here is one that ought to do in the juvenile stakes.

Ceo. Morris of Winters, who owns the dam of Kelly Briggs 2:10½, bred her this year to Bayswater Wilkes again, and hopes to get another whirlwind in the full brother or sister that results from the mating.

The now half mile track at Spokane is said to be one of the best in the West. Under eight inches of clay loam is a four inch layer of cedar shavings, which gives the required spring and the result is very gratifying.

Tags started in the $5000 stake for 2:13 pacers at Hamline, September 6th, but was outside the money. There were eleven starters and Tags was fifth in the summary. The best time was 2:09½. The race was won by C. F. W. by Roscoe.

Forbes Farm has a great trio of sires in Arion, the peerless two year old with his record of 2:10½, made to old-style sulky, record at maturity 2:07½, Binjon with a record of 2:06½, and Peter the Great 2:12½ as a three year old, record at five years 2:07½.

Version, bay gelding by Dexter Prince reduced his record to 2:16½ at Hornellsville, New York, August 29th. He is Palo Alto bred and out of Violet by Electioneer. He was sold at the Blue Ribbon sale at Cleveland as a three year old for $235.

A nomination in the Pacific Breeders Futurity, which closes on the first day of October, and has a guaranteed value of $6000, will only cost three dollars. The entire sum of the payments is less than any stake of like value that has ever been inaugurated.

Boralma 2:07 met defeat at Hartford when Ed Geers pitted Lord Derby against him. It was a hotly contested race as will be seen by the summary published elsewhere in this issue. Lord Derby trotted the first heat in 2:06½, thus lowering his record.

Toggles beat the great Onward Silver at Hartford in three straight heats, the fastest, 2:09½, just his record. Toggles is one of the best horses in the 2:10 class in America and whenever he is not lame from rheumatism he is in the front at the wire.

Sally Derby by Chas Derby is winning over the half mile track in Pennsylvania and Ohio this year. She took a record of 2:19½ at the pace last year, and has not had to reduce it so far to win. Sallie Derby is out of Flash, the dam of Javelin 2:08½ and Flare Up 2:14, by Egmont.

Athanio, the Fresno bred trotter, won the trotting championship of Europe at the Baden track near Vienna, on Sunday August 11th, beating such good ones as Caid, Wilburn M., Greenbrino, Contralto, Bonatello, Col. Kuser and Belle J. His heats were in 2:09½ and 2:10½.

Down at Cleburne Farm, the home of the great sire, Brown Hal 2:12½, there are two of the greatest young pacers ever bred in Tennessee. Both are three year olds and both daughters of Brown Hal. Last Friday Allen Campbell drove one of them a mile in 2:09½ and the other in 2:10½.

Winfield Stratton the young pacing horse by Saraway, full brother to Chas Deroy, is winning again. He won the last three heats of the 2:17 class pace at Harrisonville, Ohio, August 15th after Lulu L. had won two heats and he had made a dead heat with Gratt. Three heats of the race were in 2:17½.

Ed Geers says that The Abbot is ready to meet Mr. Ketcham's horse again in any kind of a race, from a dash to a contest of three in five heats. The Charter Oak Park management offered to hang up a $10,000 purse for the old and the new champions, but Mr. Ketcham declined to start the champion.

Neva Simmons won the Woodruff $5000 stake for 2:24 class trotters at Syracuse last Tuesday, defeating Country Jay, Eleata and three others. Neva Simmons won the second, fifth and sixth heats, her best time being 2:12½. Country Jay won the third and fourth in 2:10½ and 2:10½. Eleata won the first heat in 2:12½.

Two Vallejo correspondents want to know the breeding of Our Boy's Sister. She is by Baywood 18,977, a son of Nutwood 600. Her dam is Nelly Bly by Waspie 688, second dam Molly, whose pedigree is not given in the Year Book. Baywood 2:10½ by Woodnut 2:16½ is another horse. He is or was owned by D. L. Mini of Vallejo.

John A. McKerron's mile to wagon in 2:07½, which was made at the matinee of the Cleveland Driving Club, August 24th, was well rated. The first quarter was in 0:31½, the second in 0:32½, the third in 0:33½ and the fourth in 0:30½. He was driven by Mr. Devereux, his owner, who has handled this horse most admirably since he owned him.

Dr. Jay Tuttle, of Astoria, has named two mares in the Pacific Breeders Futurity. Both are by Planter, one being bred to Zombro 2:11, the other to Malheur this year. The Doctor says that, "barring accidents, I'll let I get some of that money." Here's hoping you do, Doctor, and that your colt will either take a world's record or make some other colt do it.

Chehalis 2:04½ started at Concord, New Hampshire, August 30th, in the free for all class for a purse of $400 and won in straight heats. The Concord track is a half-mile ring, and of the six starters in the race Terrell S. 2:10½ was the favorite, the son of Strathmore being considered almost invincible on the small tracks in New England. Chehalis beat him in 2:12½, 2:11½ and 2:12 very easily.

Bonnets for horses have by this time become common, but it does seem queer to think of the animal wearing trousers. The local drayhorse in a certain southern Michigan town astonished the natives the other morning when he made his appearance decked out in a pair of his owner's cast-off pants, which were supported by gaudy pink suspenders. "To keep the flies off," his owner explained.

The Boston Herald, in referring to The Roman 2:19 and the fast work he is getting, asks if it is "not about time to cut this watermelon." As the present owners of The Roman announced when they purchased him that it was not their intention to start him in his four year old form, unless in one or two races during the latter end of the season, the anxiety of the Boston turf writer to witness the carving of the cucurbitaceous fruit is a little previous.

Frank McKinney 2:16½ is another of the family that is headed toward McKinney's 2:15½, already the largest of any stallion of his age in the world and containing up to the present time seventeen names. Frank McKinney made his record at Youngstown, Ohio, August 27th in the 2:17 class pace. He was the contending horse in nearly every heat of the race and took second money. Annie Rue was the winner and paced each of her three heats in 2:16½.

Black Bart, the handsome black horse owned by Thos. Charlton of Ukiah, and trained and driven this year by John Quien of Santa Rosa, will be a good horse in his class next year. His mark of 2:17½, made in the 2:40 trot at the State Fair this year is not within five seconds of what he should be able to show next season. He is a dead game horse and is best in a long race where the heats are split as he does not get to going well until a mile or two have been trotted. Next year, if he continues to improve, he should be able to win considerable money on the circuit.

Last Friday morning, September 6th, a car containing Rey Direct 2:10, Bonnie Direct 2:05½, Bob Ingersol 2:14½ and the three year old Thornway arrived at Pleasanton. The horses all looked well except Rey Direct, who was a little low in weight and his coat did not look just right. Bob Ingersol has fully recovered from the distemper which kept him from being started at all this year.

"Teddy" Bunch, son of "Farmer" Bunch, won the first race he ever drove in his life at Sacramento this week with Thomas R. Bunch senior has never been able to land the chestnut son of Iran Alto better than second, but the young man landed him first last Tuesday and made an excellent showing. Teddy's head is cool and his feet warm and he has the making of a first class reinsman.

It is stated that Dr. Boucher did not bring Harry Logan 2:12½ back to California with him after all, but left him at Cincinnati or Cleveland in the hands of Trainer Mills, and that he may be started again late in the season. It is too bad the son of Miss Logan was not entered on the California circuit as there would have been more interest to the races won by Sir Albert S. had Harry Logan been a starter in them.

Zombolette is the name of the two year old filly by Zomhro 2:11 out of a mare by Silver Bow 2:16 that Ceo. Beckers thinks will win the Occident Stake next year. The filly belongs to W. B. Todhunter of Sacramento, but Beckers took her to Salem, Oregon, with him this summer and is working her a little. She stepped a half in 1:16, last quarter in 37 seconds and last eighth in 17½ seconds recently, a pretty good showing for a two year old.

Bingen 2:06½ is slated to be a remarkably good sire, as he is now but eight years old and the past week Todd, a two year old, went a public trial in 2:21. Admiral Dewey, as a three year old, won a race taking a record of 2:14½; and Bingen Jr., as a four year old, took a mark of 2:12½. Of course a great deal of credit should go to the dams of the great colts, as Nancy Hanks 2:04 is the dam of Admiral Dewey, and the dam of Todd was by Arion 2:07½.

Freddie C. and Direct C., the two little sons of Direct 2:05½, owned by Thos. Clancy, of Portland, Oregon, and raced this year at the Breeders meeting at Sacramento, started at the Vancouver meeting, August 31st and September 2d, and both won their races in straight heats. There were five starters in the race won by Freddie C. and his best mile was 2:24½, little more than a jog for him, as 2:10 is easily within his reach. Direct C.'s fastest mile was 2:40, also ridiculously slow. The purses in these two races were $350 and $200 respectively.

Mr. F. A. Ramsey, of the Club Stables at Riverside, Cal., has two very promising mares which he will campaign next year in all probability. One is Lady Nutford, a daughter of Nutford, sire of six or seven in the list. Lady Nutford is a pure gaited pacer and was trained for awhile this year in the same string with El Diablo 2:12½, but bowed a tendon slightly and was thrown out of training. She is a very handsome chestnut and can show two minute speed. The other mare is Laura Rita, a square trotter by Red Cloak out of the dam of Osito 2:13½. She has been in training but one month, and the second time she ever saw a race track trotted an eighth in 22 seconds without even a quarter boot on. Both these mares are five years old and have no records. They are excellent roadsters and do not pull an ounce on the bit when driven.

Sir Albert S. 2:08½ by Diablo is far and away the best of the green division that has appeared in California this year, but he is not the only new pebble on Diablo's beach, as Tags has reduced her record to 2:11½, El Diablo his to 2:12½, Gaff Topsail to 2:16, and the following new performers by him have obtained records: Diodine 2:15, Inferno 2:24½, Miramonte 2:24½. The son of Chas. Derby and Bertha by Alcantara gets speed from all sorts of mares and the owners of his get are learning that they have so much of it when young that it is best to go easy with them until they are matured. Sir Albert S., now a five year old, is as clean limbed and sound a horse as stands on four feet. He has started four times, and won twelve straight heats, the fastest 2:08½, the slowest 2:12½. It is the best showing ever made in California by a green horse and stamps him as a high class pacer. Had he been drilled as a two and three year old he probably would not be worth one-fourth the price he would bring to-day.

The four days' racing which will be held at Concord, September 25th to 28th promises to be very interesting. The Danville Sentinel has the following to say on the subject: "Present indications point to an unusually successful county fair in September. The association is in better shape financially than it has been for years, and besides there is an increased State appropriation, with which the directors have been able to add greatly to the amounts of the premiums and purses. There are more horses on the track this year, and better ones, than there were last year, and from a racing standpoint alone this fair promises to eclipse all its predecessors. The stables of Sutherland, Webster and Alviso of Pleasanton will be represented by fifteen or twenty head of racers. The track is being worked by Lewis & Hollett, of Concord, and is in better condition than ever before. So many good horses are owned in Crockett, and their owners are so desirous of submitting their good points to a contest, that the directors have set apart Thursday, September 26th, as 'Crockett day.' On that day there is to be a race for Crockett horses only, and entries have already been made by Theodore Moiles, Cornelius Desmond, Wm. Helm and others of the sugar town. Friday, the 27th, will be children's day, and the directors have applied to the school trustees throughout the county, through the teachers of the schools, to have that day declared a holiday. On the last day of the fair there will be a prize drawing. Each ticket will be numbered and the holder of the lucky number will win a $20 gold piece."

HIDALGO'S GOSSIP.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

GENEVA, Aug. 26, 1901.

The Doncaster St. Leger, which is to be run over the Town Moor on the 11th of September, now looks to be a very open race. The horses most talked of when I left London, were W. Whitney's colt Volodyovski, winner of the Derby; Sir Blundell Maples' Lord Bobs; Lord Roseberg's Epsom Lad, and the Duke of Portland's William III., who was third in the Derby and who beat Volodyovski for the Lennox Stakes at Hurst Park on Saturday last. Epsom Lad looks well on paper but they claim he was "all out" in the race in which he beat the Derby winner and there are plenty of those who will willingly bet on his falling behind the Duke's colt, who is one of the persevering sort. Lord Bobs won a $10,000 stake at Redcar but he was conceding 14 lbs. to the second horse, yet so confident were the bookies of his ability to bring home the goods that they laid 6 to 1 on him, in the full belief that he had nothing whatever to beat.

The night before I left London, I was enjoying a quite pipe in the smoking room of the Victoria Hotel in Charing Cross, and near me were two English gentlemen, sipping black coffee and discussing the merits of the several Leger candidates. One of them seemed to think that there was a very inferior lot of three year olds out this year and even went so far as to express the belief that had Mr. Lorillard's Caiman been foaled in 1898 instead of 1897 the "triple crown" of England would have been won by a gelding. The other gentleman did not exactly agree with him but conceded that the three year olds of this season belonged to the class of Sir Bevys, Kingcraft and George Frederick, rather than to that which embraced such cracks as Ormonde, Galopin, Cremorne and the Flying Dutchman. There are Derby winners and Derby winners.

My own idea is to wait for the Great Yorkshire Stake which will be run for at York to-morrow and to play the winner of that race to annex the St. Leger also, as both these races are run at the same weights and distance. Of Great Yorkshire winners that have won the Leger I can cite Voltigeur, Stockwell, and his daughter the lean and lanky Achievement. From all I can learn of William III. he is a glutton for punishment and will make the horse that beats him run every foot of the way. Still there are those who contend that the Lennox Stake race was an arrant "duke" that Reiff had orders not to distress Volodyovski, nor spoil his St. Leger chances by giving him an extra severe race, and that Lester Reiff eased up on his mount supposing he had the race won, at which period "Morny" Cannon brought William III. up with a hurricane rush and secured the verdict by an eyelash. There is a gentleman right here in this house (the Hotel de la Paix on the Rue de Mont Blanc) who says he saw the race and thought that W. Whitney's colt had won, but the judge thought otherwise. And there you are.

My own belief is that Volodyovski, having had a long let-up in his work, was soft and not fit for anything like a bruising race, and it is quite certain that no stable commission on him had been sent in. Mr. Huggins knew that the colt needed a race to key him up for the historical event at Doncaster, and so told Reiff to let him win if he could do so easily but not to distress him, although the race was worth more money than the more historical race at Doncaster. Reiff had the horse well in hand, having passed the three horses which led his mount into the stretch, when up came William III. on the outside and won before Reiff could get Mr. Whitney's colt fully extended. If Mr. John Huggins tells me that "Volo" is fit, I shall back him for the Leger and play William III. for a place, totally ignoring both Epsom Lad and Lord Bobs. Indeed, one of the London pencilers offered to lay even money against the latter horse for a show, for all the coin that could be bought, while I was there.

I did not meet Mr. Corrigan or Mr. Wishard during my stay in London. The former gentleman has a real clinker in Semper Vigilans, as well as in a mare called Sea Flower. The former is favorite for the Great Ebor Handicap at 4 to 1, while even money is the best that could be gotten here against the latter for the Middlethorpe Stake. Semper Vigilans is by the Australian hero Carbine and has won several good events already this season.

I shall leave here for Paris via Interlaken, Berne and Basle by the morning boat and will go over to London about the 9th or 10th. I called at the International Horse Agency but Mr. Allison (the genial North Yorkshireman) was not in. I found his secretary, Mr. Mortlock, to be a very pleasant gentleman however, and he has promised me a visit to the Cobham Stud on my return to England, so I can call on my old friends Abercorn and Trenton. Sir Blundell Maple was out of town when I called there with a letter of introduction, but he had gone to Harrogate for a stay of two weeks, so I am sure to have a sight of Common, the biggest horse that ever won the Derby—they tell me he is a bigger one than Watercress—on my return to London.

THURSDAY A. M.

I commenced this letter last night as it was raining hard, and my wife did not care to go out. I have been out since breakfast and find that the London book-makers are laying 7 to 4 on, upon the chances of Volodyovski winning the St. Leger, so it is evident they regard his defeats by Epsom Lad and William III. as the result of a hasty preparation and believe he will win easily when properly seasoned for the big race at Doncaster. I do not know whether his engagement list includes the Great Yorkshire Stakes, but if it does and he wins that race, his starting price for the Leger will be about 4 to 1 on. The man who told me here about his belief that Volodyovski had won the Lennox Stakes at Hurst Park instead of William III. says that it was a very bad bumping match at the finish, and that he was astonished that Mr. Whitney's commissioner did not go to the stewards and enter a protest, for it was about as bad a case of bump as ever he had seen. "But did William III. do any of the bumping or was it the three tired horses that entered the straight ahead of Volodyovski?" I asked, for I "wanted to know, you know."

"Oh, no," replied the gentleman, "he came on the outside from a way behind and the worst of the bumping was all over when William III. got alongside of him. Then, if the two leaders did any bumping, it was Volodyovski's fault, for he was the more tired horse of the two and therefore more liable to swerve." So after hearing this, I concluded that "Volo" was lucky to get second money in that race. Still, the public pulse beats in his favor for the St. Leger and the best judges—men who have forgotten more about English racing than I ever knew—are confident that there is nothing that can beat him, except he gets a careless ride, which is far from probable.

How many St. Legers have been lost through careless riding? The first I know of was in 1817 when Blacklock was beaten a head by the comparatively worthless Ebor, whom nobody hears of in this era, while the blood of the once despised Blacklock is to be found from 3 to 8 times in the pedigree of every great winner in the world. Next that I know of was Kettledrum's defeat in 1861 by old cwe-necked Caller On—and he was ahead of her in the very next stride; and in the following year The Marquis lost the Derby to the outsider Caractacus in exactly the same manner. (The late Mr. Ten Broeck always claimed that the Marquis was first to the wire). However, I do not look for a careless ride from any such boy as Lester Reiff and in any such race as the great St. Leger. If "Volo" is fit he will win and if he were not doing well the "bookies" would not back him as they are doing. It will take an accident to lose him the race, in the belief of

HIDALGO.

An Outsider Won the St. Leger.

Our correspondent "Hidalgo" (Capt. Tom Merry), whose very interesting letter appears above, came pretty close to picking the winner of the St. Leger, as Volodyovski was beaten but a neck as the following dispatch shows:

LONDON, September 11.—Doricles won the St. Leger Stakes at Doncaster to-day. The betting was 40 to 1 against Doricles, 11 to 10 against Volodyovski and 9 to 1 against Revenue. Revenue led until going up the hill, when Cyanide drew to the front and led to the stretch, Revenue again going to the front thoro. Doricles and Volodyovski, the latter ridden by Lester Reiff, then came up fast and passed Revenue, Doricles winning by a neck. Three lengths separated Volodyovski and Revenue. An objection was made to Doricles on the ground of bumping, but it was overruled.

The Ahhot was driven by Geers to beat the track record of 2:04½ but went in 2:05.

Much valuable time might often be saved if track managers would have a horse shoer just outside the gate near the grand stand at all times when horses are racing. It is almost as tedious after fifteen or twenty minutes waiting for some driver whose horse has thrown a shoe to go and hunt up a man to reset it, as to wait that length of time to see a field of bad actors score unsuccessfully for the word. A good shoer might undoubtedly be engaged for $5 an afternoon. He might not be wanted once during the meeting, but it would give better satisfaction to occupants of the grand stand when one is wanted to have him at the right spot and ready for action.—American Horse Breeder.

Doings in Dogdom.

The Bench Show Committee for the Oakland Show have selected George Bell, of Toronto, Can., to judge all breeds across the bay in December.

Dusky Don II. must be a rattling good Fox Terrier, he ran through his classes at Buffalo easily, heating such good ones as Handicraft, Mainstay and Richmond, the elite of the Norfolk Kennels. He also cleaned out the competition in Toronto last week. Don was recently purchased by Mr. W. Rutherford in England. This is a revival of the Claudian days for the Warren Kennels.

Eastern kennel authorities give the recent Pan-American bench show at Buffalo credit of being a very nice show considering the season of the year. A letter received in this city written by Mr. J. W. Dorian, Vice-President of the California Cocker Club, states that the show was a miserably poor affair. The quality of the dogs at all the Coast shows that the writer had seen was better and in Cockers and St. Bernards the showing was very poor.

In Cockers, Brueside Betty, who was second to Plumeria Fancy here last May, went through her classes to winners. This is rather a hard luck story on our friend Plume, who had staked his faith on Fancy's good showing at Buffalo had she been in health.

New York, it seems, was not very largely represented at the show by exhibitors nor was Boston; Pennsylvania, particularly Pittsburg and Philadelphia, put up the biggest showing; nearly 100 of the dogs were from the two Quaker kennels. The show was not open during evenings.

Fox Terriers at an English Bench Show

A special report by Mr. Harding Cox who judged Fox Terriers at the Darlington Show, England, is replete with interest to every fancier of the Terrier. The report as published in the English Kennel Gazette is one of the best it has been our pleasure to read for a long time. Believing that a good thing should be passed around we give it full:

"It is a long time since I handled these classes, but I was glad of the opportunity offered, to give practical expression to the views which, as is universally known, I have adhered to for over two decades. Before tackling my task it may be as well to explain, as briefly as may be, what those views are. They are, then, on similar lines to those which I expressed when engaged in the Sporting Spaniel controversy. I speak as one who is ready to take a medium course and to avoid extremes. When Spaniels were found to be too long and low, and consequently inactive, there were those who shrieked for light, leggy, half-breed Setters. In the same way, when Fox Terriers were wanted as heeling like bricks with the corners knocked off, and of the Suffolk Punch type, the reactionists, in open rebellion, insisted on their being bred on racehorse lines.

"These enthusiasts seriously aimed at producing Fox Terriers that could live with hounds. To all practical fox-hunters I need hardly point out what an impossible task they had set themselves. No Terrier can live with hounds when heads are up and sterns down; but any Terrier can push along and be ready to do his duty when Joshua goes to ground, before the huntsman can loosen his girths and arrange preliminaries. What has been the general outcome of such tactics? Dead true legs and good feet. True! But cheeks so narrow, sides so flat, couplings so long, hack ribs so short and weak, and loins so wedgy, that the true character and symmetry of the dog has been lost.

"Now, I have always advocated moderation. I do not care for the old-fashioned Terrier of cob build, but I abominate the modern prototype of the thoroughbred race horse. Being as they are, they should be smart at racing, but comparatively useless for the duties which they are supposed to perform. They should be the satellites of the horse and the hound, and should, therefore, be analogous in type. That is to say, the Fox Terrier should be neither coon nor race horse, but a blood-hunter or a miniature Foxhound, except as regards the show qualities of head and ears; nor is bone (as long as it is sufficient) as essential in the Terrier as in the hound.

"When I set to work on the exhibits at Darlington I started, at any rate, with an entirely open mind. None of them were known to me, and the decisions of experts who had preceded me were as a dead letter. I am quite prepared for a howl over my decisions, and no doubt the cognoscenti (good old 'cognoscenti'—a word as comforting to the cypophyllist as Mesopotamia to the old lady) will decree that I made a thorough muddle of the business. What care I? I stick to my own opinions, and judge accordingly, without fear or favor. I overheard one remark which pleased me amazingly. Said a bystander: 'Why, he is going for the type that we admired fifteen years ago!' Could a greater compliment he paid? And now to our mutton!

"In open dogs I selected Mr. Raper's Raby Baron for premier position, because he is the right type, and, according to the scale, drops very few points. He is altogether too small and bitch-like, but he is a perfect little model, teeming with quality; his only fault in conformation being a slight weakness in the saddle. My decision was greeted with derisive smiles, but Mr. Raper subsequently told me he had given the dog a champion prize somewhere or other, and was so pleased with him that he eventually purchased him. What is good enough for George Raper is good enough for me. Raby Baron is by Kibworth Baron, and his blood heing right, he should be a very useful mate for big-boned and even coarse bitches. Second prize went to Blizzard, a remarkably nice Terrier, but a trifle long cast. Third prize I awarded to Flass Flint, by Adam Bede; and here I may be wrong, for the dog is coarse throughout, and shows a too strong development of muscle on the outside of the forearm. But I was attracted by his Terrier character, and his approach to the right type. He is an ideal huntsman's Terrier, and, as such, worthy a place in the prize list.

"In the bitch section I stuck to my guns and in selecting Saltscar Modesty I feel sure I cannot be accused of inconsistency. She is barely nine months old, but, when matured should be the female counterpart of Raby Baron. She is built on a small scale and is certainly a trifle deficient in bone at present, but, if all goes well, six months hence we should see her a high-class bitch, of indubitable merit and quality. Again my friend Mr. Dale was disappointed. Many hold that his Louvaine is the best bitch living, but in my eyes she has one abominable fault, she has a pothook stern, which she carries very low, and which is badly set on, a fault that seems to destroy the character and general symmetry of any Fox Terrier.

"Taking them as a whole, the smooths were not a gaudy lot, and yet such notables as Ridgewood Imperialist, Eagerman and Louvaine had to take back seats. Perhaps I have long ago forgotten about Fox Terriers what others have comparatively lately learned! 'Other times, other tastes!' which is a free translation of a very old but trite Latin proverb.

"If the smooths were disappointing, the wire-hairs came as a revelation. What an open class! Not a single exhibit that was not worthy of challenge or even championship honors! I once thought Champion Royston Remus almost an ideal specimen, but now I found half a dozen to beat him. His was the only face I knew, and here again I had the advantage of starting my labors with an open mind. My eye soon pitched on what I thought would be the eventual winner, and so it proved, after a most thorough and systematic examination or comparative merit. 'What is that dog that I gave first?' I asked. 'Why, King Elf, of course; didn't you know him?' Indeed I did not; I had never seen him before, though his fame had reached my ears often enough of late. He is, indeed, a good one, built on sturdy lines, and without any noticeable fault. Duskie Twitcher made a good second, a high class Terrier, and very nicely shown, especially as regards his forelegs, which I imagine are rather light of bone.

"After these two, the rest could have had their numbers shaken up in a bag and drawn, without anyone being able to cavil at the placings; so level were they, and all good ones. Christopher of Notts, third, is a very hardy, cut and come again customer, with a grand front, but his short cocktail is anything but taking. Bolton Woods Ben, who ran him very hard does not carry his ears close enough, and is chopped off in the quarters, while Mearns Professor, another good one, carries far too much leather. Shamrock is a good little dog of the Oakleigh Topper type, but a hit outclassed here, for if the smooth have deteriorated since the days of Belgrave, wire hairs have made immense strides, and such dogs of my own as the said Champion Oakleigh Topper, Champion Newhow, Champion Toiler Broad, Champion Pythias Broom, etc., etc., with which I used to sweep the boards, would have no earthly chance with such dogs as faced me in the open class at Darlington. Here were no founded or shallow chests, weak hack ribs, wedgy quarters, or drooping sterns! They were all sound, sturdy customers, level in type, and that type the right one, 'which fact I am good to maintain.' Mr. Whitwell showed a nice youngster in Castaway (hy Belfield Baronet), fourteen and a half months old, but singularly immature for his age. If he develops and fills out he will be a good one, but he now looks like a seven-months puppy.
